ROMMEL'S DESERT ARMY SWEEPS INTO OFFENSIVE

CAIRO, May 27 (AP)—The fight for position in the Libyan desert burst into a sudden Axis bid for the initiative today, with a strong armored force sweeping around British positions to Bir Hacheim, 40 miles south of Ain El Gazala, where battle was joined by British tank forces.

(London military commentators said Field Marshal Edwin Rommel's reinforced Nazi desert army had started "an offensive of some sort" but added that it was too early to judge its size. The chance that this was an opening thrust of a Nazi pincer move on the eastern Mediterranean was being watched closely).

The first indication of the Axis push was contained in the usual communique from British headquarters which said Axis columns "including tanks in some strength" advanced eastward yesterday.

By nightfall, the communique said, the Axis forces had not reached the main British positions.

Later a special communique disclosed these additional details:

"During the night a large enemy armored force advanced from west to the south of our position around Bir Macheim. Early this morning the enemy were being engaged by our armored forces. No details of the fighting are yet available."

Bir Hacheim forms the southern part of a rough triangle based upon El Mechil, Rommel's striking base to the northwest, and Tobruk, British coastal base to the northeast.

Plenty of Scouting.

Simultaneous with the flare-up of land fighting the R.A.F. announced a marked increase in aerial activity on a 24-hour-a-day scale.

The R.A.F. communique said Axis landing fields and ground transport vehicles had been bombed and machine-gunned in day and night attacks Monday and Tuesday at El Tmimi, Martuba, and roads leading to Derna.

An earlier war report said Axis planes also had been active.

Rommel was estimated to have about 125,000 German and Italian troops, including one Italian and two German armored divisions, when he last moved forward.

But during the recent lull the British army has received reinforcements equal to those Rommel has obtained, and has been bolstered by armored divisions equipped with 28-ton tanks.

No. 2 Gestapo Executioner Is Wounded

10 Million Crown Reward Offered; Likely To Recover

BERLIN (From Berlin Broadcasts), May 27 — (AP).— Reinhard Heydrich, acting German protector for Bohemia and Moravia, has been wounded in an attempt on his life, DNB reported to-day from Prague.

DNB said Heydrich's wound was not expected to prove fatal. The dispatch did not specify when the attack occurred. It said however, that "a reward of 10,000,000 crowns will be paid for capture of the culprit."

Heydrich, chief aide to Heinrich Himmler, head of the gestapo, is "Protector for Bohemia and Moravia," but recent reports have had him visiting Paris and the Netherlands to take charge of measures to put down revolt.

Fear Mass Slaughters Now

LONDON, May 27.—(AP)—The German-controlled Prague radio announced today that Reinhard Heydrich, German protector for Bohemia and Moravia, had been wounded in a "murderous attack" and threatened terrible reprisals.

A state of emergency was said to have been declared over the entire Nazi-gripped fragment of Czecho-Slovakia and an announcement said:

"Whoever hopes to hide the guilty persons or who gives them any kind of help or security, or secretly withholds any knowledge of the crime, will be executed."

A Czecho-Slovak source here expressed fear that the wounding of Heydrich, No. 2 man of the German Gestapo, would let down the bars for a wave of executions in which Czechs would be slaughtered by hundreds in mass executions of innocent people on a scale unprecedented—

Sending Them Down

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 27—(AP).—An unconfirmed report from Recife today said a United States warship, answering the call for help on May 18 of the Brazilian freighter Commandante Lyra, chased the undersea attacker and is believed to have sunk it.

This was the third enemy submarine reported sunk in waters off Brazil in nine days. American bombers sank one U-boat near Fernando Noronha, about 125 miles off Brazil's northeast coast, last Friday, the pilots declared, and another was reported sent to the bottom yesterday off Recife.

U.S. Supply Chief Reaches London; Big Air Push Due

LONDAN, May 27 — (CP). — Lt.-Gen. Brehon Somervell arrived here to-day to round out the United States military mission conferring with British war chiefs, and London commentators expressed belief a united air assault is planned to blast the way for future Allied landing on the German occupied Continental coast.

Gen. Somervell is Assistant Chief of Staff of the United States Army heading the Supply Division, charged with handling the thousands of tons of food, clothing and munitions needed to keep any expeditionary force in the field.

Brig.-Gens. Leroy Lutes Charles Gross and William Lee accompanied him.

"Plans for a combined Anglo-American attack on the Axis powers are being discussed," the Daily Telegraph said. "It can confidently be predicted that one outcome will be a great intensification of the air attack on Germany from the west."

The Daily Mail said a liaison system "which both the United States and the R.A.F. have stated to be 'wholly acceptable' has been drawn up." providing for separate operation of the air fleets but co-ordination in strategy such as the selection of bombing targets.

The Daily Express said "the Americans have numbers of dive bombers," which many military experts regard as essential to furnish close support for any ground operations in modern war. Britain has few such planes at present.

The United States officers conferred with the corresponding officers in Britain's air, sea and land services.

Chinese Mow 4,500 Japs Down In Day

Batter Back Assault On Kinhwa Chekiang Capital

CHUNGKING, May 27.—(AP).—The Chinese High Command announced that renewed Japanese assaults on Kinhwa, provisional capital of Chekiang province, had been thrown back and that 4,500 Japanese soldiers had died in a single day's fighting for the strategic city.

The Chinese position along the Burma Road was reported greatly improved to-day as the American volunteer group blasted Japanese bases repeatedly without meeting opposition and Chinese troops continued to push the invaders back from the Salween river.

Dispatches from the southwestern front said the Salween formed the extreme limit of Japanese encroachment in Yunnan province and that apprehension they might attempt a lightning offensive toward Kumming, the eastern terminal of the Burma road, had subsided.

Apparently left without effective air protection, the Japanese were hammered Monday and twice yesterday by A.V.G. pilots who caused great damage with their bombs and machine guns at Lungling and Tengyueh, the present advance bases of the invaders.

These bases are 35 and 25 miles back from the banks of the Salween, the high tide of the Japanese adtined to push the invaders back tending their attacks from the northeast of Lungling to the south of that town.

Shaking The Morale

Rome. (From Italian Broadcasts), May 27 (AP)

TWO waves of British bombers dropped high explosives and incendiaries last night upon Messina, Sicily, the Italian high command reported today.

Seven persons were killed and 26 injured, the communique said.

"Clearing of debris is in progress," the high command added. "The behavior of the population was calm and disciplined."

(Morale was reported to have been hit hard in previous British raids on Sicily and southern Italy.)

Testing The Border

CALCUTTA, India, May 27—(CP).—Lt.-Gen. Sir Noel Beresford-Peirse, commander of British forces defending the Ganges delta, announced today that enemy scouting parties were reported moving from the west Burma port of Akyab toward Chittagong, on the Indian side of the border. The general said small groups of native Burmese levies, officered by Japanese, were attempting to test the defences of India's northeastern coastal area. He adedd that Chittagong, 220 miles east of Calcutta and the most easterly important Indian harbor on the Bay of Bengal, now is garrisoned by first line troops.

French Fascist Parade Chased; Laval Juggling

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERNE, Switzerland, May 27—(AP)—A parade of French Fascists at Beziers in unoccupied France was broken up today by Allied sympathizers in a street battle which involved about 1,500 persons, it was reported, as political discussions at Vichy centred on possible adjustment of Italy's extensive territorial demands.

Information from the occupied zone said the fight at Beziers, a town in Southern France near the coast west of Marseille, was ended by police intervention.

The paraders were carrying anti-British and anti-Churchill placards when jeers from people on the sidewalks started the fighting.

Admiral Rene Platon, Secretary of State in the Vichy foreign ministry, made a bitterly anti-British speech at Beziers yesterday.

Reports from Vichy shed little light on the progress toward a settlement with Italy.

Pierre Laval, the chief of government, is continuing talks with Governor-General Jean Esteva of Tunisia and Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of the armed forces.

Previous reports have stated that Laval was tentatively discussing cessions in Tunisia in an effort to satisfy broader Italian claims for Nice and Corsica.

Admiral Esteva arrived in Vichy on an emergency visit yesterday.

Main German Offensive Said Stopped

London Is Skeptical Of Nazi Claims 3 Red Armies Trapped

LONDON, May 27—(CP).—Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's troops have broken through the flank of the German wedge into the Izyum-Barvenkova front 80 miles south of the main Kharkov battle area, Reuters news agency reported today.

Quoting Moscow reports via Stockholm, the agency said that Timoshekno's men were advancing in "an important sector' and that the counter-attack had stopped the main German offensive.

A British military commentator said there is no information here to support a German claim that three Russian armies have been surrounded in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector.

The German penetration in that area is declared to be insufficient to force a Red Army withdrawal from Krasnograd, where the left wing of the Soviet offensive is anchored 65 miles southwest of Ktarkov and about 80 miles west of Izyum.

MOSCOW, May 27 (AP) — The Red Army, fighting with its back to a river, has brought the German offensive in the Izyum-Barenkova sector to a standstill in the most important sector and has gained new ground in immediate counter-attack, the Russians reported today.

Simultaneously the Russian forces about 80 miles northward continued their persistent pounding of the Germans who are clinging to new positions on the Kharkov front.

While the conflict in the Ukraine thus progressed after two furious weeks, the arctic end of the 2,000-mile front also quickened to life.

The Germans renewed their efforts to bomb Murmansk, an entry port for supplies, and fresh Nazi troops were concentrating in the northern sectors.

Red Fleet, Soviet Navy paper, said that six German planes were downed and six damaged in large-scale air battles over the approaches to Murmansk and that land artillery of the Soviet Northern Fleet blasted 11 underground shelters and numerous other winter quarters where Nazi soldiers were massing.

Russian infantry, with artillery and tank support, has taken the slope of a hill dominating the sector and now is fighting at the gates of a village several miles from the starting point, Red Star said.

Italian Sub Quits

FORTALEZA, Brazil, May 27—(AP).—The Italian submarine Pamplona was reported today to have surrendered to authorities at a northeast Brazilian port.

In Rome the high command claimed today that an Italian submarine had hit a United States cruiser with two torpedoes in the Atlantic at dawn Saturday. The warship was identified in the communique as a 9.100-ton cruiser of the Pensacola class, which was said to have been "acting as a convoy escort."

Tinder Dry Bush Aflame Across Manitoba

WINNIPEG May 27.— (CP). — Fires in tinder-dry forests swept across timberlands in Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan today taking heavy property toll.

The village of Clemenceau, Sask., 16 miles south of Hudson Bay junction, was fire-swept, the lamage estimtaed at several thousand dollars.

Other settlements, mostly milling centres, were threatened, and hundreds of men, including soldiers called from an army camp, fought the fast-travelling flames.

In an area extending for 50 miles in all directions from Hudson Bay Junction fires raged, with a pall of heavy smoke sweeping across the countryside

Fire wardens said the damage may run into millions of dollars as the flames take toll of standing timber, lumber, pulpwood and firewood.

No casualties were reported at Clemenceau but the fire destroyed a large mill, a store and several small houses. The loss included a million feet of lumber and a quantity of cut logs valued at $15,000.

Many lumber camps were menaced. Workers in one small camp were only able to save their personal belongings and food by putting them in the centre of a clearing and covering them with blankets, kept wet while the fire passed.

A bear that was being harassed by a dog belonging to one of the fire fighters in the Hudson Bay Junction district, chased the dog up to the owner, where the bear was killed with an axe.

Soldiers fought the flames in the Prince Albert National Park where large timber stands were threatened to-day. The soldiers were sent from Prince Albert yesterday when a call for aid came from park wardens.

Threatens India Anew Warns Russia, Says Japs Have AA's

TOKYO, (from Japanese broadcasts), May 27.—(AP)—Japan's parliament, in a special session formally opened by Emperor Hirohito, was told by Premier Hideki Tojo today that Japan would stay in the fight "until the influence of Britain and America and other dreams of world domination" are wiped out.

"Japan will do her utmost to contribute her share as the partner of Germany and Italy," he declared.

Hirohito, in one of his rare appearances, was in the parliament building for 15 minutes for the reading of an imperial rescript expressing satisfaction at the success of Japanese expeditionary forces.

Gen. Tojo, in his capacity as premier and war minister, and Shigenori Togo, as foreign minister, outlined Japan's position on fighting and diplomatic fronts, with particular reference to Russia, India and Australia.

Of Russia, Foreign Minister Togo said:

"Relations between Japan and the Soviet Union have undergone no change even after the outbreak of war in Greater East Asia."

He added that Russia recently reiterated its intention to continue to observe the Japanese-Soviet neutrality pact.

"With the progress of the war," the foreign minister said, "enemy countries will, I presume, intensify their efforts to alienate Japan and the Soviet Union, but there is no chance for such intrigues to bear fruit so long as the Soviet Union firmly maintains the attitude mentioned."

Of India, Tojo said:

"Since all the outpost bases of the British Empire for defence of India are in the possession of Japan, the golden opportunity is offered to the Indian people to rise and obtain their liberty...

"The unsuccessful negotiations by Sir Stafford Cripps proved that spiritually India already is independent from Great Britain, but as long as British and American troops remain in India Japan is inflexibly determined to annihilate them."

Hopes India Will Rise.

He expressed hope the Indians would eject the Allied troops Otherwise Japanese troops would have to move against the British and Americans there, he said.

"To our regret, it is unavoidable that in the course of such a campaign the innocent Indian people also would be made acquainted with the horrors of war."

Tojo described Australia as the "Orphan in the Pacific" and said she is 'now helplessly expecting Japan's attack after the battle in the Coral Sea wiped away naval units put up for the defence of Australia....."

Australia, he declared, must reconsider her attitude toward Japan or suffer the consequences.

The Premier told the Diet 'there is no cause for apprehension regarding the future supply of food for the people no matter how long

The Department of Education is to provide defence training in Grades 10, 11, 12 and 13 for boys, allowing exemption where continuation schools are operated under the High Schools Act. A correspondence course will be instituted for girls.

Many details of arrangements were outlined such as adequate training of teachers, and assistance from the Government in providing equioment such as rifles, instructional manuals and suitable uniforms or distinguishing markings such as headgear or armbands.

Casualty List Mounts To 673

OTTAWA May 27.—(CP).—Death overseas of six members of the Canadian (Active) Army—including one member of the Canadian garrison force at Hong Kong who died while a prisoner of war—was reported to-day in the army's 107th casualty list of the war.

Another of the six was L Cpl. Leslie Marlow Warr of Edmonton, another member of the Hong Kong garrison force. Army officials said he died last Dec 24, the day before Hong Kong fell to the Japanese, but that the word had just reached Ottawa. Cause of his death was not known.

Two men were listed as dangerously ill overseas and one as seriously ill overseas.

The list raised to 673 the total number of army men officially reported dead and missing since the outbreak of the war.

EXTRA!

OTTAWA.—(CP)—Liberal members of parliament today held a caucus lasting almost three hours and emerged from the caucus room without issuing any statement. Prime Minister Mackenzie King smiled at newspapermen and told them they would have to judge the results of the caucus by the expression on the faces of the Liberal members.

Berlin Uses Her Allies As Smoke Screen

Out To Tie Heavy Allied Forces In Mediterranean, Keep Aid From Russia

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Mediterranean situation is full of unpleasant military possibilities, and it would be be dangerous to disregard any of them. Yet the current dickerings of Germany, Italy and the dismal Vichy "government" of Pierre Laval have created such a smoke-screen of rumor that it may be well to look at the realities as they are known.

These are facts, as separated from futurities:—

Germany: Her primary preoccupapation is and must continue to be Russia. It is, however, to her advantage to immobilize in the western Mediterranean the greatest possible number of United Nations aircraft, warships and machines. Because of her vast needs in the East, Germany wants to do this (a) by a nerve war and by military feints (b) by using the men and equipment of her allies, or vassals, to do as much as the actual fighting as may be necessary.

Given the necessary "collaboration" she could, of course, use the French war fleet to considerable advantage in the Mediterranean, but the report that she is planning to man it with German crews must be accepted with considerable reserve. It must be remembered she has taken no such action with regard to the hideaway Italian battleships. It is not certain, either, that she has either the trained personnel or the oil to spare.

France: Pierre Laval, so far, has actually delivered to the Germans little more than trouble, although that certainly was not this intention. The French generally detest him and regard him with dismay the way his regime has antagonized the United States and brought new territorial demands from the internal resistance to "collaboration." Laval has, in fact, proved at last to France that the Vichy "government" can govern nothing.

The morass into which he is getting, deeper and deeper, has dispelled the myth that Petain labored so hard to maintain: That a Spartan France, even in defeat, could deal on a basis of honor with the Nazi conqueror and hold on to what it had left.

Italy: The Blackshirts' greed for French territory never has been far below the surface; it was, however, shushed by Germany as long as it appeared that Vichy might be able to arouse some popular French support for "collaboration." Whatever Germany will do about it now, there is no doubt of her anxiety to settle the question. It is keeping at least 300,000 well-equipped Italian troops in comfortable mobilization on the French Alps maritimes border, when they might be dying for the "new order" south of Kharkov. It is interesting also that Italy, once vociferous for "Tunisia, Corsica, Nice," now has lost her desire for Tunisia, which the French, probably on German suggestion, hint they are willing to discuss.

Why? Corsica and Nice are lovely, historic resorts, but they have no military or economic importance to Germany. Should the Italians get title, however, they would be pleased to devote their national energies to "occupying" them. But Tunisia—it is practically in the North African battle zone, which is run 100 per cent by the Germans; an excellent route and reservoir of supply for the desert armies in Libya. The Germans can use an "Italian" Tunisia; they can't be bothered with Corsica and Nice. The Italians know it, too.

Slavs Plan Army In Canada

Shape For Day Of Vengeance And Reunion

OTTAWA, May 26 (CP) — While Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch and his elusive Chetniks battle the Nazis in the mountains of their native country the government of Yugoslavia pushes plans for the training of a new army and air force in Canada, to fight the Nazis from the outside.

Dr. Izidor Cankar, first Yugoslav Minister to Canada in an interview with The Canadian Press today expressed appreciation of the hospitality granted by Canada to the forces of his country.

We love freedom as we love life itself. We can be conquered but we can not feel well and we can not keep quiet until we are free.

"Our people have been warned against lightly-provoked sacrifices but they did not care. There is only one fight from the boundaries of Italy to Bulgaria, from the boundaries of Hungary to Montenegro.

"There is the lonely hero Mikhailovitch with his Chetniks but not only Chetniks are fighting. The whole nation is engaged in the fight. The feeling of the Yugoslav National Unity now is mightier than ever."

VICHY AND ROME ARE IN A HUDDLE DICKERING OVER TUNISIA

Suspect Darlan To Have Say About Huns In Fleet As Laval Stalls For Time

Rome's Demands Still Not Ultimatum With Loophole Open For Debate; See Nazis After Fleet If Only For Convoying

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERNE, Switzerland, May 27—(AP).—A huddle of high Vichy officials pointed today to Tunisia, France's North African protectorate, as a possible counter offer to Italy to appease Italian clamor for Nice and Corsica.

Whether France might try to use Tunisia to strike a bargain may rest on the advice of its Governor-General, Admiral Jean Esteva, who arrived in Vichy on an emergency visit yesterday.

He has seen Chief of Government Pierre Laval and is to confer today with Admiral Jean Darlan, commander of Vichy armed forces, and possibly with Marshal Petain.

On the basis of 1938 figures, there were 108,000 Frenchmen and 94,000 Italians among Tunisia's 2,600,000 inhabitants.

However, diplomatic sources said other and perhaps more vital factors than a territorial deal might lie behind Axis pressure.

They mentioned particularly continuing German efforts to reach some understanding on use of the French Fleet—even if for no greater purpose than to convoy North African workers back to the Continent to work for the Axis in French industry.

Dubious of Nazis in Fleet.

Vichy sources, nevertheless, put little faith in London reports that Laval, faced with the German and Italian demands, would permit German sailors aboard France's warships for training.

Darlan would be the final authority for such a concession and observers said France is unlikely to make it because the fleet is her ace in dickerings with the Axis.

Other reliable foreign diplomatic informants felt that the present Fascist pressure was designed as much as anything else to help keep Italian troops at home away from the Russian battlefields.

According to the best-informed diplomatic sources, Italy has not carried her efforts to the ultimatum stage and therefore is presumed to be willing to talk matters over.

One source pointed out that the Italian press, loudest shouter for Nice and Corsica, might reflect influential political opinion in Rome without necessarily speaking for the Government.

He reported that although retreating force on the islands of the Netherlands Indies and in Burma had destroyed large sections of oil fields the work of repair and reconstruction was under way.

As War Minister, Tojo reported that the Japanese army has taken control of an area 2½ times the size of the Japanese Empire. He said Japanese military forces had captured 290,000 troops and shot down or destroyed about 1,800 enemy aircraft. He placed Japan's losses up to April 30 at 9,000 officers and men killed and 20,000 wounded.

He concluded his report with an announcement that anti-aircraft defences in Japan proper had been strengthened.

even in this war."

It was understood here that the shooting occurred in Prague, where Heydrich announced last night, according to a German broadcast, that there would be a reorganization of the administrative set-up.

Czech circles here interperted this as meaning Hitler had decided to incorporate Bohemia and Moravia outright into Germany.

Protest Over Conscription

One Czech source expressed the belief Heydrich had been shot in protest against his order conscripting Czech youths for service in Hitler's army in Russia.

It was on a revolt quelling trip that he went to Bohemia and Moravia in September, 1941. He moved in as acting protector and applied heavy fisted measures which he announced a month later had crushed the unrest in the protectorate.

He declared a state of emergency in the principal cities and executed at least 84 Czechs during his first 48 hours of authority.

For his work there he won, at 36, a special rank of general in the security police.

Roundabout dispatches reaching here later indicated Himmler had appointed him Gestapo Commissioner General in all German-occupied territory.

A BBC account of the affair, heard in New York by CBS, said that citizens of Prague had been forbidden to leave theeir homes between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., and that public baths, cinemas and theatres had been closed and public transport stopped.

"Anyone walking on the streets who does not stop when called upon to do so will be shot immediately," BBC saiad. "Prague radio says that further orders are being drafted."

Mayors Told ARP Salvage Important Job

OTTAWA, May 27 (CP)—Air Raid Precautions, civil defence, urban post-war reconstruction and Wartime Housing were under consideration today as the fifth annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities moved into its second day.

Following Tuesday's statement by Mayor Walter A. Merrill, K.C., of Westmount, Que., that civilian protection is one of the primary duties of the municipalities, Hon. Robert J. Manion, director of Civil Air Raid Precautions, was to address the conference on that subject.

W. J. Scott, director of fire service for the civilian defence committee for Ontario, was to speak on the wartime job of municipal fire departments.

The question of post-war reconstruction in cities was also under consideration, with A. M. Cameron, chairman of the sub-committee on post-war reconstruction projects for the Committee on Reconstruction, scheduled to speak on "cities facing the future."

The housing problem in wartime will be discussed under chairmanship of Mayor W. Garfield Case of Owen Sound, Ont.

In his speech yesterday, Mayor Merrill of Westmount, Que., referred to Air Raid Precautions work and salvage as two of the most important functions of the municipalities. Greatest obstacle facing authorities in trying to establish an efficient A.R.P. system, he said, was the apathy of the Canadian people, who had a false sense of security because they had never been blitzed.

One beneficial result of the war, Mayor Merrill said, was that it had uncovered many cases of tuberculosis among young men when they reported for medical examination for military service. These could be treated before it was too late.

Soldiers To Attend Show On Friday

The Conklin Shows and the Peterborough Kinsmen Club have extended an invitation to Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officer commanding the military training centre here for his officers and men to attend the Conklin Shows on Friday afternoon.

Through the courtesy of the management of the circus and the Kinsmen special consideration will be given the troops Friday afternoon and on behalf of the officers and men Lt.-Col. Keeler has accepted the invitation. The officers and men will put in extra periods of training to make up for Friday afternoon, and the officer commanding today expressed his gratitude for the courtesy extended by the management of the shows and the local service clubs.

The various service clubs of the city, said Lt.-Col. Keeler have always shown a willingness to assist the troops stationed here in any way possible, and the management of the shows, said the officer commanding, have already established an enviable reputation for the special consideration they have extended to members of His Majesty's armed forces in their tour of Canada.

Shows Find Men Difficult To Get

"I don't think we have four men eligible for the Army," Frank Conklin told the Examiner this afternoon in mentioning the difficulties of getting about the country with a carnival show in war time.

"We were hit hard during the first months of the war, in fact just after we left Peterborough back in 1939. Seems a long time ago now. The men who were along with us were naturally an adventurous type, live in the outdoors, and on the move. That's why they were with us. They didn't want to settle down anywhere; not at their age. So the war was something extra special in its appeal to them.

From September to the end of that year at the beginning of the war we lost just about all the men who were of the physical fitness to make them good soldiers. And since then it has given us lots of worry to keep enough men with us. When we came to Peterborough this week we sent along an ad. to the Examiner ahead of us, calling for fifty men to help us unload and set-up and so on. And I might say that the Examiner did the trick for us. We got the full fifty."

Big Tire Dealer Ordered Shut

TORONTO, May 27.— (CP).— Earl Holmes, operator of one of the largest retail tire businesses in Canada, said Monday the Dominion government had issued an order last Friday instructing him to close up his business "lock, stock and barrel."

Mr. Holmes said he had received word that one of the reasons he had been ordered to close was because he used cord for truck tires in passenger tires, contrary to Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations.

"I received the government order at five o'clock Friday evening without any previous warning," said Holmes.

After receiving the closing order, Mr. Holmes said he called Ottawa concerning the disposition of approximately 200 tires left by customers for repairs.

"I received a telegram instructing me to release them immediately," he said.

Mr. Holmes has a staff of 15 employees, but said he will keep them all on full time until definite ruling comes through from Ottawa.

He said he will leave for the capital to-day, accompanied by his solicitor, Senator Salter Hayden.

Members Debate Procedure, Drag Supply Bill

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 27 (CP).—Reform of parliamentary procedure, under fire from many quarters in the House of Commons at this session, today appeared likely to become a subject of formal debates and slow progress.

The procedure problem featured a lively debate in the House yesterday when members ... 2½ hours to pass an interim supply bill. Such bills customarily pass without discussion.

It was raised also by Prime Minister Mackenzie King on the orders of the day when he said, "If we are to get through at all before autumn I think we should begin very soon to make more rapid headway than has been made up to the present time." He suggested some arrangement should be made to speed up action in the House

Finance Minister Ilsley referred to this point when he said that "In my judgment parliament is more and more on trial at the bar of public opinion."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F., House leader, suggested that the rules be amended to conform with the British practice where so much time is allotted to debate a measure and it must be disposed of within the time allowed.

"What good will it do to revise the rule if you do not revise the will to carry on public business?" asked Conservative House Leader Hanson, who placed the onus of delay upon the Government.

Mr. Hanson said he thought the discussion would do some good but he gained his point that the interim supply bill originally introduced by Mr. Ilsley for two months or 1-6 of the main estimates should be reduced to one month or 1-12 of the total

Prime Minister King announced in the House appointment of Senator J. H. King, acting government leader in the Upper House, as minister without portfolio in the Federal cabinet.

Back To Rocks

OSSINING, N.Y, May 27—(AP) —Sing Sing prison's manufacturing department is going on the rocks. Its reserve stock of metal is exhausted and unless the United States War Production Board decides that the prison's output of trash cans is needed in the war effort, the workers probably will have to go back to the traditional penal pastime of making big ones into little ones.

Mrs. D. Wanner Heads Port Hope H. & S.

PORT HOPE, May 27—(ENS). — Mrs. Wanner opened the annual meeting of the Home and School Association with the new pledge, after which Mrs. White read the minutes, which were a review of the year's work and meetings.

Mrs. Austin read the treasurer's report in the absence of her husband. Receipts for 1941-1942, $70.99, this including I.O.D.E. donation of $5, proceeds of a social evening $15.30, the proceeds of a bridge and euchre $16.75, a donation from the Wednesday afternoon bowling club $7.50, the remainder being made up of membership fees and collections.

While the expenditures consisted of membership dues sent headquarters, prizes, caretaker, supplies, advertising, convention and other expenses, making a total of $64.77. Cash on hand $1.4?, cash in bank $4.79.

A membership of fifty paid-up members was reported with an average attendance of forty members at each meeting.

Mrs. Wanner gave a report of the Home and School convention. She stressed the most important things must be decided on in these busy days, but the one common cause is the preparation for citizenship of the children of the schools to carry on the world that will be after the war.

Mrs. Wanner also quoted parts from Prof Curry's address and Captain Lovell at the convention.

Mrs. M. Bryant at this time sang two very fine solos, which were much appreciated. Mr. T. W. Stanley accompanied Mrs. Bryant at the piano.

Mrs. C. M. Thompson then took the chair for the installation of officers.

Mrs. D. Wanner was unanimously elected president, with Mr. Howard Jordon 1st vice-president; Mrs. Moncrief, 2nd vice-president; recording secretary, Mrs. Van Everdingen; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. R. Giffen; treasurer, Mr. Austin; executive: Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Margles, Mrs. Sherry, Mrs. C. White, Miss V. Scott, Mrs. Wilby, Mrs. Plummer, Mrs. Jordon, Dr. Kelly and Mrs. H. Hutchings.

Mrs. Wanner thanked the meeting in a few well-chosen words for the past help which she had received from the executive and the hope that the coming year would be as successful as the past.

Seymour Red Cross Seeking More Funds

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27 (ENS) —A number of articles including an afghan, quilt, and a cord of wood will soon be offered as an inducement to ticket purchasers to help the Campbellford and Seymour branch of the Red Cross. A draw has been arranged by the branch and to attract attention to it the prizes will be placed on display in the window of a Bridge street store it was revealed at the meeting held Tuesday. During the afternoon tickets were drawn on a quilt and this was won by Mrs. A. J. Meyers who returned it to the branch asking that it either be drawn again or sent to British bomb victims. In directing attention to the current drive the secretary re-affirmed that the Red Cross was the only society that is aiding the prisoner of war by direct shipments and added that 80,000 parcels a week were required for this cause.

Women Take Over Guard Duties

Probably the first women to be assigned to guard duty in vital American aircraft plants are shown here as they patrol their beats, attired in snappy uniforms, while men swarm over partially completed machines on the assembly floor of an unnamed factory. Their job is to guard against saboteurs and fires, and to protect workers by keeping a sharp lookout for possible causes of accidents.

Trent Cheese Output Shows 165 Per Cent Increase

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27 (ENS) —Early season production of cheese in this district is running more than sixty-five per cent above that of a year ago according to the latest figures gathered by Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray.

Last week 1165 boxes were graded here as compared to only 702 boxes during the same period last year. With the recognized difficulties of early production it has been something of an honor to be one of the first factories to turn out 94 score cheese, and although this has fallen to senior makers in the past, it was two junior members of the cheese making fraternity who carried off the honor last week. The two men were James Gray of Stanwood and Eli White of Percy Factory, Warkworth.

Harold Factory Leads

Hastings county cheese producers appear to be heading for another record year with the patrons at the new factory at Harold showing the way. This week they began by delivering a daily average of 16,000 pounds with Theodore Cooney on top sending 1,641 pounds and David Cotton next with 812 pounds. Springbrook factory also in Hastings county and two miles north of Harold is getting about 12,000 pounds daily. Here Verne Heath is heaviest shipper with 812 pounds and president George E. Thompson next with 700 pounds. Maple Leaf plant two miles from Springbrook is largest producer getting around 17,500 pounds and Stanley McQuory is leading shipper with 817 pounds and Harry Haslett next with 750 pounds.

Junior Farmers Plan Field Day

The annual meeting of the Durham Junior Farmers' Association was held at Pontypool on Tuesday, with practically all townships well represented.

President Gordon Fallis, Millbrook was in the charge and called for the secretary-treasurer, Garnet Rickard, to read minutes of last meeting and financial statement. Although the finances are still in a reasonably healthy condition the balance is considerably lower than in recent years. Until two years ago a small grant was solicited from each township. It was decided to renew this practice this year in order to carry on the many junior activities satisfactorily.

A brief review of the year's work was then outlined by E. A. Summers. To the surprise of all present it was learned that there are more in Boys' and Girls' Club work in 1942 than in any previous year. Including the Girls' Garden Brigade there are about one hundred and fifty club members well distributed in the various townships.

It was decided to hold the Annual Field Day and Dance at Bethany on Saturday, June 13th. Ball team captains are requested to send their applications to the Department of Agriculture, Bowmanville, not later than Monday June 8th.

In the election of officers, Everett Brown, Orono, was elected president with Allan Beer, Bethany, as 1st vice. Two directors were also appointed for each township.

Red Cross Drive Doubles Objective

PORT HOPE, May 27—(ENS).— The Red Cross campaign up to date has $5,735.00 with still more to come in. This is 50 per cent. more than the last campaign.

The concert on Wednesday night put on by the Girl Guide No. 1 pack and a group of girls under the direction of Mrs. Bryant and Miss Honor Gibson is sure to swell the funds.

IT'S the Italian pilots assigned to the bombing of Malta who need sympathy, instead of the population of the British island in the Mediterranean, according to a broadcast by the Rome radio, part of which was rebroadcast by the BBC.

The Italian spokesman, according to the BBC broadcast heard here today by CBS, described the plight of the Italian bombers as follows: "They are blinded by searchlights, hammered by anti-aircraft fire, pursued and ambushed by fighters. There's no seeing the enemy until he's at close quarters and his guns are already hurling death at our night bombers. It is, indeed, a hard life."

Rationing Comes Closer

The announcements made by Mr. Donald Gordon yesterday of further need for conservation of tea, coffee and sugar brings rationing nearer to Canada. We have been asked to cut our tea consumption in half, to reduce our coffee consumption by one-quarter and to limit ourselves to a half a pound of sugar each every week. This is certainly far from being hardship, but it indicates that the situation is not as good as it was and that the time may soon come when we shall be asked to make real sacrifices.

Although Mr. Gordon made specific suggestions as to the quantities of these commodities which we should use we presume that he expects no more than a noticeable general reduction in the consumption of tea, coffee and sugar. It is clear that the Government does not want to embark on all the tedious and expensive business of rationing until the necessity for it is clear; just at present it contents itself with asking us to be thoughtful in our consumption of scarce goods. We interpret Mr. Gordon's request thus because that is the only way it makes sense. A half a pound of sugar is one cupful, a quantity which would supply a man or woman with enough for his tea and coffee for a week if he used it frugally. That would leave nothing at all for cooking. If the citizen took his tea and coffee without sugar he and his wife would have a pound at the end of the week — enough to make a cake. But as things stand at present there is nothing in the world to prevent the citizen from gobbling his sugar as he pleases and buying all the cake he likes at the confectioner's shop. Similarly his wife may use her sugar in her tea and buy her jam at the grocer's, instead of frugally making her own.

As long as these evasions are legally possible the Government need hardly expect the public as a whole to pay much attention to its food conservation schemes. We have been asked to cut down on our consumtion of certain things and we shall do so, but if the situation is to become serious we shall have to have rationing as the only fair means of apportioning the supplies which exist.

The Simple Life

A gentleman who recently addressed the Ontario Academy of Osteopathy apparently thinks that rationing and wartime restrictions are going to lead us back to the simple life, where high blood pressure and nervous indigestion are no more. He particularly welcomes the necessity for walking which has arisen from gasoline rationing. A recent poll in the U.S. showed that 43 per cent. of adult Americans do no more walking than is necessary in the course of their work, and that 48 per cent. take no exercise at all. This the speaker regarded as a lamentable condition.

We cannot entirely agree with him. The fuss about exercise is of comparatively recent growth. Our ancestors never thought about the matter. They avoided exercise as much as they could, drank and ate to excess, slept with their windows closed, and lived to immense ages. True, they were apt to become gouty and irascible, but they showed more vitality in their illnesses than many of their descendants show in their health.

We maintain stoutly that the spirit of a man is the important thing, and that whether he walks twelve miles a day or habitually rides in a wheelchair is a matter of secondary importance. A nation which fusses too much about its health is not prudent, but merely hypochondriacal. We do not care whether a man rides in a car or walks, so long as he is going some place; if he is about our business, however, we would rather that he rode. It may not be so healthy, but it is quicker. Let us avoid these sudden demonstrations of affection for the simple life; they do not come naturally to us.

Reminding The Public

Recently a British Columbia M.P. expressed his surprise that companies which manufactured rubber tires when those articles were still available should continue to advertise in wartime, when they had no goods for sale. There is really nothing surprising about it; it is merely a demonstration of practical wisdom.

The public has a short memory and the man who has something to sell must always be jogging that memory. If, for some reason, he no longer has anything to sell he will be wise to keep right on jogging the public's memory all the same. Then, when he has his goods to sell again, he will not find himself forgotten.

Advertising, although it is sometimes abused, has become a real factor in modern business, and it is folly to try to get along without it. The Government recently demonstrated the power of advertising when it asked this country for a loan of six hundred millions and received nine hundred millions; it advertised wisely and effectively, although its total expenditure with the press was less than one per cent. of the sum raised. Nowadays, when people have so many things to remember, they are more than likely to forget the man who neglects to advertise.

A Man Of Blood

The stories which continue to find their way out of Europe point more and more clearly to a coming break-up in the Nazi order. No system which is founded upon rank injustice can last for long, and Hitler, who is anything but a fool, must know this. But when men are hard-pressed they often forget what they know and fall into the familiar errors of antiquity. A tyrant who finds himself insecure becomes increasingly tyrannous, even when he realizes that such a course will lead to his eventual destruction. The wholesale killing and looting in Europe can have but one end, and that end cannot be far distant.

A highly respected Associated Press correspondent has recently cabled from Europe the startling information that almost 400,000 men and women have been slain by the Nazis in Europe, not in battle, but in purges meant to reduce their countrymen to submission. At present there are 175,000 people under sentence of death through the "hostage" system; these wretches must live in daily dread that they will be killed to expiate some anti-German act with which they have no connection whatever. The New Order has proved to be nothing but the order of the firing squad.

The looting of Europe, according to the same informant, has been on a grand scale. In cash and goods the equivalent of thirty-six billions of dollars has been transferred to Germany, and it is estimated that this is sufficient to pay for all the seven years of German re-armament.

Hitler has long preached that his wars would be humane wars, violent while they lasted and quickly over. It is possible that he once believed this, but if he did so he must be a man of painfully limited vision. Once a war has been begun no man can control it; war makes a toy and a dupe of the aggressor as well as the defender. Hitler may have deceived himself before the war that he was really a savior of Europe, but now he must know himself for a man of blood, in no important way distinguishable from all the brigands in history who have sought to achieve what they believed to be good ends by what they well knew to be bad means.

Teachers Wanted

About this time of year we like to read the "Teachers Wanted" Advertisements in the Toronto papers, Toronto apparently being the educational clearing-house for the Province. In the first place, we are always astonished by the number of teachers who are wanted; in the second place we are astonished by the things they are expected to know; in the third place, we are astonished — not to say flabbergasted—by the salaries upon which some of them are expected to live and support the dignity of learning.

It is a little surprising, also, to read of a school wanting a teacher who can teach either Art or Agriculture. This opens an interesting train of speculation. Suppose an Agriculture specialist is chosen; will all the children then be seized with a desire to go on the land? Of if the chosen candidate should teach Art, will a horde of little Rubenses and Ary Scheffers swarm over the neighboring countryside? It is hard to see how a teacher who was really good at her job could fail to produce one or the other of these results. Another school wants a female genius to teach English, "history throughout," business practice, home economics and girls' physical culture! What a variety of talents to expect in one mortal woman!

The Cinderella subjects, the reader deduces from a study of these cryptic advertisements, are Art and Music. If a teacher knows them, well and good, but if she does not no great harm is done. We doubt the wisdom of attempting to teach Art (by which we presume that drawing and a little water-coloring is meant) and Music (which can be little more than the learning of a few songs and listening to a few gramophone records) under these circumstances. Both these subjects fare badly enough when they are taught by experienced masters; what must become of them when they are attacked by the holder of a "certificate!"

The matter of salaries is a melancholy one and we have no wish to open it here. We remark, merely, that some of those listed appear to us to be much too low to be offered to the instructors and guardians of the young. People engaged in work requiring almost no intelligence at all are better paid.

A Moral Offensive

What we believe to be excellent sense is contained in an article by Count Carlo Sforza in a recent copy of The Nation. This is what he says:

"What I have in mind when I speak of a moral offensive is something infinitely more important than radio broadcasts and leaflets citing Garibaldi's love for England and the United States. What is needed is not only appeals but commitments from those democratic leaders on whom Europe's millions rely for deliverance. New proof of this was given to me a few weeks ago, when I received responses solicited from Italians in Italy in boadcasts of mine discussing the Atlantic Charter. 'Yes, you may be right,' the answers ran. 'You are certainly right in believing in Roosevelt's generous and humane intentions. But why are we not told by the chiefs of the democracies what they think of the future of Italy? To raise volunteers, to risk our lives, to risk much more, our honor, we must be sure that we are serving the cause of a free Italy and a free world.'...Everyone knows that Roosevelt considers this a people's war that must end in a people's victory. What will happen in Italy—where nobody believes any longer in Fascism—in France, in Spain; what will happen in the hearts of all the martyred masses of Europe, from Norway to Poland to Serbia and Greece, on the day Franklin Roosevelt rises and in the name of the greatest democracy in the world not only affirms the principles of freedom, but puts forward a concrete program for achieving it?"

The truth in this is clearly discernible. Italy is sick of war and sick of Mussolini and his fascist regime. Stories coming from Italy every day confirm this. Italy is the weak spot of the Axis. By concentrating what this writer calls a "moral offensive" upon that quarter it might be possible to provoke an outbreak which would overthrow the present regime and give Hitler the extra bit of trouble which he cannot afford now. But such an offensive can only be effective if it offers the Italians something for which they are willing to risk their necks.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Field-Marshal and former Air Marshal Goering has complained that this is the hardest war Germany has had to fight. Well, who started it?

Mr. D. C. Coleman very generously says that his early work on a newspaper gave him some of the background for his success as a servant of the C.P.R., of which line he has just become president. Unfortunately for newspapermen in general, there are only two railways in Canada.

Many of those who urge the immediate opening of a second front in Europe keep harping on the fact that Opportunity knocks but once. But, says the Kingston Whig-Standard, if you open the door too hastily while Opportunity is still knocking, the result may be a knock-out—for you!

The Ottawa Journal, in a contemplative mood, expresses the wish that the restriction of this war may teach us "that civilization and the joy of living doesn't consist of a host of gadgets and that the happiest home isn't always the one with the biggest and shiniest car before its door." Judged by the standards of our modern world this is stark anarchy. But the Examiner shares the Journal's wish that the people of this continent may be turned from their worship of the Chromium Calf before it is too late.

RECEIVING A PRESSED ROSE

By the bright distillation of this rose
Shall I recapture Summer, taste the Summer
Of honey on the lips and be as those
Who feed on faith and gather from the ember
Of lost flame sudden solace, and who find
Beyond the dark enigmas of the brain,
When credos fail and they are stricken blind,
A faitb by which the heart may live again.

Beyond astute statistics, computations
Of facts and figures shall this attar stand,
Symbol of that which does not know cessation,
By this small pinch of dust within my hand,
Though it be but an omen and a kernel,
We find the living truth which is eternal.

Farming News And Views for Ontario Farmer

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE hardest task master any farmer has to operate under is the weather, in fact this is the greatest handicap to the tilling of the soil. How often when we get a few fine warm days in early Spring we hear the comment, "We'll pay for this later on." We have now had cold nights, and frosts in many places to remind us that our 80 degrees weather was a bit out of place. While this is true the early warm days for seeding are all to the good. The seed was in the ground, most of it sprouted when the cold came, and early seeding is always counted best. We will get good roots on our grain plants and if some are nipped with the frost we need not have too much anxiety. The grass is coming along fine and the showers on the 12th of May growing warmer as they did in the afternoon compensated for the cold nights which we had previously. Let us just hope the frosts are past and we'll be lucky. We have many fine fruit districts in Ontario and some complaints have come in of strawberries being injured. The blossoms were promising on cherries and most of the other fruit tree and the blossoms were exceptionally early. A good fruit crop this year will be very welcome, and one reason is we may have a butter shortage.

It has been announced that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is arranging to have supplied to farmers feeding-type molasses for use in putting up insilage. This molasses is used on alfalfa or other green clovers when ensiled. The molasses improves the feeding content of the ensilage, assists in preserving clover ensilage and altogether makes a very fine green feed for milking cows or young cattle through the winter. Grass is the ideal ration for cattle, and this ensilage is preserved grass to make feeding in winter as near to summer grazing as possible.

We may find protein feed a little scarcer and dearer for dairy cows before another winter has passed. We have purchased such feed in quantities in past years, but not only will it likely cost more but shipping facilities are going to get more difficult. As gas and tires grow scarcer the delivery of feeding stuffs is going to be more difficult and shipment by truck for long distances impossible. Railways are going to be compelled to give shipment of war materials and food the preference at all times and we will have to depend upon home grown products for our farm animals.

Britain has gone all out for grass ensilage to displace feed formerly imported. An objective of 3 million tons of ensilage was made in Britain for last year, but with the nation's bread taking 85 per cent of the wheat, there is a still further reduction of feed for the beasts and so an objective of 4 million tons of ensilage, mostly made from grass is being aimed at. It is estimated that the loss of milling offal, as a result of the new bread, will amount to 700,000 tons. This will bear more heavily on pigs and poultry as their feed cannot be supplemented by silage. The pig population of England before the war, was estimated at 4 millions. It is now not much over 1½ millions.

WITH regard to the yield of grass for ensilage in England the University of Leeds has recently published a booklet showing grass in Yorkshire yielding 16 tons per acre. This is a tidy weight of even green grass produced one year on an acre of land. The season is longer in England than in Canada and last year a good deal of grass was cut for ensilage as late as October.

J. A. Fox who farms Enholmes, in Yorkshire, has 4 silos with a capacity of 45 to 50 tons each, and plans to have 10 more up by August with a capacity of 400 to 500 tons. On all his farms this year he plans to put up 1,000 tons of grass ensilage to help him meet the demands of war. This is an effort to meet the present demand but British farmers have the future always in mind.

After war agriculture is therefore, already receiving many suggestions from leaders in the Old Land. Mr. Thomas Johnston, Secretary of State for Scotland, has been asking for opinions as to what should be the position of agriculture in the economic and social structure of Great Britain after victory in the war, and what should be the general policy of the state in relation to agriculture and rural life. Among the replies he has received is that of Joseph Duncan, secretary of the farm laborers national union, who declares for state ownership of the land with the farmers as tenants of the nation itself. This is not a new suggestion as Lord Addison, a former British Minister of Agriculture published a book some months ago, in which he was all out in his advocacy of public ownership of the land. The taking over of a number of farms by the government, and their operation for greater war production, has given a good deal of strength to the advocacy of government ownership of all farming land for the producing of the nation's food.

Major James Keith favors the adoption of a long-range policy of fair prices and state insistence of a high standard of farm management. Several members of an important committee advocate the continuance of the Agricultural Executive Committees which have had charge of the war efforts in agriculture. Professor James Hendrick proposes that Britain should learn from the Russians and experiment with large collectives farms. Then comes a seven word suggestion from Mrs. MacLeod, of the Isle of Skye, Flora MacLeod of MacLeod, "Individual ownership, state leadership, an equal chance."

Even these few suggestions are comprehensive enough to prove discussions which will arouse farming Britain to the gravest consideration that has ever been given to plans for the farming of British soil for the greatest good to the people. Never has farming been recognized to its full value as it is in Britain at this time of the country's peril. The year of famine, hunger and want over the face of Europe is making the production of food upon a farming plan which will last, a great world problem.

Farmers have done a good job in producing cheese and at prices which are fair compensation. The gradings of cheese for Ontario and Quebec for the week ending May 9th showed over three times the number of boxes as for the same week last year. Since the first of December the gradings in the same two provinces were over four times what they were during the same time last year. In spite of the large output there was very little on offer as it will mostly go to Britain. The result was that new cheese sold at 21 cents, which when the bonuses are added makes a good price.

The gratifying feature is that Britain is calling for cheese and Canada is responding to that call. Cheese is good sustaining food, one of the best, and is easy of shipment because of its condensed form. With Australia and New Zealand in a Pacific war with Japan their contribution of cheese to Britain will suffer which makes it highly important for Canada to so greatly increase her cheese output.

The creameries are doing a good job also in butter, much of which we need for the thousands of men who are now and will be in training in Canada. The powdered milk is doing a good job and the whole dairy industry in Canada may be said to be working under pressure and the fine herds of dairy cows bred in Canada during the last decade are required now to do their best.

The Toronto cattle market is quite encouraging to feeders and grazers and with heavy steers going to $11.75 on May 13th, and one outstanding bullock selling for $12 per cwt. on that date, the outlook seems to be good for the beef business. Fed calves reached $12 on the same date so the demand for baby beef is still strong. Spring lambs are bringing up to $13 each, veal calves $15 per cwt. for the tops. Fat cows had a top of $9.50, bulls $9, with heifers up to $10.75 and light steers $11.

Whatever price fixing has been done seems to have been arranged rather well considering the difficulties in the way.

Reports from different parts of the province indicate some frost damage to alfalfa and other forward crops.

TAKE IT SAM, LET HIM DO THE WORRYING

—St. Louis Star-Times.

• The Red Cross Clinic

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—At the concluding dinner at the Empress Hotel Friday evening last, which was called for the purpose of hearing the results of the campaign for the Red Cross and Community Fund, it was brought directly and forceably to the members of the executive of the local branch of the Red Cross, by very responsible citizens, that they had been told by other just as responsible citizens, that they knew positively the Red Cross was going to spend $20,000.00 on remodeling the old Metcalfe Battery Station, in the Fitzgerald Block on Brock street, in which to establish the much needed Blood Donor Clinic for this city and district.

In fairness to the hundreds of citizens who contribute to the funds of the Red Cross Society and believe in the work it is doing, we are giving the facts concerning the undertaking.

To undertake to get a minimum of 2,000 square feet of floor space on the ground floor, centrally located for bus transportation, the committee found impossible other than the building selected. As an alternative all the second floor space available was looked over and anything any where near suitable was found to be without, or provision made for, heating or plumbing, and in most instances required using rooms on a third floor up, which is out of the question, for a Blood Donor Clinic. Again, before the place selected was finally decided upon, house properties were gone into, with a view of purchase or rental and in all cases the cost was greater than the present undertaking and from many angles not as suitable.

Dr. Caldwell representing the Red Cross National Committee, came to Peterborough on request, and looked into the matter and recommended the building that will be used.

Now as to the cost of renovating the building. The following are the figures that have been accepted and include fixtures of every kind with the exception of the lighting fixtures. The manner of connecting the furnace has not been definitely decided, but the whole cost to put the plant in operation, compares no higher in cost than some, less than others, and more, naturally, than in some other cities where the building has been donated to the Red Cross for the purpose.

THE FIGURES

For supplying all labor and material required to erect partitions, instal new windows and ventilators, wash down all walls and ceiling, and paint, three coats, all walls, ceilings and partitions. Prepare floor ready for finish the sum of $1,212.

For supplying and installing two closet combinations, three eighteen by twenty wash basins, with N.P. basin taps and traps, four, 20 x 30 Roll Rim sinks with N.P. sink taps with loose flanges. Also one No. 30 range boiler to be installed and ready for gas heater, ½ inch hot and cold water lines to be carried to above mentioned fixtures and a hot water tap to be installed on basin in existing wash room. The system installed to conform to city plumbing by-laws and to connect to existing drainage in Copping building, for the sum of $587.

For supplying all labor and material necessary to wire for outlets as per plans prepared by Mr. John T. Hornsby the sum of $115.

This makes a total of $1,914, but does not include what expense is necessary to connect the furnace and boiler for which we have allowed $150 and this amount may be less or more according to what is necessary.

If the above details are gone into thoroughly it will be found that the greater part of this work would require to be done in any building selected. All the partitions are necessary as there are a dozen separate rooms established in the one large area, and in practically all the other properties, partitions would have to be taken out in addition to the new ones put in.

All the plumbing and all the lighting would also have to be installed to conform to the layout that is demanded for the proper carrying on of the Clinic.

Any building would require to be thoroughly cleaned and painted.

From the above explanation it will be seen that the money actually spent on the building is a very small percentage of the total and would require to be spent on any other building. Against the expenditure the owner has allowed two months rental.

If the party or parties who made the original statement, that the amount to be spent on the building would reach $20,000, care to check over the tenders received, which were advertised for, most prominently in the "Examiner" they can be seen by getting in touch with Mrs. C. J. Ray, phone 8633, and it is felt that after investigation, and if the facts are found by them to be as outlined above, they should correct the impression that have left on citizens, of extravagance on the part of the Red Cross, Blood Donor Clinic Committee.

When the Clinic is ready to operate no greater service will have been attempted by the local branch of the Red Cross Society and no greater sacrifice can be made by those of our citizens who qualify, other than joining the active Service Forces, than by giving a pint of their blood at designated periods, for the saving of lives of our men overseas.

Mr. Editor, we thank you for the space given us, but we feel it is necessary to correct the statement made as it would have a very demoralizing effect on well wishers and supporters of the Red Cross and on its members as well, if this was not done.

C. E. COLLINS,
R. M. GLOVER,
For the Building Committee

Laborites Want Assurance People's Peace

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, May 27—(CP Cable). —Plans for the post-war world in which there must be no return to unplanned competitive society received the approval of the Labor Party's annual conference yesterday.

Delegates adopted the executive committee's resolution asserting that socialization of the country's basic industries and services and planning of production for community consumption are the only lasting foundation for a just and prosperous economic order.

The resolution added that measures of Government control needed for mobilizing national resources in war are no less necessary for securing their best use in peace and must be maintained after final victory is won.

Prof. Harold Laski, moving the resolution, declared "It is time we left no one in doubt about the principles for which we are fighting."

Hitlerite Germany, Fascist Italy, and Militarist Japan had to be utterly overwhelmed, Prof. Laski said. But they must be overwhelmed for the ends through which enduring peace would be assured together with "a social order in which the purposes of state power are the consistent and continuous elevation of the common man."

Mr. Churchill, Prof. Laski said, must stand by the people of Britain not only in their war against vested interests abroad, but also in their war against vested interests at home.

The conference also adopted a resolution urging on the Government the need to co-ordinate all transport under national ownership.

Arthur Deakin, acting general secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, in moving the resolution made it clear that the party is not asking immediate establishment of a National Board of Control.

24 Men From Curve Lake Reserve Serving In Army

Twenty-four of the 324 people of the Curve Lake Reserve are in the army, Chief Dan Whetung told the Examiner today. It was just a casual remark relating to the absence of young men who at this season of the year are usually getting ready for the summer's fishing and guiding around the waters of Chemong and Buckhorn Lakes and Deer Bay.

Some of the Indian boys enlisted, and probably others were called into the service. Chief Whetung did not volunteer any definite information as to the proportion of voluntary recruits. The young men of both the Curve Lake and Hiawatha communities had a good record in the last war, and their sons are carrying on that tradition in the present struggle.

One person in uniform out of every eight in the old settlement is a response that kindles a feeling of pride throughout the Reserve, the satisfaction that they are doing their part in the nation's effort, holding up their end of the boat in a difficult portage.

Expects Fewer Tourists

"The young fellows won't miss much until its all over, and they're not thinking about that any way," the Chief said. "The older men may get some guiding this year, and they can count themselves lucky if they do. I had a letter the other day from one man who said he was going to do his best to get away for a little vacation with us. He asked for one of the boys who is now in the army to guide him, but he will have to take some one else. Another man from the Detroit section wrote that he had practically made up his mind not to venture to our place. He said he did not think he could make twenty-four gallons of gasoline do for his trip through Ontario, and he would probably try to get some fishing in Michigan.

Some of the resorts have usually had more Canadian visitors than American, and they may do fairly well this season, but the industry on the whole may run into a lean year, and we'll just have to take it the way other people do."

Knows Harry Giddings

Chief Whetung said he felt fairly certain after an event of last Saturday that he could count on a certain Oakville sportsman arriving late in the fall for the duck hunting season, if he can't get away for a few days in the meantime.

"That's Harry Giddings, the man who won the King's Plate at the Woodbine Saturday. That good three-year-old of his, Ten to Ace, was an easy winner, and the money Mr. Giddings got out of it was something like $6,500. He usually comes up for the duck shooting with Dr. Black after the Canadian tracks are closed, and we'll certainly be glad to have the King's Plate winner with us this year, if Mr. Giddings can make the trip."

Chief Whetung said the frogs' legs season would be ended this week.

"I've seen as much as 400 pounds a night caught, but the most this season was 100 pounds. The catch this season fell off because of so many of the young men being in the army. One of the women brought in forty pounds just a few days ago."

So the women at Curve Lake in their own way are doing some of the work the men look after in normal years.

A Mudcat Pond

Catching and cleaning mudcats for sale in the city has been a recent seasonal job. Local stores helped substantially in retailing this supply, "and that is something we appreciate very much," Chief Whetung added.

The Chief is making a stocking experiment of his own of late, a mud cat pond.

"There might be 500 in it. In other years the boys managed to cage them along the shore, but with high water and a lot of rain this pond is full of water. Last summer it went dry, but this is another year and it might stay with us."

Raboul And Lae Kept Battered

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia May 27—(CP). — Allied bombers shot their way through interception squadrons to blast again yesterday at Japanese airdromes at Rabault, New Britain, and Lae, Ne Guinea, it was announced Tuesday.

Gen. Douglas McArthur's headquarters said four Japanese planes were shot down, two on each foray. One Allied plane was lost in combat in the Lae raid, where heavy anti-aircraft fire and a strong fighter force were encountered.

For the second time within 24 hours, the Vunakanau airdrome and its installations were the targets at Rabaul.

"Aircraft on the ground were damaged and large fires were started in the building area," said the communique, which made no reference to Japanese offensive activity.

At the same time, it was announced the crash of a plane in Central Australia early yesterday killed several United States army soldiers, including an officer, and an Australian Flight Lieutenant and non-commissioned officer.

The crash was attributed to motor failure.

Names of the victims were not disclosed here.

Air Minister Arthur Drakeford announced that many R.A.A.F. fliers had been recalled from other war theatres to strengthen the Allied defenders of Australia.

This, he said, was another sign of Australia's gradual acquisition of power to resist the enemy.

"We used to dare teachers and friends to tell us apart. But that was before we made a tooth powder test. Lucky me! We flipped a coin and I won Pepsodent. Bernadette chose another leading brand."

"Who'd have thought it would be so noticeable! Everyone remarked about it. My teeth became twice as bright as Sister's. Even Dad marvelled that Pepsodent made such a difference...so Pepsodent's the choice of the whole family now!"

FITZGERALD TWIN TEST CONFIRMS THIS FACT: INDEPENDENT LABORATORY TESTS FOUND NO OTHER DENTIFRICE THAT COULD MATCH THE HIGH LUSTRE PRODUCED BY PEPSODENT. BY ACTUAL TEST . . . PEPSODENT PRODUCES A LUSTRE 32% BRIGHTER THAN THE NEXT LEADING BRAND!

For the safety of your smile . . . use Pepsodent twice a day . . . see you dentist twice a year.

R.C.A.F. Trains Modern Annie Oakleys

Phyllis Mowat of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) draws a bead on the target during rifle practice at Dunnville, where the girls are being taught how to use firearms. Their instructors claim that they are natural shots.

24 Men From Curve Lake Reserve Serving In Army

Twenty-four of the 324 people of the Curve Lake Reserve are in the army, Chief Dan Whetung told the Examiner today. It was just a casual remark relating to the absence of young men who at this season of the year are usually getting ready for the summer's fishing and guiding around the waters of Chemong and Buckhorn Lakes and Deer Bay.

Some of the Indian boys enlisted, and probably others were called into the service. Chief Whetung did not volunteer any definite information as to the proportion of voluntary recruits. The young men of both the Curve Lake and Hiawatha communities had a good record in the last war, and their sons are carrying on that tradition in the present struggle.

One person in uniform out of every eight in the old settlement is a response that kindles a feeling of pride throughout the Reserve, the satisfaction that they are doing their part in the nation's effort, holding up their end of the boat in a difficult portage.

Expects Fewer Tourists

"The young fellows won't miss much until its all over, and they're not thinking about that any way," the Chief said. "The older men may get some guiding this year, and they can count themselves lucky if they do. I had a letter the other day from one man who said he was going to do his best to get away for a little vacation with us. He asked for one of the boys who is now in the army to guide him, but he will have to take some one else. Another man from the Detroit section wrote that he had practically made up his mind not to venture to our place. He said he did not think he could make twenty-four gallons of gasoline do for his trip through Ontario, and he would probably try to get some fishing in Michigan.

Some of the resorts have usually had more Canadian visitors than American, and they may do fairly well this season, but the industry on the whole may run into a lean year, and we'll just have to take it the way other people do."

Knows Harry Giddings

Chief Whetung said he felt fairly certain after an event of last Saturday that he could count on a certain Oakville sportsman arriving late in the fall for the duck hunting season, if he can't get away for a few days in the meantime.

"That's Harry Giddings, the man who won the King's Plate at the Woodbine Saturday. That good three-year-old of his, Ten to Ace, was an easy winner, and the money Mr. Giddings got out of it was something like $6,500. He usually comes up for the duck shooting with Dr. Black after the Canadian tracks are closed, and we'll certainly be glad to have the King's Plate winner with us this year, if Mr. Giddings can make the trip."

Chief Whetung said the frogs' legs season would be ended this week.

"I've seen as much as 400 pounds a night caught, but the most this season was 100 pounds. The catch this season fell off because of so many of the young men being in the army. One of the women brought in forty pounds just a few days ago."

So the women at Curve Lake in their own way are doing some of the work the men look after in normal years.

A Mudcat Pond

Catching and cleaning mudcats for sale in the city has been a recent seasonal job. Local stores helped substantially in retailing this supply, "and that is something we appreciate very much," Chief Whetung added.

The Chief is making a stocking experiment of his own of late, a mud cat pond.

"There might be 500 in it. In other years the boys managed to cage them along the shore, but with high water and a lot of rain this pond is full of water. Last summer it went dry, but this is another year and it might stay with us."

Raboul And Lae Kept Battered

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia May 27—(CP). — Allied bombers shot their way through interception squadrons to blast again yesterday at Japanese airdromes at Rabault, New Britain, and Lae, Ne Guinea, it was announced Tuesday.

Gen. Douglas McArthur's headquarters said four Japanese planes were shot down, two on each foray. One Allied plane was lost in combat in the Lae raid, where heavy anti-aircraft fire and a strong fighter force were encountered.

For the second time within 24 hours, the Vunakanau airdrome and its installations were the targets at Rabaul.

"Aircraft on the ground were damaged and large fires were started in the building area," said the communique, which made no reference to Japanese offensive activity.

At the same time, it was announced the crash of a plane in Central Australia early yesterday killed several United States army soldiers, including an officer, and an Australian Flight Lieutenant and non-commissioned officer.

The crash was attributed to motor failure.

Names of the victims were not disclosed here.

Air Minister Arthur Drakeford announced that many R.A.A.F. fliers had been recalled from other war theatres to strengthen the Allied defenders of Australia.

This, he said, was another sign of Australia's gradual acquisition of power to resist the enemy.

Laborites Want Assurance People's Peace

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, May 27—(CP Cable). —Plans for the post-war world in which there must be no return to unplanned competitive society received the approval of the Labor Party's annual conference yesterday.

Delegates adopted the executive committee's resolution asserting that socialization of the country's basic industries and services and planning of production for community consumption are the only lasting foundation for a just and prosperous economic order.

The resolution added that measures of Government control needed for mobilizing national resources in war are no less necessary for securing their best use in peace and must be maintained after final victory is won.

Prof. Harold Laski, moving the resolution, declared "It is time we left no one in doubt about the principles for which we are fighting."

Hitlerite Germany, Fascist Italy, and Militarist Japan had to be utterly overwhelmed, Prof. Laski said. But they must be overwhelmed for the ends through which enduring peace would be assured together with "a social order in which the purposes of state power are the consistent and continuous elevation of the common man."

Mr. Churchill, Prof. Laski said, must stand by the people of Britain not only in their war against vested interests abroad, but also in their war against vested interests at home.

The conference also adopted a resolution urging on the Government the need to co-ordinate all transport under national ownership.

Arthur Deakin, acting general secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, in moving the resolution made it clear that the party is not asking immediate establishment of a National Board of Control.

COBOURG COLLEGIATE STUDENTS SET NEW RECORDS AT FIELD DAY

Two New Marks Are Set By Bill Maize

COBOURG, May 27.—(ENS)—Three new marks were set up in the boys' events at the annual Cobourg Collegiate Field Day. Some of the field events were held last week and the track events were held Tuesday. The senior broad jump and senior pole vault will be held on Thursday afternoon, weather permitting. Bill Maize broke the intermediate broad jump record of 18 feet, 11¾ inches by setting up a new mark of 19' 1". Maize also broke the intermediate hop, step and jump with a new mark of 38' 10", the old record being nine inches shorter. Jim Wallace set up a new record in the senior 800 by lopping off 5 and 1-5 seconds from the old mark of 2 minutes, 16 and 1-5 seconds.

In the girls' events, the field day took the form of team competition in which all the girls took part. As the gasoline restrictions have ruled out the district meet this year, it was not necessary to hold track and field competitions in the junior, intermediate and senior classes. Consequently instead of the outstanding athletes taking of all the top honors, the 125 girls taking part in yesterday's field day, shared alike in the team competitions. The events started off with a posture parade, followed by relay games. Preliminaries for the 75-yard dash and the 75-yard relay dash were held after the relay games. The team games consisted of Danish rounders, soccer, snatch the ball, dodge ball, Indian handwrestle, Indian slapwrestle, bowling between clubs. The girls also did the heel click, stiff leg bend, knee dip and horizontal stand.

The various teams were identified by colors. Officials were Miss H. Grimmon, Miss M. Rickard, Miss D. Lean, Miss R. Bland and Miss H. Davey. The physical instructress is Miss Jean Patterson.

Remember When—

Primo Carnera, Italian giant of the boxing ring and former world heavyweight boxing champion, tottered to his corner and conceded a 10-round heavyweight boxing bout to Leroy Haynes, Philadelphia negro, at Brooklyn six years ago tonight. The mammoth Italian suffered a temporary paralysis in his right leg in the ninth round. Haynes was ahead on points.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Softball fans and City League officials are hoping for weather conditions tonight that will allow the loop schedule, now held up nearly a week, to be resumed. The Juvenile team is slated to meet the Adam Hat Royals at the Bowl at 7 o'clock sharp and the youngsters promise to throw a scare into the ranks of the league leaders. They claim that they were nervous their first night out against the Military Training Centre team but now that they have taken the plunge are ready to face the Royals and make them battle for the decision. Incidentally there will be a lot of color to tonight's fixture if the Royals wear their new sweaters. They are the same hue as the shirts the firemen used to wear in the good old days of volunteer brigades and when they line up on the bench a short-sighted customer is likely to get the impression that a bush fire is raging. However the youngsters declare that bright-colored uniforms are not going to throw any scare into the ranks of the Juveniles.

All of the City League teams have now been seen in action now except the De Lavals, who will be known by some other name when they go into action. The Royals, Plaza Billiards and the Soldiers all looked good in their first start and there should be a lot of good softball before the championship is decided. The Military Training Centre outfit is likely to be stronger on its next appearance as a number of men who were absent from camp when the Soldiers played their first game are now back and will be available when the club swings into action again. In Sero, the Military club has come up with a smart-looking ball player, who has sure hands and a bullet throw as an infielder and who adds a lot of punch to the Soldier attack when he's up there at the plate. Sero is a real find.

Yankees Go To Town

New York Yankees and the Washington Senators were the winners of two American League games played yesterday afternoon and neither club had much trouble in coming through with a victory. The Yanks smothered the Boston Red Sox 9 to 2 with Atley Donald holding the Sox to six hits. He would have had a shutout if he had kept the ball away from Ted Williams, but that slugger extraordinary got one he liked in the third inning with a teammate on the runways and promptly knocked it out of the park, for the only two runs scored by the Croninites. The Yanks won the game in the first inning when Tommy Henrich and Charlie Keller each hit homers with a man on to give them a four-run lead. Later Frank Crosetti also slammed on into the stand. Joe Dobson started for Boston and Chase and Butland were called on later. Steve Sundra pitched for Washington and he did not have a great deal of difficulty getting the nod over the A's even if he did yield eleven hits. Earley hit his first homer of the season for the Senators. The losing pitcher was Harris who started the game for the Athletics. He had to be relieved by Besse.

In the National loop those surprising Boston Braves grabbed off their 19th win in their last 28 starts by beating the New York Giants 4 to 2. Javery pitched steady ball for the winners, holding the New Yorkers to six scattered hits. Melton was Mel Ott's choice and the defeat was marked against him, with Adams finishing the game. Chet Ross helped the Boston cause along by powdering a home run. St. Louis Cards and the Cubs had a real tussle, finally won by St. Louis after an extra inning, 3 to 1. Max Lanier started for the Cards but was relieved by Howard Krist and the latter got credit for the win. Olsen went the route for the losing club. Terry Moore contributed a homer in the 8th that had a lot to do with the final outcome.

There were two games in the American League last night and one of them gave the Cleveland Indians a chance to snap their losing streak which had stretched out to five straight games and was dropping them rapidly behind the New York Rangers. The Indians had a tough battle at that before they finally succeedd in trimming the Chicago White Sox 2 to 1. Mel Harder held the White Sox to two hits but the Indians were not doing much against the pitching of hard luck Edgar Smith. The White Sox picked up the first run of the game in the first half of the ninth and looked like winners but a single by the useful Les Fleming drove two Cleveland counters across in the second half of the inning to take the decision. In the other night game Detroit Tigers took the St. Louis club for a 3 to 1 ride after the Brownies had piled up a winning streak of four games. Benton held the losers to four hits. Hollingsworth was the losing pitcher.

Still Going Strong

If youth must be served it is apparent that in the Kingston City League there is not going to be much for the young fellows when our old friend Sonny Green of Belleville fame can find himself a berth. Ken Colling tells about it as follows: "Sonny" Green, who plied his baseball on Belleville diamonds for many years, is smiling once again. Seems Sonny hied himself to Kingston recently where he is gainfully employed and supplied with enthusiasm of years past is now playing at his only sports love, baseball. Green caught on with Yip Radley's strong Aluminum Plant nine, and is playing along with such veterans as Bob Elliott. Stan Scrutton, Harold Buck and other C.O.B.L. stars of yesteryear. Justin Sullivan, son of the late George Sullivan of umpiring fame, is playing first base for the squad. Mel (Lone Ranger) Williamson, of hockey fame, caught an outfield berth with Skipper Radley's nine, while locally Bro. Clare Williamson is one of the prime factors in the attempt to revive baseball in Belleville. No doubt later in the season the Reliance ballsters might be able to arrange an exhibition game versus the Aluminum nine to give Belleville a squint at baseball once again."

The competition for the Tuesday field day of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club Ladies resulted in a tie for the best net. Mrs. C. G. Graham and Mrs. J. H. Vernor were the war saving stamp winners. Stamps for the sealed holes on the second nine went to Mrs. Graham. In the nine hole competition Mrs. C. Westbrook was the winner of the low net.

MacPhail Deals Uphold Shaughnessy's Prophecy

TORONTO, May 27—When Lee MacPhail took over the general manager's chair in the Toronto Baseball Club offices, International League President Shag Shaughnessy had him "pegged" perfectly.

"I was glad to see Lee get that job," Shag said shortly after the campaign got under way. "He'll never stop trying to improve your club. No matter how good the Leafs may be, Lee will be trying to make them better."

The week-end player traffic probably meant a promotion for Mr. Shaughnessy in the Mystic Order of Baseball Prophets Inc.

Strengthen While Winning

The Maple Leafs, while extending a home-park winning streak to ten straight games, have won five of their last six games and taken 17 out of the last 26 after a weak start. But MacPhail's reaction to that delightful state of affairs was rather startling, albeit desirable.

Sunday night he announced the purchase of Bill Beckman from Philadelphia Athletics; Monday he revealed that Infielder Lee Handley had been optioned to Toronto by Pittsburg Pirates and Tuesday he released the information that Pitcher Bob Bowman had been received on option from Chicago Cubs and that Outfielder Nick Gregory had been "loaned" to Los Angeles.

Both pitchers are righthanders. Bowman, the man who caused so much National League commotion by "beaning" Ducky Medwick a couple of years back, is 5 feet 10½ inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, is 27 years of age. With Rochester in 1938 he won 11 and lost 7, thereby earning a chance with St. Louis Cardinals the following season, where he won 13, lost 5. He had a 7-and-5 season in 1940, was traded to the Giants and won 6, lost 7, moving into a Cub uniform during the winter.

Beckman is 33 years of age a six-footer, weighing 175. He was drafted by the Athletics after winning 20 and losing 13 for Atlanta in 1938. In the last three years, with poor Philadelphia teams, he won 20 games and lost 24.

Lee Comes Back "Home"

Handley is no stranger to Toronto. He made his debut in organized baseball wearing a Toronto uniform, although he was a Cincinnati farm-hand at the time. He jumped straight from Bradley College to grab the third-base spot with Ike Boon's 1935 Leafs, hitting for a .272 average. He was back again the next year, batting .297.

During the winter of 1936 he was made a free agent and Pittsburg handed him a $20,000 bonus to sign with the Pirates. He has been a regular infielder with the Buccaneers since, and would be now but for an unfortunate automobile accident last winter which robbed his throwing arm of its strength.

The "Jeep" left Pittsburg vowing he'll be back "in a couple of weeks." "I guess it's the best thing," he remarked. "I'll have plenty of chance to work in Toronto, and I think my arm will round into shape. It seems to be getting stronger every day."

Handley won't break into the Toronto lineup immediately. He will have to work himself into condition, and will be used mainly in utility roles for the first couple of weeks.

TORONTO, May 27.— (CP)— A couple of interesting yarns have been added to the swiftly-growing biography of Ten to Ace since he came of age by winning the King's Plate.

One has it that three American horsemen visited Toronto this Spring with a $40,000 offer for Harry Giddings' colt, but shied off. Another concerns the colt's birth, which almost wasn't successful because his dam, Royalite, stretched out on a sharp piece of wood in a pasture while heavy with foal. It could have ended the Tenner's racing career before he was dropped, but fortunately was discovered before damage was done.

Random Thought: That's the only way Ten to Ace could have lost the Plate—by not being born.

Think This Over: Hal (Vancouver Sun) Straight thinks gasoline rationing may change the present style of fishing, because plugs and bait need a speed ordinary mortals can't get out of a rowboat. (Ed. Note: Or some outboards, either.)

Incidentally:

Montreal Bulldogs may score a few more touchdowns this year if they can get the services of PO. Bob Fritz, who will be stationed at Lachine, Que., as an R.C.A.F. physical

TORONTO LEAFS COP 11th STRAIGHT VICTORY IN HOME PASTURE

Clip Wings 4-2; Giants Whip Blackwell 1-0

By the Associated Press.

For a pitcher making his first appearance in Class AA ball, Ewell Blackwell of Syracuse has had more than his share of bad luck. Blackwell has made two starts for the International League Chiefs and has allowed only four hits a game—yet lost each contest.

He hooked up in a brilliant mound duel with Bobby Coombs of Jersey City Giants last night and lost out by the narrowest of margins, 1-0.

The Giants scored the winning run in the eighth when they loaded the bases on two hits and an error and counted as Nino Bongiovanni grounded out. It was Coombs' second straight shutout over Syracuse. Blackwell previously had been beaten by Newark Bears 7-4.

Toronto Maple Leafs remained in a fourth-place tie with the Giants by defeating Rochester Red Wings 4-2. It was the Leafs' 11th straight victory in their home orchard.

Dick Conger, who relieved starter Don Kerr in the first inning with one run in and the sacks filled, held the Red Wings to three hits the rest of the route. One of the blows was a homer by Sam Narron in the second inning.

Billy Nagel of Toronto enjoyed a perfect day at the plate with a homer, triple and single in three tries. His three-bagger drove in the winning run in the sixth.

Orioles Defeat Bears.

Baltimore Orioles pounded Al Gerheauser for seven hits and five runs as they beat Newark Bears 5-4. Bob Lemon started the assault with his 12th home run of the season in the first inning with a mate aboard.

The Bears bounced back with three markers in the fourth as Aaron Robinson hit for the circuit with Henry Majeski on base. Lloyd Christopher followed with another four-master and Newark was ahead.

The Orioles came back the next frame to score three times. Eddie Robinson tripled to bring in two of the runs. Gerheauser and his relief, George Washburn struck out 11 of Manager Tommy Thomas' lads.

Although Buffalo and Montreal were not scheduled the Bisons were active in the player mart, purchasing Outfielder Henry Steinbacker from Toledo of the American Association. Steinbacker was acquired to take the place of Ed (Shovels) Kobesky, regular gardener, who has moved behind the plate because of injuries to Catchers Jack Redmond and Bob Garbark.

Snead And Byrd Clashing In PGA Opener

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 27 —(AP).— Sixteen exhausting 36-hole matches were down for settlement to-day in the opening round of the Professional Golfers' Association championship at the Sea View Club, but about nine-tenths of the interest was concentrated on one particular battle — Sammy Snead vs. Sammy Byrd.

It promised to be a dinger. In fact, it is such a "natural" both players and paying customers spent far into last night wondering why the tournament committee matched the pair at the outset of a tournament that will not end until Sunday.

Byrd is the former Yankee outfielder who quit the diamond to see if he could make a better living at golf. Only now has he completed his five years, apprenticeship and become eligible to compete in the P.G.A.

He has blossomed into a consistently fine golfer, one capable of giving any one a tussle. Though Snead is a logical choice to beat him to-day, there is nothing foregone about it at all. The only thing: Some thought Byrd's two great qualifying rounds—67-72—might have earned him a little better break in the draw.

Only one player out-shot Byrd the last two days. That was Harry Cooper, the Minneapolis veteran, who recaptured his wizardry of a half-dozen years ago to score 67-71—138 and win the deal. The only other player to do as well was Cpl. Jim Turnesa, and he shot precisely the same cards. Cooper's first-round opponent is Mike Turnesa of Elmsford, While Cpl. Jim meets E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Camp Bill, Pt.

Some Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 27—(CP).—Pilot Officer Len Harvey will defend his British - approved world light-heavyweight title against Sgt. Freddie Mills in London on a June date not decided yet.

Harvey, who beyond exhibitions hasn't had an important fight in two years, won the British version of the world lightheavy crown by outpointing Jock McAvoy in London in 1939. The United States recognizes Gus Lesnevich as world champ.

Mills qualified for a shot at the title by his many successes during the last year. Harvey, always in top shape, is sports officer at an R.A.F. station.

Netherlanders are so interested in soccer that on one occasion a football argument continued even after a group serving in the British merchant marine had taken to lifeboats when their ship wa storpedoed.

"It kept them warm until they were picked up," said the informant, an anonymous Netherlander who is a mate in the merchant marine. "Every Hollander considers himself an expert on soccer."

He's never seen a baseball game but FO. J. C. Worboys, former Wimbledon lawn tennis star and speed skater, wants to introduce the sport at the A.T.C. wing here, where he is sports officer. It would substtui eBo8q.c,VhOney.& t12 111 substitute for cricket....FO. Lu Barry of the famed sculling family is a prisoner of war in Germany after being shot down in the Bay of Biscay. Shut Out Romps In Easily For Ballot Cash

NEW YORK, May 27 — (AP). — Shut Out, surprise winner of the Kentucky Derby, served notice yesterday that Alsab may not have the June 6 running of the rich Belmont Stakes at his mercy, when he easily won the Ballot Handicap at Belmont Park.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's 3-year-old son of Equipoise romped away from three veterans twice his age as he hit the finish line of the mile and an eighth race six lengths in advance of W. L. Brann's Challedon—not the horse he was in 1939 and 1940, but still a mighty tough customer.

As if to emphasize the ease with which he won, Shut Out travelled the distance under the direction of Eddie Arcaro, in the fast time of 1.48 4-5, only two-fifths of a second of the track record hung up by Hot Toddy in 1929 under 110 pounds. Shut Out packed 112, fourteen less than Challedon carried, in winning the purse of $1,965.

Challedon, ridden by Georgie Woolf, had another five lengths on Louis B. Mayer's Australian star, Reading II., while Third Degree, stablemate of Shut Out, trailed by six more lengths. Remembering Shut Out's fine Derby performance and apparently overlooking the fact he did no better than fifth in the Preakness the crowd backed the entry down until it paid only $3.40 for a $2.00 win ticket.

Wayne Wright brake Third Degree in front and for more than a half-mile he winged along in front, while Woolf held Challedon in second place and Arcaro kept a snug hold on Shut Out. The Derby winner quickly took command at the three-quarter pole, however, and never was headed as he lengthened his lead in the strtch drive.

Mrs. Ogden Phipps' young gelding, Bath, rated by many as the country's greatest jumper in recent years, had no trouble winning the Corinthian Steeplechase and its purse of $3,275. Bath's task was lightened considerably when G. H. (Pete) Bostwick scratched the top-weighted Cottesmore and depended upon his grey veteran Sussex.

The best Sussex could do, however, was second, beating Harry La Montagne's Lechdale by two lengths. Redlands, winner of the recent Appleton Steeplechase in which Bath fell, was fourth. Heavfly supported in the wagering Bath returned $5.50 for $2.00.

Relief Wizard Krist Whips Cubs For Cards

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is high time for someone to introduce Howard (Spud) Krist to the baseball public because his pitching record for St. Louis Cardinals is one of the most remarkable in the big Major Leagues—16 victories and one defeat spread over four seasons.

The tall righthander was overlooked last year when everybody was agog about Whit Wyatt, Kirby Higbe Thornton Lee, the come-back of Left Gomez nd the promise of Howie Pollet. But Krist won 10 games without a loss in 1941 and he has won two more without a setback this season.

Krist's specialty is relief and it was in this role that he earned his second success yesterday as the Cardinal curbed Chicago Cubs 3-1 in 10 innings.

For seven scoreless innings the game was a pitching struggle between Max Lanier and Vern Olsen, making his first start since breaking two fingers on his pitching hand during the Cubs' Spring training. Terry Moore broke the spell with a homer in the eighth and the Cubs came roaring back in the ninth to tie the score.

Three men singled, one run was in and two were out when Krist strolled to the mound. He promptly forced Olsen to pop to short-stop Martin Marion. Then in the 10th Enos Slaughter and Coaker Triplett knocked in two St. Louis runs and Krist checked the Cubs although giving up a single and a walk.

Braves Upset Giants 4-2

In the day's only other National League game Boston Braves retained their grip on second place by turning back New York Giants 4-2 on the six-hit hurling of Al Javery.

Three of Boston's runs were scored in the first two innings off Lefty Cliff Melton, who had beaten the Braves three times last year and twice this Spring without a setback. Eddie Miller and Nanny Farnando worked a double steal that scored Miller in the first inning and in the second Chet Ross homered and Miller drove in another run with one of this three singles of the afternoon.

New York Yankees continued their domination of the American League by belting Boston Red Sox 9-2 with a 13-hit assault, while Atley Donald pitched six-hit ball. It was the world champions' 15th victory in their last 18 games and Boston's 11th loss in 15 contests.

The Bombers hit three home runs in one game for the first time this season and two of them, by Tom Henrich and Charley Keller, came in the first inning, each with a man on base. Frank Crosett led off with one in the fifth. In rebuttal Ted Williams hit his 12th of the season with one on in the third for Boston's only runs.

Washington smeared Philadelphia Athletics 8-3 as Steve Sundra kept 11 hits spaced and pitched carefully in the pinches.

A pair of streaks evaporated under the lights in the league's two night games.

At Cleveland, Les Fleming punched out a ninth-inning single that drove Jeff Heath and Buster Mills across the plate for the Tribe's first triumph in six starts. The 2-1 setback was the seventh of the season for Chicago White Sox's Edgar Smith.

St. Louis Browns' four-game victory stride was broken up by Detroit Tigers, who Al Benton allowed only four blows in the 3-1 struggle. Benton also knocked out a double that was the main ingredient of the first Tiger tally.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, May 27.—(AP).— Baseball's big wartime test may be the twilight all-star game here July 6...Ift that doesn't draw a crowd, the ball clubs might as well figure on going on a week-end basis for the duration...So far the customers have been turning out in great numbers on Sundays but even the Army-Navy relief games haven't pulled them in week-days except in Brooklyn...Cleveland, out to beat the Dodgers' mark after a big newspaper buildup, drew only 7,959 last Monday and St. Louis did about the same...P.S.: Did you notice the Dodgers and Phils played their twilight game in 1:28?...Apparently the way to make ball players hustle is to delay their dinners.

Sportsmention

Joey Haddad, the Paterson, N.J., puncher, has won 25 fights by knockouts and claims he never yet has hit a guy on the chin; he did it all with body punches...Tommy Phillips, Berea (O.) high school grid star, has been approached by 42 colleges and only one suggested that he might have to work at something besides ball carrying.

Last Laugh

Down at the P.G.A. tournament, Cpl. Vic Ghezzi encountered Sam Snead, who will go into the navy right after the affair ends...Vic remarked, "Sam, Gene Sarazen wanted you to go to Australia two years ago for a $5,000 guarantee. You didn't take it. Now it looks as if you will go there for nothing."

Claim Mounties "Menace" Missionaries

LONDON Ont., May 27—(CP).—Attraction of scarlet-coated Royal Canadian Mounted Police for Church of England women missionaries in Canada's Far North has provided a problem for Rt. Rev. A. L. Fleming, Anglican Bishop of the Arctic.

Bishop Fleming told a meeting here last night that he might not be able to prevent the young missionaries and nurses moving between Aklavik and other posts on the Mackenzie River contracting a "new kind of scarlet fever," but he no longer intends to allow a three-weeks' leisurely boat trip to "tempt the Providence of God."

"That's why I now send them by plane at a little higher cost," he explained after relating how R.C.M.P. members making boat trips at the same time won splendid wives but robbed him and the Arctic Anglican mission fields of highly trained women workers.

"I wrote and told the authorities of the Mounties they should change that slogan, 'The Mounties Get Their Man' to the truer one, 'The Mounties Get Our Women.'"

Live Bullets Kick Dust In Face Of Commandoes

British commando troops, in training at a base in southern England, are shown advancing in the face of machine-gun fire—real machine-gun fire and live ammunition, as you can see by the furrow being plowed by bullets a few feet in front of the helmeted heads. Recently King George saw such training as this, with bullets whistling about the royal party and shells tossing up earth all around.

Members Debate

Start 5 Other Measures

The Senate, meeting for the first time since May 7, gave first reading to five other bills.

For an hour, the House of Commons debate in committee Justice Minister St. Laurent's bill to amend the Canada Evidence Act to provide that photographs of government and public utility documents be admitted as evidence.

This would enable large corporations, banks and governments to save storage space by placing on one small film 2,400 letter-size documents.

It finally stood for third reading when some members suggested there should be further consideration.

Main debate of the evening sitting came on the government bill to amend the Alberta Natural Resources Act to ratify an agreement between the Alberta government and certain of the oil and gas leaseholders in that province to increase and stabilize royalties on oil sales.

This bill, sponsored by Resources Minister Crerar, provoked considerable criticism in which two Calgary Liberal members joined with the Conservative opposition to declare it was a breach of contractual relations with the leaseholders.

Mr. Crerar said the bill was brought in pursuant to an agreement the Alberta government had reached with "the majority" of oil prospect leaseholders. He said it would stabilize the oil industry at a time when oil was vitally needed for war purposes.

A Snag in Development

He said uncertainty as to the royalties that must be paid was retarding oil prospecting development but Conservative House Leader Hanson, Manley Edwards (Lib. Calgary West) and George Ross (Lib. Calgary East) disagreed.

They claimed that the Federal Government was lending itself to a move initiated by the Alberta Government more than a year ago to increase the royalties on oil sales from Alberta wells.

Mr. Hanson said he wanted evidence to prove that the majority of oil companies agreed to this proposal. "My opinion is that they are afraid to move for fear of what may happen in the future," he said.

Alfred Bence (Con. Saskatoon) asked for definite information as to the reasons the Oil Controller thought this Bill would increase production and suggested that Alberta had wielded "the big stick" over the producers to get them to agree.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D. Maclead) said it was apparent the Federal Government thought the agreement a good one and his party supported it.

Debate on Parliamentary procedure arose when Mr. Ilsley moved to introduce an interim supply bill to obtain money to carry on government for the next two months.

The non-war estimates were tabled on February 20, but the House has been so absorbed in other matters that there has been no consideration of these estimates as yet.

Already the House has passed one interim supply bill giving the minister authority to spend one-sixth of the estimates, covering the first two months of the fiscal year, April and May.

Ilsley Runs Into Trouble

Yesterday Mr. Ilsley asked for authority to spend another one-sixth of the maj nestimates for the current fiscal year.

He ran into a storm of protest. Mr. Hanson objected to this manner of approving public expenditures before the House had passed on details of the estimates.

The Government was urging the people to spend less but was not curtailing civil expenditures itself, he claimed. Nor was it giving full details of what it was spending for war.

"One of the first things this Government did," said Mr. Hanson, "was to take away the rights of private members. You cannot do anything in this Parliament unless the Government so directs."

Mr. Ilsley said it was the duty of the Opposition to criticize public expenditures and he welcomed it, but that which had come from the Opposition was not constructive.

It was an old story, Mr. ILsley said. The Opposition "makes a devastating onslaught" on expenditures generally, but when invited to dissent from specific expenditures "they show great adroitness in escaping such temptation."

There had been objections from the Opposition at so much Government by order in council, the minister said, but at the rate Parliament was progressing there were not enough days in the year for it to deal with all the Government accomplished by that method.

Russians Boosting Dandelion Rubber

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Russia wants more rubber from the United States. And her demands should increase.

In 1939, the Soviet, with a 50,000-ton output, accounted for 66 per cent of the total world synthetic rubber production. But that's not much to feed the biggest war front. Witness U.S. plans for 800,000 tons or more yearly production — with little or none of it for civilian autos.

Russia reportedly is upping her rubber-producing dandelion acreage by 250 per cent this year. But that can't be counted on to fill her needs. Dandelion rubber is still second to synthetic in the Soviet.

La Guardia Finds St. Lawrence Is Really Big

QUEBEC, May 27—(CP).—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, who headed members of the United States-Canadian Joint Defence Board arriving here for a meeting yesterday, made a tour of the city.

Leaning over the ramparts of the lofty Citadel, summer home of Canada's Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone, Mayor LaI Guardia murmured: "Never, never change a thing. It's beautiful here. I won't say that the Hudson River is so big now," he said as he gazed at the St. Lawrence River below, dotted with ships strung out to the nearby Island of Orleans.

Following the arrival of members of the board at Palais Station, the party, escorted by Provincial motorcycle officers, went to the Citadel and then proceeded through the city's winding streets to nearby Montmorency Falls. The group then toured a section of the Island of Orleans, stopping off briefly at Ste. Petronille, on the northern tip of the island.

The party then proceeded to Spencerwood, official residence of Lieutenant-Governor Sir Eugene Fiset, where a reception was held. Those present at the reception, apart from members of the board, included Premier and Mrs. Godbout, Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Provincial Roads Minister, and Hon. J. A. Mathewson, Pronvincial Treasurer.

French-Canadian Engineers Cross

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, May 27 — (CP Cable). — French-Canadians from the nine provinces of Canada and parts of the United States renewed acquaintances today in military camps in the South of England where thousands of their compatriots have been training for more than two years for the day the Allied offensive opens.

The newcomers arrived in Britain in the latest contingent of troops to bolster the Dominion's overseas army. Members of a battalion of the Royal Canadian Engineers commanded by a lieutenant-colonel from the Thetford Mines, Que., they reported an uneventful crossing. A few complained of rough seas which gave them a little trouble for a day or so.

The first French-Canadian battalion of Engineers to reach Britain they were accompanied by reinforcements for other units of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton's Army. They crowded the decks at the port of arrival to hear a welcome by Rear-Admiral Sir Arthur Bromley of the Dominions Office and cheered when in a brief speech from the bridge of the ship he said he was sure the younger generation of Canadians would fight as courageously as their fathers did in the First Great War.

The hustle and bustle of arrival over, the Canadians marched ashore and boarded troop trains for the long journey to camps in a vital defence area of the United Kingdom. To-day they were busy settling down and ridding themselves of the sea legs acquired on the long ocean voyage during which they were escorted by powerful units of the Royal Navy.

13 CHILDREN—BUT NO WRINKLES

What a rarity!—a woman with a large family and an unlined face. Read this letter she has written:—

"I am a woman of 50, have a family of 13 children, and have not a wrinkle on my face. Some time ago I passed through a very severe illness, and resolved to try Kruschen Salts, and am a new woman since taking them. I have taken Kruschen for twelve months—not a small dose, but half-a-teaspoonful every morning in a cup of hot water. I think Kruschen gives you a feeling of buoyancy and youth that nothing else does."—(Mrs.) E. T.

Many minor illnesses, depression and worry—which are the chief causes of wrinkles—are frequently due to the presence in the system of poisons bred by the waste products of digestion. These poisons are the root cause of rheumatic pains, headaches, kidney trouble and other complaints, which make people old before their time. Kruschen helps to expel those poisons and keep the blood-stream pure. And a rich supply of pure, vigorous blood is one of the secrets of youthful vitality.

Kruschen is a British product, obtainable at all drug stores, 25c. and 75c.

If you are eligible for NEW, USED or RETREADED TIRES—

the Firestone Dealer will show you how to make out the necessary application for a tire ration permit

Under the latest Government Tire Restrictions, new or used tires and tubes and retreading service can only be sold to certain defined operators.

Such operators must fill out an application form which must be accompanied by an Inspection Report from an authorized Tire Dealer. These are submitted to the Regional Office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, which issues the Tire Rationing Permit now necessary for the purchase of any new or used tire or tube or retreading service.

Official Tire Information

Your nearest Firestone Dealer has the necessary forms and official information. He will gladly advise you which category you are in and what you are able to purchase, will help you fill in the application, furnish the Inspection Report, and do everything he can to assist you.

Even more important, the Firestone Dealer will give you the advice and help on how to get the utmost mileage from your present tires. For a quarter of a century, Firestone has been selecting and training dealers so that they could help you get the greatest mileage from your tires, with the greatest safety and at the lowest cost per mile. This experience is now invaluable to you. Whenever you need tire advice, or tire service, go to your nearest Firestone Dealer first—he will serve you better and save you money.

How to Get the Most Mileage from Your Present Tires

1. Have the Firestone Dealer estimate the number of miles left in the tires—then ration your mileage to so many miles per week.
2. Limit your driving to essential transportation. If you drive to work, take others—and rotate trips with them.
3. Have air pressure checked every week. Underinflation is the greatest enemy of tire life.
4. Drive slowly — avoid quick starts and stops that grind off the tread. Go easy on curves and use gears instead of brakes on steep hills.
5. Park with care—do not scrape sidewalls or bump the curb.

THE FIRESTONE DEALER CAN HELP YOU BY

1. Completely inspecting tires and tubes at frequent intervals for cuts and bruises.
2. Rotating the tires every 5,000 miles to even the wear.
3. Checking wheel alignment and brakes.

No needless or unnecessary expense—work done only when required.

The tunic and trousers of a battle uniform were found in a tree near O'Dette's boathouse Tuesday and turned over by city police the provost staff at the Military Training Centre. The theory is that the uniform was discarded by a deserter who donned civilian garb near the boathouse and then caught a train out of town.

SALVAGE COLLECTION

Salvage collection of war materials will be made in the third district of the city tomorrow. The area comprises all east of the river between Parkhill road and Brock street, but not Brock street, all the streets running East and West and North and South between these streets. It will include both sides of Weller street north to Parkhill road. The collection of salvaged war materials is one of the greatest home war efforts and one in which everybody can take part. The district covered tomorrow should turn out a very large quantity of newspapers, magazines, miscellaneous paper, bottles, rags, rubber and metals. Those living on Brock street and South should be getting ready for next week's collection.

ACCEPTED BY AIR FORCE.

Cres Sproat, who was associated with Vern Selkirk as a salesman and latterly with the C.D.S., has been accepted by the R.C.A.F. as an air crew trainee. He hopes to become a pilot-observer. At the present he is waiting the call to report.

LICENSE MARKERS FOUND

A number of bicycle license markers picked up on the street await owners at the police station.

YOU'D HARDLY KNOW IT.

S. E. P. appears on the stands this week in a new dress that must shock the shade of Cyrus H. P. Curtis. The cover retreats a long way from the art of Leyendecker.

A LONG WAY FROM HOME.

Word has been received in Peterboro' that Pilot Officer Lloyd Parnall, 789 Water street, is now serving with the R.C.A.F. in Lagos, Nigeria, West Africa. Before enlisting he was employed in Stenson's shoe store on George street.

GOING ONE BETTER.

The Senate section of the Coffee Club, fell in line with the rationing order of the Food Controller on Wednesday morning, when they cut the usual morning quota of two cups of coffee to one each. This is one better than the request as the order is to reduce consumption of coffee by one quarter, while they cut it in half. Some of the regulars have cut out the coffee drinking entirely and have contributed an equal amount to the Red Cross, roughly $12.00 a year.

$341 Contributed By Children

School pupils from the 14 city schools made a substantial contribution to the Red Cross and Community Chest with the penny campaign during the five school days last week, and the final count reached yesterday showed a fine total of $341.71 to pile against the total of $235.00 in the campaign a year ago.

Three bank clerks and two clerks from Neill's store were a little whoozy from counting coppers when they reached the home stretch on Tuesday afternoon, but aside from this extra work, the pile of pennies and nickles was a fine indication of the spirit that prevails among the boys and girls who by virtue of their ages are merely spectators on the outer rim of a horrible world war.

There was an unusual feature to this penny campaign and it came to light when Clare Collins, a member of the publicity committee who was charged with promoting the campaign, received a cheque for ten cents. The ten cents was strictly according to regulations set down, in that it represented a cent a day for five days for two contributors. The contributors are twins, a boy and a girl born on May 13, at Nicholls Hospital. They are Robin and Jane, children of Capt. Gerald Walker and Mrs. Walker of Peterborough, and they came home from the hospital Wednesday.

The following are the returns by schools Queen Mary, $54.59; Peterborough Collegiate, $42.85; Central, $41.23; King Edward, $28.46; Prince of Wales, $25.56; King George, $23.08; St. Peter's High, $21.36; Queen Alexandra, $20.01; St. Mary's Convent, $20.00; May's School, $17.16; Immaculate Conception, $17; Sacred Heart, $16.07; Confederation, $10.09; and Queen Elizabeth, $2.74.

Army Officials Laud Work Of PWSC

It will soon be two years since the Peterborough Women's Service Corps, under the direction of Miss Flossie Mitchell, was formed as an affiliate of the British Columbia Women's Service Corps, under Mrs. N. R. Kennedy, to train girls to be ready to handle any emergency that might possibly arise from the war.

Their work has been most successful and more than 30 of the original members have enlisted in the armed services. All of them have written home saying what a help their basic training has been to them and it has not gone unnoticed by the authorities. One Peterborough girl wrote home that an officer of the regular army had mentioned how efficient the girls from Peterborough were proving.

During the first year there was a membership on the roll of 103, with about 75 attending regularly. This year, the ranks have been somewhat depleted because of the increase in the number of girls enlisting for active service, and there is an average attendance of 50 girls.

Four Companies.

The girls are divided into four companies, A, B, C and D. Each company handles a different type of work for the year. "A" Company takes orderly room instruction and military clerical work. "B" Company have first aid work with fine practical demonstrations, and "D" Company have commissiariat work, with courses in dietetics by Miss Aileen Morgan. Along with this every company has the regulation army foot drill.

A number of girls from here are pushing ahead in their new work. Myrtle Boreham is at present doing work at the Air Training Conference in Ottawa. Miss Willa Aherne signed up as an army nurse and Miss Lahring Parsons, a former officer of the Corps, is now a pilot officer in the C.W.A.A.F.

Last summer the training went on regularly but this year the Corps officers plan to lighten it a little and have more outside work, with hikes, gymnastics, and on these outings to give each company a chance to try their hand at some practical work.

Most of the members have their St. John Ambulance certificates and the course this year is to finish with courses in both first aid and home nursing for the girls who have only taken part of the work.

These courses have played a valuable part in the training of girls for the armed forces and they offer a splendid opportunity for those who would like to be prepared to be of service to their country, either at home or in the active forces.

Council Honors Former Reeve Harold B. Rye

In their old home at the head of Sherbrooke street, one of the landmarks for many years of the western boundary of the city, Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Rye received Tuesday night the good wishes of North Monaghan council on the approaching occasion of their removal to Otonabee. They were presented with a beautiful floor lamp as an appreciation of their long residence in Mona(g)han and especially in recognition of the public service rendered by Mr. Rye as a former member of the township council, reeve, and Warden of the county over a period of nearly twenty-five years.

The council organized a surprise party and were accompanied by their wives who brought refreshments. Bruce Johnston, clerk of North Monaghan during all the years of Mr. Rye's civic activities, and Miss J. A. Batten, county clerk and treasurer, were also invited. The presentation was made by Reeve M. H. Johnston who expressed the community's regret that old ties which had bound Mr. and Mrs. Rye to the township were being severed as a result of the recent purchase of their property by Wartime Housing Limited for the site of a staff house to accommodate men employed in the local munitions industry.

Reeve Johnston sounded a note of reminiscence in his remarks, which was amplified by the other speakers who joined in paying tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Rye, and in wishing them happiness in their new residence on the River Road of Otonabee, opposite the Rye boathouses and shops on the North Monaghan shore.

Political Warrior

One of Mr. Rye's accomplishments, it was mentioned, was to succeed in softening the pronunciation of the word Monaghan by eliding the letter "g", a quite general effect of his persistent campaign in that detail of local orthography. However, that correction was referred to only in the humor kindled of memories of the campaigns in which Mr. Rye was a doughty contender and certainly the centre of action. His co-operation in the council and also his opposition at election times with his continuing adversary, the late John McIntosh, were recalled as phases of "battles long ago" that were waged in a friendly spirit that sought only the welfare of the township, facing the steady intrusion of an urban population beyond the city's borders to the south and west.

Mr. Rye joined in the reminiscences of the evening, and said that he was first elected to the council in 1914. He spoke of the help he had always received from the members of the council and Bruce Johnston, the township clerk, and said it was pleasant to look back over those years and to feel that the council of that time had always tried to promote the best interests of Mona(g)han.

Although there was reference to the laurels won in those campaigns presumably there was an implication that he was going to be content as one of the ratepayers of Otonabee. He retains a substantial interest in Monaghan of which he was the municipal mentor while a member of its council, and critic and also supporter as the leader of the suburban movement which brought into being the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association.

THEY WANT THE BENCHES

The attention of the Parks Committee is called to the fact that in spite of the fact that the weather has not been all that it might be there have been inquiries from a number of citizens as to when the benches are going to be placed in the city parks.

Reserve Army Has Place For Sportsmen

A recent intimation from official circles that only those who earn their living by trapping and hunting will be allowed to purchase rifles and shotgun ammunition, means that those whose hobby is shooting and hunting will have to turn to means to obtain their favorite sport.

The only alternative for these hunters, gun-lovers and marksmen is to join the Reserve Army where they will have ample scope for their shooting proclivities. For those who are anxious to keep their hand in with the rifle, the Reserve Army offers a double opportunity. The chance of continuing a hobby, and the more splendid opportunity of performing a needed duty as a country loving citizen.

The knowledge and proficiency that is part and parcel of a sportsman's make-up, is something that many boys in the reserve army would like to know, and as a member of the reserve the hunter can impart much of his knowledge to the amateurs. Then too, the syllabus of rifle training offers the deer hunter added information and training which is of value to him as a hunter, and of even more value in time of war, should he be called on to repel an invader.

The following is taught: Theory and practice of rifle shooting at unknown ranges; gauging uphill and downhill shots; shooting in all kinds of positions at all angles of elevation, and in all kinds of light. Indoor and outdoor range courses have a prominent part in the training syllabus and there is plenty of opportunity to keep your eye in and enter into competition with others.

The men who join the reserve army will have a chance to use such weapons as the Bren Gun, Vickers, Medium Machine Gun, Boys' Anti-Tank Rifle, and the Tompson Sub-Machine Gun, weapons which the civilian rarely has a chance to use.

C.G.E. Engineer Is Dead; Served 38 Years

Peter Milloy, chief engineer at the Canadian General Electric Company for more than a quarter of a century, who died Sunday, was borne to his last resting place Wednesday morning by six of his old friends, all prominent in this city. The pallbearers were Eugene Hurtubise, William J. Gray, George Lynch, J. T. O'Connell, Frank Hickey and Timothy Collins.

Born in Downeyville 81 years ago, the late Mr. Milloy came to Peterborough at the age of 25, and later obtained employment as a fireman in the steam plant of the C.G.E. on May 13, 1894. His interest in stationary engineering grew apace and before many years had passed he found himself in charge of the huge steam plant that supplied heat, compressed air, and hot water to the industrial plant that became the hub around which Peterborough grew.

He belonged to that generation of men who lived for their work, and he was so conscientious in his duties as an engineer, that many a time an indignant employee would remark, "You'd think he was buying the coal himself," but just as surely as this would be said, the veteran engineer would come back with, "If you fellows would do a bit of work in here you would not have so much trouble keeping warm." And so it went but for all his rigid economy which ruffled the workmen, they admired him and few men who ever worked in his company had as many close friends as this genial Irishman.

Loved His Work.

Mr. Milloy, like many others who worked with this company over a long period of time, was wrapped up in his work to the extent that he regretted rather than hoped for the day when the officials would decree retirement with pay. But finally after 38 years' service that day came on April 15, 1932.

Mr. Milloy shared with many of the other veterans, the privilege of building into the C.G.E. trade name the high quality that has made the products famous, and all were imbued with that splendid ideal of service, high quality, economy of operation, and top workmanship. One by one they are dropping from the earthy sphere, after carving humble, yet important niches for themselves in the realm of industry. Two of the old-timers who shared with Peter Milloy, the years when modern comforts were few in industry, and who have since died were J. G. M. Wilson and Robert Dobie, while others now on the retired list are Robert Anson, Ray Derrick, Merse Mowry, H. T. McFadden, Bob Met?erel and many others.

Had Full Charge.

Peter Milloy never held first-class engineer's papers but in view of his long experience and the fact that he knew every pipe, every valve and every whim of the big heating plant, he was qualified to assume the duties of chief engineer In this particular case the first-class papers were non-essential as his actual knowledge of the plant he was tending, was tremendous.

Officials of the C.G.E. Company mingled with a host of citizens from the city to pay their last respects to this kindly man who was a devout Catholic and a responsible citizen. His interests extended to the Holy Name Society and to the Knights of Columbus, and he was an outstanding worker in all the affairs of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Following Requiem Mass at 9.00 o'clock on Wednesday morning, Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien paid eloquent tribute to the fine qualities of the late Mr. Milloy, as a God-fearing man, and a credit to any community. Internment was in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Norwood Effort Nets $65 For War Victims

Ever since the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund began to operate on behalf of the people of Britain requiring aid through German air raids over the country at large, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker of Norwood have been in the forefront as workers on behalf of the fund, giving generously of their time and in an individual way sponsoring various efforts which in the aggregate to date has been the means of rasing the splendid total of $950.29, and they now aim at continuing this work, so as at least to bring it beyond the four figure mark in dollars.

Their latest effort just concluded produced $65.70 of which $39 was from the sale of tickets on a draw for three prizes which had been donated by Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Dew of Toronto, relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Parker, and net proceeds of a dance held in Norwood on May 20, when the draw for these prizes was made. The first, a fancy cushion, was won with ticket No. 413 giving the prize to J. J. Edwards, R.R. No. 7 Peterborough; the second prize, a cut glass plate, was won by Miss R. Hendren of Norwood with ticket No. 263, and the third prize, a towel, was won by J. E. Dixon, R.R. No. 8, Peterborough, with ticket No. 495. A veteran of the last Great War, Mr. Parker would have an intimate remembrance of the devastating efforts which accompany this, and in a remarkable manner has translated his sympathies into action on behalf of those who suffer from its effects, in a manner which can surely be highly commended.

A group of the younger men of the city, known as the Peterborough Y's Men's Club, whose president is W. C. Wedlock, and R. C. Simmons the treasurer, are represented in to-day's list for the fund with a nice cheque for $25, to mark the third time they have contributed to the fund, and in a letter which accompanied their gift, further help was promised when they resume their activities in the Fall.

The Junior Room of the Public School at Baillieboro is another group which has previously given help to the fund, and they are once again heard from through their teacher, Miss Mary Staples, with a nice donation of $5

The group of Fairview War Workers, whose efforts on behalf of the fund have been of such material assistance, and with whom the names of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown, Mrs. W. Fowler, and G. Lockington have been coupled, are now busy once more on another effort to help things along by selling tickets on a quilt at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents, which has been donated by a lady of that district who is in her eighties.

Sabotage Count Brings $10 Fine Norwood Youth

Leaman Haddesley, a Norwood youth, pleaded guilty to an unusual charge this morning in police court when he was accused of committing wilful damage to private property, to wit the tires of the automobile of Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock.

This charge was connected with another against the same youth, of driving an automobile without the proper markers.

Haddesley pleaded guilty to both charges. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., fined him $10 and $2.50 on the charge of driving without the proper markers and on the other count fined him $10 and $1.75 costs.

Constable Grayling testified to finding Haddesley driving a car that had the markers belonging to another automobile. After checking on the case he had left his automobile in the driveway of Constable W. Parcells. Next morning he had discovered three holes in his tires and a large number of tacks were found scattered around the drive way. Haddesley had subsequently admitted placing the tacks in the lane way.

Regiment Honors Memory Of Tweed Soldier

TWEED, May 27.—Stirring tribute was paid on Sunday to the memory of Corporal Ross Duggan of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas, who is Tweed's first army casualty of the present war.

Pouring rain proved no deterrent to the people of Tweed or to the members of the 2nd Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment under the command of Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, E.D. Showing their respect by ignoring the elements, members of the regiment gathered at Tweed from Bancroft, Madoc, Trenton, Wellington, and Picton along with a detachment of the R.C.A.F. from Belleville.

The memorial service, held in the municipal park on the shores of Stoco Lake, was in charge of Captain F. Grant, Padre of the 2nd Battalion. Immediately following the service, the band played Corporal Duggan's favorite selection "The Rosary," then the flag was lowered to half mast, Last Post was sounded and after the customary period of silence came Reveille and the mast-heading of the Ensign.

Then came the march past in column of route, the salute being taken by Colonel H. J. Smith, V.D., former commander of the 9th Infantry Brigade. Present with Colonel Smith to accept the salute were Corporal Duggan's mother and two sisters who stood on the saluting base during the march past.

It is likely that this ceremony will be long remembered, not only by the Tweed villagers but by the men of the two counties who took part, carried out as it was, with a precision worthy of a more fully trained unit.

An outstanding moment during the course of the ceremonies was when the assembled troops marched past the house of Gunner Clark Brown, totally disabled veteran of the last war, and gave him the eyes right. Gunner Brown's cot had been moved to the doorway of his home where he took the salute.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the troops were served coffee and sandwiches by the ladies of Tweed and later, under clearing skies, again marched passed the doorway of Gunner Brown saluting with eyes left.

This ceremony, with the impressive turnout of the 2nd Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment as a part of Canada's new Reserve Army, was a striking example of just how much the people of Canada realize the full importance of preparing themselves for servive to their country.

Corporal Duggan's sacrifice in the service of his country, made with the knowledge in mind that the inevitable might happen, must be an inspiration to us all.

PARENTS SHOULD NOT INVEST TOO MUCH IN THEIR CHILDREN

They Ought to Save Enough to Assure Independence in Old Age.

How good a financial investment are Children Preferred? Are parents justified in putting all their money into giving their Johnnies and Susies college educations and swanky cars and fine clothes and social advantages, instead of salting some of it away in gilt-edge bonds? Can Father and Mother depend on cashing in on their children's gratitude when they are old and feeble and penniless, or is the only reliable old-age security their own pocket-book? Is it not better for the children, themselves, to have been given fewer indulgences in their youth and to be saved from the burden of having dependent parents in their maturity?

This is a problem which, of course, does not arise to vex the soul of the very rich who can rear their offspring on cake, or the very poor who often have not even bread for theirs, but that is of vital importance to the men and women of modest incomes who have to decide whether to spend all in giving their children luxuries, or to save up something that will provide them with an umbrella for their own rainy day.

But, curiously enough, it is an issue which tens of thousands of parents are too sentimental, or too weak and cowardly to face. Father and Mother may be willing to practice self-denial themselves, but they haven't the nerve to make their children do it. Their baby must have handmade caps with as many bows as the baby next door has. Little Johnny and Susie must be dressed as well as the other children in school. They must go to as many movies and drink as many ice cream sodas.

They must belong to the same clubs as the Croesus children do. And when they grow up they must have their cars, even if the butcher bill is unpaid. They must go off to college, not because they have any desire for learning, but because all the other boys and girls are doing it. Susie must entertain and Johnny have money to take his girl out.

From Riches to Rags

And when Father's salary check, which is never big enough to wipe the slate clean, is prorated every month among the patcher and baker and candlestick-maker, and the installment collectors, he hasn't two thin dimes left in his pocket. And, if Papa dies, we have the tragic spectacle that we see every day, of a family that has lived up to its income as it went along and that is left desperate and helpless and plunged into direct poverty when the bread-winner is taken away from it. Or, if Father doesn't die, we are called upon to witness an even more heart-rending sight—that of a man who has worked hard, but has saved nothing and who, in his old age, is dependent and has to learn how steep are another man's stairs.

The parents who give their children indulgences that they cannot afford justify themselves by saying self-righteously that they are investing their money in their children. They tell you that they are buying an education for Johnny instead of real estate; that in dressing Susie up in fine clothes and giving her parties they are underwriting her chance to make a good marriage, from which they will get bigger profits than they could from any flyer they could take in the stock market; and that they don't have to save for their old age because their children will always support Father and Mother.

Sometimes It Does Pay

Sometimes it does happen this way. Sometimes Johnny's education does pay 100 per cent on the dollar. Oftener it is a total loss. Johnny wasn't a student and all he brings home from college is a college yell and an incurable aversion to work. Sometimes Susie catches her millionaire. Oftener she marries the poor boy next door and has to keep on with her job after the wedding. Sometimes the children are grateful and gladly support their parents in their old age, but often Mother and Father are made to feel that they are unwelcome guests in their children's houses, and that they are begrudged the very food they eat.

In reality, the parents who spend everything they make on their children when they are growing up and leave themselves dependent upon them are not doing their sons and daughters the kindness they think they are. All about us are lonely old maids and bachelors who had to give up all thoughts of love and marriage themselves because they had two helpless old people to support. All of us know dozens of homes whose peace and happiness has been wrecked and where husbands and wives have been estranged by their continual quarrels over John's mother whom Mary can't abide, or Mary's father who gets on John's nerves, but who are forced to live with them. Many and many a man and woman wish their parents had given them fewer indulgences when they were children and put more money in the savings bank for their old age.

It is parents' duty to give their children every advantage that they can within reason, but they make a great mistake when they do not try to save enough to make themselves independent of their children in their old age. It is best for them and best for the children.

Perform Nuptials On Parents' 26th Anniversary

The wedding took place in Knox Church on Sunday, May 24, of Dorothy Isobel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cunningham, Frank street, to Vaughan Alexander, son of Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Glover of Hastings. The ceremony took place on the occasion of Rev. and Mrs. Glover's 26th wedding anniversary. Rev. J. E. Glover performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. H. J. Mahoney, and the church was decorated with mauve and white lilacs and irises. Mr. W. Potter played the wedding music and Miss Helen Glover, sister of the groom, sang two solos, "O Perfect Love" and "Beloved, It Is Morn."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk net over taffeta with a self-embroidered organza bodice, long sleeves and a slight train. Her veil of white embroidered tulle, finger-length, hung from a Mary Queen of Scots cap, and she carried a bouqute of bettertime roses. Her only attendant was Miss Aileen Brisco, who wore a shell pink frock on similar lines to the bride's with cap to match, and carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses. The best man was Leonard Ireland and the ushers were Merton Cunningham, brother of the bride, and Earle Darling.

At the reception in the bride's home which followed the ceremony, the bride's mother received wearing a green and blue redingote frock with matching hat and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a frock of dusty pink with a matching hat and corsage of pink roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a trip to Toronto. For travelling the bride wore a beige linen suit with beige and brown accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Glover will live at 184 Perry street.

Mrs. A. Saunders Hostess To Mission Circle

Mrs. Alma Saunders, Monaghan Road, was hostess on Monday night to the members of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle.

In the absence of the pianist, Gladys Langton presided at the piano and provided quiet music for the devotional period led by Jessie Martin, who took as her theme the "Church," and gave a reading entitled "The Church," closing the session with prayer.

Gladys Rutherford read a scripture lesson, Psalm 27, and following so closely upon Mother's Day, the theme was carried out in the remaining program. Zetta Wood's contribution was a reading, "A Mother Speaks to Mothers," and Mrs. Sedgwick also paid tribute to mothers in a reading, while Gladys Langton sang "That Wonderful Mother of Mine."

Temperance was presented in a brief paper by Alma Hunter, and the study book was synopsized in an interesting talk by Miss Jean Armstrong, after which Mrs. Wesley Rose led in prayer. "The Day Thou Gavest Lord," was the closing hymn.

The meeting was presided over by Lilyan Huggins in the absence of the president, who later extended the thanks of the Circle to the hostess, Mrs. Saunder, and to the committee assisting her, including Alma Hunter, Zetta Wood and Gladys Langton.

For Thursday, May 28

According to the lunar as well as mutual aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day there may not be any startling developments or worthwhile accomplishments as far as workaday engagements are concerned. Business and finance and credits have a sinister influence, with fraud, subterfuge and imposture possible unless much prudence and caution be exercised. The young, romantic and pleasure-loving may be active and resourceful.

Those whose birthday it is may find their best success and happiness in realms of pleasure, the artistic or emotional life rather than business or finance, which have a menace of fraud, duplicity, imposture or other disappointing or intriguing experience. There may be much enterprise and progress in youthful aspirations.

A child born on this day should have much ability in a refined and cultural way, and may find pleasure in its artistic, social or romantic attachments.

BILL PAYS A VISIT

CHAPTER XIV

Droningensgade was bustling with mid-morning activ;ty when Bill Talcott, with MacDowell grimly at his heels, came down the hill from Hotel 1829. Islanders thronged the narrow walk on the shady side of the street; tourists traveled in detached groups, insnecting bargains in the windowless shops, taking pictures, talking animatedly amongst themselves. Naval and Marine trucks rolled on the left side of the attentuated road, their drivers swearing at fare-seeking taxis. Blast of juke boxes, medley of horns, loud talk and laughter, and, somewhere nearby, the braying of a donkey were Charlotte Amalies complement of morning sounds.

"The tropics, MacDowell grunted, his nostrils flaring at the pungent ordor of bay rum.

They had bettered Talcott's prediction by almost two hours; had arrived in Pillsbury Sound while the Blue Petrel was still blowing for a pilot. They's had luck at Tortola dock. The harbormaster and immigration officer were on hand, busy with a group of forlorn natives whom some smuggler, possibly Jackson, had dumped in their lans. June Paterson had called her friends and then had gone off, taking Martha Swenson with her; Halsey and the Professor found lodgings elsewhere. Sebastien followed his usual custom of sleeping in the launch.

At the door of the Radiomarine office a huge man whose great paw was filled with cables yelled an enthusiastic greeting to Bill Talcott; an equally huge though shorter man on the opposite curb yelled at both Talcott and the cable bearer. "Jack and Sparky," Talcott said in response to MacDowell's question. "Rum. One makes it, the other sells it."

MacDowell acted as though he'd like to learn more about the rum buziness, but Talcott gave him no opportunity. In New York, Federal Chemical would have been going full blast for an hour. Old Man Winters would be working on his second c;gar of the day.

Talcott passed up a radiogram in favor of the phone, and his remarks to MacDowell that the booth had been built for one brought no withdrawal. Presently "Federal Chemical, good morning!" sang in his ears.

"This is Talcott, Plant Number Six. I want to talk to Winters."'

"Sorry. Mr. Winters is in Washington."

He might have known. "When'll he be back?"

"He has to be here tomorrow in time to make the Clipper. He has appointments in London."

He might have known that too. With all the need for nitrates the Old Man would be busier than a mother hen. He said, "Let me talk to his secretary."

"Just a moment, I'll connect you—" A buzz, click and a new voice, "Mr. Winters' office."

"This is Bill Talcott. What's all this baloney about not getting my duplicate vouchers?"

An appreciable pause. Then, "Sorry. I'm not allowed to discuss that."

"Blast your regulations! I mailed those vouchers, every last one of 'em. Struthers is trying to burn me at the stake!"

"I'm sorry. I have been given explicit order not to discuss the matter," and click! she rang off.

So that was how it was to be. The old steam-roller. Bill Talcott's eye narrowed grimly. No sense in trying to locate Winters by phone; like as not he'd be appearing before a Congressional subcommittee, telling them how to run the war. Quitting the booth he seized a blank and composed a message. A message that was claculated to make Winters miss three Clippers if neccesary. Then, more slowly, he wrote another and after long study signed it "Bill." MacDowell, crowding over his shoulder, gaped in astonishment when he saw the name "Captain Lowell Byrd," and the designation "G-2."

The detective's attitude had changed noticeably when they again reached the street. His oft-repeated suggestion that they still had to get reservations was supplemented with a hasty, "After you been to the bank, o' course!"

Talcott's fear that Struthers might have attached his account proved groundless. In the cool recesses of the building off the market place a sad-eyed teller murmured about the misfortune of losing such a valued client. A tidy sum it made, the total of his savings. He withdrew it all.

In the steamship company offices they found no difficulty. There was room aplenty for the return trip.

"A moot point arises here," Bill Talcott grinned. "Who pays for my passage.

"You do," MacDowell grunted. He hadn't ignored the amount of Bill Talcott's bank withdrawal.

In the Square, MacDowell cast longing eyes at the Bamboo Bar's inviting entrance. "Ya know, it's awful hot," he suggested.

Talcott didn't respond. "Do I have any liberty?" he asked abruptly.

"What's on your mind?"

"There is someone I must see before I leave."

MacDowell grinned. "Oh. Has she got a friend?"

"This isn't a she."

"Yeah? In that case I'll come along anyhow. I got nothin' else to do."

Bill Talcott shrugged and started for the quay. At an arched entrance between buildings he turned off through a tiled way whose masonry walls were dark with age; climbed stone steps and entered a door.

A bright-eyed young woman sat at a typewriter, and at sight of Bill Talcott she said cheerily, "Hello! Haven't seen you in a coon's age"

"Hello yourself. Is the big boss in?"

"He is if it's important enough."

"It is," Talcott said grimly.

Sse vanished through a door and in a moment was back. "Please don't stay long," she admonished. "He's really terribly busy."

The room they entered was a counterpart of the first. Plainly, even sparesly furnished. A desk, a filing cabinet, a few straight chairs. A calendar and nothing more on the wall. At the desk was a man with thinning gray hair and handsome weathered face in which thoughtful gray eyes considered them. His eyes were remarkable; like polarized lenses, they seemed to take in everything, give out nothing. They went over MacDowell from unbrushed hair to unshined shoes, and the planes behind MacDowell's moustache became red.

The man nodded to Talcott but did not rise, nor did he speak.

Bill Talcott said, "Can you do anvthing on Abas?"

The man at the desk pursed his lips. "We can watch it," he said in a slow musical voice.

Bill Talcott said, "When an auditor frames a Federal Chemical Company unit for bankruptcy, thereby leaving himself in sole charge of the island, it'll bear watching."

The gray eyes clouded thoughtfully; long, immeaculate fingers dipped into the desk drawer, reached and brought forth a photograph. "Is this your auditor?" his slow, musical voice asked.

Legion Insists On Enforcing Conscription

WINNIPEG,, May 27 — (CP). — The Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, to-day swung its full weight behind a total war effort for Canada promising to do everything "within constitutional means" to have the Dominion Government enforce conscription of manpower for overseas service.

The Legion, too, demands the Government put into effect "immediately" all necessary compulsory measures, apart from conscription of manpower, which will gear the country to its maximum capacity. It suggests that steps necessary include a limit on profits made in industry by elimination of "all" excess profits.

Turning to domestic affairs, delegates to-day will urge people everywhere to co-operate loyally and patriotically with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in reducing consumption of tea, coffee and sugar.

A resolution will be placed before the meeting praising the "realistic view" the Board has taken in dealing with the problem of possible shortage of these foodstuffs.

Favor Act Changes

The Legion unanimously approved the Rehabilitation committee's report, urging changes in the Veterans' Land Settlement Act that will benefit soldiers returning from the present war and a works program that the Legion maintains should be ready to put into effect immediately after demobilization.

As the scheduled last day's meeting got underway consideration was given to a home defence resolution urging that all men eligible and physically fit be compelled to serve in the Reserve army. Men exempted from Active Service because they are engaged in essential war work, also are included.

Legion members yesterday heard Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, assistant deputy minister of the Department of National War Services, declare Canada must "strip for action," for a struggle to the end, and be "united and strong."

"Unity is the crying need of our people," he said, "and with unity we can and will do our full duty again, and we will add to the glory of the victorious Canadian Overseas Forces of 1914-18."

Obituaries

THOMAS JAMES KEARNEY

The death occurred recently in Vancouver at his residence, 8835 Hundson Avenue, of Thomas James Kearney, a funeral director of that city. Only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Alexander Kearney of Young's Point, he was one of the band of pioneers who went to the Yukon in 1898 and opened two stores: one in Dawson City and one at Bonanza.

Mr. Kearney was a member of the Yukon Council and was nominated for Parliament in 1906 but resigned in favor of the Conservative candidate, the late Dr. Alfred Thompson.

Leaving the Yukon in 1911 he established himself as a funeral director, a profession which he followed for more than thirty years. He took an active interest in federal, provincial and civic affairs up until his health was impaired a few years ago.

Past President of the Yukon Pioneers; Past Grand Knight and Honorary Member of the Vancouver Council, Knights of Columbus, and president of the C.M.B.A., he was well known in many walks of life.

The body rested at the Kearney Funeral Chapel, and funeral services were conductd from St. Anthony's Church, Requiem Mass being celebrated by the Rev. Father Thomas O'Connor, and burial was in Ocean View Burial Park.

Surviving are his wife, Katherine O'Connor; one daughter, Ellen; two sons, Edmund and Frank at home; four sisters, Mrs. W. E. Brooks, Mrs. W. E. McDonaugh, Miss Jennie Kearney of Young Point; and Mrs. F. G. Young of Peterborough.

THADDAEUS PATRICK

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27 (ENS) —Death came suddenly on Monday morning to Thaddaeus Patrick, 64, former shoe factory and pulp mill worker here. The deceased came to this town as a boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Patrick of Trenton, and had spent nearly his entire life in Campbellford. He was for nearly sixteen years an employee of a local shoe company and worked for nearly twelve years in the pulp mill. Failing health prevented him from undertaking any strenuous activity during the past 14 years, when he found his principal interest in gardening.

Mr. Patrick's death came as a great shock both to members of his family and to his many friends in this community. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and had been a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church nearly all his life.

Surviving besides his widow, the former Sarah Nappey of Warkworth, is one daughter, Mrs. Jack Staples, Baltimore, and one son, Edmund, at home. A granddaughter, Kathleen Staples of Baltimore and one sister, Mrs. Joseph LaBrash, Port Arthur, also survive. Funeral service was conducted from the family residence this afternoon by Rev. W. Ernest Smythe, B.A., of Warkworth and interment was at Mount Pleasant cemetery.

The bearers were James Milne, Roy Hardy, John H. Wallace, Chas. Ackerman, John Ibey, D. A. Mitchell.

Reinforcements Swell Units Of Canucks In UK

A BRITISH PORT, May 27 — (CP Cable).—A new contingent of reinforcements for the Canadian army and the Royal Canadian Air Force has arrived in Britain, bringing with it vengeful soldiers from invaded countries and a group of favored German prisoners who are going to be given jobs.

The miscellaneous contingent was described as comparatively small, consisting largely of army reinforcements and airmen, but also containing auxiliary officers, Poles, Czechs, several navy fliers and the Germans.

The prisoners were crossing the Atlantic for at least the second time. They were originally sent from Britain to Canada for internment after the fall of France. For good behavior they are being allowed to return to Britain to repair air raid damage.

Many of them have spent months in German concentration camps. Some escaped from Nazi countries. None of their stories can be told individually for fear German authorities persecute their relatives who were left behind.

Majority of the troops were French-Canadians from Quebec, sappers of an engineering outfit, one of the only two complete units in the shipment, who said before they left Canada that they were "glad to be going overesas" after months of intensive training in Canada.

Probably the angriest men in the contingent were a group of Poles descended from ancestors who migrated to the United States 30 or 40 years ago. The Czechs, all of whom had fought the Nazis before September, 1939, would not talk at all for fear they might disclose information of use to the enemy.

Baseball Season Opens With Big Crowd

PORT HOPE, May 27 (ENS) — The baseball season seems to be off to a good start for the 1942 season.

On Tuesday night sharp at 6.30, despite a light shower, a large and enthusiastic crowd gathered at King's Field to see the opening game played between the Royal Grills and the Rascals.

This being the first game of the season the opening ceremonies took place with Mayor S. Gifford at the bat, Deputy-Reeve Moncrief pitching and Reeve G. Box doing the catching.

The scheduled game however was soon under way with Dawley pitching for the Rascals, and he also batted this team to victory. He strick out 5 and had a perfect day at the bat with 3 for 3 and scored all 4 of the Rascals runs, allowing only 3 hits.

Pointer, who pitched for the Royal Grill, struck out 8 and allowed 7 hits.

The Rascals came from behind in the 5th inning and scored the tying and winning runs.

The feature play of this opening game was when Len Ashley caught Jim Phillips' short fly in the third inning.

The umpires for this game were Devine at the plate and Brown on the bases.

The official summary of the game is as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	R	H	E

Public Is Accepting 'Phone Restrictions

C. F. Sise, president of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, said in an interview in Toronto the other day that the public were accepting restriction on telephone installations in good part because they realized the urgent need for use in war supplies of the very materials that go to make up telephone plant.

"That is our experience here in Peterborough," M. H. Riddle, manager of the company said to the Examiner today. "We have found that, when we explain the situation, applicants to whom we must deny telephone service appreciate our position and accept the handicap in good part.

"The war must come first. In normal times, we would be just as anxious as any other business organization to increase the number of our customers and extend our service. At the moment, however, it is our plain duty to make certain that—at all costs—the needs for telephone service of the government, the military, naval and air authorities, munitions plants and manufacturers of war supplies are promptly met.

Ready For Another Smash At Axis

Dwarfing the trucks and men standing around them a squadron of Britain's huge four-motored Stirling bombers are pictured after being serviced and bombed-up ready for the takeoff on a flight over enemy territory. Among the largest bomb-carrying aircraft ever built, the Stirlings are the spearhead for Britain's aerial offensive against the Axis. They carry a tremendous cargo of bombs and have a very wide cruising radius.

Now that the warm weather is here, why not try a machineless permanent. It is light on the head, no electricity, wires or machines. These permanents include our special shampoo's, feather cut, and any hairstyle you desire. We recommend these waves for young and old.

Work clothes need more than ordinary washing...

You must have

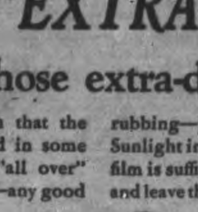
for those extra-dirty parts

IT'S true of every family's wash that the garments in it are worse soiled in some parts than others. The general "all over" soiling, naturally, is easy to remove—any good soap will do it. But for those extra dirty parts where the dirt is rubbed right into the fabric you need Sunlight's "extra-soapiness".

Because of Sunlight's wonderful "extra-soapiness" you can get right at the dirt. No hard rubbing—just a touch leaves a thin film of Sunlight in contact with the dirt—and this thin film is sufficient to loosen every speck of grime and leave the garment spotlessly fresh and clean.



Once you've tried the Sunlight method you'll want to use it always—for laundry and household cleaning. Sunlight is all-pure soap—safe for everything you wash, mild and gentle to your hands, too.

You can't do without

IN MEMORIAM

DOHERTY.—In loving memory of our dear father, Daniel Doherty, who passed away four years ago, May 27, 1938.

Dear Dad, we are so lonely since the day you went away,
And our memory lingers often to your grave not far away.
Four years have passed, but loving memory
Never from our hearts shall fade
Of the dearest, kindest father
Ever God to children gave.
God bless you, dear Dad, till we meet again.

—Ever remembered by his Family.

MORROW.—In loving memory of Fred Morrow, who departed from this earth three years ago, May 26th, 1939.

Three years have passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away;
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
A faithful husband and father, one of the best,
May God grant him eternal rest.
Good was his heart, his friendship sound,
Loved and respected all around.
To a busy life came a sudden end,
He died as he lived—everyone's friend.

—Sadly missed, but always remembered by his loving Wife and Family.

Learn to Play the Piano at Home

Charts Make It Easy

Playing the piano adds to your popularity. And learning how can be fun. With the help of our clever home instruction book and its simple charts you can soon teach yourself how to read music.

The chart has a musical staff with arrows pointing from each note the corresponding key. Placing the life-size chart behind the matching keys you discover at once the key to play for any note.

Your next step is to play popular music or semi-classical songs. The easy way to start is to play just the right-hand part, the melody, while with your left you play simple harmonizing chords—learned a special short-cut way.

Our 24-page instruction book shows how to learn chords the short-cut way and includes a full-size keyboard chart and table of chords. Explains musical symbols, time and rhythm; has 3 airs for practise.

For your copy of "Quick Course in Piano Playing" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of instruction book.

BE READY FOR SHOCKS

UNLESS you can stand shocks, in the form of seeing your opponents accomplishing things against you which offhand appear impossible, bridge is no game for you. Every once in a while something occurs which is practically beyond all belief, and against which you would be willing to wager any odds you can think of.

Sitting in the West position on this deal in a friendly rubber game was one of the greatest card players the world has ever seen or ever will see, Sidney S. Lenz. Considering his distribution, his opening bid of 1-Heart was thoroughly sound and would have been made by 999 out of every 1,000 fine players. You can imagine, however, how it must have sounded to South, who was vulnerable while Mr. Lenz was not. Most certainly it had all of the earmarks of a psychic. His double, followed by his 4-Heart call, convinced North that Mr. Lenz had bid a psychic with a weak hand, and consequently he issued a slam invitation which his partner accepted.

Do you know anybody in the world who would not double that contract holding Mr. Lenz's hand, especially since he had such a good lead with his club honor sequence? As it turned out, only one trick was lost, to the Spade A, as the diamond finesse worked, so the contract was made.

If, after North's 1-Heart, East bids 1-No Trump, West 2-Spades, East 2-No Trumps, West 3-Spades, and North passes, what should East now do?

CAIRO, Egypt, May 28 (AP) The sudden Axis offensive eastward in the Libyan desert has driven within 15 miles of the key British defensive stronghold of Tobruk despite being repulsed at both flanks, it was disclosed today.

This indicated an advance of about 30 miles past the British forward defence line, which stretched between Bir Hacheim and Ain el Gazala.

An R.A.F. communique disclosed the depth of these thrusts by Marshal Erwin Rommel's German - Italian tanks. It said that the British fliers bombed the enemy armored forces throughout Wednesday in the El Adem and Bir Hacheim areas.

El Adem is 15 miles south of Tobruk; Bir Hacheim 50 miles southwest.

An authoritative British statement was issued later stating that the enemy's presence in the Ell Adem area was not of great significance and did not mean a 'break-through,' since in the nature of desert fighting there was no defence line in the usual sense.

Four Main Columns.

An earlier British army communique said that the Axis attacks were in four main columns, and that one directly before Bir Hacheim and another south of Ain el Gazala, which is 30 miles west of Tobruk, had been repulsed with heavy casualties.

Between these extremities two other Axis columns were being heavily engaged with results as yet undetermined the army communique said.

The R.A.F. announcement placed these forces even deeper than the army had intimated, but said the all-day bombings had wrecked many transport vehicles. The R.A.F. planes also ranged widely in smashing attacks on airdromes and bases behind the enemy lines and in fighting off Axis air attacks shot down 12 enemy planes while losing four.

The main German-Italian thrust apparently was aiming directly toward Tobruk, which the British forces have held against all vicissitudes since their first offensive into Libya in the winter of 1940-41.

("No real offensive can be mounted in the desert unless the attacking force holds both Bengasi and Tobruk," said an informed source in London.)

The battles, which began with the sudden Axis advance late Tuesday night, were being fought out over a wide area as the tanks of both sides ranged the desert wastes like warships at sea.

Overhead, the R.A.F. intercepted Axis air raids on British ground forces and continuously attacked enemy transport.

(London quarters, noting no mention of infantry, predicted that Rommel soon would be forced to use all his armored forces, if he had not already done so. These include one Italian and three German divisions. He also has four Italian motorized infantry divisions.)

"Let 'Em Come" Tommies Say

As the Axis offensive began, with the approach of the desert hot season, the reaction of British soldiers manning the tanks and gun emplacements was "let 'em come."

Since it is destruction of the enemy's armored equipment rather than the winning of ground that counts in this desert warfare the result may surprise the Axis chieftains, they said.

The action thus far, which began Tuesday night when a German armored column swept across the desert to strike at British positions south of Bir el Haclem, some 50 miles southwest of Tobruk, leaves Rommel's strategy in doubt.

Military circles, however, inclined to the belief his immediate objective is Tobruk, and that the thrust at Bir El Hachiem is a feint designed to draw British strength away from the coast.

Capital City Of Kinhwa Is In Danger

Perilous Situation Is Reported By Chinese In Chekiang Province

CHUNGKING, May 28 — (AP)— The bitterly contested city of Kinhwa in Chekiang Province still is in Chinese hands after the failure of attacks by heavily reinforced Japanese columns, the Chinese High Command announced to-night.

Both sides lost heavily in bitter fighting which raged throughout yesterday around the walls of Kingwa, provincial capital and the chief objective of the Japanese army's major sweep down the coastal area below Shanghai, said a communique.

The Japanese brought up 10.000 reinforcements, including artillery and cavalry as well as infantry, for the assaults, which came from several sides but all of which were repulsed.

The Japanese had claimed capture of the city this morning, but this was denied here.

The Japanese attacking from the south and south-east have been particularly punished in their repeated assaults on the city a Chinese spokesman said, but he conceded the invaders now had achieved artillery superiority in their attempt to seize all the east coastal province.

Much Artillery Used.

"In the first stages of the Battle of Kinhwa the Japanese used more artillery than tanks," said the spokesman. "We also used a good deal of artillery, and at first our firepower exceeded the enemy's.

"The enemy then brought up more artillery until now his firepower has exceeded ours."

Chinese forces near the Yunnan-Burma border, seeking to destroy Japanese units thrusting through Chinas back door, were reported to have encircled Japanese-occupied Lungling, Burma Road town west of the Salween River.

Central News, Chinese agency, said the Japanese had been sent into headlong retreat into Lungling after the Chinese had retaken Fangmakiano and Hwangtsaopa, both to the south of Lungling.

This was the main fruit of a series of co-ordinated assaults launched Saturday along the whole western Yunnan front.

Part of that series was what Central News called "annihilating attacks" in the Tenghchung area, some 40 miles northwest of Lungling, where "staggering losses" were reported inflicted on the invaders. Chinese attacking west of Tengchung also were reported to have made progress.

Jap Units Bombed

Crack units of the Chinese Air Force and members of the American Volunteer group bombed and machine-gunned the Japanese in Yunnan during the co-ordinated assaults. Last Monday, it was announced today, Chiang Kai-Shek telegraphed the A.V.G., congratulating its fliers on their "remarkable achievements."

Duce Trying Strengthen Grip On Party

Italy Is Moving With Caution On Demands On Vichy

By THOMAS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer.

BERNE, Switzerland, May 28 — (AP). — Mussolini has undertaken a sweeping new purge of the Fascist Party in a drive to strengthen his grip on the Italian home front while awaiting a declaration from Vichy before pressing further his territorial claims upon France, according to foreign reports reaching here to-day.

It is understood that a friend of both Mussolini and Laval is en route to Rome with Vichy counter proposals to Italian claims on Nice, Corsica, and Tunisia.

These proposals were said to suggest that Vichy would consent to Italian police supervision over some areas, probably including the French North African port of Tunis, but with all such teritory remaining in French possession.

Mussolini apparently is moving with caution.

Home Front Weakening.

Recent Italian declarations plainly implied that a weakening of the home front compelled 'vast revision" within the Fascist Party organization.

Mussolini already has removed more than a dozen high party members in recent weeks and replaced a number of party secretaries in key cities according to reports reaching here.

Now, it is said, every party member is being subjected to new examination, subject to exclusion from the organization.

Under these measures, public officials henceforth will be permitted to assume administrative posts only with the authorization of the party and at Mussolini's personal order.

Depend on Loyalty

Mussolini thus appeared intent on shaping a smaller, stronger, more easily controlled party modelled after Hitler's SS (Elite Guard) including only members on whose absolute loyalty he could count in enforcing national discipline.

A reliable foreign diplomatic source said that at the same time Italy made her territorial demands on France she sent a supplemental memorandum to Germany.

This note, it was reported, said Italy had fought since the outbreak of the war in Ethiopia, had sent her troops to Spain and had served the Axis in the Second Great War, but that she had lost her original gains and had nothing to show for her sacrifices.

200 Jap Planes Are Bagged In Six Weeks

ALLIED HEAQUARTERS, Australia, May 28.—(CP).—At least 200 Japanese aircraft have been officially shot down, destroyed on the ground or damaged by Allied planes in this theatre of war in the six weeks since Gen. Douglas McArthur took command, a review of 41 communiques issued from his headquarters showed to-day.

The bulletins have specifically accounted for 194 enemy planes and destruction of many more has been implied in communiques in such reports as "many direct hits were scored on a line of 30 planes" and bombs landed in a dispersal area of 20 enemy plane.'

Allied Losses Light.

While the communiques have not always been specific with regard to Allied losses, these generally have been described as 'slight' or 'negligible.'

The Japanese planes accounted for include:

Zero (navy) fighters — 63 shot down and 28 damaged.

Bombers — 35 destroyed and 16 damaged.

Flying Boats and Seaplanes—13 damaged or destroyed.

Unspecified types— 11 destroyed and 28 damaged.

Yesterday, headquarters said, Allied interceptors tore into a squadron of 15 Japanese Zeros which attempted to strafe the airdrome at Port Moresby, New Guinea, shooting down one and damaging six. One Allied plane was lost.

Return to Attack.

The Japanese returned to the attack again last night, "but without effect," the communique said.

Allied personnel losses, meanwhile, were reduced when the seven-man crew of a missing American bomber arrived safely at an Allied operational base after a 45-day trek through the swampy wilds of New Guinea. An American fighter pilot, missing 26 days, arrived with them.

All were in good shape when they pulled in, having been aided by friendly natives and by a British missionary.

Germans Fail To Dig In On New Lines

Soviet Armies Hold Initiative On Two Major Battle Fronts

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, May 28—(AP).—The Germans are being forced to give ground in both the Izyum-Barvenkova and Kharkov sectors, the Russians declared today, indicating that the initiative on both those major battlefields of the Ukraine remained firmly in the hands of the Red army.

Front-line dispatches said that the Germans, blocked in their offensive in the Izyum-Barkenvoka area, were trying to dig in on new lines but constant heavy pressure from the counter-attacking Russians was forcing them to fall back.

From their own freshly-fortified lines before Kharkov, the Russians said they were pushing forward. They battled fiercely overnight against German tan' and infantry forces in both sectors and reported that before Kharkov one three-day battle had burned or otherwise knocked out 46 German tanks.

Nazi Tanks Resort To Ruses.

Russian accounts said the Germans had resort to ruses in which some of their tanks flew Red banners and displayed Red stars and some of their troops wore Red army uniforms.

Burma Army Is Safe In India

N7W DELHI, India, May 28.—(CP Cable).—Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander in chief for India and Burma, to-day announced the safe withdrawal to India of more than four-fifths of the British army which fought the Japanese in Burma.

Gen. Wavell, praising the troops by saying that "their efforts saved India from what might have been a very dangerous situation," declared that questions of supply and maintenance caused the withdrawal

"If we had had a satisfactory road from India into Burma, capable of standing up to the monsoon which is now beginning to break, there would have been no reason why we should not have continued to resist the enemy well forward into Burma," he said in a press statement.

The statement was issued at the same time that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander in Burma under Gen. Wavell's general direction, formally announced in a special order of the day the termination of his task.

"My command of the armed forces in Burma has come to an end with the withdrawal of the army from that country," Sir Harold said. "Our task has been carried out with little or no air support. The struggle has been hard and critical."

Japs Will Bomb West Coast Cities—Stimson

WASHINGTON, May 28—(AP).— War Secretary Henry Stimson said to-day the War Department considered a Japanese air raid on the United States to be inevitable as a return blow for the attack on Tokyo and other Japanese cities.

The Secretary told his press conference the Army is doing everything possible to meet the expected attack, whech he indicated was anticipated on the West Coast.

"Whatever happens, we shall not relax our most effective defence—our preparations for a major offensive, he said.

Stimson also told a questioner that despite the great distanee the East Coast lies from Japan, an attack on Washington is "not inconceivable." He did not discuss the possibility of attacks by Japan's Axis partners.

The "loss of face" Japan suffered from the Army air attack led by Brig.-Gen. Jimmy Doolittle made a venegance blow inevitable, Stimson contended.

"The United States, through Gen. Doolittle, inflicted a stinging, humiliating surprise blow on the Japanese as evidence by their boasting of Japan's invulnerability at the very time the bombers came over," the Secretary said.

Japs Describe Attack

(Editor's note: Japan claimed full credit today for the submarine attack of Feb. 23 on an oil field north of Santa Barbara, Calif. The submarine, identified at the time only as an enemy vessel, fired 25 five-inch shells from her deck gun during a fireside chat by President Roosevelt. They were estimated by oil field officials to have caused damage of $500. Two huge storage tanks were believed to have been the target, but they were untouched. What the Japanese claim for the attack was given for the first time today as follows):

"The initial eyewitness account of the sensational shelling of the Santa Barabara coastline Feb. 24 (actually Feb. 23) by a Japanese submarine—a story that was carried by newspapers throughout the world for its significance as the first shelling of the American mainland by an Axis submarine—is reported by

Prompt Registration Or Death

LONDON, May 28—(CP).—German authorities subjected all Bohemia and Moravia to a fine-tooth combing today in a hunt for the assailant of Reinhard Heydrich, No. 2 man of the Nazi Gestapo, and ordered every male over 15 in the protectorate to register with police by midnight tomorrow.

Czech sources in London expressed belief that "hundreds must already have been arrested" in mass roundups started yesterday, immediately after Heydrich was wounded in a Prague suburb. The decree ordering all males to register with the police was broadcast by the Prague radio. It said German soldiers would shoot on the spot any man found without a registration card after the midnight deadline.

It could be assumed that the Gestapo was proceeding with its inquiry and retaliation under etxraordinary police measures at Prague, while Heydrich lay, at last reports, in a serious condition from injuries suffered yesterday in an attack on his automobile, either by bomb or gun-

Great Desert Battle Resembles Sea Fight

Armored Columns In Search Of Foe Swoop, Withdraw, Spar Again For Advantage

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT
Associated Press Staff Writer

The opening phase of the fifth major conflict in the African desert is more like a great battle at sea between powerful fleets than anything else.

Sweeping over trackless sand like naval task forces, the armored columns circle in search of the mobile enemy, swoop, withdraw, and spar again for advantage. The gaining or holding of ground means nothing in itself; the whole object is destruction of the enemy tank squadrons. Fixed defences are few —like seaports which are defended at distance. Manoeuvrability is limited only by the endurance of the machines and men.

Wipe Out Mechanized Units

Right now the Nazi armored striking force is endeavoring to wipe out the British mechanized units which defend the hot, shimmering approaches to Tobruk, the desert "port" which is the key to any general advance into Egypt.

It is a touch-and-go affair, almost impossible to follow in its evolution. The Germans and Italians, cagily, have not even mentioned in their communiques that an attack has begun. The terrible heat of this season is an important hazard which the German commander must overcome, although it must be realized that it is just as hot for the defender as for the attacker.

Should the Germans succeed in wiping out the roving iron defenders of this sandy sea, and then take Tobruk by infantry assault they would be in a position to make a prolonged and large-scale campaign which would engage the whole energies of the Allied armies in all the Middle East, divert much of the assistance which Russia will need to defend the Caucasus and weaken the frontal defences of the Middle East oil countries.

Extending Russian Theatre of War.

In a major sense the whole Middle East from the Libyan desert to Iran must be regarded as an extended flank of the Russian theatre of war.

Moreover, the great Allied oil reservoirs east of Suez are directly vulnerable to air or seaborne attack or to a land drive via Turkey—especially if the Allied fighting forces are heavily engaged in the West.

Those are the reasons why the desert battleground can never be regarded as isolated or localized, and that is why there must be a decision in Libya or Egypt before the ultimated Allied offensives can get in motion.

Vote Is Close On Lifting Ban

Labor Votes To Lift Ban On Communist Paper

LONDON, May 28—(CP)— The Labor Party conference voted 1,244,000 to 1,231,000 today to urge the government to remove the existing ban on The Daily Worker, but rejected by 1,899,000 to 132,000 a resolution asking its own executive committee to lift a prohibition on co-operation with the Communist party.

Publication of The Daily Worker, a Communist newspaper, was forbidden in January, 1941, on the ground it had printed matter designed to foment opposition to Britain's war effort.

In a lively debate preceding the vote on the Communist resolution, James Walker, Member of Parliament for Motherwell, declared the Communists for years had been bitter opponents of the Labor party.

At first Mr. Walker said, the Communists labelled the war "imperialistic" but when Soviet Russia was attacked changed their tune and called it a holy war.

When delegates shouted he was insulting the Soviet Union, Mr. Walker asserted he was not talking about the Soviet Union but "about people who claim to be its friends."

Quints Mark 8th Birthday

Past Year Anything But Quiet For Five Girls

CALLANDER, Ont., May 28—(CP).—Pleased as Punch over their first haircut, a pre-birthday gift from their parents, the Dionne quintuplets were eight years old today and celebrated their quietest anniversary yet with just a quiet family get-together.

But if the birthday was quiet, the past year wasn't. It was marked by a minor operation for Yvonne, a trip to the Sick Children's Hospital at Toronto for Marie for examinatin, and the disappearance from their midst of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe —the "country doctor" who delivered the fire premature infants to Mrs. Elzire Dionne.

It was last February 15 that Premier Hepburn announced Dr. Dafoe had submitted his resignation. The Premier then said the doctor's position "has been made almost impossible by reason of the fact the children are not allowed to speak English."

And the doctor said: "I feel my period of usefulness is over. I hope I have done a good job."

Alberta Oil Agreement Bill Shelved

Proceedings Ordered Against Chaloult For Montreal Speech

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 28—(CP).—Resources Minister Crerar's bill to ratify an Alberta Government agreement with oil land lease holders involving an increase in royalty rates has been placed temporarily on the shelf after meeting strong opposition in the House of Commons.

Conservative House Leader Hanson, Manley Edwards (Lib., Calgary West), and A. H. Bence (Con., Saskatoon) led the attack in the House yesterday, as they had the day before.

They contended that it was a violation of the contracts entered into by oil companies when they obtained their leases, that its legality was questionable, and that by passing the bill the Federal Parliament was playing "an appeasement policy" toward the Alberta Government which could not obtain its ends alone.

Near the close of the short Wednesday sitting Mr. Crerar yielded to the suggestion of Mr. Hanson, that the bill be put aside for reconsideration of all aspects of its significance.

Justice Minister St. Laurent told the House that proceedings will be instituted under Defence of Canada Regulations against Rene Chaloult, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature, because of a speech he made at Montreal on May 19.

Liguori Lacombe (Con., Laval-Two Mountains) unsuccessfully tried to obtain adjournment of the House to discuss "a definite matter whose urgency and seriousness request public attention." He was ruled out of order by Speaker Glen. After the House rose Mr. Lacombe issued a statement criticizing the Speaker's ruling. He said that his intention was to have the House discuss Quebec's representation in the Dominion Cabinet.

a Nichi Nichi correspondent who interviewed an officer who participated in the raid at an unspecified Japanese naval base.

"Describing the thrilling surprise assault in which military objectives along the Santa Barbara coastline were damaged by gunfire, a lieutenant who preferred to keep his name secret said that when the Japanese U-boat bobbed up off the California coastline there were no signs whatsoever of enemy patrol activity.

"With the raid being timed at night, he said, the illumination of the town of Santa Barbara and the twinkling of beacon lights of oil storage tanks and derricks were clearly visible. Along the coastal highway speeding cars threw a glare of headlights into the night and the entire coastal area presented a peaceful and wholly unwarlike scene, the officer said.

"When the first shot was fired from the submarine, the lieutenant continued, there were immediately signs of consterantion and those on the U-boat heard the distant sound of shrieking sirens.

"'Everyone on board completely forgot the hardships they had encountered in making the crossing from Japan when the first shell shattered the night and when the second and third shots set targets on fire all the crew danced with joy and threw their arms around each other,' he said.

"On making sure they had set fire to all oil tanks in that area, the U-boat submerged, disappearing under the waves.

"Asked whether the raid was timed for President Roosevelt's fireside chat, the officer said he didn't know about it but was amused no end to hear later that the attack occurred when Roosevelt was making another one of his diatribes against the Axis."

Across China, in the eastern province of Chekiang, where the Japanese have been driving on Kinhwa early morning dispatches said Chinese defenders firmly entrenched on the outskirts of that provincial capital had held their ground.

(The Japanese, however, said the city fell to their forces this morning.)

In the Lanki sector northwest of Kinhwa, the Chinese said the Japanese had sustained heavy losses.

The possible widening of active operations on the Chinese eastern front was indicated in dispatches which said 30,000 to 40,000 Japanese troops were massed at Nanchang, Japanese-occupied capital of Kiangsi province, inland from Chekiang.

Germans Fail

There also were several "psychological attacks," in which the Germans charged the Russian lines, firing wildly and shouting at the tops of their voices.

In one such case they tried the stunt three times, but finally fell back, leaving 1,000 dead "psychologists" on the field, the Russians said.

The Red army unit which broke this assault was credited with having repulsed 11 counter-attacks and then developed its own offensive in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector.

Today's Russian dispatches gave this story of how the main German thrusts in that sector was checked:

The 101st German Infantry Division was assigned to cross a river 12 miles south of a fortified settlement which was holding up the Nazi advance.

The Germans marched up with a brass band as though on a parade-ground, deployed along the high right bank of the river, and started down to the water.

Russian forces on the left bank remained silent and hidden until the Germans were within easy range on the river's edge. Then they opened up with everything at once, turning the bank into a mass of broken trees, flying earth and shattered German bodies.

As dense clouds of smoke and dust rose over this scene of carnage, Russian infantry crossed the river and finished the job with bayonets and hand grenades.

Some of the remaining Germans assembled again ater in the day, without their band, and tried to advance by stealth, but again the Red artillery crushed them.

Fire Destroys Blacksmith Shop

CAMPBELLFORD, May 29 (ENS)—A spark on the roof is blamed for the loss by fire of Dan Brown's blacksmith shop, ten miles northeast of here Thursday morning. More than 75 neighbors battled the flames with buckets of water but their efforts were futile and the building is a total loss.

The blaze started at 9:30, and the owner was working in the shop at the time. He was able to save the tools. The building was put up two years ago to replace one burned a short time before. The direction of the wind removed any special danger to the cheese factory and house. Loss will exceed $1,000 and it is partially covered by insurance.

Italy's claims, meanwhile, apparently created considerable stir in Vichy.

There has been no indication whether his resignation will be accepted in view of compromise efforts through which the Vichy Government is trying to work its way out of its difficulties.

Germans Fail To Imperil Russian Wing

46 German Tanks Are Put Out On Kharkov Front

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, May 28 — (AP). — Soviet troops have burned or otherwise damaged more than 46 German tanks in three days of fighting on the Kharkov Front and they battled fiercely overnight against enemy armored units and infantry in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector to the south, the Russians said to-day.

The Soviet Information Bureau announced 2,400 more Germans were killed in repulse of flanking attacks in the southern theatre and that 200 died in tanks newly burned or wrecked in the Battle of Kharkov.

"During the night of May 27-28 in the Kharkov direction," the Bureau said "our troops consolidated their positions."

In the Kalinin and the adjoining north-western front sectors between Smolensk and Leningrad it was reported that a series of Nazi attacks and Red Army thrusts recently had cost the Germans 1,200 men killed.

Two Thrusts Broken.

Russian artillerymen and infantrymen were cited for turning back two thrusts in the Donets River Basin battleground south of Kharkov, manoeuvres by which Lt.-Gen. Viktor von Schwedler hoped to imperil Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's left wing about that Nazi-occupied steel centre.

"In the Izyum direction of the front (lying in a bend west of the Donets) our troops, repelling enemy attacks, inflicted heavy losses on them," a communique said. "Men of one rifle unit destroyed up to 1,400 Hitlerites.

"In another sector large enemy forces tried to ford a river (apparently also the Donets). Artillery fire at short range and the enemy, retreating, lost over 1,000 killed and large quantities of equipment."

These announcements followed reports yesterday that a Soviet counter attack had won new ground in the sector; that Red Army cavalrymen had slain 2,100 Germans on a 40-mile raid behind the Nazi lines.

The midnight summary of the 16-day-old Kharkov offensive was confined to a sentence:—

"On the Kharkov sector of the front our troops consolidated the positions they had occupied and

Two Attackers.

The attack occurred in a Prague suburb on the highway to Berlin, it appeared in a report from Prague, while Heydrich was driving in a large car with high German officials. It was said only a few persons could have known the route and time that Heydrich set out from his headquarters.

Czech sources in London heard that the assassination was attempted with automatic rifles in the hands of two men between 30 and 35 years of age, one of whom escaped on bicycle or afoot. Some Swedish reports were to the effect that a delayed action bomb had been planted in the car or that a bomb had been thrown at it.

The German-controlled Prague radio announced that an attache case bearing the label of a small Prague hotel, the White Swan, had been found with another "object" after the assassins fled.

Ottawa's Action No Surprise To Rene Chaloult

QUEBEC, May 28 — (CP).—Rene Chaloult, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly for Lotbiniere, said in the Provincial Lower House last night that he was "not surprised to hear" that the Dominion Department of Justice planned to institute action against him under Defence of Canada Regulations.

Commenting on an announcement from Ottawa that the Department will take proceedings against him for a speech he made two weeks ago in Montreal St. James' Market, Mr. Chaloult said that "Ottawa has thus, in effect, given in to the clamors of the English press which control the economic dictatorship and which demands my arrest," the member had asked to speak "on a question of privilege."

Give Jobs to French.

Mr. Chaloult, who urged in the House earlier in the afternoon that French-Canadians be given their share of jobs in the Army, in war industries, and in the Civil Service, said that "during my speech this afternoon I was told that proceedings will be instituted against me. I wanted to verify this news before making a statement."

"Ottawa has thus, in effect, given in to the clamors of the English press, which controls the economic dictatorship and which demands my arrest. I am not at all surprised. It is the result of a plot engineered quietly to reduce to silence by twisting the facts, the voice of those who express the sentiments of the Province of Quebec.

"A word of commentary only: I will continue, in the limits permitted by the laws of this country to fight against conscription and to

Artillery Officer Talks To Kinsmen

COBOURG, May 28—(ENS).—Major H. K. Walker, C.O. of the 36th Battery, Cobourg, was the speaker Tuesday night at the regular dinner meeting of Cobourg Kinsmen Club, bringing them an interesting account of the new system of training for Canadian troops in preparation for active service. Major Walker, who went overseas with a Guelph unit early in 1940, is now back in Canada to impart his knowledge to the men in training here. While in England, Major Walker obtained a very comprehensive knowledge of fighting training there.

Major Walker declared that it appeared that the British had the German system beaten. In the new army scheme the men of the nation's armed forces are made fit for any battle, and it is for that reason that the young officer was gaining greater importance, for the reason that the younger men were the only ones who could stand the strain of the stepped-up tempo of modern training methods.

The speaker told his listeners that until they had experienced an English blackout they did not know what a blackout was. He had been told by captured German fliers that the English blackout was excellent. Speaking in connection with Dunkirk, he declared that after Dunkirk in one day every road sign in England disappeared, a big undertaking.

"We had front row seats near London for the "Battle of Britain," and the English seem to be able to take it better than any nation I knew," he said.

FORSAKING his silvan domain, a full-grown bull moose walked sedately into the centre of Truro early today, calling at several homes on the route to graze on the lawns. After spending a few hours in town, he quietly returned to his hidden pastures, having caused no damage but considerable astonishment. Residents recalled that 20 years ago, a cow moose wandered into town but that was the only other time such a visit occurred.

$200 Chimney Fire

An estimated two hundred dollars damage was done as the result of a chimney fire at R. H. Cole's home on Wellington street at 6.30 last night. Mr. and Mrs. Cole, who have been spending most of their time at their summer resort below Healey Falls were in town for the day and during the afternoon noticed that their chimney was on fire as pipes burned out. They thought the blaze was completely extinguished as the fire in the stove had gone out. But Mrs. Sam Wilson, a neighbor, happened to look out her back door and noticed the Cole roof blazing. The fire department under Chief C. B. Williams responded to the alarm and a single stream of water on the roof put out the fire. In addition to the roof considerable damage was done by water inside the building.

Cobourg Utilities Makes Light Survey

COBOURG, May 28.—(ENS)—Cobourg Public Utilities has completed its survey of the business lighting, in compliance with a request from the H.E.P.C. of Ontario, it was announced at the regular meeting of the Commission here. This is in accordance with the plan to conserve power by curtailing it in some instances. The Commission has received a notice that no more electricity may be used in heating buildings. However this will not work as hardship in Cobourg, as the prohibitive cost of this has prevented any extensive use. The Commission stated that although a power shortage was expected, there was nothing definite. It is not expected that there will be restrictions on domestic use, apart from the request which has already been made to householders to conserve as much as possible.

The power bill for April was $5,455.74, it was revealed. The following accounts were passed:

Electric Department: H. Fowler and Son, $6.37; Powerlight devices, $272.67; H.E.P.C., $5,455.79; Confederation Life Association, $91.50; E.O.M.A. fees, $10. Total, $5,837.33.

Water Department: Canadian Brass Co., $20.70; Freeman Leather Works, $6.48; Wallace and Tierman, $95.21; Electric Dept., Cobourg Public Utilities Commission, $512.13. Total, $634.52.

Three Cobourg Men Return Survive Enemy Torpedoings

COBOURG, May 28.—(ENS)—One of them a veteran of two torpedoings and the other two having been torpedoed once, Jack Clements, Robert Kerr and Norman Thompson arrived back in Cobourg a few days ago. Jack Clements went back to his old job as chef on car ferry Ontario No. 1, which plies between Cobourg and Genesee Docks, N.Y. Norman Thompson later went to Toronto but it is expected that he will go back to work on the ferry. Kerr is taking a vacation and may ship aboard another sea-going vessel. Thompson, already having experienced one torpedoing was aboard the same ship with Kerr and Clements when it was torpedoed. All three started their sailing career aboard the local car ferries.

Thompson left Cobourg last February and shipped aboard a ship bound for the West Indies but the vessel was torpedoed before it reached its destination. He landed on the Barbadoes. A few weeks later he went aboard a passenger steamer on which Kerr and Clements was working, the former as purser and the latter as chef. However they were only about 200 miles out to sea again when a torpedo ended the ship's career.

"I was in bed when the torpedo struck us. I was fully dressed and only had to put on my uniform coat and go on deck," stated Kerr. "Thompson was in my office talking to the assistant purser at the time the torpedo hit. It struck about nine o'clock at night after the first one missed us. Passengers and crew totalling about 260 people went to the life boats. Twelve people lost their lives in the torpedoing, six sailors and six passengers. Five life boats and rafts accommodated those who got away all right. The seven on the rafts were picked up a soon as daylight permitted it and got aboard the life boats. After drifting for three nights and two days, we were spotted by a U.S. reconnaisance plane which notified headquarters. Later an American ship came and rescued us," related Kerr.

Kerr was warm in his praise of the people of Bermuda who treated the survivors with great hospitality. The captain of his ship showed great coolness and courage after the ship was torpedoed, he added.

"We can thank the captain for his regular boat drills that everything went so smoothly in abandoning ship after we were struck."

Kerr did not agree with the reported story that Miss Gwen Canfield of Simcoe, Ontario, a passenger, had seen three submarines after the torpedo struck, which played their lights on the life boats.

"I saw nothing of that," Kerr declared.

Robert Kerr started on the car ferries some years ago and served as steward on both ships. In 1937 he signed on as purser's clerk on the T.S.S. North Star and sailed on salt water ships ever since. He was promoted to purser after the war broke out.

Too Much For Babe

PHILADELPHIA, May 28 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty Toward Animals yesterday celebrated "return of the horse day" but its honor guest would have none of the ceremony. Babe, an old-timer who works between the shafts of a milk wagon, reared and kicked over several buckets of water when an official attempted to drape a horseshoe of daisies around her neck.

Survivors Say Four Ships Sunk In Convoy

BOSTON, May 28—(AP).—Forty-six survivors of a medium-sized British merchantman, who were rescued and brought to a North Atlantic port by a United States coastguard escort vessel, revealed yesterday that their ship was one of four torpedoed from a westbound convoy on the night of May 12.

The men reported that at dusk the following day their rescue vessel attacked with shellfire and depth charges two submarines found on the surface charging their batteries. They offered no opinion of the results.

The survivors expressed confidence that the balance of their crew of 72 and 10 passengers had been picked up by other escort vessels.

Second Officer George K. Whitehead, 30, said that there was a series of alarms and that three other ships were struck before a torpedo found the bow of his own vessel.

All of the rescued men were British citizens.

Six-Year-Old Boy Drowns In Pond

PORT HOPE, May 28—(ENS)—The first drowning fatality of the season occurred on Wednesday afternoon when Dick Wakely, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wakely of 9 Bedford street was drowned in the File Pond.

The child who was playing with other children in a boat owned by Mr. George Ling of 159 Cavan street fell out and although the firemen who were called at 3.40 made a prompt arrival it was almost one hour before the child's body could be located. The draining of the pond was necessary to recover the body.

The accident occurred just outside the File factory where the father is employed. The child was the oldest of five children.

PROTECTION..of the People... by the People

FRED: Insurance companies are operated for the people, aren't they?
FRANK: Yes, with over four million men and women holding policies life insurance has become Canada's greatest co-operative business. Over 93% of all policies are for $5,000 or less. Over a million Canadian families come within this huge circle of protection.

FRED: Do many people now have to be convinced that it's a good way to save?
FRANK: No, most people prefer to save with insurance because its regularity "makes them save", as they say. And as for safety, the last war, the 'flu epidemic and the depression proved how life insurance stands up and always pays a hundred cents on the dollar promptly.

FRED: I've heard that insurance investments total two and a quarter billions. What happens to all that money?
FRANK: In peacetime, it's put to work all over the country, financing homes, farms, highways, schools and industry generally. You can't look anywhere without finding life insurance dollars at work, making jobs for more people.

FRED: But what have they been doing since the war started?
FRANK: Man, that's a real story. Insurance policyholders have a larger investment in war loans than any other group in the country. They've put 300 million dollars into Victory Bonds—enough to build 12,000 Spitfires.

FRED: I've heard that life insurance helps to curb inflation. What does that mean?
FRANK: Well, inflation is caused by people with too much money to spend and too little to spend it on. By buying only real necessities and saving for Victory Bonds and life insurance, prices are kept down and our war effort increases.

FRED: Is life insurance still doing its main job of protection?
FRANK: It is, and always will. Bill Smith's widow continues to be looked after. Tom Jones has his money for his old age. Half a million dollars every working day is paid out in Canada to living policyholders or their families.

"In wartime as in peacetime, life insurance money is the people's money working and fighting for the people"

● More Canadians than ever before are turning to life insurance. The amount of protection held by the people of this country to safeguard the future security of themselves and their families has steadily increased. There has been at the same time a persistent decline in lapsed policies. These facts reflect growing public confidence and satisfaction in life insurance performance.

I can properly report another twelve months of successful administration by the forty-eight life insurance companies in Canada — British, United States and Canadian—members of our Association. We are stewards of the interests of over four million Canadian men and women and our business affects the whole economic life of the Dominion. The operations of our member companies have been conducted in the people's interest with that full consideration for individual policyholders and beneficiaries which has characterized this co-operative business of life insurance.

It is nearly three years since the war began. In that period, reflecting the patriotic spirit of policyholders, life insurance companies operating in Canada have been the largest subscribers to the Dominion's war loans in which they have invested over 300 million dollars. During that period, carrying out the terms of our policies, we have returned nearly 500 million dollars to Canadian policyholders and beneficiaries—five hundred thousand dollars every working day to relieve distress, comfort old age, tide over emergencies. Moreover, life insurance premium dollars, saved out of current income, have been a factor in curtailing unnecessary buying. They have thus assisted in curbing inflation.

In wartime as in peacetime, life insurance continues to be a mainstay of private and public life. Never has it been more emphatically a business of the people's money, working and fighting for the people.

Infant Mortality And Ignorance

Apparently there is still a good deal of work to be done in Canada in the matter of educating the public about the dangers of childbirth and infancy. A recent study of the subject prepared by the Vital Statistics branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics (working with the Department of Pensions and National Health) shows that our mortality in these allied fields is alarmingly high.

Consider this list showing the infant mortality rate per thousand births in some of the hygienically superior countries of the world: New Zealand, 30; Iceland, 32; Netherlands, 38; Australia, 38; Sweden, 41; Norway, 42; Switzerland, 43; United States, 47; Union of South Africa (white population), 50; England and Wales, 55; Canada, 56. Canada is at the bottom of the list, with an infant mortality rate 19 per cent. higher than that of the United States. Why?

Our maternal death rate is similarly high. Consider these figures, showing the number of deaths per thousand: France, 2.1; England and Wales, 2.3; Netherlands, 2.6; Sweden, 3.1; United States, 3.8; Canada, 4.0. Again we are at the bottom of the list. Why?

It is not because our provincial governments do not exert themselves to spread helpful information; in Ontario we may be particularly proud of the job which our government has done in this respect. It is because people cannot be persuaded to pay any attention to what they are told; the same errors of pre-natal care and ante-natal care are perpetuated through sheer indifference. Indifference is the greatest enemy of all reform movements.

We have for so many years cherished the idea that we in Canada are one of the most progressive, well-educated and enlightened peoples on the face of the globe that we have succeeded in blinding ourselves to the plain fact that there is an element in our population which is as ignorant and as careless as any to be found in any civilized country anywhere. It is their imperviousness to any sort of information which keeps our infant and maternal mortality rate high and the health of a considerable part of the community below standard. They cannot be reached by the spread of literature on the subject of care in childbirth and infancy because they do not read, and the lot of any social worker who attempts to help them is made hard by their refusal to learn. Some people may argue that people of this type do not exist in great numbers, but it is obvious from these statistics that they exist in numbers sufficiently great to put Canada low in the list of countries which give attention to the welfare of their mothers and children.

At no very distant day Canada is going to have to face the fact that ignorance is a dangerous enemy of this country and that it will have to be met and vanquished. This ignorance exists not only on the subject of childbirth and matters akin to it but on matters related to healthy and decent living generally. It is desperately hard to fight it because ignorance is deaf, blind and silly and the good which is done by months of patient work can be undone by an hour's sloth. But the element in the population which drags down the standard of our national health and intelligence must be educated or intimidated into better ways of living if we are not to appear before our fellow nations as a backward country.

Yesterday Was Fine

It was a fine day yesterday. Perhaps it will be a fine day today, but at the time of writing we do not wish to make any rash predictions. Sometimes it seems that the weather has ears, and when it hears itself praised it makes a sudden change just to show its independence. But it was indubitably a fine day yesterday; we may say so now, loud and clear, for it does not lie in any man's power, or in the power of the weather itself to take those hours of sunshine away from us. Therefore we repeat: It was a fine day yesterday.

Why so much fuss about one fine day? You know as well as we do that the weather lately has been anything but fine. We have huddled in our houses while the rain beat on the windows and the wind howled in the weather stripping and wondered if the scientists were not a few million years out in their calculations, and if the New Ice Age had not come already. True, the weather had not quite the heart to spoil the 24th of May, but that was more from respect for Queen Victoria than from any special consideration for the citizens of Peterborough; but it took up its former unfriendly attitude within a few hours of sunset on the Queen's Birthday.

And the week before! It appeared that the weather repented of its early kindness and decided to chasten us in May for the high hopes which we dared to entertain in April. It never does to be presumptuous about the weather. It has its own way of sobering those who are so foolish as to take it at its word.

Now, of course, it is getting on toward June, and June is generally supposed to be a summer month. We make no promises, and we hint no hints. We expect nothing, and so we cannot possibly be disappointed. Still, we repeat, it was a fine day yesterday.

Hate Training Abandoned

We are glad to hear that the "hate training" which has been in use in some sections of the British Army is to be abandoned; the Commander-in-Chief of the Home Forces has announced that, in the opinion of competent authorities, it does no real good.

We would have been prepared to go so far as to say that it did positive harm. It was based upon the indisputable psychological fact that it is possible to arouse the lowest animal passions in men by means of shouts, oaths and appeals to instincts which, in time of peace, would land their exploiter in the police court. But civilization has gone too far to make these methods really effective. "Hate training" merely made some of the men subjected to it ashamed of themselves and of the authorities who countenanced such savageries. Universal military service has meant a sudden rise in the general level of intelligence in the Army, and the modern recruit is not to be deceived by such crude psychological tricks. Hate training, involving the utterance of savage grunts when bayonetting a dummy, impresses the average soldier of today as either disgusting or ridiculous; only the lowest type takes to it gratefully.

We do not suggest, of course, that soldiers should take the field in a conciliatory spirit; but there is hatred and hatred, and we suggest that the hatred which leaves the eyes open and the brain cool is better than the animal kind engendered by "hate training." The latter is comparable with the old method of filling soldiers full of rum before ordering them to charge; it was quite as likely to recoil and result in an unholy mess as it was to succeed. We shall not win anything, but we shall lose much, if we turn our men into beasts.

It must be clear by this time that this war will be won by courage and brains, backed up by sufficient equipment. Courage and brains stand at the opposite end of the scale from "hate training," which is an outmoded form of stupidity. The fact that it has finally been dropped marks a definite step toward victory.

Playing Fields, Bats And Rifles

Whether the Duke of Wellington really said that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing-fields of Eton is a matter for endless conjecture; but it is a certain fact that a part of this war is being won in a factory in the north of England which used to manufacture cricket bats. It has now adapted itself to making the wooden butts and stocks for tommy guns and rifles.

It is not easy for anyone unacquainted with the game of cricket to understand the importance which a player attaches to his bat. In baseball the batter picks up a handful of clubs (provided as part of the ordinary equipment of the game) and, after swinging them for a while, takes one which seems "likely" to him. Not so in cricket. Each player has his own loved and trusted bat, oiled and waxed with his own hands and carefully kept in a box specially fitted to it when it is not in use. It is even whispered that some enthusiasts keep their bats in their beds, as the old masters kept their violins. A cricketer's bat is his darling, and nothing will induce him to lend it or permit unworthy hands to touch it.

These bats are beautifully made of willow, and a great deal of careful machining and hand finishing goes into their manufacture. The factory of which we speak uses the same machines and the same methods in making rifle stocks and it is their boast that a good cricketer can tell one of their rifles by the sensitive "feel" of its stock.

This is only one of many factories which has turned to unfamiliar work during the war. After Dunkirk Britain found itself with a gigantic need for armaments and almost no means to supplying the need. To wait for machinery suitable to all the purposes to be made would have involved a wait of two years or more, and the probably loss of the island fortress. So they set to work to improvise, and soon little factories which had been making women's hairpins and buttons, fountain pens and office supplies were frantically turning out parts of shells and small bits of mechanism. Those days are gone now, but it was the improvisation of the little shops which kept the pot boiling and the anti-aircraft guns popping during the Battle of Britain. Once again, necessity showed herself to be the mother of invention.

Promotion For Bickersteth

It does not appear to be widely known that the Canadian Corps in Britain has an educational department, and that this department makes it possible for men whose education has been interrupted by enlistment to continue their work abroad. Understandably, this educational work presents great difficulties, and hitherto these have been triumphantly vanquished by J. Burgon Bickersteth, formerly Warden of Hart House at the University of Toronto and now attached to General McNaughton's staff as a personal advisor and assistant on education.

But sometimes the penalty of success is promotion, and now we learn that Mr. Bickersteth has been lost to the Canadian Corps in order that he may become director of British Army Education, acting directly under the War Office. This will be a difficult post, but we may be sure that it will call out all that is most ingenious in a man who is known to be one of the most experienced and subtle educators in Canada. It is too bad that the Canadian Corps must lose him, however; "the Warden" as he is generally called, is one of those men who achieves great popularity without ever courting it, and his Canadian charges will miss his immediate influence.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If Hitler is a rat would it be fair to describe Il Duce as a Mouse-olini?

One way to produce greater chest expansion in soldiers is to give them more medals.

Once again we should like to draw the attention of cyclists to the fact that the sidewalk is not the place for riding their machines.

New restrictions on clothing are expected to take 20,000,000 buttons off men's clothes in a year. Taking a heavy burden off the laundries.

"There will be no room for selfish idleness in England after the war," says Lord Halifax. Unfortunately these qualities have a way of making a place for themselves wherever men live, and we cannot see any good reason to suppose that a war will affect them especially.

THOUGHTS

I wonder why Goring whose name was recurring
So often in news of the past
Has faded sedately from newspapers lately;
'Tis months since we heard of him last.
This Hermann, stout feller, was once a best-seller,
But now seems a failure and frost.
What trick has Fate played him?
They can't have mislaid him—
He's rather too large to be lost.
The Boche gave ovations to all his orations,
They cheered when he came on parade.
The boaster and laugher, the genial strafer
Of Rotterdam, London, Belgrade.
His Luftwaffe legions were cock of all regions,
With Europe, he vowed, as their spoil,
While no foreign raiders would come as invaders
Of Germany's sacrosanct soil.
That sounded a beauty, refreshing and fruity,
A joke that was Germany's own;
But it wears, as the case is, a bit thin in places
Like Hanover, Essen, Cologne.
And the Hermann who made it and proudly displayed it
Sits mum in the midst of the mess;
Like bottled up Rudie he must have gone moody,
Aye, nearly as silent as Hess.
No more the loud pedals—in spite of his medals
He seems to have reached a full stop;
He's just a belated and sadly deflated
Colossal, uncomforted flop.
He may in some quarters still find odd supporters,
But one thing is soberly sure—
Whoever may love him, wherever they shove him,
His name must be mud in the Ruhr.

A Baedeker Of Britain

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE Germans are a peculiar people. Let us say no more than that; it is no part of this column's duty to attempt an analysis of their peculiarity, nor does the writer feel himself capable of performing such a task with any special skill. But surely it is peculiar to love beauty as much as the Germans appear to do in time of peace, and to hate it as violently as they appear to do in time of war. Now that the R.A.F. is giving them a taste of air war German spokesmen have announced the intention of the Luftwaffe to make what they call "Baedeker raids" on Britain. Karl Baedeker was the nineteenth century European nobleman who prepared the celebrated guide books which bear his name; in those guide books places of special beauty are marked with stars so that tourists may not neglect to see them. Baedeker did not think much of Britain and the stars in the British Baedeker are comparatively few, but the Germans have announced their intention of bombing all the starred places. It was after this announcement was made that Bath and Exeter were bombed.

There is nothing much to be said about this kind of silliness. Words are powerless to describe childish spite raised to such a degree. All we can hope is that the Luftwaffe will be unable to achieve its end. For although Karl Baedeker may not have thought England particularly beautiful or worth seeing there are thousands of Canadians who know and love its shrines, its libraries and its great houses, its lovely gardens and its superb lawns. Some of us love them simply because they are beautiful; others of us love them because they belong to a home which we have not yet forgotten. When German bombs knock down a block of slums in the Waterloo Road, or a mansion in Belgrave Square they destroy someone's home, and we sympathize with that persons, be he a railway porter or a duke; but when they knock down a part of Exeter Cathedral they destroy a part of the home of the English-speaking world. Exeter Cathedral is our home, in a way in which the Germans will never believe, and which they will never understand.

IF we were to make our own Baedeker of Britain, how many beautiful and storied buildings and places we should be forced to include! Each of us would make a different list, of course, but there are many places which are, like the great cathedral at Exeter, part of the common home of the English-speaking world, and a few of these would appear on every list. The Scot would have his own special loves, and so would the Welshman; to these Edinburgh Castle or Caernarvon are the real hubs of the Empire, though most people would think of the Tower of London. There is something wonderfully kindling to the imagination about that unprepossessing heap of masonry; legend says that it was begun by Julius Caesar, and certainly it was a brooding fortress by the time the Conqueror had finished with it. Queens, great explorers and at least one saint have languished within its walls; traitors still find there way there at last.

The list of places dear to us all in London alone would more than fill such a column as this. St. Paul's stands serene and intact though the Guildhall has been sadly damaged; Buckingham Palace has suffered, but St. James' is untouched and the immobile guardsmen still stand outside it, wearing battledress instead of their accustomed scarlet. Though St. Clement Danes is badly broken St. Martin's in the Fields still dominates Trafalgar Square, and the Nelson Column is as proud as ever. But London does not consist only of palaces and churches; some of its shrines are theatres and others are public houses; the inn which housed Dr. Johnson alive is as interesting to some of us as the cathedral which houses him dead, and the empty spaces of Leicester Square are at least as full of romance as the National Gallery.

OUTSIDE London, who shall begin to count the wonders? Hampton Court is near, and York Minster is far; Liverpool Cathedral is not yet finished and Glastonbury Abbey is a ruin, but we cannot spare any of these to German spite. Nor could we spare any of a thousand country houses, or the Rows at Chester, or Ludlow castle, which dominates so many of the poems in "The Shropshire Lad." The people who cry out against The Old School Tie might wish to see Eton destroyed, but others would preserve it for its beauty; nor would the most determined communist, if he had a scrap of aesthetic appreciation, wish to see any harm done to a stone of Oxford or Cambridge. The great Tilt-Yard at Arundel Castle is completely useless, but we cannot spare it; useless also is the Pavilion at Brighton, monument to the monstrous elegance of the Prince Regent, and we cannot spare that either. It is to be feared that we have lost the Royal Cresent at Bath, surely one of the loveliest rows of dwellings in the world, but the charm of Market Broadway still remains, not too much spoiled by the self-conscious quaintness which afflicts all places where tourists go in great numbers.

It would be possible to go on in this strain for some time, but each reader has his own Baedeker of Britain in his mind, formed either from his knowledge of that land, or from his reading. If the German Baedeker Raids are to destroy all the beautiful spots in Britain they must continue for many years; to drive beauty from the land would take the most determined enemy a century of nightly bombing at least. And Germany has not so long. At present the raids appear to be going the other way, and Germany is on the receiving, rather than the giving, end.

• New Poison for Hitler

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

LONG maturing Anglo-American plans to bomb Hitler's home front in grim earnest are nearing the action stage to vindicate Prime Minister Churchill's recent assertion that "now is the time to strike hard and continually."

"The British and presently the American bombing offensive will be one of the principal features of this year's World War," Churchill added in that May 11 broadcast. "Now is the time to use increasingly superior air strength....now, while the German armies will be bleeding and burning up their strength against a 2,000-mile Russian line."

Two weeks later the commanders of American land and sea air forces are in London, flanked by an army operating staff of significantly high rank and assignment. In Admiral Towers and General Arnold and their aides, the American command personnel for joint operations by air, and perhaps otherwise, is on the ground.

WILL INTENSIFY CLAMOR

That their arrival in Britain must intensify the public clamor on both sides of the Atlantic for second-front operations and the growing invasion jitters in Germany cannot be doubted. Nor will the presence of the American naval-military group fail to stir eager hope in Nazi-conquered countries—France, the Low Countries, Norway—that the hour of their deliverance is nearing.

Towers, Arnold and company arrived in London just as there were intimations from various sources of rising dissatisfaction in Berlin with the progress of Pierre Laval's "collaboration" program. Their coming synchronized also with fresh rumors of German efforts to obtain the remnants of the French war fleet.

Admiral Cunningham, Britain's veteran former naval commander in the Mediterranean, now en route to Washington, admits that those French battlecraft in German hands would create a "nasty" situation for the Allies in that area. His remarks contained a strong hint, however, that American naval forces are disposed to aid British forces in meeting that issue if it comes. Nor can the inclusion of Admiral Towers, navy air chief, in the group flown to London be overlooked in that relation.

STIMULATING ANTAGONISM

Whatever the detailed mission of the Towers-Arnold group in Britain, or the time that may elapse before it bears fruit in joint Anglo-American offensive action against German targets, the fact that such action is in the works for early consummation is unquestionable. Moreover, prompt publication of their arrival is an offensive phase of the war-of-nerves, obviously deemed more important than the possible surprise value of American participation in British bombing operations.

The arrival could have been concealed from the foe. Instead, it was proclaimed to the world at large. That the underlying purpose of that is to stimulate growing public antagonism to the Nazi sway in France, the Low Countries and Norway seems obvious. It ends to throw a new monkey wrench into Laval's wobbling collaboration machinery at Vichy.

There is another angle on the sending to England of this prime American operating staff. Russian and Nazi forces have been locked in a tremendous struggle on a 200-mile front in the Ukraine for more than two weeks. Churchill's prediction of Nazi armies "bleeding and burning up their strength" is today an accomplished fact.

The implication is that Anglo-American moves in the West have been speeded up to take advantage of that fact. It reflects Washington-London judgment that Hitler is now too deeply engaged in Russia to halt or turn back; and that he can spare neither men nor planes to bolster his Western Front nor to suppress growing revolts against him in the conquered countries where the bridgeheads for invasion of the continent lie waiting.

• Anglo-American Soldier

By Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum, U.S.A., Commanding the First Army.

IN 1899, when I was a young lieutenant, I was sent to the Philippines. Our ship went via Suez. A case of chicken pox kept us in quarantine at Gibraltar and so Malta was our first stopping place.

Immediately after the ship left New York the men were given two months' pay in gold and this money was burning holes in their pockets.

The men got on good terms with the British garrison in Malta. One way or another there was great fraternization and much Anglo-American mixing up in a satisfactory way. We were, however, horrified to find 35 British soldiers had got on the ship with intention of joining our expedition to the Philippines.

Not all of these were found before the ship sailed. Our men, of course, were all on their side.

As soon as we got to the Philippines, fighting started against Aguinaldo's men and I was much startled and disturbed to find that a private, reported to me for gallantry against the enemy, was one of the British 'deserters.' Much troubled, I took the matter up with my superiors and eventually secured for him an honorable discharge and a transfer to the American Army. When the fighting was over he joined the Philippine police force and did well there until 1914.

I had kept in touch with him and was hardly surprised when I received an urgent appeal to get him back to Britain so that he could fight for his country in her hour of need. He fought in the British Army until 1917, again doing well and reaching the rank of Captain.

When the United States entered the war I found him in France, anxious to transfer back to the American Army that had come to fight there. He succeeded once more in effecting the transfer and he became a Major in the American Army. There he again won promotion and fought his last fight, dying in action at Soissons as a Lieutenant Colonel. Surely an Anglo-American soldier.

ENEMY MORALE

IT MUST not be too readily supposed that these air raids are going to crack the German morale. To do so would be to assume once again that spirit of easy optimism which has in the past landed us in so many disasters. So, too, the harrying of the coast of Occupied France and elsewhere from both the sea and the air should not be regarded as a major operation, but as a probing preliminary to the real effort which must be made later on at the chosen moment by combined British and American invasion forces.

Without undue optimism, however, the R.A.F. attack on Germany should have profoundly beneficial effects here. It must stimulate production, for the men and women who forge the weapons of attack will work the better for knowing that they are being so effectively used. Even if "Lubecking" does not crack the morale of Germany, it is certainly going to raise our spirits. We need have no hesitation on any humanitarian grounds in writing over the whole map of Germany, as we have done at Lubeck and Rostock: "This was once a city." For that is the only form of warfare that the German people understand.—Daily Mail (London).

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal and walk as men?

For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal?....I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase.

So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase.... For we are labourers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

For other foundations can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—I Cor. iii, 1-4, 6, 7, 9-11.

DESTROYING ROAD BEDS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—We have this year in the township of Cavan a most industrious council. Why to find work they even take our good road beds and push them into the ditch in order to build new ones. Now the road bed on the concession line west of Fraserville was well laid for did we not draw those rocks, Mr. Councillors, in order that we might have a road to draw our products to markets over. There was no better road built. We sent in a petition to the council and this is what we asked, "We the undersigned ratepayers of Cavan township think it very much our duty to take action against the council for damage done to our road bed. We do not want to be nasty, nor do we want to be rude, but while you spend our money it is time that we got shrewd."

U.K. Restrictions Now Hit All But The Air

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 28.—(CP)—The front line has moved right into the Briton's home in this war now, in what once was the Englishman's castle, wartime restrictions are more onerous than those of the army.

Virtually everything but a deep breath comes under some sort of government restriction and there is not even the comforting knowledge that these controls will end with the coming of peace.

Rather, authorities have made it plain that such burdens as food rationing must go on for some time after the war is over. The same can be said for the so-called "austerity" clothing regulations, the fuel cuts, and restricted use of travel facilities and motor conveyances.

Certainly not gleefully but undoubtedly with stoicism and determination the Briton has borne up under one restricting order after another until now, in the late spring of 1942, this people which went through Dunkirk and the heavy blitz raids, present a picture of indestructable firmness.

Certainly too there is evidence on all sides, in the Commons and in taverns, on buses and trains and on the streets, of a growing feeling in the public mind that this voluntary regimentation must not be for nothing; that the time is near when all that the people are doing at home for the war must crystalize into something important offensively soon.

Steadily Tougher.

Just in the first few months of 1942 things have become much tougher as the government puts more and more steam behind the war head; calls on the people to bend more and more energy to the war program; takes steps to eliminate waste of man and womanpower in all age brackets and in all circumstances.

Next winter's chill will tell just how onerous the new feul restrictions are but for the present the food problem is the most tiresome of all regulations governing life on the home front. Those in the services at least have their food provided for them but the private householder must stretch the rations to fit the appetite and go through the interminable bother of purchasing from restricted supply.

After the First Great War rationing continued for nearly two years. It was not put into force until late in the war. This time authorities have made plain the people should not expect any earlier relief.

The need for restoring basic stocks to feed European countries at present over-run by the Nazis and the "bottle neck" which reduced shipping due to war losses will have created in distribution, will necessitate a lengthy post-peace period of restriction and organized distribution of food in Britain.

The Pilots Landed Safely After Plane Crash

Two army pursuit planes crashed over Teaneck, N.J., and firemen are putting out the flames of one that crashed into the garage of Joseph Tracy of 890 Queen Anne Road, while in the background you can see the remains of the garage and one of the cars that was damaged. The two planes were on a routine flight when they locked wings at 10,000 feet and plummeted to the ground. Both pilots bailed out in their parachutes and landed safely. The other plane landed in front of a home in West Englewood, N.J.

ARP Duty Of All Not In Uniform Claims Manion

OTTAWA, May 28 — (CP). — Hon. Robert J. Manion, Director of Civil Air Rair Precautions, told the fifth annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities yesterday that A.R.P. work is a responsibility involving every person who is fit to work but unable to get into the armed forces.

With the twentieth century change in type of warfare brought about by scientific advance and the ability of nations to attack from the air, he said, two types of defences have developed:

1—Active defence by the armed services, which was the Government's concern and which the average civilian could watch;

2—Passive defence by air raid precautions organizations, involving all who are fit but unable to get into the active forces.

'Everyone should contribute something to civilian defence.' Dr. Manion said. "A.R.P. is the duty of citizens generally and cannot be effectively carried out by Federal or Provincial Governments alone.

"It is not even the duty of the municipal government, except to direct. Each citizen must see to it that it works."

Dr. Manion said that when some European countries were invaded their civilians became mobs because they were not organized.

"If Vancouver or Halifax were attacked and the people were unorganized and became mobs you would see one of the greatest military fiascos, a defeat," he added

Urges All Volunteer

He urged that citizens volunteer for whatever branch of civil defence work they can best do. Every city had the basis of an A.R.P. organization in police, fire, health and engineering services

A.R.P. organization in provinces listed as liable to attack has been set up and is ready to take over in any emergency, he said

Mayor J. W. Cornett of Vancouver, disputed Dr. Manion's statement that until last Dec. 7 Canada took A.R.P. as a bit of a joke.

"After Pearl Harmor everybody wanted service at once," Dr. Manion saiad.

"It was the powers-that-be who were not on their toes," Mayor Cornett protested. "Many cities were asking for instructions.

"Don't blame the cities and municipalities, whose people were asking for instructions. We could get no leadership from the Federal Government."

11 of 15 Holstein Calves Go To US In Relief Sale

BRAMPTON, Ont., May 28—(CP)—Eleven of the 15 calves donated by County Holstein Clubs for British war relief were brought by United States buyers as the 13th annual Canadian National Sale of Holstein-Friesian cattle got under way here on Wednesday. Total proceeds of the calf sale were $1,925, average price being $128.33, as compared with $109 at last year's sale. I. D. Meyers, Harrisburg, West Virginia, paid top price, $205, for a calf donated by Durham Northumberland and Prince Edward Holstein clubs, and purchased from Cedardale Stock Farms, Orono.

Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in opening the sale attended by over 600 breeders, said dairy cattle prices had advanced over last year and the demand for good breeding stock would continue. "We are going to have unprecedented prosperity after the war", he said. "There will be great industrial prosperity and there is bound to be agricultural expansion with livestock in the forefront.

"I do not suppose there is any farm organization stronger than the Holstein-Friesian Association, nor one more capably organized and administered. An organization as strong as yours has a job to do beyond directing your own affairs.

"You now have a duty in presenting the farmers' case on behalf of the welfare of agriculture."

James Henderson, president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada announced four super "black and white" shows to take the place of the C.N.E. show. They will be held at Kemptville, Ingersoll, Galt, and Roseneath.

Zoo Gets Foxy

Zoos have decided to become self-sustaining and encourage local breeding now that it is increasingly difficult to get animals from the habitat. The two red foxes born in the Bronx zoo are the first red foxes with that birthplace. This one looks at the bottle in the zoo nursery where he was sent to be patched up after a fight with his brother. Newborn foxes look like fuzzy kittens, bark like dogs.

Weekly Paper Printed In 1847

An old copy of one of Peterborough's earliest papers came to light recently. This is the "Peterborough Dispatch," a weekly, dated July 12, 1853. It was the third newspaper to have served people of the district and was begun in 1847 with George Hazelhurst as publisher. This paper was published until 1856 when the present Peterborough Examiner was established.

It is somewhat different in form to the modern papers. The advertisements were run in full-length page columns and such items as the announcements of the schedule of Port Hope and Lindsay Stage Coaches and the new method of rat exterminating make unusual reading.

News announcements that the largest warship in the British Navy was the Duke of Wellington with a crew of 1,100, and that the House of Commons was beginning to swing over to the idea of voting by ballot at the election of members, carry the reader back to a bygone age.

The great fire at Oswego where 45 acres of land were cleared of buildings and 300,000 bushels of wheat were destroyed with a loss of over one and a half million dollars and a sharp English editorial berating Russia for trying to make Turkey a serf nation during the trouble between the two countries over the use of the Holy Places, make very interesting reading.

Fairaris Romps Home 5 Up, No Competition

BELMONT PARK, N.Y., May 28 — (AP). — The Coaching Club American Oaks, much coveted fixture for three-year-old fillies, was the main magnet on the program here Wednesday. A half dozen horses were listed to go in the $10,000 added, mile and a half stake. William Woodward's Pimlico Oaks winner, Vagrancy, was the early choice but her task loomed as a hard one, with such capable contenders as Red Rosette, Mackerel, Bonnet Ann, Tribal Ruler and Copperette opposing her over the long grind.

The field of two-year-old platers for the first race had almost reached the post when it was discovered that Jotun, the favorite, was lame. The track veterinarian recommended to the stewards that the youngster be scratched. This was done and all money wagered on the gelding was refunded.

Towser won the dash by a length and paid $13.60. He took command early, appearing to crowd Jaquita, the starting choice, then staved off Is I Is at the end. The latter beat Jaquita by a half length for the place.

The Canadian-owned challenger for three-year-old honors, R. S. McLaughlin's Fairaris made a show of his field in the seventh as he scampered home five lengths in front of Ben Whittaker's Eternal Peace. Sir War was a neck back for show honors in the $2,500 allowance event, contested over the mile and a sixteenth route.

With Beverly Thompson in the pilot-house, Fairaris outran his field from the start, opened up a commanding lead, and journeyed home winner under mild restraint. He stepped the distance in 1:55 2-5 and paid off at the meagre figure of $2.50 for $2.00. Equalize and Blue Pennant followed in fourth and fifth positions respectively.

St. Peter's Wins At Armour Park

In a Catholic Softball League game Wednesday night, St. Peter's defeated Cubs 19 to 8 to continue their winning streak to four straight without a loss. Up until the end of the third inning the Cubs were leading 4 to 1, but in the last of the third St. Peter's came through with seven runs, and from then on the issue was never in doubt.

Fielding features were two running catches by McCormick for the Cubs and two unassisted double plays by Joe Caccavella, and Conroy with a fine running catch and a double play, Tompkins to Fr. Wolfe to Condon, were the fielding features of St. Peter's.

Tompkins led St. Peter's hitters with three for four, while Conroy, Wade, Stewart and Herr each had two hits. For the losers, Joe Caccavella with four for five and B. Sullivan with three for four led the Cubs at bat.

Lawn Bowling

By the small margin of 29 points the boys and girls bowling for the President were victorious over the boys and girls bowling for the Vice-president. Although the first round, scheduled for Tuesday night, was rained out, the bowlers made good in the second round. Practically all games scheduled were played, and if the attendance so far this season is any indication, it looks like a bumper season.

With the exception of one or two, all the games were well played, and it looks as if the eight months' lay-off did no harm to anyone.

The president, Fred H. Dearborn, was in great glee as the evening wore on, and when he was sure of victory, he went from one end of the green to the other, shaking hands with everyone. If you were playing for his side and won, that was good; if you played against him and lost, that helped a lot, too. It was a grand evening—all seemed to enjoy the fun, and from now on it will be bowling in earnest.

A special tribute to the ladies — they turned out 100 per cent. That's a target for the men to shoot at.

To-night we commence the men's schedule. All of Group No. 1 are scheduled to play.

To-morrow evening we hold our first week-end tournament. It will be for men's rinks, and the draw will be made from the board at 7:30 sharp. Please be on time. George Coleman, Sr., is chairman, and he and his committee will be on hand to help put the tournament across. Your co-operation is requested.

YOUNG Tommy Stewart, ace Toronto softball pitcher, entered the sport's select circle last night when he hurled a no-hit, no-run game as his team, the Tip Tops, defeated Quigley's Aces 9-0 in a Beaches-Dentonia interleague series. Two weeks ago he turned in a one-hit performance against the Army-Sports Service League team. Stewart fanned 14 men and walked six last night

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Juveniles threatened before last night's City League game at the Bowl that they would give the league-leading Royals a real battle for the decision. And they did exactly that. When the game was called on account of darkness at the end of the seventh the teams were on even footing with 9 runs each and the only reason that the Hatters found themselves level with the kids at the end of the fracas was the fact that an easy fly that should have retired the side in the third frame, struck the high wire that runs over right and centre field and instead of being a soft out went for a hit and the Royals got two runs that saved their bacon. The kids knocked the Hatters right back into the ropes in the first inning when after the inner guard of the Parnell outfit had contributed some whoozy fielding young Red Carpenter climaxed the assault with a long homer with two on the runways and the Juveniles had built themselves up a six-run inning.

* * * * * *

Manager Parnell elected to save his pitching ace, Speedball Bill Fraser of Toronto by sending in Holmes, the Campbellford pitcher. However after the Juveniles had scored nine runs in four innings the Royals pilot decided that he had better get Fraser in there and the fastball heaver stopped the kids' attack for the rest of the argument. The youngsters kept right on battling however and in the final inning they came up with a fine defensive display just when it was needed the most. Jones got a bad start by walking Scriver, the first batter up but Fraser rapped one to Leether and a fast double-killing with Millen as the pivot wiped out two of the Royals. Then McNabb walked and the winning run was again on there but Bill Greatrix ran far over to his left to make a great catch of Hawks' long fly to left to retire the side. Fred Garvey with three hits for three led the Juveniles in hitting while Phil Pryde with three for four topped the Royals.

The next game in the City League race will be staged tomorrow night at the Bowl with the Military Training Centre team and the Plaza Billiard outfits clashing in what should be one of the biggest battles of the season. Plazas, the Peterborough hockey squad, were beaten by Royals, in their only appearance of the season while the Soldiers had a win over the Juvenile their first time out. Both clubs are anxious to grab off a victory tomorrow night and it looms up as one of the best events on the card so far this season. It is likely Ken Fleming, the southpaw heaver, will be on the firing line for the Soldiers while the Plazas have Dave Wilson, Tom Parsons and Bob Crowe all ready to toss in against the boys from the big military centre. The latter will have a few new faces to present tomorrow as a number of new ball players have arrived in the camp.

Girls' League Opens Next Week

The Girls' Softball League officials announce that the girls' loop will get under way a week from tomorrow night when the old rivals, the Westclox and C.G.E. teams, long-time members of the league will be given the honor of opening the 1942 season. Other teams in the league are the Porcelain team and either Brintons or a dark horse team. The latter will operate in the event that the Brintons eventually decide not to enter. In any case the league will be a four-club affair and that will be a decided improvement over the setup that existed last sason. The clubs are practicing and hope to be in good shape by the time the schedule gets under way on June 5.

* * * * * *

City Softball League games scheduled for the balance of this week-end and for next week are announced as follows:

Friday, May 29—Plazas vs. Soldiers.
Monday, June 1—De Laval vs. Plazas.
Wednesday, June 3—Royals vs. Soldiers.
Friday, June 5—Juveniles vs. Plazas.

Another For Bonham

Ernie Bonham continues serenely on his way as leading pitcher of the American League. The Yank ace hung up his seventh straight victory as against no defeats at the expense of the Philadelphia A's yesterday, holding the Mackmen to seven hits and winning handily 8 to 3. Caliguri started for Connie Mack's club and the loss was his. Tommy Henrich made a valiant contribution toward the Bonham triumph by cracking a homer with two on. St. Louis Browns grabbed off a 5 to 2 win over the Detroit Tigers with Johnny Niggeling doing the pitching for the winners and Dizzy Trout absorbing the loss. And Chicago White Sox, showing unusual punch that saw them pile up a total of 17 hits off Jim Bagby and Eisenstat did the Cleveland cause a lot of harm by beating the Indians 9 to 7 despite Indian home runs by Bagby, Weatherly and Rookie Les Fleming. It was the fifth of the season for the ex-Buffalo player.

* * * * * *

Brooklyn Dodgers opened up their lead yesterday beating their nearest rivals the Boston Braves by scoring three runs in the ninth inning to take the decision 4 to 1. It was a tight battle up to that with Whit Wyatt and Jim Tobin engaged in a real pitching argument. Wyatt allowed the Braves only five hits while the Bums picked up seven off the delivery of big Jim Tobin. St. Louis Cards used three pitchers and the third to get in there, Bazley, was the winner, as the Cards defeated the Pittsburg Pirates 5 to 3. In the other National League game of the afternoon Cincinnati Reds smothered the Chicago Cubs, getting seven runs in the fourth when Walker homered with the bases loaded. It was an easy win for Bucky Walters.

Boston Red Sox had a return to their old power in the only night game in the American League last night when they swamped the Washington Senators 10 to 1, with Ingersoll's own Oscar Judd, once an O.B.A.A. intermediate star, holding the Washington crew to six scattered hits. The Red Sox gave Buck Newsom quite a lacing and finally knocked him out of the game in the sixth frame. Carrasquel had to finish the engagement. Playing under the lights at Philadelphia, the Giants won the National League night game from the Phillies by 6 to 2. Bob Carpenter effectively smothered the Phillies' attack while the Giants did some timely hitting against the offerings of Cy Johnston and Hughes.

The Toronto ball club continues its sensational playing at the Maple Leaf Stadium. Last night the Leafs won their twelfth straight game before the home fans, nosing out the Montreal Royals 2 to 1 in a game in which Nick Strincevich handed out only three hits in winning his fourth game in a row since he joined the Toronto club. At that the former big leaguer must be slipping a little for he finally allowed a run, the only counter that the opposition has been able to collect in four games. Chipman started for Montreal and was the losing pitcher, the Leafs nicking him for a pair of runs in the second inning and that proved enough to give Burleigh Grimes' club the decision. The Leafs have the most powerful and colorful squad in years and it really begins to look as if, after many lean seasons the club may make some money this year. When Pete Campbell and his associates set out to give Toronto a ball club they were evidently not fooling.

Royals Lucky To Escape Defeat In 2nd

The Juveniles came close to staging the biggest upset of the season last night when they held Manager Roy Parnell's Adam Hat Royals to a 9 to 9 tie, the game called for darkness at the end of the seventh frame.

The Royals were lucky to have escaped defeat in their second City League start of the campaign. In fact, if it had not been for an unusual break which saw a pop fly to centre that should have been the third out turn into a hit when the ball struck a wire running high across the field. As a result the Royals got two runs to take the lead on a play that was all set to retire the side.

The kids were twice in front. They surprised all and sundry by scoring six runs in the first frame and then after the Royals had come from behind with a big inning of their own in the third the Juveniles flashed back with a three-run rally in the fourth to go out in the van again.

The Royals started one of their new twirlers, Lionel Holmes of Campbellford, but after he had yielded 9 runs and 8 hits in the first four innings Manager Parnell decided to take no more chances and called on his speed ball ace Bill Fraser to finish the game. Fraser allowed only one hit in the three innings he worked. Bill Jones, barring a tendency to grow wild, pitched good ball for the Juveniles and kept the Royals' 11 hits well scattered with the exception of one frame.

Fielding features were contributed by Bill Greatrix, ball hawk in left field for the Juveniles who made several brilliant running catches, Red Carpenter who dashed deep into centre to take a hard smash from Mowry, Phil Pryde who went far to one side to grab off a hard hit ball, and Reg Leether with a circus catch of a foul fly.

With two out in the first the Royals scored a run on consecutive singles by Jackson, Mowry and Pryde.

The kids had a field day in their half. With one out the Royal infield had a balloon ascension and four errors in a row gave the Juveniles a chance to send three runs in. Then White walked, Jones singled, and Red Carpenter drove a long homer over Phil Pryde's head to send three more counters across before the Hatters could get the side out.

A walk, wild pitch, and Hawks' single gave the Royals a run in the second to make the score 6 to 2, and in the third they had their big innings. Jackson got a life on an error by Leether. After Mowry had been caught out in deep centre by Carpenter, Pryde and Giardino came through with doubles to send two runs across. Prout was safe when Detlor missed a throw and another run scored. Then L. Holmes lifted an easy fly to centre and Carpenter was under waiting to make the catch that would have retired the side when the ball rebounded off the wire and dropped short for a hit. The break gave the Royals two more runs.

In the fourth the kids broke loose with three earned runs. Detlor singled to centre and Millen rippled a safety over second. Anderson bunted safely to fill the bases Greatrix struck out, but Garvey singled to score Detlor and after Leether had popped to the pitcher Gray slammed a double to left to score Millen and Anderson and put the kids in front 9 to 7. They remained there until the sixth when the Royals tied it up on a walk, two hits and an error.

Royals— McNabb, ss; Hawks, 3b; Jackson, 1b; Mowry, c; Pryde, cf; Giardino, 2b; D. Holmes, rf; Prout, lf; Scriver lf; L. Holmes, p; Fraser, p.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

CAHA Playoffs Net $39,586; $14,816 In Pot

PORT ARTHUR, May 28—(CP). —Frank Sargent, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, in a report issued last night said hockey playdowns during the 1941-42 season netted the C.A.H.A. $39,586.

Of the total, $14,770 has been or will be distributed to participating clubs, leaving the association with a sum of $14,816.

With 66 Senior games and 44 Junior games played in the C.A.H.A. playdowns, Sargent reported Eastern games contributed $26,106 to the "pot" with the balance, $13,479, coming from Western playoffs.

The report showed that the five-game Allan Cup final series between Port Arthur Bearcats and Ottawa R.C.A.F. cleared $13,518, or better than the entire proceeds from the Western playdowns.

The Memorial Cup Junior finals between Portage La Prairie Terriers and Oshawa Generals brought in $4,432.

The most active club in the playdown, the Port Arthur Bearcats, collected $1,580 in C.A.H.A. bonuses, the top share. In the Junior divisions, Oshawa Generals, the busiest team, collected $940.

Receipts for the Allan Cup finals totalled $20,978; expenses $7,459, leaving a surplus of $13,585. For the Memorial Cup final, the receipts were $10,585; expenses, $6,152, leaving a surplus of $4,432.

Special financial obligations assumed by the C.A.H.A. for 1942, including grants to Eastern and Western branches, totalled $19,050. The report also showed that the association spent approximately $15,000 for railway transportation.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, May 28.—(CP)—If an enterprising sportswriter set out to write a daily column in which he would use only sport news with a military or patriotic angle, he wouldn't have any trouble.

Almost every item worth using has the war effort—or civilian—somewhere in its background, if not foreground. For instance, here are the first four items off the top of today's pile of material:

Government regulations banning trap-shooting probably hit 81-year-old Harry Bush's daily routine harder than any other Canadian. Reason: Harry, now a Vancouver resident, started trapshooting in Kansas about 1880 when live birds, glass balls and metal targets were used. The clay pigeon was strictly an experiment at that time. Since, he has been on several championship teams. Last year on his 80th birthday he had a perfect score—25 straight hits.

You all know the revolting old story about a baseball team which hit 14 triples without a man crossing first base. (It was a girls' team.) Here's something along that line, but new and true: Bert Podolski, a gal softball pitcher who used to mow 'em down around Moose Jaw, is with an R.C.A.F. team in a Moncton League. All other members of the Air Force team are men, so are all members of the other teams in the league. But she's eligible, because as Airwoman Podolski she is a member of the personnel at No. 8 Flying Training School near Moncton.

Harry (Calgary Albertan) Scott reports that Alex Kaleta, rookie forward who made quite a stir with Chicago Black Hawks last season, will be in the Navy soon.

Incidentally:

First victim of the Japanese in Vancouver was Harry Jones, who operated the Ice Forum there until Japanese evacuees took it over... He's in the construction business now...Toronto Maple Leafs had better let someone really score in Pitcher Nick Strincevich or Pittsburg will want him back...Strincevich has pitched four times for Toronto since he came here on option ..His record: three shutouts..And last night he held Montreal to three hits in his fourth appearance.

STRINCEVICH PITCHES TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS INTO THIRD PLACE

Drubs Montreal Royals 2-1 In 4th Straight

By the Associated Press.

Nick Strincevich, who has done a lot of travelling since he entered organized baseball, may resume his wanderings—and in the right direction—if he continues to turn in brilliant pitching performances for Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Last night he hurled Toronto into third place by limiting the Montreal Royals to three hits for a 2-1 victory. It was Nick's fourth straight triumph since joining Toronto from Pittsburg Pirates on May 15.

Bob Chipman, making his first appearance for the Royals since coming from Brooklyn Dodgers, allowed three hits in the four innings he worked, but two of them came in the second along with three Montreal errors and gave Toronto the game.

Rochester Red Wings, inspired by the return of Estel Crabtree, provided their new manager with a 10-2 triumph over Buffalo Bisons in a night game.

The Wings pounded four Bison twirlers for 10 hits including home runs by Dusty Cooke, Gene Lillard, and Erv Dusak.

Newark Bears walloped the slumping Baltimore Orioles 16-1. The Bears scored six times in the second inning on three extra base hits, three walks, and an error. Tom Padden of Newark hit a home run in the eighth.

Mel Queen, Newark hurler, was struck under the heart by a pitch from Rus Miller, but returned to action after treatment and received credit for his second victory of the season.

Ill-luck continued to plague Johnny Wittig of Jersey City Giants. He allowed Syracuse Chiefs two hits but lost the game 1-0.

Red Barrett, Syracuse pitcher, yielded six hits but proved effective in the pinches and only one Giant got as far as third base.

Fans See Servo Worst Threat Robinson's

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—The winning streak of 120 straight fights that Ray Robinson has put together runs smack into the battler the Harlem skinny man respects more than any other in the welterweight division tonight in Madison Square Garden.

This little fellow is Marius Severino, known to the trade as Marty Servo. He's a baby-faced kid out of Schenectady, a cousin of ex-lightweight champion Lew Ambers and a pretty fair country flailer in his own right.

In their first meeting, he came closer to putting a period to Ray's string than any other fighter the Harlem hammer has met, and since then "Sugar" has declined the issue of a return bout on two occasions. Meantime Servo, who previously served a three-year National Guard hitch, enlisted in the Coast Guard.

The current punch-party is a ten-rounder and the thing is so "hot" in these parts that Promoter Mike Jacobs expects some 15,000 of the faithful and a gross gate within shouting distance of the $40,000 mark by the time they go to the post at 10 p.m. E.D.T.

Riding along on a victory run of 89 amateur and 31 pro outings, Robinson is a 1-to-4 favorite for this shindig. This corner tabs him to win the decision in spite of Servo's move-in-and-belt style which figures to be just what the doctor would not order for Ray.

Robinson's a tall, bony Negro, with speed that he turns on and off like his grin and a punch with either hand.

Ray was to have had a go at Red Cochrane's welterweight title long ago, but something always popped up. Recently it has been the navy, to which Red is attached.

Last Sept. 25, Robinson tangled with Servo in Philadelphia, and that time Marty carried a forty-six-straight winning string of his own into the ring. Going into the tenth round it was even. Then Ray turned it on and finished on top by a whisker with his last-round rally. They were sighted for a return bout, but after agreeing to it Ray came down with grippe. When he recovered he wanted no part of the go.

Servo contends he had only recently recovered from an illness the night of their first tea party and wasn't in top shape. This time he's threatening things to the uptown string bean—and they're not pretty.

Ten To Ace Reels Off Fast Half

TORONTO, May 28.—Ten to Ace gave a sparkling exhibition of speed at Woodbine during Wednesday's training session when he reeled off a half-mile in :46 2-5, covering the first quarter in :22 3-5 and three-eighths in :33 4-5.

The sensational Giddings homebred, working in the middle of the racing strip, which was termed "dead" and anything but speed conducive, was never given his head at any time, and was going handily all the way. Clockers described the move as phenomenal.

It is understood that the Winnipeg Derby is the first objective of the colt and Trainer Giddings is also considering a campaign at Detroit, attracted by the $10,000 Governor's Handicap and other sprints of $5,000 added. Ten to Ace has two Saratoga engagements.

Bonham In Line To Win 30, Whips Athletics 8 to 3

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The most coveted pitching goal in the Major Leagues is 30 victories in a season. It is much more valuable, and a whole lot more difficult to obtain, than a no-hitter.

The feat hasn't been accomplished since Dizzy Dean had his great season for St. Louis Cardinals in 1934 and it hasn't been done in the American League since 1931 when Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove won 31 for Philadelphia Athletics.

Yet Ernie (Tiny) Bonham, big righthanded ace of New York Yankees, apparently has found the right trail and his chances look about as good as Feller's ever did.

Bonham bagged his seventh straight victory yesterday, 8-3 from the Athletics.

He may not win 30 games, because there are only 24 weeks in a season and he may not work often enough. But with a team like the world champions behind him he is not likely to lose many and at present he is right on the beam—approximately one fourth the victories in approximately one-fourth the season.

The Yanks gave Bonham a five-run boost in the fourth inning yesterday, three of the runs coming on a homer by Tom Henrich, and this enabled the champs to coast to their 16th victory in 19 games.

Boston Red Sox came out of a slump to overcome Washington Senators 10-1 in a night game. Oscar Judd limited the Nationals to six well-spaced hits before a crowd of 17,000. Rookie John Pesky collected three of Boston's 13 hits and scored twice.

Sox Take Indians 9-7.

Chicago's usually weak-hitting White Sox collected 17 hits at Cleveland but had plenty of trouble taming the Indians 9-7. Three of the Tribe's 10 hits were homers and it remained for relief pitcher Joe Haynes to win his own game for the Sox by singling across two runs in the eighth inning.

St. Louis Browns backed up Johnny Nigelling with extra-base hitting to beat Detroit Tigers 5-2. Walt Judnich led the attack with a homer, a double and a single.

Brooklyn Dodgers increased their National League lead to six games by belting Boston Braves 4-1 with a three-run ninth-inning rally that settled a hurling duel between Whit Wyatt and Jim Tobin.

Wyatt rationed five hits and Tobin scattered seven and the only runs till the final frame were Billy Herman's homer for Brooklyn in the first and Sebby Sisti's round-tripper in the third. Then Dolph Camilli walked, Joe Medwick and Pinchhitter Pete Reiser singled and Mickey Owen tripled.

Bucky Walters pitched seven-hit ball as Cincinnati Reds conquered Chicago Cubs 10-1 with a 13-hit ofensive that included a grand slam home run by Gerald Walker to climax a seven-run spree in the fourth inning.

The surging St. Louis Cardinals moved into second place slightly ahead of Boston by routing the hapless Pittsburg Pirates 5-3. Three errors figured in Pittsburg's fourth straight setback.

Bob Carpenter pitched New York Giants to a 6-2 decision over the Phils in a night game at Philadelphia.

Hogan-Laffoon P.G.A. Battle Today's Feature

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., May 28—The outstanding match in second round of the Professional Golfers' Association championship at the Sprawling Sea View Club today appeared to be the one between Ben Hogan and Ky Laffoon, each of whom has, in turn, been a seven-day wonder among the big golf winners of the United States in recent years.

Either that or the match between Craig Wood, the National Open champion, and Leland Gibson of Kansas City, Mo., who is little known in big-money circles, but who has been shooting more than anybody's share of golf here the last three days.

That is the difficulty of a P.G.A. tournament. For the most part the country's money players run true to form. Something like 100 professionals started play in the qualifying round three days ago, yet of the 16 still in there pitching today there were only two who might be termed outsiders.

One of them is the aforementioned Gibson. The other is Tom Harmon of Montclair, N.J., and they still are competing, probably, on borrowed time.

Byron Nelson, the favorite, reached this stage without exerting himself. His trick stomach was troubling him, as usual, and he wasn't quite satisfied with his game, yet the quiet Texan still was so far superior to most of his rivals that he spent a good part of the last two days experimenting with his various shots.

Sammy Byrd, the former big league outfielder, carried almost the unanimous support of the gallery into yesterday's feature match against Sam Snead, the Canadian Open champion. But in the end it was Snead, the crack money player, who beat Byrd down in the afternoon and smashed him finally by a lopsided margin of 7 and 6.

Bomber Scares Chicoutimi Tests Watchers

CHICOUTIMI, Que., May 28. — (CP).—Air raid precaution officials decided yesterday that the lone bomber that flew over the Chicoutimi and Lake St. John districts by mistake Tuesday night had furnished proof of the efficiency of plane spotting and raid precaution work in the area.

The plane, described later as an R.C.A.F. bomber "slightly off course" brought two alerts to Chicoutimi, and a blackout over the entire Lake St. John area. What interested officials was that the invader' was spotted in remote, heavily-wooded areas beyond the town, and its course traced in successive reports from the ground watchers until it passed over Chicoutimi.

The plane was first reported by a paper company air raid warden over Lake Oantcheway, 40 miles from Chicoutimi. Twenty minutes later it was reported over Ile Maligne, flying without lights at 2,000 feet.

Within a few minutes of the second report, the blackout was ordered. and Chicoutimi, Arvida, Shiushaw, Jonquiere Kenogami, St. Anne Rivere-Du-Moulin and Baie Des Ha-Ha were plunged into darkness. The Chicoutimi radio station broadcast an alert and then went off the air.

The alert in Chicoutimi lasted an hour, and was lifted at 11 p.m. Alarms sounded again half an hour later, but the second alert was of short duration.

Civilian protection committee workers remained at their stations in every town and village in the district until the official announcement shortly before midnight that the plane was friendly.

by the Dominion Government to the City of Ottawa after turning down a proposal to have a Senate Committee study the relationship between the city and Dominion.

To-day the House will take up banking and commerce committee amendments to the War Damage Insurance Bill, and Finance Minister Ilsley's Routine Bill seeking authority to borrow $750,000,000 for refunding purposes.

After that the House will return to the $2,000,000.000 War Appropriation Bill which is still in committee stage and has been since March 20.

Mr. Hanson assured the Government yesterday that he desired to see the House dispose of this measure this week and open the way to consideration of the Bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act.

"I urge this course because I do not contemplate staying here all summer," said Mr. Hanson.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House Leader, said his group would be glad to facilitate discussion.

"But it comes rather a surprise to me to hear the Leader of the Opposition, who told us yesterday that the appropriation resolution was the most important matter before the house and ought to be scrutinized, say that he is going to put through this important measure this week because there are other matters in the offing," Mr. Caldwell added.

"If there was anything in what he said yesterday we should not limit in any way the discussion of these large appropriations."

"I think we have had a fairly ample discussion," Mr. Hanson commented.

Aid To Prospectors

The Bill to amend the Alberta natural resources was offered by Mr. Crerar as a means of stabilizing the industry and encouraging greater development of oil resources.

He said it would end all uncertainty that might be in the minds of prospectors as to what they would have to pay in the event they developed producing wells.

But Mr. Hanson contended that it was a breach of contract with existing leaseholders who had invested their money on the basis of contracts which they believed to be permanent.

Mr. Hanson said he would not accept the minister's statement that the majority of leaseholders had entered into the agreement with the Alberta Government for which ratification now is sought in the Canadian parliament.

The Conservative House Leader said Mr. Crerar had agreed to produce in the House correspondence on this subject but had not yet done so. He urged that the correspondence be produced.

Mr. Hanson said the objective of stabilizing the industry could be achieved by leaving the lease holders undisturbed.

Since the Alberta Government sought, by provincial legislation, to increase the royalties a year ago there had been much uncertainty in the industry, Mr. Hanson said.

He read a telegram from an Alberta oil man who said a large number of drills were idle because of the action of the Alberta Government a year ago and this at a time when oil was a scarce and vital war essential.

Mr. Bence advocated adoption of a suggestion made Tuesday by G. H. Ross (Lib. Calgary East) that the bill be submitted to a special Commons committee before which opponents and proponents could appear and state their arguments.

Mr. Coldwell and John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy, were the only members apart from the minister to support the bill. They did not submit any detailed argument.

British Smash

The history of the Libyan campaign thus far has been a story of give and take. The first great offensive was launched in September, 1940, when the Italians marched to Sidi Barrani, 70 miles inside the Egyptian frontier and halted there to map plans for conquering the Nile Valley.

Three months later Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, then commander of Britain's North African forces, unleashed a push which knocked the Italians out of Egypt, virtually destroyed their Libyan army and wound up with British forces entering Bengasi February 7, 1941.

This drive, covering 500 miles, was accomplished in 35 days. The gains were held only a short time, however, for Rommel's forces came to the Italians' rescue and drove British forces back to the Egyptian frontier in an 18-day assault.

The fourth offensive began last November when British forces swept through again to Bengasi, only to be pushed back to their present line by Rommel's reinforced armies.

After a two-day lull, aerial warfare evidently picked up.

The Russians announced they had destroyed 82 planes and lost 23 in operations Tuesday.

Dramatic moves of the Donets basin combat were exhibited here by the Russians. One showed the northern Donets flooding far over its banks and a ferry carrying supplies to Red army troops on the western bank.

An anti-tank rifle was pictured firing at close range at a German tank and setting it afire. The Nazi crew leaped from the machine and fled for cover.

The same weapon, resembling a long rake-handle with a narrow nozzle at the end, was shown shooting down a gasoline-laden German supply plane.

Victory Claimed

BERLIN, (from German broadcasts), May 28.—(AP)—The German high command claimed today that the battle of encirclement south of Kharkov on the Russian front had resulted in an outstanding victory for Germany.

A communique claimed that 165,000 Soviet prisoners have been taken in the struggle and Russian attacks aimed at relieving encircled Red forces have failed completely.

"Annihilation of the few remaining groups still offering resistance is continuing," the bulletin said.

In addition to the prisoners taken, large quantities of Soviet war equipment has fallen into German hands, the high command said.

"Five hundred and seven armored vehicles, 1,180 guns, thousands of military vehicles and horses and a vast amount of other war material has been captured," the communique said. "There figures are constanlty growing."

Out For Dr. Shields.

Johnny Bourque, Union Nationale-Sherbrooke, later rose on a question of privilege and urged that "this House do something to have some action taken against Dr. Shields of Toronto who every Sunday ridicules French-Canadians."

"The member for Lotbiniere," Mr. Bourque said, "states that because of the pressure of the English press proceedings will be taken against him. I wonder then if something could not be done to have some action taken against Dr. Shields of Toronto (Dr. T. T. Shields of Jarvis Street Baptist Church). I don't know whether I am the only member of this House to receive the weekly speeches of Dr. Shields. He criticizes and ridicules French-Canadians every Sunday. It is a shame to read such speeches."

Charles Bullock, Liberal-Shefford, said that "I think this House has nothing to do with the action which may be taken, nor which has been taken against the member for Lotbiniere. I suggest that we drop the whole subject and leave the matter to Ottawa."

Speaker Valmore Bienvenue intervened to say that no debate could take place on points of privilege and the House resumed its regular work.

CARELESS

There are still people who haven't heard that there is a restriction on gasoline. A few still park their cars and leave the motors running while they dash into the store, presumably with the idea that it will only be a matter of seconds. But the result is nearly always a matter of minutes and so there is that much more gasoline wasted.

JOINED THE BATTERY

Another half dozen recruits for the 4th Field Battery RCA (RF) had their medical board last night at the Armoury. Those taken on strength were C. J. Hartman, J. K. Brown, Archie Weir, J. M. Wilson and William Archibald. One other was rejected. Gunner K. W. Rose received his discharge upon enlistment with the Ordnance Corps at Ottawa, and Gunner Frank Weart was promoted to Bombardier. The Battery last night had its largest parade since the last pay parade.

INCREASE

Business in the banks continues to boom for the week ending May 28. This year the clearings for that week totalled $630,384. In 1941, for the same week, the amount cleared was $516,512. This is an increase of $113,872.

Alparka customers have worn out three sets of steps made of two-inch planks, an evidence of the stream of abrading traffic flowing through the corner door. The boss has just completed new portal alterations, cement steps and a wider door.

NEW GRASS

The piece of ground opposite the Canada Packers has been seeded and the grass is beginning to make a general appearance. It should make quite an improvement in that part of the city, and if the whole section is done, a charming park could be created.

FRACTURES ANKLE

Mrs. Harry Barnard of Bailieboro suffered a fractured ankle on Tuesday. She was attempting to drive some cattle out of a field on her property, and in getting over the fence after routing the stray cattle, she fell, receiving the injury. She was unable to move for quite some time, until a Mr. Jewison was attracted by her shouts and gave her assistance.

TWO LIQUOR CHARGES

Stillman Guyette, 54, Apsley, pleaded not guilty in police court this morning to charges of keeping liquor for sale, and of being in the possession of liquor while on the interdicted list. The charges were laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris and Guyette was defended by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. The cases were enlarged until June 11th by consent.

DETERRED BY TIRES

Some of the Prince Edward Holstein breeders who were planning to come to Peterborough June 6 are now doubtful about using gasoline and tires for this purpose, and an expected group from the Picton district may have to stay at home.

THE BENCHES ARE OUT

Yesterday this column mentioned the fact that several citizens had been complaining that the benches in the city parks had not been set out yet. This morning the parks staff were placing seats in Victoria Park, Nicholls Oval and Inverlea. No benches are to be placed in Confederation Square it was stated.

TEST HOUSING SITE.

Test pits were being dug to-day on the flat land west of High Street, according to reports from that neighborhood, and choice of site for the next colony of wartime houses was now reduced to that location and the Hatton property. The local office of Wartime Housing Company had no definite information from headquarters this afternoon.

I.O.O.F. Lodge Gives $75 To War Victims

For the past two years, during the winter months, Peterborough Lodge No. 111, Independent Order of Oddfellows, have been conducting a series of euchres, entertainments, draws, etc., all with a view to contributing towards helping along the war effort.

Last year, the proceeds of these were given to their own Grand Lodge War objectives, and this of course was a very loyal and natural thing for them to do, since they would wish to have a full share in the work being done by their governing body.

This year, having fulfilled their first obligation, their thoughts have naturally turned to the helping of their own local funds which they as citizens undoubtedly feel they have a share in, and so when it came time for them to disburse the fruits of this past season's effort for war purposes, they have voted $75 to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, and another $75 to the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross.

This contribution, which is a most welcome one, appears in the list of receipts for the fund for today, and must surely give all those who contributed in this manner, quite a full measure of satisfaction in having helped along their native city's own fund to help the people of Britain.

Personal Donations

This important feature on behalf of the fund might well in a city of thirty thousand souls play a much more important part than it has been doing for some time. As individuals, all have a personality which is peculiarly their very own, so it follows than an unsolicited personal donation must of necessity express just that individuals personal concern that the ravages from the air by the Hun over Britain, is going to be repaired as well and as quickly as he can help to make it possible let alone that quality of sympathy for human suffering, without which life would be so meaningless and void.

And so it is a pleasure to record in this days list for the fund, a personal donation from J. F. Pilley for $5.00 which came in by mail. While collections from penny boxes spell an effort that is a collective one, still it represents the small personal givings of individuals, and from such a one, there is noted $1.65 from the penny box located in the In-and-Out warehouse.

C.G.E. Workers Set Service Record

Veterans Form Quarter Century Club

Close to 4,000 years continuous service with the Canadian General Electric Company, Peterborough works, was represented when 135 employees, pensioners and guests sat down to a banquet at the Kawartha Club, Wednesday evening.

The banquet tendered the employees by the Company, marked the initial step in the formation of the Quarter Century Club for employees who have completed 25 years or more of service with the company. It was a historic gathering as it brought together, the men and women of the local plant, whose knowledge and wisdom, loyalty and energy have made the C.G.E. name a household word symbolic of quality and value.

Oldest Veteran

It was proper that Robert J. Cottrell of the office staff should be assigned the duties of chairman as he tops the list of men now on the staff in point of service, having an unbroken record of 47 years and two months to his credit. Sitting with him at the head table were four other top ranking veterans, who with Cottrell have an aggregate working record of 230 years. The four in order of service are P. J. Fuller, Joseph Reynolds, W. H. Moore and R. J. Craig.

Mr. Cottrell extended a warm welcome to the workers and guests, and explained that they had been assembled to form the first Quarter Century Club in the Peterborough works. He singled out E. G. Patterson, former works manager and L. D. W. Magie, former works engineer for a few special words of tribute, in memory of the pleasant associations that had existed during their tenure of active service.

Gordon R. Langley, works' engineer, was called on to explain the aims and objectives of the venture and he told the men the club would be patterned to a great extent after similar organizations in existence in the parent plant of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, and at Philadelphia. "The main purpose of the club is to bring about a better acquaintance and fellowship between those who have a common bond of long time service with the Company," he said.

Spirit Of Loyalty

Mr. Langley pointed out that there has been continuous cordial relations always between the older employees and the management." It is only fair to the ambitious youngsters now training to take our places, that we impart to them to the fullest extent possible, the skill and wisdom we have gained through long years of service with the company."

"One cannot work 25 years with a company like the C.G.E. and not realize one's good fortune, moreover one cannot help but become imbued with a deep sense of loyalty to the organization. I feel it is our job to make other employees develop that sense of loyalty. As the club grows the value of it to the older employees will be obvious to all, and I feel that we should start a collection of photographs tracing the growth of the Peterborough Works in pictorial form."

Lakefield Boy Shares Huge Parish

By LOUIS HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in Scotland, May 28 (CP)—Flt. Lts. A. W. Ferguson of Straffordville, Ont., and Gordon W. Porter of Lakefield, Ont., share one of the biggest "parishes" in the British Isles.

Members of the R.C.A.F. chaplaincy service, the two padres travel thousands of miles a month by land, sea, air and "shank's mare," and meet hundreds of Canadian airmen scattered from the north of England to the Shetland Islands beyond the tip of Scotland.

"Jacks of all trades," their task of "keeping the family together" requires more than the conducting of church services at the many stations where there are Canadian squadrons or Canadian airmen. They act as advance agents for the auxiliary services, as intermediaries between the fliers and their commanders and distribute cigarets and comforts to the less fortunate airmen in the remoter areas.

Flt. Lt. Ferguson, interrupting a chat with some airmen at another station on the west coast of Scotland, said "It is tremendous the welcome we get from the boys when they hear there is an R.C.A.F. padre around."

"The big trouble we have to help to overcome among the airmen is homesickness," the padre said. "The boys on operations are pretty cheerful because they are busy at work at a job they like. But those in training find life a little more difficult. They can hardly wait to be posted to operational squadrons."

Flt. Lt. Ferguson said "letters from home help the airmen more than anything else to settle down and become acclimatized."

Neither of the padres are strangers to Scotland. Flt. Lt. Porter, who was pastor of the United Church at Milton, Ont., studied at Edinburgh and was a padre at Saughton prison there. Flt. Lt. Ferguson is a native Scotsman. He was born near Airdrie and trained at Glasgow. He moved to Canada in 1926 and served a Englehart, Ont., the northernmost Presbyterian charge in Ontario, Moose Jaw, and Simcoe, Ont.

Remand Lindsay Man In Accident

Arrested after a collision between the car he was driving and a truck driven by Ken McCannan, at Charlotte and Rubidge streets Wednesday night, Francis Traynor, Lindsay street, Lindsay, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to face a charge of dangerous driving.

Defended by John A. Bradshaw, Traynor entered a plea of not guilty.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., asked for a remand, stating that some of the witnesses had been injured.

Traynor was remanded until Monday with bail fixed at $500.

BEWARE OF THE DONKEY

Kindness to dumb animals is a fine thing—when the animals appreciate it. One circus-goer has sworn to lay off for life, after his startling experience at Conklin Shows this week. Passing by a spot where a nice little donkey was tethered, he gently patted the animal's head and the donkey let loose with a hee-haw that rattled the would-be friend's teeth. Not satisfied with that, his hind feet shot out and just missed getting his "admirer's" pocket handkerchief. From now on, his motto is to steer clear of animals regardless, until he knows their intentions.—J.S.

Elephant Needs Beauty Treatment Too

Mrs Terrell Jacobs, wife of Canada's outstanding animal trainer, manicures the hoof of an elephant from Jacobs' Circus now appearing with Conklin Shows at King Edward Park. This mastodon, one of three highly-trained elephants, seems to enjoy the little beauty treatment. Mrs. Jacobs handled the elephants in a sparkling act that has won high acclaim in Peterborough. Four Injured In Crash At Clinic

Four persons were hurt, one seriously enough to require hospital attention and two motor vehicles badly damaged in a spectacular traffic accident at Rubidge and Charlotte streets at 11 o'clock Wednesday night.

The injured are Lloyd Cote, 96 Williams street, Lindsay, in St. Joseph's Hospital, suffering from injured shoulder, bruises and shock; Harold O'Keefe, 77 St. Paul street, Lindsay, deep scalp wound; Harold Fahey, R.R. 5, Lindsay, slight head injuries, and Mrs. Ken McCannan, Ann Ave., head injuries, and right leg hurt.

The three Lindsay men were passengers in a car that was being driven north on Rubidge street by Francis Traynor, 51 Lindsay street, Lindsay. It reached the Charlotte street intersection, just as a truck driven east on Charlotte street by Ken McCannan, who had his wife as a passenger came along. According to the police report Traynor did not notice the stop sign at the corner and kept on travelling north with the result that his car collided with the McCannan truck, striking it broadside. After the impact the car continued over to the northeast corner of the intersection and turned over on its side, facing in a southwesterly direction. It was almost a complete wreck as a result of the impact while right side of the truck was also considerably damaged.

Neither driver was injured but all four passengers in the two vehicles suffered in the crash. Cote who appeared to be the most seriously injured was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by ambulance where it was discovered that his injuries were not as bad as had been feared. Other victims received first aid in the office of Dr. S. Y. Walsh.

A considerable quantity of gasoline was spilled on to the street from the wrecked Lindsay car and to avoid a fire hazard firemen treated the gas to render it harmless in the event of a match or cigarette butt being thrown dawn carelessly.

Sudan Grass Urged For Extra Pasture

Farmers still have another week or ten days for sowing those extra plots of grass as safeguard against the usual midsummer dry spell.

A young Cavan farmer was enquiring this morning from F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative, about details of growing Sudan grass. The recommended practice is a mixture of oats and Sudan Grass, one of the proportions especially tried at Kemptville was 26 pounds of the grass seed and two bushels of oats to the acre.

The young Cavan man has decided to use Sudan Grass but was not quite so certain about oats. However, that was his inclination. He has already treated a field to a heavy coating of barnyard manure.

"That's all right," Mr. Paterson was telling the young man, one of the ace junior judges over in Durham, "and some mineral fertilizer would have been an advantage."

The Kemptville Agricultural School has been recommending as supplementary crops, Sudan Grass, peas and oats, sweet clover.

The grass and oats mixture was sown on June 7, and a month later an electric fence was set up on the field and twelve head of cattle were turned loose. The cows pastured on the plot from three to four hours each day, and got a maximum amount of feeding with a minimum of damage from tramping the succulent growth.

"Proving the pasture is conveniently located to the farm buildings it is advisable to take cattle off as soon as they have eaten their fill and allow them to get a drink and then lie down in a cool shady spot on some old permanent grass."

Found Brakes Useless Police Affirm

Following an accident in the Lift Lock tunnel last Sunday, James Buchan, 586 Young street, was charged with reckless driving before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C. in police court this morning and pleaded not guilty.

John A. Bradshaw appeared in his behalf and the prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

J. E. Hill, 137 Dublin street, the first crown witness, testified that after driving up the east bank of the canal he had stopped at the entrance to the tunnel to let an eastbound car pass and had then driven some distance into the tunnel when he noticed another car coming down the Westclox hill toward the lift lock. Hill stated that he stopped his car close to the north side of the tunnel and tried to back up but there were pedestrians behind him.

"As the other car got near to the western entrance to the tunnel", Hill testified, "I saw some one jump off the car."

"We just had to sit there and take it," he said to Crown Attorney McElderry, explaining that the other car had struck his automobile and driven it back some distance. A passenger in the back seat, Mrs. Thos. Quinton, Dublin street, had had her knee injured and the front of Hill's car was damaged.

Buchan was driving the other car, the witness stated.

"I asked him if he had ever heard of those things called brakes", Hill told the court. He estimated the speed of the other car at the time of impact at 15, 18 or 20 miles an hour.

Mrs. Hill, wife of the previous witness corroborated her husband's version of the accident.

Constable Gordon Trennum who investigated the crash testified that he had examined the brakes in Buchan's car and testified that the service brakes were useless and the emergency brakes fair. "I don't think the emergency would have stopped the car on the hill", Constable Trennum said, adding that he had made his tests on a level spot. "I didn't want to take a chance on a hill", he added.

Robert Martin, 16, one of five youths who were passengers in Buchan's car, said that when the car proceeded down the lift lock hill he saw another car in the tunnel, he had opened the door of the car, got out on the running board and then stepped out on to the road. "I tried to run with the car but I lost my balance and fell," the witness said. "Then I heard a crash". Court adjourned for luncheon at this stage.

U.S. May Cut Gas To Force Saving Tires

WASHINGTON May 28—(AP).—Put on notice that country-wide gasoline rationing may be the next step in the United States rubber conservation program, the House of Representatives inter-state commerce committee called on government rubber experts today for an explanation of the situation and what is being done to meet it.

Representatives of the army, commerce department and other agencies dealing with rubber were requested by Chairman Lea (Dem.-Calif.) to tell how essential needs are being met and will be met in the future. The main purpose of the investigation, he said, is to keep the public informed on the situation.

On the basis of existing technical developments, official predictions have been there will be no new tires for civilian use until 1944 at least, and probably not until 1946.

President Roosevelt told his press conference yesterday it is necessary to save rubber by methods still to be decided on; but he expressed hope that certain tire substitutes may be available before tires now on the road wear out. He said he thought the civilian transportation situation could be worked out satisfactorily.

Answering a question on whether anything was being done to develop a supply of synthetic rubber for non-military use, the President spoke of the need for buses to take workmen to and from war industry plants and said work is in progress on two or three kinds of tires which require no rubber.

The house interstate committee heard Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum co-ordinator, indicate yesterday that country-wide gasoline rationing might have to be resorted to as a means of compelling motorists to save their tires. Davies emphasized that while the gasoline shortage existed only in the east and to lesser extent in the northwest the rubber shortage is country-wide.

Donald M. Nelson, war production board chairman, said at a press conference yesterday that no rubber, including synthetics, is in sight for civilian tires within the next two years.

Finance Threat May Split C.I.O.

By JOSEPH R. LOFTUS
Associated Press Staff Writer.

John L. Lewis, president of the Mine Union, and Philip Murray, vice-president of the Miners and C. ray, choked with emotion, said he ences for more than three hours in a drama-packed session of the committee yesterday. Lewis referred to Murray as "my former friend." Murray, choked with emotion, saiad he wanted nothing less in the world than a break in their 30 year friendship.

They talked not only of the conflict over financial aid given the I.O. president, debated their differ- basic cause of the personal alienation—Lewis's proposal for a resumption of peace negotiations with the A.F.L. and Murray's rejection of it.

Death Follows Dose Of Serum

DRESDEN, May 28—Helen Sullivan, 17-year-old Dresden Continuation School girl, died suddenly last evening following the administration of serum by Miss Jean Lundy, registered nurse.

Miss Sullivan had been receiving week administrations of serum for asthma by Miss Lundy under the direction of Dr. W. F. Charteris of Chatham since January. She was given the usual serum last evening at the home of Sandy McVean, where Miss Lundy is engaged as a nurse, and died ten minutes later. Noting severe reaction to the serum the nurse immediately summoned Dr. R. D. McAlpine, coroner of Dresden, and Dr. L. G. Payne of Dresden.

Coroner Dr. McAlpine stated that there would be no inquest, and that he had consulted with Crown Attorney A. Douglas Bell in Chatham before making his decision. He declared there was nothing wrong with the serum and that no blame is attached to Miss Lundy, the nurse.

"It is unusual but sometimes happens that a severe reaction and sudden death occurs after the administration of anti-toxin," said Coroner McAlpine. "This is a fact well known to the medical profession but not known to citizens generally."

Helen Sullivan is the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of Sombra Township. Surviving also are two sisters, Josephine and Mary, and a brother, Joe. The family attends St. Michael's Catholic Church.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Under legislation approved yesterday by the House of Representatives and sent to the Senate, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and United States Army and Navy Intelligence Services may tap telephone lines and other communications sources any time they suspect an offence has been committed or is about to be committed against the national security.

UrgeHousewives Use Tea Bags

TORONTO, May 28 — (CP). — Canadian housewives were urged to use tea bags as a means of economizing in use of tea here today by Tea Administrator Thomas K. Wade in an interview following the announcement in Ottawa by Chairman Donald Gordon of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that tea consumption must be reduced by half.

"Tea bags have been found to be the most economical way of using tea, bcause there is very little waste," said Mr. Wade. "Housewives who use a tea canister and measure with a heaping spoon waste a lot of tea."

"I want to make it clear that the public is not required to reduce the number of cups of tea consumed by 60 per cent—it is the amount of dry leaf that is rationed," he said. "If due care is exercised to avoid waste, the ration in terms of cups of tea can easily be reduced to 25 per cent."

Flags Are Dedicated In Bailieboro Church

An impressive flag dedication service took place in Bailieboro United Church on Sunday evening when two Union Jacks, donated by the Y.P.U., were presented to the church in honor of the youth of the congregation who serve in His Majesty's forces. The choir rendered an anthem entitled, "Comrades of the World" and a solo "Jerusalem" was sung by Harland Seens.

The congregation stood as Rev. Mr. Rowland read the names of eight young men from the church who have answered the call of King and Country. Then Fred Barnard carried the two flags to the front of the altar where, on behalf of the Y.P.U., he presented them to the church. Rev. Mr. Rowland accepted the flags on behalf of the session of the church, then in prayer dedicated them "To the Glory of God and honor of those who serve in His Majesty's forces," following which the National Anthem was sung. The flags were then placed on each side of the chancel during the remaining part of the service.

Mr. Rowland chose his text from Luke 8:39. In his sermon he said. "As the flag is the symbol of our King and Queen and all they mean to us in courage and strength, so is the church the symbol of Jesus Christ. They challenge us to so live and direct our lives, that never again shall nation draw sword against nation."

The service closed with the singing of Kipling's "Recessional."

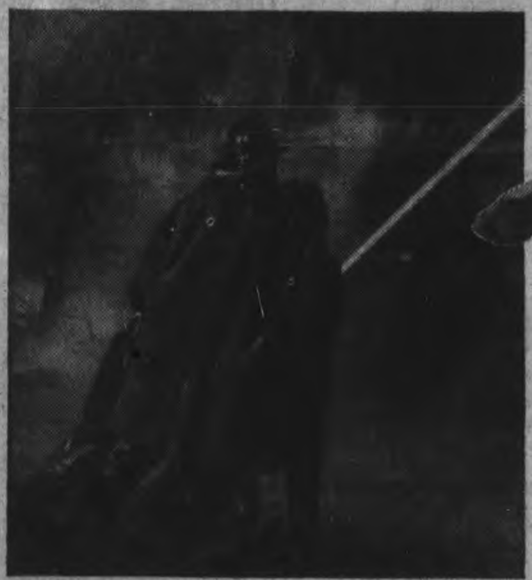
Spark your day at breakfast...

A THOUSANDTH OF AN INCH out and the part's no good! Munitions workers must be fit, stay fit for steady hand and eye. George F. Marchant, Toronto, Leading Hand says: "I need lots of energy on the job and off . . . must have proper meals . . . Kellogg's at breakfast, for instance, gives me lots of zip . . . I vote for the 'Self-Starter' Breakfast!" And, independent research proves, Kellogg's Corn Flakes is Canada's favourite ready-to-eat cereal.



IF YOU THINK IT'S EASY, try it yourself! Like all dancers, Iva Kitchell's grace and ease comes after years of training, hours of practice and strict attention to diet. From Vancouver Island to the Maritimes, active people start the day with a bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, milk and sugar. Year after year, independent investigators report a great majority of Canadians vote Kellogg's first for flavour.

INCENDIARIES? No! This fire was a civil disaster. But who knows when Canadian firemen may play the same heroic part as their fellows in London? Wives and mothers of men like these know the importance of diet . . . insist on a flavour-packed breakfast. They, too, know that a bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes with milk and sugar gives them the start they need!

SHE'S A SELF-STARTER. Only 13—and already famous as a designer of fashions for the "teens" is Barbara Ann Thorndike. Combining a career with school work and activities is pretty hectic . . . calls for plenty of zip. No wonder Barbara Ann is a booster for the "Self-Starter" Breakfast. A bowl of Kellogg's with milk and sugar will give her the needed food energy to pedal that bicycle over seven miles, or walk 3½!

FIXIN' TRACES. Even with no shortage of gasoline or rubber, there'd still be a place for Dobbin on Ervin Keller's Alberta farm. "With a war on," Mr. Keller told us, "we all work doubly hard. I find a big bowlful of Kellogg's Corn Flakes with milk and sugar gives me the start I need." Farmers' wives, too, appreciate the time-saving 30-second breakfast . . . no pots or pans to wash up after. Kellogg's is economical to serve, too.

"FOUR OUT OF FIVE housewives, they tell me," says Jimmy with a smile, "vote Kellogg's Corn Flakes first for flavour. And when so many customers insist on Kellogg's, and keep coming back for more, I figure there must be something in it. I find a quick bowl of Kellogg's gives me a real pick up when I have to work overtime." Better get some tomorrow . . . comes in two convenient sizes. Eating out? Ask for the individual package with the inner, WAXTITE, sealed bag that assures extra freshness. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Nazis Big Test In Argentina

By JOHN LEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(AP) The first big test of the Nazis' ability to cripple the war effort of the United States by fomenting revolt in South America may be taking shape in Argentina. A political crisis is on the horizon, centring on the eyes of the President-who-is-not-President of that country.

This is the story:

Dr. Ramon Castroviejo, New York eye specialist, has gone to Buenos Aires to see what treatment is necessary for the eyes of the titular chief of the Argentine Republic, Roberto Ortiz.

The eyes of Roberto Ortiz were the reason for his retirement from the presidency about two years ago.

In Ortiz' absence, the duties of the President have been exercised by Vice-President Ramon Castillo, whose administration adopted a policy of "neutrality toward all" in the war and was responsible for preventing a unanimous new world break with the Axis powers at the American Foreign Ministers' conference in Rio de Janeiro.

If Ortiz' ailment could be cured, there would be no legal reason why he should not return to the Presidency.

And if Ortiz should return to the presidency, his friends have indicated, he would comply with the popular demand within his country to break Argentina away from all connection with the Axis.

Lacks Army Backing

It is a political axiom in Buenos Aires, however, that in spite of his health Ortiz would not have quit the presidency even temporarily had he had the support of the army. The converse is considered equally true: That he cannot return to the presidency without the support of the army.

At the time Ortiz retired from official life, former President Augstin Justo, a general with a large political following in the army, was against him. Justo previously had helped Ortiz become president, but they split on domestic issues. Today Justo, who wants to be president again, approves more of Ortiz' pro-Americanism than he does of Castillo's neutrality.

That leaves one crucial unknown factor:—

How much of the historic German influence, flowing from German training and German-made weapons, is left in the Argentine army? Some say this influence is strong. A few identify it as the real reason for Castillo's refusal to line up with the United States. Others aver that Nazi power is more propaganda than actuality.

Whatever the truth may be, Hitler can be depended on to use the influence to its fullest extent to prevent Argentina from joining the worldwide front against his "new order."

If the chances look strong enough, the Nazis will not hesitate to use violence. Observers fear they might use Ortiz's return to power as excuse for such an outbreak.

Castillo may have nothing at all to do with this. His friends say he will not oppose Ortiz's return to power. There are even indications in which the Germans had taken advantage of his efforts to walk the middle of the diplomatic road. But, if the army willed otherwise, Castillo could do little to stop violence once it had broken out.

Couple Charged Abandoning Child

TORONTO, May 28 — (CP). — George William McConnell, 24, and his wife, Iva M. McConnell, 21, both of Toronto, were arrested here last night and charged with abandoning their 11-months-old son May 19.

Police said the parents had not been living together for some time and that the father brought the baby back to Toronto last week from Peterborough, where it had been living with an aunt.

Police said McConnell phoned his wife the same day and they agreed to abandon the child. It was found on the steps of the North York Children's Aid Society Home.

Rev. Quarterman Rawdon Rector Taken By Death

BONARLAW, May 28—(ENS). — Deeply mourned by the parishioners of Rawdon to which parish he was appointed by Bishop Lyons on October 1, 1941, and also by members of former parishes in the Diocese of Ontario in which he served, Rev. Clive Henry Quarterman passed away at St. Mark's rectory, in Bonarlaw, early on Monday, in his fifty-second year.

Prior to his appointment to Rawdon parish he had been granted a six months' leave of absence owing to ill-health, after being rector of Tamworth for four and a half years. His last illness lasted three weeks.

The deceased clergyman was born in Derbyshire, England. When a young man he attended Holy Trinity Church, Oxford, and played football on one of the city's best teams. Later he attended St. John's College, Highbury, London, England. Upon coming to Canada he graduated from Wycliffe College, Toronto, in 1914 going to the Diocese of Athabasca to serve as a missionary there for 15 years.

On July 1, 1929, he was appointed by Bishop Seager as missionary in North Addington, Diocese of Ontario. He resigned this parish upon appointment to the parish of Bancroft on May 24, 1931. He was appointed rector of Adolphustown on October 1, 1932, where he served for four years. Then came his appointment to Tamworth. While a student at Wycliffe College he was secretary of the Student Christian Movement for the years 1913-1914.

He is survived by his widow and five children — Reginald, Frank, Howard, Eveline and Charles.

The funeral service was held at St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday, with a large attendance of clergy and laity. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiated, being assisted by Rural Dean A. B. Payne, St. Thomas, Belleville, who led in the recital of the 39th Psalm, and Rev. J. L. Hutchinson who read I. Corinthians 15. Rev. L. Harding of Stirling acted as choir leader, St. Mark's choir being augmented by members of St. Paul's choir, of Marmora.

Hymns chosen by the deceased clergyman and impressively sung were "Lead, Kindly Light," "There is a Blessed Home," and "Now the laborer's task is o'er."

Interment was made in the 12th Line Cemetery, Rawdon Township.

Honorary pall-bearers were Rural Dean H. Pringle, Tyendinaga, Rev. C. P. Heaven, Shannonville Rev. F. C. Beazer, Roslin, Canon W. J. Macdonald, Wycliffe College, Toronto, Rev. A. Strothers, Ameliasburg, and Rev. C. C. Brazil, Adolphustown.

Active pall-bearers represented the two churches of the parish as follows: St. Marks—J. F. Baker W. J. Barlow, A. McComb; St. Thomas—W. J. Tanner, J. Courtney, and L. Tanner. Legion Asks Japs Be Sent Home

WINNIPEG, May 28.—(CP)—The Canadian Legion yesterday urged the Dominion Government to prepare to send all Japanese nationals in Canada back to Japan as soon as possible after cessation of hostilities.

A resolution, given unanimous approval at the ninth biennial convention, asked the Dominion Government not to enter into a peace treaty that does not provide for such repatration.

J. J. MacKinnon of Mission City, B.C., stated that no town and hamlet of British Columbia and no province wants the Japanese. The Japanese nationals are squeezing "our people" out of the Fraser Valley, he added.

The Legion resolution requested that Japanese removed from the Pacific Coast defence areas be placed away from all vital and war industry in other provinces for duration of the war.

Dr. E. W. Boak of Victoria moved that the convention demand immediate evacuation of German, Italian and other enemy aliens from the British Coumbia defence areas. His resolution, also given unanimous approval, claimed aliens are under inadequate surveillance most of the time.

The convention decided to make representations to the Department of National Defence urging cancellation of all orders or regulations providing for the segregation of racial groups in training bases with the exception of French-Canadians.

Proposals Put Forward

Other approved resoutions requested:

That free transportation be granted all members of the Canadian Active Forces when on service leave, including sustenance allowance for any period over five days, with embarkation leave for those eligible irrespective of time of previous leave;

That the Government abolish all civilian employment in military camps, using enlisted men of low medical categories for such service;

That free transportation and sustenance be given to and from a recruiting depot to persons rejected after passing a preliminary medical examination;

That promotions in the Active Forces be from the ranks wherever possible;

That travelling dietitians be appointed for all hospitals and military establishments;

That Wartime Housing, Limited, be extended to permit building of new homes for families of men on Active Service;

That the Federal Government exempt widows' pensions and pensions of veterans from the National Defence Tax where such pensions are the sole income;

That the benefits of the returned soldiers insurance be made available to ex-servicemen whose insurance policies lapse and who are later in a position to renew them if afforded the opportunity, and that benefits of the Act be made available to veterans of the present war.

Other pension requests approved cluded a cost of living bonus for pensioners not permanently employed, and an increase in pensions of war veterans suffering gunshot wounds, when they reach the age of 55.

The Legion by resolution yesterday promised to do everything "within constitutional means" to have the Dominion Government enforce conscription of manpower for overseas service.

Russian Planes Are Over Germany

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), May 28.—(AP). — Enemy planes dropped bombs last night on East Prussia, DNB reported today. The news agency claimed two raiders were shot down.

(The German radio did not give the nationality of the attacking planes, but the location of the target indicates they may have been Russian. British authorities made no mention of raids on Germany last night).

In order to acquaint the Examiner readers in Peterborough, and this means practically everyone, with the value and importance of this annual vacation guide and to impress on readers the beauty and possibilities of this wonderful holiday land, the edition has been distributed free to readers in Peterborough.. This year, mounting costs make this practice impractical and impossible.

Believing that our readers realize the importance of the Examiner Annual Vacation Edition to this district, as a tourist producer and business stimulant, and believing also that you will again wish to read, enjoy and mail-away a copy as you have in the past, the Examiner proposes to sell this edition to its carriers at 7c a copy and in turn the carriers will ask you to purchase it at 10c a copy. This will pay them for their part in selling and distributing the edition and still place it in your hands at the regular price paid by other than city subscribers, in the past.

1942 is an important year for the tourist industry. The Examiner asks your full co-operation in helping meet unusual conditions. Buy one or more copies from your carrier when he calls and when you have read and enjoyed your copy, mail it to some interested tourist prospect in Canada or United States. It will help more than ever this year.

The 1942 edition is the finest edition we have ever published.

C.W.V.S. Registrations In Daily Use

Members of the C.W.V.S. who enrolled for the Home Nursing Classes are finding the three classes conducted for them by the Red Cross most helpful and enjoyable. The work of the instructors who make the classes so popular is appreciated.

Indicative of the need for volunteer service, and of the willingness of the Peterborough women enrolled in th C.W.V.S., are the many calls received and answered. Among others this week was one from the Basic Training Centre for cashiers and canteen workers in the canteen. The registration of women for part-time volunteer service is in daily use and it may well be that every woman who registers will have chance to use her particular ability to further the war effort of the community.

Real Suspense In Big Cat Act At Kiwanis Carnival

By MOLLIE BROWN

The pretty performing horse made his last bow and trotted obediently out of the ring. Simultaneously lights sprang on in the great iron cage and a fury of roars and growls came from the cages behind. An iron gate sprung back and great striped cats slipped swiftly into the cages; huge, sleek, beautiful creatures with cruel eyes, steely strength in every inch of their graceful bodies. Then came the lions, growling, threatening the trainer with savage blows of their great paws.

And the trainer moved among them, cracking his whip, sure and confident, but never once letting the great cats forget that he was their master. Never still for an instant, he put them through their paces, armed only with the cracking whip and a long stick. The 16 snapping, snarling cats were ready, at the first sign of weakness on his part, to turn against him, but the sign didn't come, last night.

This is one of the best animal acts this reporter has seen. The suspense is real and thrilling and the show moved swiftly, as swiftly and smoothly as the animals themselves, and with something of the same deadly grace. The audience sat on the edge of its seats and held its breath in awe; and sighed with relief when the trainer left the cage and the last tiger returned to his blwos of their great paws.

Mark Street W.M.S.

Mrs. E. W. Rowland, president, was in the chair for the regular meeting of the Mark Street Church W.M.S., held on Tuesday. Reports were heard from Mrs. S. Matchett on Christian Stewardship, Mrs. A. Throop on Temperance. Mrs. Alton, leader of Group A, took the devotional period, which opened with a thought, followed by a hymn. Mrs. W. Atchison read the Scripture and Mrs. Rowland gave an interesting reading, "The Auxiliary Meets To-day." Mrs. W. Hepburn favored the meeting with a solo, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say." Mrs. H. Rehill was guest speaker and spoke on "A Bird's-eye View of Missionary Work." The meeting closed with a hymn, and prayer by Mrs. Alton.

Omemee

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Earle and daughter, Ethelmae, spent the week-end with friends at Pleasant Point.

This Is Everybody's War

By MOLLY BROWN

The Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Women's Voluntary Services has already proved itself a useful and efficient organization. From its enrolment of 200, 67 typists were supplied to the Prince of Wales Rangers upon their mobilization and these typists put in 1,244 hours of work. At present two typists are supplied daily and two on Tuesday and Thursday evenings to help with enlistments for the 2nd Battalion. During the month of May the C.W.V.S. has supplied volunteer workers to the Children's Aid Society to supervise the play hours of children in the Shelter. Workers have been supplied to the Red Cross sewing rooms and three Red Cross home nursing classes with an enrolment of 84 have been started. Two cashiers were supplied for the opening night of the Silver Moon Cafe, proceeds of which went to war charities. A large number of salvage workers have been supplied and canvassers and typists were supplied to the Red Cross and Community Fund Drive. Two cars and drivers were provided on the day of the Plebiscite, to drive elderly people to and from the polling booths, and a returned soldier's wife and child, both unable to walk, were driven to a doctor's office for treatment. In the near future, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, three volunteers will be supplied to work in the canteen at the Training Centre. The A.R.P. organization has asked the C.W.V.S. to provide volunteers for the welfare department of A.R.P. and the parks department has requested that voluntary playground supervisors be supplied by the C.W.V.S. for Jackson Park. A course in playground supervision is being contemplated to supply this need. Not a bad record of accomplishment for an organization which was started barely three months ago. But the aim of the C.W.V.S. is not just to supply the needs of the moment, but to provide for possible needs of the future; to find for each of its enrollees the particular war job best suited to her abilities; and to provide training and refresher courses free to women who wish to serve in a particular field. The motto of the C.W.V.S., "Better too much too early, than too little too late," points the fact that its forward-looking members believe wisely that it is better to be fully prepared for something which may never happen than to have disaster find us unprepared. It is too late to build the shelter when the bombs are falling. But do you think, in a city the size of Peterborough, that 200 is a large enough enrolment? Is your name down? Remember that in the C.W.V.S. you stand on your own merits as an individual. You are not there as a representative of a group or organization. On a holiday's walk along the highway a lot of old metal was noticed lying in ditches by the roadside. Surely some of this could be picked up and brought into town.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS . . . .

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

THE ENEMY STRIKES

CHAPTER XV

Talcott accepted the print and as he scanned it his bewilderment grew. The print was a copy of a creased and rather smudgy original. It was the head-and-shoulders likeness of a man in uniform, a Uhlan officer of the first World War. His head was closely shaved or bald. Under a bulging forehead his eyes held the fixed, glassy stare of unquestioned authority. His chin was short and square, his lips thin and cruel. He didn't look like Struthers; he didn't look like anybody Talcott could remember ever having seen.

"That's a photograph of Baron Gerhardt von Stampf," the slow, musical voice said. "A brilliant and unscrupulous agent. He speaks five languages as fluently and effortlessly as if each was his mother tongue. He was operating in Brazil until the recent shakeup there. We have reason to believe that he may be in the Islands."

"It certainly isn't Struthers," Talcott said.

"I don't like to think what a Nazi agent could do if formly established nearby. We'll check on him thoroughly. And now," the cloudiness left his gray eyes as he turned to MacDowell, "you claim to be employed by the Standard Detective Agency, that your name is Patrick MacDowell and you are a resident of New York. You have your license?"

MacDowell was taken completely aback. He didn't recall having made any claims to this disconcerting individual; didn't remember that he had even opened his mouth. He fumbled through pockets and produced a card with photo attached, a motor vehicle permit and a few letters.

"These look all right. I want to know where you met Halsey and Struthers and what evidence you had as to their authenticity."

This man! How the devil did he know about Halsey when his name hadn't been mentioned? "Why, I met Halsey in Struthers' office. It was Struthers called the boss and asked for me. I worked with him before."

"Struthers was known to you?"

"Absolutely."

"And Halsey?"

"Halsey took me to Federal Chemical's offices. Right straight in to th' president's private secretary."

"And the secretary instructed yo uto arrest Talcott if the auditor requested it?"

"That's th' idea."

"You didn't talk to anyone else at Federal Chemical?"

"No."

The man at the desk frowned. "Talcott notified the Company he was leaving; your call came from the auditor, not the company. A man whom you had just met in the auditor's office took you to the secretary. Have you any evidence that Halsey is actually an employee of Federal Chemical?"

MacDowell gasped. "Huh? What more would you expect? He took me right in!"

"Anybody can go right in if they've got clearance," the gray-eyed man smiled faintly. He turned to Talcott. "Did you know Halsey before.

"Only through letters."

"Which could have been sent without the knowledge of the President. This may be a conspiracy to defraud the company, or—". He paused, searched through his drawer again, found a blue sheet. He said, "You operate a distillation plant for the production of nitric acid. How much oil does it consume?"

"About a barrel a day."

"How much stock do you ordinarily carry?"

"Two months' supply."

"Any idea why Struthers would order five hundred barrels to be shipped immediately?"

Talcott lifted his eyebrows. "Five hundred barrels! Not unless he was afraid priorities would shut off his supply."

The man at the desk shut himself behind his eyes. One, two, three minutes passed in which his fingers drummed restlessly. Then, sighing, he said, "We'll watch it. And I suggest that you watch yourself. There can be only two possible answers to the auditor's conduct. I'm rather hoping, for the sake of all of us, that he's trying to take the company for a ride. Good luck, Bill."

"How'd that guy know about me?" MacDowell demanded when they again faced Emancipation Park. "What did he ask all them questions for? Nobody said nothing to him about Halsey, not unless you got to him while I was asleep. And who is he anyway?"

Talcott grinned. "I'm beginning to understand why Struthers picked you for this job."

"Huh? And what's how much oil you use got to do with all this, I'd like to know!"

"If I knew all the answers I wouldn't be going back with you."

MacDowell lapsed to muttering. It sure was mysterious. Walk up an alley and climb a flight of stairs and there, in a little room 600 miles from home, was a guy who knew all about you. Who knew about Halsey before his name was even mentioned. A guy who asked dumb question about how many barrels of oil it took to run a still. A guy who talked about international intrigue; as if anybody would want to get control of a stinking desolate hunk of rock like Abas Island.

Suddenly a look of positive brilliance burst from MacDowell's face. "Hey That guy!" he gasped. "That guy is a—"

But Talcott was yards away, striding toward the waterfront. Briskly heading for a crowd gathered on the quay, a group of natives and tourists and shopkeepers and sailors. The crowd was growing in volume. People were running to it across the small Park; running men brushed past MacDowell.

Down there a woman screamed; the crowd bulged and parted momentarily and MacDowell saw a uniformed officer pushing them back from the launch that belonged to Federal Chemical Company's Plant Number Six. Another uniformed officer was in the launch, bending down. Well maybe the cops could tell him something. Maybe they could tell him about the guy in the room that knew so much.

He had to run to keep up to Talcott. When they reached the crowd he saw that the people in it were scared. They were staring at the launch and the bent-down officer, jostling each other in their effort to see.

Beneath its tan, Talcott's face was white as milk. "What's wrong here?" he demanded so sharply that the officer looked up.

"This your boat?" the officer demanded.

"I'm in charge of it."

"Then you're the one we want. Walter, take the gentleman over to the Fort."

The officer stood up, and MacDowell, crowding close, saw Sebastien. Stretched out in the bottom, he was, his bandaged arm covering his face. Beneath the blade of his left shoulder was a glistening dark stain from which a knife-handle protruded.

Of Interest to Women

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, May 29

Excitement, high pressure tactics an dtempo may be looked for this day, judging by a very stimulating series of plentary aspects. This applies to all affairs, particularly large and important projects working in connection with public, community, fraternal and political activities as well as in co-operation with major corporations of a semi-private nature. While great progress and productiveness are indicated, yet there is a retarding as well as a peculiar or surprising development to be rigorously dealt with, by decisive acts.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much tension and stress, with the energies under high pressure and moving under enforced tempo in the direction of high places or objectives. This is probably in connection with public, group or fraternal interests, whose support is assured. But there may be certain erratic or peculiar situations, which may prove minor setbacks.

A child born on this day should be energetic, ambitious and public spirited, with practical versatility and constructive ability, although having some eccentricities.

DOROTHY DIX

PROFESSOR FOUND DESERVING FREEDOM FROM NAGGING WIFE

Nothing More Tragic Than for Couple to Live Together in Misery

Dear Dorothy Dix.—I am 69 years old and my wife is nearly 60. When we married I was in my thirties and she had just graduated from college. I supposed that she was interested in literature and cultural subjects generally and that she was good natured, but after marriage she ceased to show any interest in literature and now she plays nothing but bridge every day. Some days she has two or three sessions.

We have nothing in common, not even many meals together. She opens a can of something or other, leaves a plate on the table and goes off to her bridge luncheons, staying perhaps to a bridge supper after that. I have endured her housekeeping for years, but another aspect of the whole matter, and that has become steadily worse, is her nagging.

I am so busy with my problems connected with my work as a professor that I neglect to do certain things and also do certain other things that seem to her to be essential, but that do not seem to matter to me. In fact everything I do or leave undone seems to throw her into a rage. On account of these continual quarrels over trifles I have been unable to accomplish what I might have done if my wife had been interested in my work, or if she had only left me in peace.

Fortunately we have no children, for if we had, their lives would have been ruined as ours have been. I have been so ashamed of the controversies that I have attempted again and again to ignore remarks that have insulted me to the quick, but in the end I have been unable to ignore them and to avoid denouncing them as utterly and damnably trivial.

So we have drifted down through the years until now we stand on the brink of eternity with the quarreling still going on. Could anything be more pathetic or tragic? My wife has an independent income.—A Reader.

An Inscrutable Mystery

Answer.—Certainly nothing can be more tragic or pathetic than for a mismated couple to spend a lifetime in making each other wretched. Nor could anything be a greater waste; and why anyone should do it must forever remain one of the inscrutable mysteries of the human heart.

When there are children, you can understand why a husband and wife who are antagonistic to each other should stay together in order to make a home for the unfortunate little creatures they brought into the world, and give them a sense of security. But whether a home that is a perpetual battle ground is a blessing or a curse, and whether two parents who kill their children's respect for them by accusing each other of loathsome conduct, and who tear the youngsters to pieces by calling upon them to take sides, are better than one parent whom they could honor and with whom they could live in peace, as a question open to much discussion.

Sometimes pride keeps a warring couple together. They cannot bear to admit that they have made a failure of their lives, so they drag out the dreary years of boredom and revenge themselves upon each other by harping upon each other's peculiarities and weakness and saying things to each other that are like a stab in the back.

And often perhaps it is a queer, distorted sense of duty that keeps a husband and wife, who have come to hate each other, from parting and going their separate ways. What good they think they accomplish by living together in a relationship that keeps their souls surcharged with bitterness and brings out everything mean and cruel in their natures, Heaven only knows.

All Words Are Fighting Words

Whatever one may think of divorce, it seems to me that no argument can be brought against the righteousness of separation when a husband and wife find they not only do not love each other any longer, but that they actively dislike each other, and that after having made an honest effort to get along together they have utterly failed to find any common meeing ground on which they can dwell in peace. Everything one of them does gets on the other's nerves. Every taste the other has is repungent to the other. Every opinion one holds is anathema to the other. Every word is the fighting word. They cannot even say it is a pleasant day without starting something.

When such a situation arises between a cuple, and it often does, there is nothing left in decency for them to do but to part. One of the ghastliest sights on earth is that of husbands and wives waiting, hoping, praying for death to set them free of the mate they loathe, but whom they have not the courage to leave. There is black murder in their hearts that would be hardly less a crime if they put in into execution instead of taking it out in wishing.

So, Mr. Reader, I wonder why, even if you are 69 years old, you do not leave the wife, who does not need you to support her nor desire you as company, and spend the last few years of your life in peace and happiness. Surely you deserve that after your long martyrdom.

She May Be a Husband Spoiler

Dear Miss Dix.—Five years ago I fell in love with a woman who tells me that she is ten years older than I am. I am 33. That would make her 43. She doesn't look any older than 30, but it wouldn't make any difference to me if she were 63. I would still love her as much as I do now and be just as anxious to marry her. But she refuses because of the difference in our ages. What do you think?—Frank.

Answer.—I think if you are 33 you are an adult. Your tastes are formed and you are capable of knowing what you want in a wife, so there is no reason why ten years should be a bar between you and this woman, as it would be if you were in your twenties and she was in her thirties.

Any woman who is fascinating in her forties has the attractions that age does not wither. Her charms are indestructible because they are based on intelligence, understanding, tact and a knowledge of how to please.

Also, a woman ten years older than her husband is invariably a husband-spoiler.

Expert Dietician Gives Healthful Reducing Menus

Suggests Liquid Diet

It is easy to trim off those surplus pounds without prejudice to your health. All you need know are the rules, and like a good general, follow a planned strategy.

Mrs. Plump begins with a cleansing liquid diet which sharpens her appetite for the tasty, healthful, low calorie meals to follow.

Her strategy includes arranging housework and social activities so she can take things easy until she's back on solid food.

Then she settles down to a refreshing 3-day regime of fruit juices —orange, pineapple, grapefruit, tomato, prune—hot tea and coffee totalling less than 1,000 calories a day.

Next come several weeks of delicious energy-giving meals like this typical dinner of only 495 calories: 2 broiled lamb chops (lean) ⅓ cup string beans, 1 teaspoon butter, ½ white potato, lettuce salad. 1 teaspoon French dressing, 1 canned peach, tea with lemon.

No need for starved, dragged-out days when you reduce the modern low-calory way. In our 32-page booklet an expert dietitian gives "liquid diet," 42 tasty and healthful reducing menus. Has a calory chart for everyday foods; also tells how to gain.

For your copy of "The New Way to a Youthful Figure" send 15 cents in stamps or coins to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

There are 10,000 farms, averaging about four acres on the island of Malta.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T IGNORE WARNINGS

PRACTICALLY all good players treat the rebid of a suit, in the hand opposite the first bidder of the side, as a warning that the hand might be weak generally, though with a suit long enough to protect itself. Unless your own hand is a bit above minimum, you will usually do well to heed the cautious note which has been sounded, and let your partner play the deal instead of going on to some contract of your own.

It should have been patent to East that he had barely enough strength in his hand for the first two bids he made. When his partner rebid spades, at the range of three, East should not have spoken further unless his hand contained some additional strength, such as another ace or perhaps another king and queen.

As it turned out, West would have had a good chance to make his 3-Spades. The best play could have resulted in his losing only two tricks in diamonds and one each in the black suits.

At No Trumps, the heart 6 was opened to the Q and A. Three high Spades and a fourth to the J brought a return to the heart K, and then the heart 8 to the J. East now led a club to gain entry for dummy's spades, but when the A won the Q, a fourth heart was scored and two diamond tops, setting the contract two tricks.

If West wins the third diamond and leads the club Q, how could North calculate accurately whether he should cover or not, in an effort to stop 3-No Trumps by West?

Germans Using 3,000-Ton Subs With 8-inch Guns

LONDON, May 27 — (CP). — The Germans have developed huge 3,000-ton submarines carrying two 8-inch guns and 14 torpedoes for long-range raiding and are believed sending them in relays to harry the eastern coast of North America, reports from the Continent declared to-day.

Naval circles here said the reports of the new submarines are "perfectly feasible."

These U-boats were said to have a surface speed of 20 knots and a submerged speed of 11 knots.

It was said here that through the tactics of sending relays of submarines the Nazis hope to pin the balance of the United States naval forces in home waters and prepare the way for blows at British seapower in the Northern and Mediterranean Seas.

Jane's authoritative shipping guide lists British submarines with tonnages up to the 2,723 tons of the Severn class. The United States, according to Jane's has submarines up to 2,506 tons.

However, the average tonnage of the world's submarines runs between 1,000 and 1,800.

The world's largest submarine was the French Surcouf, 4,304 tons, which has been reported lost.

Stretcher Boat

The British Royal Army Medical Corps have adopted the tactics of the famed commandos by getting to an objective and getting there quickly. This set of photos shows how they use the new stretcher boat to great advantage. These stretcher boats are made of an ordinary stretcher plus a large waterproof ground sheet. In the TOP photo we see the medical orderlies as they prepare the stretcher. In the CENTRE they are adding the waterproof sheet, and in the BOTTOM we see the patient being safely ferried across a stream with no discomfort at all. By using these new boats they are able to get to places that in the last war were impossible to reach.

This year's sale is under management of R. C. Biggs of Dundas, Ont., with L. E. Franklin of Toronto, as arctioneer.

Donors of the calves are Catharine and Margaret Ferguson of Williamstown, Ont.; Glengarry (Ont.) Ayrshire Breeders' Club; Cumming Bros., Lancaster, Ont.; Wallace Havelock Robb, Kingston, Ont.; W H. LISBON, May 28—(AP).—Shortage of labor is Germany's greatest bottleneck and the Reich is faced with the serious problem of balancing the needs of war industry against those of the armed forces.

The strength of the German armed forces is estimated at 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 men—ample indication of the drain on industrial help.

The labor shortage is more of a problem than the growing pinch of raw materials.

Marshal Goering has described the shortage as Germany's "greatest and most urgent worry."

In an effort to alleviate the situation, Hitler has drawn on the labor reserves of women, youth, foreigners, Jews and war prisoners.

Of Germany's 24,000,000 workers —approximately the same as in pre-war days despite the present manifold intensifications of industry—9,400,000 are women and more than 2,000,000 are foreigners. An additional 1,600,000 prisoners of war are also at work, principally on farms.

Germany has drawn the following workers from foreign countries: Poland, 1,000,000; Italy, 272,000; the Protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia, 140,000; Belgium, 122,000; Yugoslavia, 109,000; Holland, 93,000; Slovakia, 80,000; France, 49,000; Hungary, 35,000; Denmark, 29,000; Bulgaria, 15,000; others, 190,000.

Jews In Chain Gangs

Jews, formerly taboo, now are being forced to work in factories in chain gang style.

Under a Goering decree, men, women and children labor reserves living in the country or towns and villages may be impressed to work on farms.

German industrial quarters frankly admit that the closing of factories "in far greater number than before is unavoidable." It will be a gradual process in which the unnecessary factories will shut down unless raw materials used in non-vital war production and workers cannot be employed elsewhere.

Hardest hit, of course, are factories still filling civilian needs, manufacturng for which is now only 20 per cent of the entire production.

Railways have been in a tangle almost from the start of the war. The lack or rolling stock replacecies are the principal headaches.

One reason for the poor condition of the railroads is that Hitler poured billions of marks into super-highways before they were needed instead of overhauling the railway system.

The super-highways now lie practically idle while railways are clogged with war traffic they can't handle. Personnel and engines and other rolling stock are tied up in the East and other occupied countries.

Passenger traffic has been curtailed to urgent business trips and a special pass is required to ride the railroads. Freight has been shifted in great quantities to slower canal barges.

Allow Soldiers To Carry Canes

KINGSTON, May 28—In the near future when young Canadian soldiers swing down the street in their natty walking-out uniforms, they will carry swagger sticks it was revealed today at Headquarters, M.D. No. 3.

During the last Great War swagger sticks were very much in vogue for soldiers on leave. Even in the early part of the present war some units instituted the use of swagger sticks while off duty. However officials frowned on this and they were done away with.

According to some authorities, canes and swagger sticks were first a part of regular army dress as a means of encouraging soldiers to keep their hands out of their pockets.

Whether this is the reason for the present action cannot be ascertained but certainly the average soldier's appearance, when dressed up and carrying a cane, will not be the less presentable.

The cane, for Warrant Officers and N.C.O.'s not below the rank of Sergeant will be approximately 31 inches in length but not more than one inch in diameter. For other ranks the length will be 25 inches by one half inch.

In view of the desire to conserve metal, the approved pattern of canes and sticks eliminates the use of such fittings. However, there is no objection to the use of existing stocks of canes with metal fittings. Furthermore, the cost of the canes will not be paid for from public funds but becomes a matter of regimental arrangements.

The canes will be black, brown or natural wood in color and may not be carried when battle dress is worn.

Was Losing Weight, Nervous, Always Felt Tired, Rundown

Also Suffered From Headaches and Constipation, Was Nervous, Couldn't Sleep. Says Syntona Gave Him Grand Results.

MR. RICHARD MARSHALL

There is scarcely a person who has not at one time or another suffered from constipation, stomach disorders, weak kidneys, or a sluggish liver and some of the long train of symptoms such as headaches, getting up nights backache, nervousness, pimples, boils, and a tired-out rundown feeling. No claim is made that Syntona will relieve these troubles in every case, but it certainly has proved to hundreds right here in Peterborough that it is well worth trying, and in the majority of cases it has given really remarkable results.

Take for example the case of Mr. Richard Marshall, who says:

"I suffered from constipation, headaches, nervousness, and could not sleep nights. My appetite was fairly good, but I didn't seem to be getting any nourishment out of my food as I was losing weight and felt tired and rundown all the time. I felt better on the first bottle of Syntona and now after just a few weeks my bowels act regularly, nerves are steady. I have regained my lost weight. I sleep fine and have no more headaches. It is a great medicine and I gladly recommend it to others."

If you suffer like this begin taking Syntona to-day and find out for yourself what it can do for you. It is pleasant to take and results are quickly felt.

90 p.c. U.S. Firms To Lose 'P' Rating

NEW YORK, May 28—(AP). — Iron Age, trade journal of the Iron and Steel industry, reported today the United States War Production Board is preparing to move against "priorities inflation" under which a flood of high ratings was said to be interfering with the efficient flow of vital materials to war plants.

"When the Allocation Classification plan is put into use in conjunction with the Production Requirements plan, The Iron Age is told," the magazine said, "90 per cent of all industries will no longer operate under the 'P' or preference rating orders. W.P.B. several months ago indicated that the expanding war program made it impossible to continue the use of preference ratings assigned under the 'P' orders without any exact check of the amount of material obtained by their use.

"Regardless of confusion over the priorities system, or the plans proposed to succeed or alter it, the automobile industry has already adapted more than two-thirds of its automotive manufacturing equipment to the production of armaments.

"Torpedoing of merchant ships is being reflected in steel mill schedules by an increase in orders from East Coast yards for shapes and plates for repair work."

Iron Age estimated that steel ingot production had dropped to 97 per cent of capacity due to a shutdown of a large plant, but might be up again toward the week's end. Except for the shutdown, Iron Age said, United States production would again have reached 100 per cent of rated capacity.

Hanson Shows Estimates Up

OTTAWA, May 28—(CP).—Hon. R. B. Hanson contended in the House of Commons Tuesday that the press of Canada had not given a correct import of the figures contained in the main estimates tabled in the House on Feb. 20.

During a debate on the interim supply bill the Conservative House Leader said after the main estimates were tabled the claim was headlined in the press that there had been a reduction in the peacetime expenditure.

The faulty statement to which Mr. Hanson apparently referred resulted from a misstatement in one of several Canadian Press stories on the estimates. The error was discovered after publication in morning papers on Feb. 21 and corrected at once.

Mr. Hanson said a reduction of $56,215,457 in non-war expenditures was shown in the estimates. "This reduction was blazoned in head-lines all across the country and it was suggested that the government was performing miracles in retrenchment.

"As a matter of fact," he continued, "a clear examination of the position reveals the exact opposite. However that was the impression which went out to the country and hitherto it has not been contradicted or exposed as a most misleading one."

The main estimates for this year actually showed an increase over the main estimates for the year before. The estimates this year were made to show a reduction by lumping together the main estimates last year and three doses of supplementary estimates which followed the main estimates and comparing those figures with only the main estimates this year.

The people of Canada were being asked to tighten their belts but there was no evidence that the government was tightening its belt.

ITALIANS' TANK CHARGE FOLDS ON FREE FRENCH

CAIRO, May 29 (AP)—A German armored force was repulsed today after slipping around British positions as far as Sidi Rezegh, 50 miles inside the British defensive system in the Libyan desert.

At Sidi Rezegh, one of the main battlefields of last Winter's campaign, the Germans were met by a British armored force. There is heavy fighting, almost entirely by tanks in a 50-mile-wide belt between there and Ain el Gazala, region of the westerly British land positions.

No fixed British land positions have been taken in the fighting which broke out with an advance eastward by Axis armored forces late Tuesday night.

The opening attack on Bir Hacheim, 50 miles southwest of the British stronghold of Tobruk, was launched by Italian tanks.

The defenders were Free French forces who reported they destroyed at least 35 Italian tanks in repulsing this assault.

250 Tanks Go By

A German column which by-passed Bir Hacheim to the south consisted of some 250 tanks from the 15th and 21st Armored Divisions.

Since the apparent frustration of their original plans, which seemed to be a sweep toward Tobruk, the German formations have tended to split up.

British headquarters evinced confidence, and the situation was regarded as satisfactory, with indications that developments have not gone as the Germans anticipated.

It was noted, however, that in a battle of this extremely elastic type the situation can change rapidly either way.

A British army photographer, returning to a press camp after being a prisoner of the Nazis for 13 hours, said he and 21 other prisoners were taken 40 miles by truck under shell-fire.

"The lieutenant in charge told us he would be in Tobruk by night and they had Churchill by the throat this time," the photographer said.

He escaped when the German column ran into accurate British artillery fire and fled, abandoning the prisoners.

The Free French, who took the first brunt of the Italian attack are members of the "Bataillon du Pacifique," made up of Frenchmen and natives from Tahiti and other French islands in tre Pacific.

The R.A.F., constantly in action over the forward area, reported that Axis air activity was on a reduced scale. R.A.F. raids were made on enemy airdromes behind the lines and on vehicles in the field.

The British command may have enticed the Germans into a trap deep in the heart of their own prepared positions in the hope of smashing much of the armored strength which Marshal Erwin Rommel has been assembling for months.

The German columns were far from their bases and wholly dependent on attenuated lines of communication for vital water supplies.

Rommel's forces were reported to have suffered heavy losses and military circles said he could not hope to capture Tobruk if his armored units are badly battered.

Experts said "everything depends" on the great tank battle now raging.

British planes were reported playing a major role in the fighting, giving strong support to land forces, intercepting enemy air attacks and doing considerable damage to Axis vehicles.

Thus far, it was said, the German ground forces have had little air support—perhaps because Rommel is conserving his planes for a crucial blow. On the other hand, the Royal Air Force is said to be delivering telling blows against the enemy.

One formation of planes is cre-

Have 4,500,000 Men By End Of '42, Ready For Anything

WEST POINT, N.Y., May 29 — (AP)—An invasion of the European continent was promised today by Gen. George C. Marshall, United States army chief of staff, who told the West Point graduating class that American troops "are landing in England, and they will land in France."

Marshall said the army would total nearly 4,500,000 men by the end of this year, instead of the previously announced estimate of 3,600,000. During the past four weeks alone, said the chief of staff, the army has grown by 300,000 men.

"Your utmost endeavor, backed by high and unselfish purpose, will be required to bring this struggle to a triumphant conclusion," he told the graduating cadets.

"No compromise is possible, and the victory of the democracies can only be complete with the utter defeat of the war machines of Germany and Japan."

Gaining significance in view of the current discussions of high ranking American army officers with British officials in London, Marshall's assertion that American forces "will land in France," was the first definite statement by any American official that a ground offensive against the continent is part of American-British strategy.

Marshall recalled that prior to Dec. 7, when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, members of Congress, seeking his justification for expansion plans for the army, wanted to know "where American soldiers might be called upon to fight and just what was the urgent necessity for the Army that we were endeavoring to organize and train."

All Is Safe

LONDON, May 29—(CP). — The London Daily Mail quoted the Berlin radio to-day as saying "our Fuehrer has taken personal direction of strategic operations on the Kharkov front. We look to his genius as a strategist to bring about full victory."

New Beef Ceiling Expected To Hold Supply

OTTAWA, May 29 — (CP). — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board to-day announced details of a new maximum price set-up by which it hopes to maintain domestic supplies of beef through seasonal variations in the prices charged by packers, wholesalers and retailers.

The new price order sets up a system of 15 zones across Canada and establishes uniform maximum prices which packers and wholesalers may charge in each zone. The range in various parts of the country is small.

The price of baby beef, yearling, steer and heifer carcasses and sides ranges from 18½ cents a pound in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and most of Alberta to 20½ cents a pound in rural areas of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island. Peterborough in South Ontario Zone 6 prices were set at 19¼ and 16 cents, with fore quarters 3 cents under carcass prices and hinds 3 cents above.

Cow and bull carcasses and sides range from 15¼ cents to 17¼ cents.

The maximum prices will be "revised from time to time in accordance with seasonal requirements," the board said.

Tied to Packers' Figures.

Retail maximum prices are tied to the packers' and wholesalers' prices.

"Each retailer is to regulate his selling prices for the various cuts or portions of fresh beef so that the aggregate selling price of all such cuts and portions from any carcass, side, quarter, or cut purchased by him from a packer or wholesaler shall be his laid-down cost, including any transportation charges, actually paid plus the mark-up of such retailer as established during the basic period (last September 15-October 11) for sales of fresh beef of similar cuts and quality," the board's statement said.

The board reserves the right to determine maximum mark-ups for any retailer to replace the mark-up the retailer sets himself.

A spokesman for the board said it is difficult to forecast what effect the new order will have on retail prices but said his personal view is that there will be a slight increase.

Axis Craft Headed With Supplies For Trondheim, North

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 29 (CP Cable)—Canada's "Demon Squadron," flying with Free Netherlands and R.A.F. planes, carried the war anew to enemy shipping off the Netherlands coast last night in an attack which left four vessels ablaze.

Smashing in the pre-evening dusk at an escorted Axis convoy, this coastal command squadron of Canadians set one ship afire. It was credited to PO. L. J. O'Connell of Halifax.

The R.C.A.F.'s Demon Squadron previously had struck heavy blows against German supply vessels off the Netherlands on the past two Fridays and last evening's foray came on the eve of the squadron's anniversary, which is being celebrated tonight with a mess dinner.

Enemy shipping on the route which has been heavily attacked by coastal command aircraft for the past month is an important communications line betwen the Ruhr and isolated German garrisons in the north.

Trondheim Bound

One official source said it could be assumed that the ships attacked last night started out a few hours previously with supplies for Trondheim, where the Germans are building a naval base.

The importance of this particular action to the general war progress is indicated by the fact supplies aboard the bombed vessels might have been used for units of the German fleet based on Norway or the German armies on the Petsamo front.

In O'Connell's crew were PO. G. C. Peek, Zelma, Sask., PO. G. A. White, Binscarth, Man. and Flt. Sgt. G. R. Libbey, St. Stephen, N.B. All shared in O'Connell's "kill."

"After I attacked the ship an explosion amidship caused such a brilliant flash it lit up the interior of the aircraft," said Pilot O'Connell. "When we were 12 miles away from the convoy, my crew reported a further explosion, as though the ship had blown up."

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 29—(AP). —The German high command said today that sinking of three more ships has brought to 17 vessels totalling 114,000 tons the toll claimed in German air and naval attacks on a convoy in the Far North since May 25.

Military quarters said the convoy still is a long way from its destination of Murmansk, Russia.

221 Vessels Lost But U.S. Gains In Seawolf War

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP).—Despite heavy losses inflicted on coastal shipping by Nazi submarines, naval experts said to-day the United States is slowly winning the main campaign in the Battle of the Atlantic. They emphasized, however, that only steadily-increasing production of both war and merchant ships could clinch ultimate victory.

The cold statistical results of the Atlantic battle to date are:

Three convoys of American troops and shiploads of equipment have arrived in the British Isles without loss of a man.

The supply lines to Russia, Africa, Asia and Australia—springboards for offensive action — are open, primarily, naval authorities say, because warships have not been diverted to protecting coastal waters.

On the other side of the ledger, 221 merchant ships of American and other nationalities have been sunk on the American side of the Atlantic since mid-January. Also on the loss side is the torpedoing of two and possibly three destroyers. The Jacob Jones was sunk off New Jersey in March. The Sturtevant was destroyed by an 'underwater explosion,' which may have been either a mine or torpedo, in April, and early this week the Blakeley was damaged by a torpedo off Martinique in the Caribbean.

Subs Driven South

Thwarted in their main purpose of cutting Allied supply lines, the U-boats have had to fall back on the indirect method of attacking where defences appeared weakest. For several weeks beginning in January Thn they moved south, finally most raids were made along the Middle Atlantic coast. concentrating in the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean.

The navy has made no report on the effectiveness of its countermeasures since April 1 when it an-

Ousts His Food Chief Home Troubles Grow Slovakia Vast Prison

LONDON, ay 29.—(CP).—Hitlers' demands for vengeance for an attempt on the life of Reinhard Heydrich, Reich's protector for Bohemia and Moravia, were declared today by his Gestapo though perhaps only partly, with the execution of six persons in Prague

A Czecho-Slovak government spokesman reported receiving advices that the Germans had arrested hundreds of officials, university professors and students for questioning, concentrating their attention on "intellectual types," including the puppet executives.

"The borders have been closed and the whole protectorate is one vast prison," the spokes man said.

He expressed belief that Bohemia and Moravia would be incorporated into Germany at once, with the assassination attempt hastening the ripening of a plan which he said Hitler apparently had planned to execute gradually.

Protectorate officials are expected to be dismissed or reduced to vast prison," the spokesman said.

Announcement of the executions by the Berlin radio, justifying fears of bloody reprisals in the former republic, was accompanied by reports of new troubles facing Hitler at home and abroad

Dispatches from Istanbul, quoting reports in semi-diplomatic channels, declared Hitler had imprisoned his former army commander, Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch, and his former food chief, Walther Darre, along with 13 senior senior Nazi party officials in a sudden purge.

Reds Shelling Big City Of Kharkov Vichy Frontier Report Claims

LONDON, May 29—(CP).—The German-controlled Vichy radio, in a report quoted as coming from the Soviet frontier, said today that Russian artillery had bombarded the city of Kharkov for the first time in three months.

Nazi pressure against the Izyum-Barvenkova sector of the Donets basin front subordinated even the Red army's operations south of Kharkov in Soviet dispatches from Moscow today and the only announcement concerning Thursday's fighting was that of another successful defence against attacks.

For the first time since Marshal Semeon Timoshenko hurled Red army shock divisions westward upon Kharkov's defence May 12, that theatre was not mentioned in the midnight communique.

"In the Izyum-Barvenkova direction (80 miles south of Kharkov) our troops repulsed fierce attacks of enemy tanks and infantry," the Soviet information bureau said. "On other sectors of the front, nothing of significance occurred."

After a week in which Timoshenko's divisions drove hard upon Kharkov, the Germans took the offensive in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector 10 days ago in an effort to divert Red army strength.

The information bureau said 28 German planes were destroyed and Russian air squadrons demolished or damaged 32 German tanks, 235 trucks, 35 munitions carts and six railway trains Wednesday. It said 18 Soviet aircraft were lost.

Northwestern front detachments were credited with killing more than 500 Germans and demolishing 93 enemy blockhouses.

Kinhwa Stands All Jap Attacks

CHUNGKIANG, May 29—(AP).—The Chinese high command announced today that up to dawn yesterday Kinhwa, besieged capital of Chekiang Province, was "still in our hands despite enemy attacks of the previous night."

The Chinese said, however, that Japanese forces bypassing Kinhwa had swept 25 miles to the west of the railway town of Langyu.

The Japanese reached that point Wednesday, the communique said, and street fighting followed.

"Bloody engagements are still proceeding on the outskirts," the communique added.

The Japanese were said to have launched more than 10 futile attacks against Lanohi, 10 miles northwest of Kinhwa, on Wednesday. They suffered high casualties.

"Another 1,000 enemy troops were killed and wounded in a day-long battle in the Lanohi sector May 28," the communique said.

Kharkov Battle Tempo Cools; Indecisive

Nazi Claims Same Old Records Of Annihilation Though Reds Strangely Remain

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT
Associated Press Staff Writer

The main part of the battle of Kharkov is over without any clear-cut decision.

That was to be expected. It will take time to assess the effect of the tactical, preventive assault which the Russian Marshal Timoshenko launched on May 12 against the German armies of the Ukraine, which were poised to strike toward the Caucasus but were caught off balance before they could start.

Also it is too early to calculate the military meaning of the counter-attacks which the Nazis have been conducting since May 19 to the south of the original battle area.

The Russian communiques, worded with the laconic brevity which tells friend or enemy very little, do make it clear that on the main front before Kharkov the Red Army has dug into the positions it won in a fortified zone of great strength and depth.

Fighting continues in the sector Izyum-Barvenkova, 80 miles below Kharkov, where the Germans have attempted to envelop Timoshenko's left flank.

The Germans say that already they have done this and that they have caught upwards of 165,000 prisoners and grandoise quantities of war material in a trap, but there is nothing at all to support such claims; indeed, the semi-official Russian battle-front dispatches, while generally not conclusive, indicate an unyielding, continuing Red Army defence along the Donets River line.

Undocumented German claims of this sort remind one of a stack of phonograph recordings of the same Opus; somewhat different, perhaps, in key and beat, but essentially identic.

Always there is the "battle of encirclement and annihilation," then the "outstanding victory," the fat figures of prisoners, tanks, guns and aircraft captured or destroyed, which figures always are said to be "constantly growing." The invariable windup is that "the annihilation of remnants" of the "annihilated" foe is being continued "relentlessly."

Somewhere in between there usually is a phrase about "desperate but useless attempts" by the Russians to "break out of the German encirclement," which is known to the Teutonic military mind, for some curious reason, as a 'kettle'."

This dogmatic double-talk went

Torpedoes Shatter A Cliff

2 Hun Shots Miss Ship, Hit Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 29 — (CP Cable). — An account was released for publication to-day of how two enemy torpedoes exploded on the Newfoundland coast near St. John's on the afternoon of March 4.

The torpedoes, which were believed to have been aimed by a submarine at a ship which was testing her compass in the vicinity were the first German missiles to strike the North American Continent.

The explosions occurred at the base of a cliff in full view of coast watchers on the cliff top. The first threw a huge column of water into the air and a second explosion, occurring almost immediately afterwards, was against the cliff almost 100 yards away.

The coast watchers did not spot a submarine or any other craft which might have fired the torpedoes, but an examination of fragments found at the base of cliff identified the parts definitely as from a German torpedo.

The fragments have been sent to Chicago where they will be shown on Monday as part of a United Nations war exhibit.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 29—(CP)—A last-minute attempt to assume the full responsibility for the abduction of seven-year-old Ruth Fletcher, who was taken from the Children's Aid Society Shelter on May 15, was made to-day by John Harwood, 41, when he appeared before Magistrate H. OTTAWA, May 29 — (CP). — Government efforts to maintain the supply of technicians necessary for the services and war industry may require that assistance be given to chemistry and engineering students similar to that now being given medical students.

War Services Minister Thorson made this announcement in the House of Comomns last night during resumed consideration of the War Appropriation Bill resolution.

The minister also announced that his Department had under consideration regulations which would prevent any evasion of compulsory service by those in reserve units and university students.

At the same time Mr. Thorson intimated that the age limit for compulsory military service might soon be raised from the present limit of 30 years to 35 years.

The House, in committee, devoted last night's sitting to further discussion of the War Appropriation Bill resolution which has been before it since April 20, with Mr. Thorson's Department under examination.

Conservative House Leader Hanson and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House Leader, both contended that the minister's replies to questions occupied too much time for clarity. But Mr. Thorson replied that his attempts to make replies with precision and accuracy were frequently interrupted with speeches longer than his own.

The afternoon sitting was devoted to consideration of amendments made by the Banking and Commerce Committee to the War Damage Insurance Bill, but no headway was made.

Insurance for Fishers.

The committee ran into an argument in which numerous members demanded that the insurance be extended to shore fishing boats.

Finance Minister Ilsley said it could not be done in this particular Bill because it would throw it out of balance due to the greater risk involved. But he said something might be done otherwise. Discussion of the Bill was suspended at the six o'clock adjournment.

Senate adjourned until June 9 after disposing of several Bills from the House of Commons.

Royal Assent was given in the Red Chamber to seven Government measures which have passed both Houses. They covered the repeal of the Petroleum Naphtha Inspection Act, appointment of Canadian National Railways auditors, a grant of $100,000 by the Federal Government to the City of Ottawa, authorization of debenture redemption by the Toronto Harbor Commission, granting of one month's supply for ordinary Government expenditure, personal income and corporation tax agreements with the provinces and subsidies to the Maritime Provinces.

In the House discussion of the National War Services Department, Mr. Thorson told questioners he

Beef Scarcity May Aid Poultry

TORONTO, May 29 — (CP). — The dressed poultry market has been fairly steady during the current week, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports.

Demand generally has been fair with chicken enjoying the better enquiry, sales being filled from storage stock.

Receipts, with the exception of broilers, have been very light. A small lot of spring chicken arrived of 4½ lb. weight, for which 27 to 28 cents lb. was paid. Fowl arrived in fair quantities about sufficient to meet enquiries. A few old turkeys were in evidence, but this kind of poultry was moving slow. Volume of broilers was about the same as the previous week.

There is some possibility poultry meat is beginning to be more in demand due to the situation at present existing regarding beef and other meats. There has been a better out-of-town movement, approximately 15,000 lbs. going forward to Newfoundland.

Quotations to producers and country shippers are purely nominal at:

Broilers.—Grade A milk-fed, 27c lb; B, milk-fed, 26c; B, 24c; C, 20c.

Spring Chicken, 4½ lbs. 27 to 28c.

Fowl.—Grade A, 5 lbs. and up, 23c; 4 to 5 lbs., 22c; 3 to 4 lbs., 20c; B, 5 lbs and up, 21c; 4 to 5 lbs. 20c; 3 to 4 lbs. 18c.

Old Turkeys.—Hens, 23c; toms, 20c.

THE AWNING CEILING

The Police Commission was requested by the Board of Works last night to instruct the police department to prosecute owners of awnings that are not kept at sufficient height. Alderman Bradburn said that several of the worst offenders were on Charlotte street.

Citizens Clamor For Resignation Entire Port Hope School Board

PORT HOPE, May 29 (Special)—Port Hope citizens at a meeting here Thursday night called upon the Port Hope High School Board to resign in view of the Board's action in dismissing the principal, G. L. Brackenbury. It will be recalled that last week the pupils held a parade in which they carried signs expressing their protest of the Board's action. The same week parents of the school children met in the Orange Hall and appointed a committee to interview the School Board to see what hidden reason the Board had for dismissing the principal. The general tone of the meeting at that time was that the Board had failed to substantiate its charges that the principal was inefficient. The members of the special committee were J. F. Johnstone, chairman; C. Poynton, W. Anderson, Norman Strong and J. H. Thompson.

Last night the committee reported that its interview was highly unsatisfactory and that the chairman of the Board had denied that he had suggested anything improper in Mr. Brackenbury's private life to the students committee or to the teachers' federation representatives. The 350 people which crowded the Town Hall auditorium for the meeting, cheered lustily when a letter was read from the teachers of the high school in which the teachers stated that they would not continue under the same Board next term.

Teachers Angry Too

The letter was signed by eight out of the nine teachers. G. L. Brackenbury arrived at meeting during the evening and his explanation of the whole affair, was applauded heartily by the crowd. Before the meeting closed a petition calling for the resignation of the whole Board, and appointment of a new one was signed by everyone present and will be circulated through the town. This petition is addressed to the county council, town council and Public School Board, whose representatives comprise the High School Board.

According to Mr. Poynton, the Board's answers to the questions of the committee admitted that the principal of the school had the support of the majority of the pupils. With the exception of W. E. Bonneville and J. T. George, the Board admitted that the principal had the support of his staff, was also backed by the majority of the parents. The Board also agreed that the principal was qualified academically for his position, Mr. Poynton said.

Mr. Johnstone read the report of the Teachers' Federation which stated that each member of the Board interviewed had designated Mr. Davidson as the spokesman. The report stated that the Board was critical of Mr. Brackenbury leaving some of the school boys up in Toronto in view of the fact that he was supposed to bring them back from a rugby game. (This was cleared up at the citizens' meeting last week and a resolution was passed absolving Mr. Brackenbury from blame in the matter.) The federation also quoted Mr. Davidson as saying that Brackenbury was "indiscreet with the bottle" and also complained of the principal's language at the golf club. There were other things in Mr. Brackenbury's life, the report quoted Mr. Davidson's statement, which the Board wanted to keep quiet in deference to his family.

Changes His Mind

"Mr. Davidson denied to us that he had made those statements," stated Mr. Johnstone last night. Mr. Johnstone then went on to read an affidavit of J. W. Aynsley, and H. H. Henry of Toronto, the Teachers' Federation investigators, which affirmed the accuracy of their report.

Mr. Poynton went on to inform the meeting that the committee saw a sheaf of typewritten papers which the board cited as their reasons for dismissing the principal. These were read off swiftly and the committee had little opportunity to take any notes on it.

"However, we do know that they didn't read anything about any deep dark secrets' in Mr. Brackenbury's life, which we had gathered the board had knowledge of. We asked for this report but somehow or other in the break-up of the meeting we didn't get it and efforts later to get it were unsuccessful as the board decided to withhold it. We asked the board if it considered the interests of the parents most important, and two of the board said 'yes.' Two said 'yes and no' and two refused to answer," declared Mr. Poynton.

Dictatorship.

"I pointed out that some of the ex-students were over there fighting for fair play among nations while over here in Port Hope fair play was being ignored and I am sorry to say that the board seemed to doubt the sincerity of my approach, and some of them almost seemed to get a laugh out of it, case-hardened, I would say," added Mr. Poynton.

Mr. Johnstone read again the report of the students committee which said that the board had threatened to divulge 'the real reasons behind Mr. Brackenbury's dismissal, which they were charitably withholding so as not to prejudice his chances of getting another position.' Mr. Johnstone then read the letter from the teachers which stated that eight of their nine would not serve under the present High school board term, as presently constituted.

Mr. Brackenbury, when he entered the hall, was cheered and applauded.

"If the board will not give him a hearing, we will," someone said.

Mr. Brackenbury, in explaining his position in the matter, said that he never knew he had so many friends until all this had happened. He went on to quietly explain the circumstances of the dismissal.

Principal Explains.

"I have taught for 28 years, of which 22 have been as principal. I have never had an unfavorable report from any departmental inspector. I am not perfect but I do profess to be an honest, law-abiding citizen. The interests of the young people have always been closest to my heart. But I have been dismissed and the they told me the reason why. This thing is vital to me," Mr. Brackenbury said gravely.

"It is bad enough being dismissed but the chairman of the board has tried to villify me before others and to jeopardize my chances of getting another position such as this. You have been given all kinds of reasons by the board, but the actual reason is because I have refused to be dominated in my work and school administration, of which the board knows nothing and had no jurisdiction. It it had stopped there, at a dismissal, it would have been bad enough, but they tried to complete the job and ruin my chances of superannuation and throw me to the wolves. They could not olertae a man who was man enough to stand up for his rights," declared Br. Brackenbury.

He related that on April 16, he received a letter from the board asking for his resignation. No reasons were stated, he said. Two days later he asked the chairman the reason. He suggested to the chairman that such dismissals occurred for one or both of two reasons, inefficiency or immorality. The chairman's reply had been that the school was in better shape than ever and there was no suggestion of immoral conduct.

"I said then, 'What is the reason?' Mr. Davidson mentioned the trip to Toronto with the boys. Well, ladies and gentlemen, you have heard all about that. Then he mentioned that I had gone to the mayor. The Toronto trip has been cleaned up to your satisfaction. In regard to the mayor, I went to him as a citizen and spoke to him of one member on the board, in the interests of the school and myself, to see what he could do. I told him that this man was cantankerous and domineering and I still say it. I didn't mention anyone else on the board. I reported the situation after my dismissal, to the Teachers' Federation executive, and their representatives saw both me and the board. I assumed that the federation got the same answer from the board as I had got. Then I learned that new reasons had been given. They were defammatory reasons. I knew then that we couldn't work together, the board and I, and I thought the only thing to do was resign, as I could expect no change in the board's attitude, regardless of the outcome of a board of reference on the matter. When I saw the reaction of the pupils and the parents, and the teachers, I decided it was worth fighting for. The board can hire and fire. The only power over them is the people," concluded Mr. Brackenbury, amid cheers and applause.

Before the meeting broke up the petition was signed and a resolution passed asking for the resignation of the board, copy of it to be sent to the board.

nounced that 24 Axis submarines, including about half a dozen Japanese craft, had been sunk or presumed sunk. Since then there have been numerous reports, officially unconfirmed, of successful anti-submarine actions. These would indicate that possibly 30 or more U-boats have been put out of action.

Even if that figure is true it seems likely the greatest loss to the Nazis has been in crews. Unofficial reports have put Germany's available U-boat strength this spring and summer at 180 to 300 craft. Experts say that if Germany concentrates on building submersibles she can produce them faster than crews can be trained to man them.

Fleming Place Residents Want Pavement

A request for resurfacing and drainage of the 16 foot roadway in Fleming Place was made to the Board of Works last night by a deputation of residents of Peterborough's 'Pomander Walk'. The Board asked City Engineer Parsons to estimate the cost of the proposed work, and also directed City Solicitor Huycke to enquire into the original agreement by which this private street was set apart.

The members of the deputation were F. J. Hickey, Claude H. Rogers, Sanford Hall, Dr. F. A. O'Reilly, Cecil Newman and also B. D. Hall.

Mr. Hickey explained that the residents of Fleming Place with a rear frontage on Bethune street with only nominal benefits do not receive the ordinary civic benefits of snow plowing, sanding of walks, street maintenance and so on, as residents of Fleming Place. And because the east side of Bethune street is omitted from the civic scheme of expenditure, the Fleming Place residents asked as an equivalent that the Fleming Place road be repaired, drainage added and also that a light be placed on the street.

Mr. Rogers said there was no light even on the Bethune street side of their block.

Mayor Hamilton told the deputation the council was opposed to "touching private roadways especially lanes, although your case is different from that."

"We get little or nothing on Bethune street," Mr. Hickey said. Alderman Dutton, chairman, promised consideration of the petition.

Alderman Gordon pointed out later that the property belongs to the Sanford Fleming Trust. "We ought to get some facts about assessments there, the original agreement and so on, with the report from the City Engineer."

Muskies Placed In Stoco Lake

Obituary

MRS. CATHERINE FITZGERALD

A lifelong citizen of Peterborough County, Mrs. Catherine Fitzgerald, died at her home, 33 Armour Road, at Downer's Corners, after a long illness, Thursday.

Born in Otonabee, May 1, 1868, a daughter of the late Patrick Ryan and Ellen Sullivan, pioneers of the district; she later married Michael Fitzgerald, who predeceased her 16 years ago. The late Mrs. Fitzgerald and her husband took up residence on the land where the Keene Road intersects No. 7 Highway and where they carried on a successful mixed farming and dairying enterprise until 23 years ago, when they moved to their present residence on Armour Road.

She was a devout member of the Church of the Immaculate Conception and also a member of the Altar Society, the Catholic Women's League and the League of the Sacred Heart. Her buoyant spirit throughout her illness was an inspiration to her friends.

She is survived by three sons, John and Joseph of Otonabee, and James of Toronto, and one daughter, Mrs. John Burke of Armour Road. There are also five brothers, Michael, Thomas, John, Dennis and William Ryan, and one sister, Mrs. Johannah Doherty, Peterborough.

The funeral service will take place from the residence at 8.30 a.m. Saturday, to the Immaculate Conception Church for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

COMING FOR WEEK-END

The local Salvation Army will have a most interesting and entertaining week-end visitor in the person of Lieut.-Col. Wm. Dray, head of the Salvation Army's war services. Lieut.-Col. Dray who has only recently returned from England where he spent considerable time with the Canadian troops will be present at all services at the Temple on Sunday and in the afternoon will deliver a lecture on the subject "England, As I Saw It," that should be highly interesting as well as informative for the speaker has had ample opportunity to see the old country under war conditions. The afternoon meeting will be at 3.15 o'clock.

C.G.E. Requests Strip Of Land On Albert Street

Canadian General Electric Company applied to the finance committee of the council Thursday night for a four foot strip of the north side of Albert street to provide elbow room along their yard railway and improvement in protection by relocation of their fence.

The committee decided to reply to the company enquiring whether they would be satisfied with a lease and for what period of years. Mayor Hamilton recalled the council's resolution last fall driecting the sidewalk on the north side of the street to be broken up and removed.

A letter from Ian F. McRae pointed out that the C.G.E. had no control of the erection of the new building and that their south walls were almost touching the fence.

"I don't think it would be any harm to give them a lease for fifty years," Mayor Hamilton said. "It seems like a reasonable request," was the comment of Alderman Bradburn.

Hilliard Street Property

"How about taking up Hilliard street first," Alderman Swanston suggested. The council has been considering, more or less sketchily, for three months the encroachments of properties on the south side of Hilliard street which extends westerly from Water street to George street at the old Allison store corner.

"I don't see how we can consistently do anything for the C.G.E. while holding up other citizens. Treat them all the same way," Alderman Swanston urged.

It was said that part of the store owned by A. Brault, extends 21 feet over the street line. Sale of a nearby property is obstructed by a clouded title.

Ald. Swanston said the owner of the property on the north side of Hilliard street had been approached to sell a strip off his lot to equalize the encroachment on the south side, and maintain the correct width of the road, but his attitude was reported to be: "I've got you people now where I can dictate, etc."

"We ought to go a long way to straighten this affair," said Alderman Dutton.

J. W. Pierce has been making a survey of the street.

"As soon as we get that we'll know what we are doing," was the remark of Alderman Cotton, chairman, as the committee decided to write the C.G.E. on the one hand and wait for the report from Mr Pierce on the other.

Too Close to Fence.

City Engineer Parsons said the C.G.E. fence was so close to the railway that if a brakeman was riding on the side of a freight car he would be in danger of being brushed off and crushed. Alderman Gordon wondered whether the Dominion Board of Transport had given permission to that reportedly dangerous layout. He said he was going to write them and find out.

Alderman Gordon mentioned the extrusions of the Bank of Commerce and the Customs House, among others, beyond their respective street lines The disposing resolution also directed that Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Dutton negotiate with the owner of the land on the north side of Hilliard street for a strip required to correct errors of long ago at the extreme north end of the city.

Japs Terrorized By U.S. Bombers

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP). —The office of facts and figures quoted Japanese Minister of Justice Iwamura to-day as admitting in a Japanese broadcast that the raid on Japan April 18 by United States planes "terrorized" the population and threatened public morale.

O.F.F. said Iwamura, demanding vigorous punishment for persons who spread confusing rumors declared:

"It is needless for me to say at this time that it is imporant to act swiftly and severely in the arrest and punishment of all crimes that disturb peace and order under wartime conditions.

"Especially when emergency circumstances arise, as happened in a recent air raid, it is natural that the people became terrorized, and it is to be feared it will have a serious and unbearable effect upon the peace and order of the country."

CAR, TRUCK COLLIDE

A car driven by James Posket, 428 Edison avenue, was damaged Thursday when it came into contact with a truck at the intersection of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets. The truck, driven by Clifford Martin, Fenelon Falls, had been travelling south on Aylmer street and made a left turn to go into Dalhousie street as Foskett, also driving south, started to pass the other vehicle. The two machines came into collision. The truck received no damage but the front right fender, running board, door handle and front wheel of the car suffered.

CASE DISMISSED

A vagrancy charge against a young married woman that had been adjourned several times was finally disposed of in police court this morning when Inspector James F. Reid announced that the police would offer no evidence and the case was dismissed.

GASHES HAND.

Roy Wilson, window dresser for a local store, suffered a painful accident this week. He was using a steel screwdriver as a pry, when it slipped and pierced the fleshy part of the palm of his hand.

SOLDIERS CHARGED

Charges have been laid against five members of the 2nd Midland Battalion, three residing in Havelock and two in Otonabee, for failing to attend the drills of their reserve unit. The cases, the first of their kind in this immediate district, will be tried in the local police court on June 4.

VICTORIA CORONER

Attorney - General Conant announced today that Dr. G. C. Graham of Fenelon Falls has been appointed a coroner in Victoria County replacing Dr. White.

TO GET TENDERS

City Engineer Parsons was instructed by the property committee last night to prepare plans and specifications for the superstructure of the incinerator, and to call for tenders. Much of this detail is already available in the information received from Francis Hankin Company who have the contract for the incinerating units.

A PLAYGROUND PLAN

Cost of moving the cord wood to one end of the lot and of grading the ground sufficient to make it level for ball games and other play is to be estimated by City Engineer Parsons as a preliminary to further use of the big lot the city owns on the west side of Park Street, south of Chamberlain street. Alderman Swanston said at last night's meeting of the property committee that $300 should cover the entire expense of providing a suitable playground in that neighborhood.

CLOTHING STOLEN

Several articles of clothing were stolen Thursday afternoon from the car of Samuel Moldaver, parked near the corner of Hunter and George streets. The automobile was not locked and when the driver returned he found that a light fawn wool coat, a grey suit coat and pair of trousers that had been left on the back seat of the automobile had disappeared.

A.R.P. Grant Is Placed At $1,000

The city's grant to the A.R.P. committee was extended Thursday night to $1,000, on Mayor Hamilton's request to the Finance committee.

"You gave us $350 when we began this work," His Worship said, "but it has grown to a greater extent than we expected. Our first estimate was $500, but you gave us the $350, and that is nearly all spent. What we would like the council to do is to extend that $350 to $1,000. We expect to get half our outlay back from the government."

Alderman Gordon moved the resolution recommending that the A.R.P. committee be provided with an additional $650.

Mayor Hamilton pointed out that the average expenditure on air raid precautions in United States cities was 50 cents a head of population.

"Dr. Manion told us this week that Victoria, B.C., had spent $40,000 out of its own revenues and the people of that city had raised another $11,000 for ambulances and other equipment, to be used in the emergency of attack," Mayor Hamilton said.

"I thinks if we do what the mayor has asked of the committee that we will be keping in step in a moderate way," Alderman Gordon said. "It hasn't cost us very much yet."

Toronto has put in 60 telephones solely for A.R.P. work," His Worship added.

D. Lloyd Faces Second Charges

Shortly after he had appeared before Judge S. L. Smoke Thursday afternoon and elected speedy trial on a charge of stealing three automobiles from the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Limited, Donald Lloyd, Lakefield car salesman, was brought before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to face three new charges of obtaining under false pretences from Consumers' Credit Limited.

The charges were laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris, involved a total of around $1,500.

Represented by T. J. Carley, K.C., Lloyd elected trial in the magistrate's court on the new charges.

He will be tried in the county judge's criminal court on June 22 on the charge of the theft of three automobiles.

On the false pretence charges on which he was remanded for a week Lloyd was released on bail amounting to $3,000.

When Unemployed Must Register

The importance of registering at the Employment and Claims Office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission immediately after becoming unemployed was emphasized by W. H. L. Mellis, manager of the local office.

Mr. Mellis said that some misunderstanding has arisen in connection with the nine-day waiting period which is provided in the Unemployment Insurance Act when benefits are claimed. Some applicants were under the impression that persons wishing to claim unemployment insurance benefit had to wait nine days after becoming unemployed before they were able to make a claim. This was not the case. All applicants for benefit should register at the Employment and Claims Office immediately on becoming unemployed because the nine-day waiting period only commences from the date a claim for benefit is made.

If the claim is not made for nine days ater a worker becomes unemployed, it means that there is just that much delay in his obtaining benefit. It has been found in a number of cases that applicants have deliberately delayed and have been disappointed when they found that the waiting period started only from the date of their application.

Council Approves $300 To H. Withers

Payment of $300 to Herb Withers, garbage collection contractor, was recommended by the property committee of the council last night for additioanl work from January to March 31 as a result of the inclusion of the entire city in the collection area. Mr. Withers was paid $750 for the Wartime Housing sections at Burnham's Point and Jackson Park, but in the meantime the council extended its collection boundaries to the city limits at the first of the year. Fixing that time was convenient for taxation purposes, to pay for the collection in the new fringe areas, but nothing was then provided for the added labor devolving upon Mr. Withers.

Health Plan Is Endorsed

"Where farm radio forums are well organized and active our attendance has been exceptionally large," said Hon. George Hoadley, former Minister of Agriculture and Health in Alberta, at the Empress Hotel today. He is in Peterborough to address tonight a public meeting in Co-Op Hall on the subject of community health programs. City people are invited.

"The radio forums have become an effective educational medium of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture," said Mr. Hoadley who is winding up on Saturday a month's tour of Eastern Ontario counties. The value of the Federation and its radio forum enterprise is more apparent in a survey of a broad cross-section of the country such as Eastern Ontario presents, and Mr. Hoadley said he had a greater appreciation than ever of the Federation and the place it has established in rural Ontario.

Since enabling legislation was adopted in Saskatchewan in 1916, the number of rural municipalities engaging community doctors has grown to 102, and the movement has extended to 68 towns and villages.

"Twenty-three per cent of the people of Saskatchewan have now subscribed to this plan according to the reports up to last January," Hon. Mr. Hoadley said. "The average population in those municipalities is 2,100. Doctors here say that the most people they can take care of in their practice is 1,000. That evidently means they are being visited by 1,000 sick persons. In the eastern municipalities, 2,100 persons are free to visit their group doctor whenever they feel they need his service. They do not have to wait until sickness overcomes them. That is a great advantage of this plan of preventive medicine."

Mr. Hoadley said the same idea was contemplated in the Order-in-Council passed by the federal government regarding employees of big industrial plants by which they would obtain the entire time of a doctor. The proposal that is now being submitted to the rural people of Ontario is supported by the demonstrated success of the plan in Saskatchewan, which Mr. Hoadley will discuss in detail this evening.

Liftlock Crash Brings Heavy Penalty

"This man knew, or should have known the condition of his brakes and he had no business taking that car down that hill on a Sunday afternoon at an hour when a lot of visitors might reasonably be expected to be in the vicinity," declared Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Thursday afternoon, in registering a conviction against James Buchan, Young street, on a charge of reckless driving originating out of an accident at the Lift Lock on Sunday, May 24.

"I don't think this is a case for a fine," His Worship said, in giving judgment." This kind of thing will have to be stopped."

Finally, however, Magistrate Langley dropped the jail sentence and fined Buchan $40 and $19.50 costs. In addition, he cancelled his driving license for a period of six months.

At the afternoon session of the court Buchan testified that on the Sunday of the accident, he had driven from Braidwood avenue to the top of the Liftlock Hill, making three stops en route and that he had had no trouble stopping the car with his service brakes on any of those occasions. When the car started down the hill, however, the service brake failed to hold and he had put on the emergency brake, he said. He had intended to try to swerve the car south along the road on the west side of the canal, but there were a number of cyclists there and he thought that he would hit them, so he had kept on going into the tunnel where his machine collided with the car of J. E. Hill.

In his judgment Magistrate Langley said he was convinced that in taking a car in that condition down the Liftlock Hill Buchan had been builty of negligence to a degree that amounted to criminal.

Legion's Ranks Opened To New Veterans

WINNIPEG, May 29—(CP).—The Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League today stood ready to accept into its membership any British person who enlisted in the active forces "anywhere" and receives an honorable discharge.

Delegates at the ninth biennial convention here amended the constitution to remove any doubt of eligibility about veterans of the present war becoming members. Formerly the constitution stated that members must have seen active service during any of the wars of the Empire in any of His Majesty's forces and this was interpreted by some delegates to mean service on the field of battle.

The convention moved toward its final important war effort resolution which asks that every man eligible and physically fit under Canadian reserve regulations be compelled to serve in the reserve forces.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard Turner, V.C., of Quebec City, Brigadier in the 2nd Battle of Ypres during the First Great War and highest ranking surviving veteran of the Canadian Expeditionary Force will be elected grand president of the Canadian Legion in closing ceremonies. He will succeed the late Lt.-Gen. Sir Percy Lake.

Expect Mexico To Act Saturday

MEXICO CITY, May 29—(AP).—Mexico, avowing her belligerency, although her formal declaration of war against the Axis still is in the parliamentary machine, moved steadily ahead today with her military preparations.

President Manuel Avila Camacho yesterday asked a joint meeting of the special session of Congress to authorize him to declare a state of war "to protect the unsullied name of Mexico." He also requested power to govern by decree and a suspension of some constitutional guarantees.

Chamber of Deputies committees met early today to pass upon the proposals and to report to the full chamber this afternoon. The Senate is to meet tomorrow, after which it is expected the formal declaration of war will be announced.

All Saints' Victors Over George St.

In a free-scoring game last night All Saints triumphed over George Street in a Church juvenile fixture 17 to 13.

George Street took an early lead but the Saints forged ahead in the third, and about cinched the argument when they piled up six runs in the fourth frame. The losers had a big inning in the sixth when they crossed the plate seven times, but the rally came too late to save the game.

Rubber Shortage May Block All-Out Effort

PORT HOPE, May 29—(ENS). —The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held on Thursday afternoon, with over 75 members present.

The meeting was in charge of Group No. 5, with Mrs. A. Fulford as its convener.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Fulford in the chair, followed by the scripture reading by Mrs. J. Y. Kellough, and Mrs. Woolacot led in prayer.

The business meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. B. Hyne. Mrs. Reeve, the treasurer, reported the balance on hand to date was $265.17.

Mrs. F. Wells, at this time, gave a few selections of her own writings, the first was "If They Could Only Speak." Mrs. Wells was accompanied for this number by Mrs. C. Stephenson at the piano.

The guest speaker for the afternoon, Miss K. Staples, was then introduced by Mrs. Fulford.

Miss Staples gave a most interesting address on "Canada Stretches Rubber." Miss Staples opened her address by quoting Dorothy Thompson, who said, 'We free people had forgotten that freedom and duty are twins, and that every single right claimed by man carries with it a reciprocal responsibility.

Miss Staples continued by saying, We realize that every citizen in a democracy cannot have a specialized training in the complex problems that confront us today, but the individual responsibility in any case is a heavy one. To discharge this responsibility, he must be aware of the nature of the problems. The need now seems to be to do what is required by the situation which confronts us.

One of these problems is rubber. The rubber shortage is so serious that our ability to fight an all-out war is imperilled—so declares Allan H. Williamson, Canada's wartime controller of supplies. You might say overnight our rubber lifeline has been cut. We apparently cannot move, eat, clothe or house ourselves in the manner to which we are accustomed without rubber and our supply for civilian needs has gone.

Much Confusion

There definitely are many confusing stories about rubber; some say we will not have new tires for years; others are optimistic enough to surmise that synthetic substitues will be found. We are told that there is an abundance of wild rubber in South America for the gathering, and that we can extract rubber from various plants.

Now that the Japanese control Malaya and the Dutch East Indies they control 97 per cent. of the present world's natural rubber supply It will be difficult to raise South American output very materially. The rubber tree grows wild and as a result it is expensive to exploit the source. There are also the serious labor difficulties in the Amazon Valley, as well as a tree blight that has slowed up plantation development.

Miss Staples stated that from Brazil this year we may get 50,000 tons of new rubber, but this will necessitate inducing the natives with higher salaries to go into the tangle forest, the setting up of expeditions and establishing settlements, while each rubber collector will have to be supplied with food, a boat, quinine and other drugs to protect his life, a gun and ammunition, and this all requires capital. There are also vast schemes afoot to produce plantation rubber along the Amazon where Henry Ford has a rubber plantation which this year may yield 500 tons, while in Liberia there is the Firestone plantation due to yield 10,000 tons this year.

Many Sources

Miss Staples went on to tell the many different sources from which rubber may be derived, including the guayule shrub found growing in New Mexico and the Texas Bend country, and a kind of dandelion from which Russia is getting the bulk of its supply. This dandelion rubber is still second to synthetic in the Soviet. The chief type of rubber to be manufactured on this continent is known as Buna. This can be manufactured from petroleum, natural gas and a whole range of agricultural products—from any material with a high hydrocarbon content.

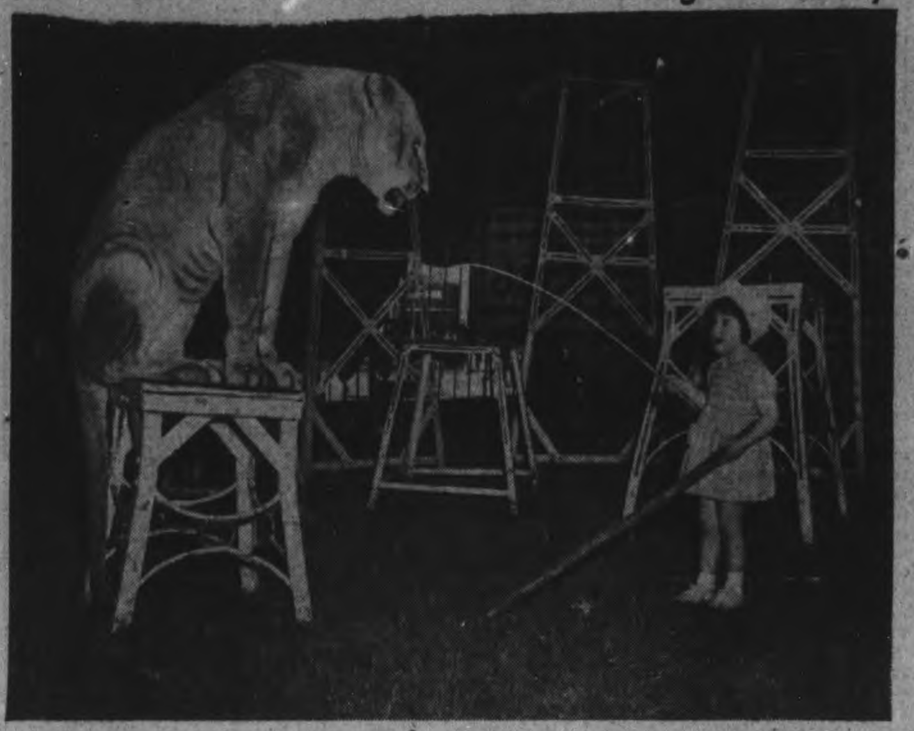
Miss Stayles closed her address by saying that unless our ingenity can save us, the Canadian people will have to be content to stay at home for the duration.

At the moment there is the realization that there is no more rubber for civilians as long as the war lasts. This is not a shortage, or a bottleneck, but a famine—without precedent in our continent's history.

Mrs. Fulford thanked Miss Staples for her most instructive address, and the meeting closed with "God Save the King."

Group No. 9 at this meeting had a talent table and home-mode cooking sale at which they realized $10.

Three Year Old Girl Risks Death In Lion's Cage At Midway



This picture pays high tribute to the ability of Terrell Jacobs, Canada's foremost animal trainer, in that it reveals how thoroughly he has succeeded in training the huge female lioness "Sheba." The picture taken inside the circus enclosure shows 3½-year-old Judy Jacobs facing the fierce looking beast with a trainer's whip in hand, and while the beast growled menacingly it never stirred from the perch, where it was ordered by the girl's father, Terrell Jacobs. This lioness, famous for its roll-over act, the only one in the world, is featured in Terrell Jacobs' circus now appearing as part of Conklin's Midway at King Edward Park.

Cobourg Battery Needs Recruits

Major H. K. Walker, commanding the 36th Field Battery R.C.A. (A.F.) in Cobourg, was in Peterborough Thursday seeking recruits for his unit. The Major, who returned from England this war to command the Battery, stated that recruiting in the 36th was coming along good with a fine class of young men from this district being taken on strength.

However, he is short of artillery technicians, signallers, G.P.O. acks, etc. Trained artillery men of Peterborough will be welcome, and promotions are likely to be rapid, according to Major Walker. He also needs cooks, who will receive tradesman's pay. The new 36th Battery was mobilized recently from the 22nd Medium Battery of Cobourg, a unit of the 4th Field Brigade R.C.A. (R.F.) with headquarters in this city.

The 36th Battery will go to Petawawa shortly to finish up training and receive full equipment of guns and vehicles. Full information on this unit by prospective recruits may be had at the 4th Battery orderly room in the local Armoury.

King In The Cabinet

The Prime Minister has added an able and experienced legislator to his Cabinet in the person of the Hon. James H. King, P.C., M.D. Senator King has had a long career in public life, which he entered with an unusually good academic equipment and more than ordinary natural ability. A distinguished graduate of McGill, he early practised medicine in his native Maritimes, moving to British Columbia in 1898. In 1903 he was elected to the B.C. Legislature and in 1916 was Minister of Public Works in that Province. As representative of Kootenay he entered the House of Commons in 1922 and served the Dominion for some time as Minister of Public Works, later assuming the responsibility for the Department which now goes under the name of Pensions and National Health. He was raised to the Senate in 1930. He enters Mr. King's Cabinet as a Minister without portfolio.

Senator King's advice should be of especial value to his colleagues at this time, for in the course of his career he has acquired a careful and intimate knowledge of many sections of Canada. Just now, when national unity is a matter of considerable concern, his advice will be in constant demand.

A Crisis Averted

Since the outbreak of war there has been a truce in effect between the Government Party and the Opposition in the British House of Commons. Whenever a seat in the House has fallen vacant it has been customary for the party which formerly held that seat to put up a candidate who, being unopposed, took the seat without the expensive and time-wasting procedure of an election. It was felt that this method was the best to pursue in time of war and until recently it worked well enough. But at the recent elections in Grantham an independent candidate who ran against the chosen man was elected, and this brought the Opposition Labor Party to a sudden realization of its position. One Labor member put their dilemma thus: "While our party is crawling to the Right, the working classes are marching to the Left."

This is understandable enough. Admiration for and sympathy with Russia have caused a strong swing to the Left in Britain and an increase in Communist sympathizers. Meanwhile the Labor men who have been actively engaged in the work of government have been growing increasingly conservative. This is less a political trend than the ordinary course of human nature; anyone who has observed the actions of labor leaders in the past knows that much of their crusading and reforming zeal leaves them when they take on the actual heavy responsibilities of government. Parties which have no responsibilities are always the most vehement in their demands for sweeping reforms.

But although the Labor Party may feel that it is losing its hold on the working classes in Britain for the time being, it has refused to change its policy of co-operation with the Government. At its recent annual conference in London it rejected a resolution to withhold endorsement of the part played by Labor members in the Government with a majority of more than 14 to 1. The Labor Party recognizes the folly of trying to divide the people of England now, and it will hold its fire until the war is won.

It is probable, of course, that Communism will flourish in Britain for some time after the war, for Russia has become more than respectable during recent months. But it is doubtful if Communism in its fiery form can ever do much to influence the Labor Party. Responsibility has sobered that organization very markedly in the last twenty years.

Polls And Night Attire

We take a great deal of innocent pleasure in the findings of the many polls which are conducted in this country and the U.S. by those trusting folk who regard this as a good way of discovering public opinion. We do not, ourself, consider the views of people who have nothing better to do than answer questions particularly representative of the opinion of the country as a whole, but that is by the bye; if there are people who have the time and the money to spend in taking polls on every subject under the sun, we will read their findings with the deepest interest. An unusually profound and subtle poll was taken recently in the U.S. with a view to finding out what men wear in bed, and the recent decision of the Men's Clothing Industry Advisory Committee to put less cloth in pyjamas gives this poll a topical value.

This is what the investigators in what we may call the Pyjama Poll found out:

Sleeping Style	% of Males
Complete pyjamas	38
Pyjama pants, no tops	33
Raw (or in puris naturalibus)	15
Underwear	6
Knee-length pyjamas	5
Pyjama tops, no pants	2
Old fashioned nightshirt	1

There you have it; the marvels of modern actuarial science and organized Nosey Parkerism have been applied to the problem of what men wear in bed and these are the results. True, certain categories have been omitted. There is no mention, for instance, of the large group who wear their socks to bed; nightcap wearers have been completely overlooked, as have wearers of moustache-straps, hairnets and machines for making you grow while you sleep; nothing is said about the men who wear sweaters over their pyjamas, or of the group who sleep in their dressing-gowns for extra warmth. But these figures will do for a beginning.

It is obvious that the wearers of pyjamas, in some form, have things very much their own way; they are 78 per cent. of the population. Many good men sleep naked, as their hardy Tudor forbears did before them, and some rugged characters seek repose in their underwear; rumor has it that Josef Stalin belongs to this latter group, although Hitler, Mussolini, Churchill and Roosevelt are all pyjama men.

In less than a century the pyjama has conquered most of the civilized world. It came from the Wise East, and the name itself is of Persian origin. Travellers who saw Mohammedan men and women clad in these garments were at first amused, and later convinced, by their comfort and practicability. And now, just when a poll has shown their immense popularity, they are to be shortened by a national emergency! Such is the course of history; we can trace the destiny of mankind in a laundry basket as well as anywhere else.

Sense About Winston Churchill

Some good sense about Winston Churchill was uttered recently in the British House of Commons by A. P. Herbert, an independent member. Mr. Herbert is one of Britain's most distinguished comic writers, an honored contributor to Punch, and Parliamentary representative of the University of Oxford, so we expect something a little better than the ordinary from him. He rebuked those members who have laid every reverse which Britain has suffered so far at the door of the Prime Minister, and he said: "The man responsible for Hong Kong and Singapore is also responsible for Tobruk, Malta, and for sinking half the Italian fleet and for sinking the Bismarck and the Graf Spee. If we are going to have this sort of stocktaking we are entitled to say this man is responsible for the fact that during the past twelve months the people of England have been able to sleep in their beds and the wheels of industry have been able to revolve uninterrupted — and that's very much the reverse of what's been happening in Germany."

It is one of the faults of democracy that it places its leaders under the direct influence of that most capricious and captious of elements—public favor. Churchill, who was once hailed as the Moses who was to lead Britain out of the bondage in which the Chamberlain-Baldwin-Macdonald messing had placed her, has of late been the object of much abuse because Britain has had serious reverses and because he refuses to open a second front—or at least to declare his intention of doing so. Many of the men who have attacked him in Parliament are those nonentities who sat patiently in the same seats under Neville Chamberlain and hoped that war might somehow be averted.

Winston Churchill welcomes criticism; he regards it as a sign of health in a country that it should continually urge its leaders to adopt new and risky courses. He expressed his admiration of this spirit in his last broadcast speech. But he gave no sign then that he meant to allow himself to be swayed by this criticism. He is a great individualist, with all the faults of a great individualist, and he will do what he thinks best without heeding the criticisms either of Trafalgar Square mobs or Parliamentary back-benchers. He knows that his record until now is a good one, although there are some heavy entries on the debit side. And he sees the prospect of adding materially to the credits in the very near future.

Starting And Finishing

It is an old saw which advises against starting anything you cannot finish, and it looks as though the German people in general, and Adolf Hitler and Herman Goering in particular will soon regret that they started the destructive game of air war. On any clear night now Britain can send 800 planes over Germany, and these carry four times the quantity of explosive used by the German bombers which took part in the Battle of Britain.

Last week, after having been kept to the ground for eleven days, the R.A.F. resumed its raids over Germany by making its fifty-fourth attack on Mannheim, Germany's second largest inland port. Mannheim is a great production centre for the Reich, containing the Badische Anilin works, a great chemical factory, and also the Lanz armament works and the Daimler-Benz engineering plant.

British flyers now rejoice that they meet stiffer opposition over Germany, for this is a sign that planes in appreciable numbers have been taken from the Russian front to protect the homeland. In this way the second front which has been established in the air is of genuine service to our Russian allies. As General Timoshenko began his gigantic drive or Kharkov the British stepped up their air war on Germany; This is the sort of far-reaching cooperation which should do much to win the war.

Reports from Germany on the extent of air damage there are necessarily scanty and open to question, but there are indications, apart from the photographs taken by reconnaissance planes, that the destruction is tremendous. Undoubtedly many civilians suffer and many beautiful and historic buildings are destroyed, for it is ridiculous to pretend that our bombs, dropped in such quantity, hit nothing but military objectives. But as the new Archbishop of Canterbury said recently, that is a part of the bitter price which we must pay for aid to Russia. The whining tone of Herman Goering's recent speech, with its references to the hardships being borne by the German people, hints at depression and discontent too obvious to be ignored or left to the Gestapo. If Germany is suffering now, she has no one to blame but herself; she started the air war and was unable to finish it; she must not complain now if we finish it in our own way.

Wealth Has Already Been Conscripted

(Editorial in the Ottawa Journal)

"IF YOU wish to converse with me," said Voltaire, "define your terms." We wish somebody could have said that to Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie before he talked to the Canadian Legion in Winnipeg about "conscripting wealth." Because it isn't the job of a cabinet minister at this time to add to confused thinking.

Said Mr. Mackenzie:

"If I had my way the first conscript in Canada would be money."

What did he mean? The Government—of which Mr. Mackenzie is a distinguished member—has been conscripting money. It conscripts money under the corporation income tax, under the excess profits tax, under the personal income tax. During the current fiscal year the Government will conscript something like $1,500,000,000.

Conscription of money? Let us see what the Government takes.

The Government takes first of all 18 per cent of a corporation's net earnings. Then, on top of that, it takes what it calls an excess profits tax of 22 per cent. That makes a total of 40 per cent. But this applies only to corporations whose earnings today are less than before the war. In cases where earnings are higher than before the war—where a corporation is making more than it made over an average, basic period, the Government, in addition to taking the 18 per cent, plus the 22 per cent—takes 75 per cent of the excess.

The Government doesn't stop there. It taxes the individual incomes of the corporation's members.

HOW less than light this personal income tax is may be seen from the subjoined comparison of Canadian and United States personal income taxes during 1941, taking the example of a married couple with no dependents:

Income	United States Income Tax	Canadian Income Tax (Including Nat. Def. Tax)
$ 1,600	$ 6	$ 71
3,000	138	355
5,000	375	925
10,000	1,305	2,930
20,000	4,614	8,030
50,000	20,439	26,235
100,000	58,704	60,395

Mr. Mackenzie told the Canadian Legion that he subscribed to a declaration by Finance Minister Nash of New Zealand that "no one who is not privileged the service in the combatant forces should be permitted to profit as a result of our being defended by those who have offered their lives." Well, Mr. Mackenzie's colleagues in the Dominion Government evidently subscribe to the same thing. And Parliament. And the Canadian people. No man in this country today (in the upper income brackets) is making as much money as he made before the war. He is not permitted to. The contrary truth is that the vast majority in that group are being left with a great deal less.

IT WILL be said: "Why should any man, no matter what his income, be left with $25,000, or $40,000? Well, that is arguable. But it is arguable only on the basis of being clear about what the Government wants to do. If the Government decides that the man who, after paying his income tax, is left with $25,000 or $40,000 should be left with less, this despite personal commitments from which escape is difficult, that is one thing. But if the Government's idea is to frame its taxes so as to get the maximum of the national income for war, that is another thing.

The bulk of the increase in the national income—and which the Government must have for war—is not in large incomes. It is in small incomes; in a vastly greater number of people at work at higher wages. The tremendous gain that has come in Canada's national income during the past two years—a jump from $4,000 millions to nearly $7,000 millions—is not in large incomes, but in the income of labor; 75 per cent of it at least. Consequently, if the Government is to take 50 per cent of the national income because of war, it is from this increased labor income that it must take it. Still heavier taxes on large incomes would be but a drop in the ocean.

We have a shrewd idea that the Government proposes to take all, or nearly all, of excess war profits—excess of earnings over the basic period—plus a higher rate from large incomes in their lower brackets. In other words, we shouldn't be greatly surprised if the Government hasn't in its mind Mr. Roosevelt's recently expressed idea about no one being left with more than a net $25,000. We shall see.

BUT it is not that some people have in mind when they talk about "conscripting money"—about "conscription of wealth." By wealth, apparently, they mean property. Capital.

How would the Government conscript capital? Let us say that an individual is worth $500,000. He hasn't that money in the bank. He has it in two ways: (1) stocks and bonds; or (2) plant or buildings. If he has it in stocks and bonds, the Government says to him: "We want that $500,000 or $300,000 of it"—how does he pay? The Government doesn't want stocks and bonds; it wants cash. But if the individual came to sell his stocks and bonds to realize cash, to whom would he sell? Would Jones pay Brown $500,000 for stocks when he knew that the Government would come to him later and make him sell the stock for cash that it demanded from him?

So with plant, or a building, or a mine, or a timber limit. Any one of these things might represent $500,000. But if the Government asked for the $500,000, or a part of it, where would the money come from? The Government would not want the building or the plant, or the mine or the timber limit; it would want cash. Who, in that case, would want to buy the building, or the plant, or the mine, or the timber limit? The Government would want their cash.

To sum up: Most of this talk about "conscription of wealth" is loose, muddled talk. The Government is already conscripting wealth. Conscripting it [illegible]ance.

PROFESSIONAL JEALOUSY

—Washington Post.

• Home Front Propaganda

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

LIKE Nazi claims of three Russian armies trapped and about to be annhilated in the Ukraine battle, Premier Tojo's assertion that a Japanese "victory" in the Coral Sea had left Australia defenseless must be classed as largely propaganda.

Both were designed primarily for home-front consumption. They represent that most favored figure of speech in Axis technique, hyperbole, the art of extreme exaggeration. They could not be expected to fool anybody but their authors' own people.

Just why such an attempt at befuddlement of the home folks should be deemed necessary at this time is not clear. The winds of rumor have been busy with tales of rising discontent in Germany, but not in Japan.

Nor could Tojo actually have expected his fire-breathing threats against India and Australia to bring those United Nations falling into Japan's lap like ripe plums. He had some other purpose in mind and if it was not to bolster Japanese morale, it must have been to add fuel to the fire of Australian, Chinese and Indian pleas for more American troops, planes, tanks and guns.

FATE DECIDED IN RUSSIA

Tojo knows that despite the impressive Japanese victories he could otherwise recite unchallenged, Japan's fate no less than Germany's is in process of being decided in Russia. The caution, not unmixed with implied threats, with which he dealt with Russian-Japanese relations testified to that.

His reiterated promise that Japan would do her full share as a partner of Germany and Italy excluded a diversion attack on Russia, at least so long as Russia maintained her part of the non-aggression bargain. By implication that suggests Japanese readiness to attack if Russia offers aid and comfort to the Allies against Japan.

If Tojo hoped to aid Germany by diverting British - American forces from the Atlantic and Mediterranean to the Pacific and Indian Oceans he is not apt to be successful. Arrival of important American military and naval leaders in England is sufficient notice that it is in Europe, not the Orient, that Washington and London look for major war developments relatively soon.

Tojo's new pledge of Axis fellowship was mere lip service unless Japan is prepared to march against Russia now, when her intervention to aid Germany could greatly increase Russia's peril. Tojo obviously realizes that such a move would expose Japan to close-up air attack from the north as well as the east.

PREMATURE CLAIMS

And while it is all but impossible to get a clear picture of what is happening on the flaming 200-mile battlefront about Kharkov, there is still nothing to confirm German claims of a huge encirclement trap already woven about Marshal Timoshenko's armies. On the contrary, the encirclement boot might prove to be on the other foot; according to Russian reports, the main stem of the German counter-attack is halted, presumably at the end of the Donets River, in the Izyum vicinity. A dangerous but narrower thrust southeastward which seems to have penetrated Russian lines north of Izyum, also is reported stalled. Presumably it was upon expected juncture of these forces along the railroad connecting Kharkov and Izyum that the Nazis' premature claims of a vast encirclement trap were based.

However, authorized London versions of the battle in Russia say Timoshenko's grip on Krasnograd Junction, far west of the Izyum area, is unrelaxed. It constitutes still a deadly menace to main German communications across the Dnieper upon which the whole Nazi south flank to the Crimea hinges.

And if that is true, Russian hopes of turning the tables of entrapment on stalled German counter-thrusts must still be high.

• "That Is Forever England"

MR. J. V. McAREE, who writes entertainingly in the Fourth Column of The Toronto Globe and Mail every day, thinks that now is a good time to abolish peerages. Mr. McAree quotes Sir Robert Greig to this effect. He also reminds us James Murray has refused to accept the title of the Duke of Atholl. Mr. McAree tells us that hereditary titles in the old feudal days went with large grants of lands but today many men of title are landless. He quotes particularly the Earl of Mar, which is not a good example as the Earldom of Mar is one of those Scottish earldoms, the origin of which is lost in antiquity, that has had no land attached to it for several centuries.

We are eagerly looking forward to a change in England after the war. We hope every man and woman will be free from want and guaranteed security and comfort in old age. But do not let us change the face of England by trying to enforce a drastic levelling process.

We are all a bit snobbish at heart and we Canadians love a lord as much as anyone. It is rumored that some of our Canadian metropolitan newspapers even keep a Social Register, and anyone not included never gets mentioned in the social columns. We hope this is a myth.

We pretend here in Canada that we do not like titles, but in our hearts we love 'em. A dozen Canadian universities pay tribute to distinguished Canadians every year with honorary degrees, and quite rightly so. By merely placing a hood over a candidate's head, a university sets him apart from his fellow-men and we address him with awe thereafter as "Doctor." Why? Because we belong to a race that loves class distinctions and would not be happy without them.

In advocating the abolishing of titles Sir Robert Greig and Mr. McAree have undertaken quite a task. The latest DeBrett is exactly four inches thick, and contains 1,900 pages. Some idea of the task which confronts these gentlemen can be gathered from the fact that from 1889 to 1938 His Majesty created 474 new peerages, 889 baronetcies and 9,066 knighthoods. In that same period, 280 peerages and 362 baronetcies became extinct. As it will be seen from these figures, hereditary title have grown slowly. The preference seems to be for knighthoods. These titles are usually bestowed for distinguished services and become extinct with the death of the knight himself. Today Canada is unable to honor its distinguished soldiers as are the other Dominions.

It would be difficult to visualize Great Britain without its castles, its manors and its stately country homes, or without its dukes and earls and knights. The feudal system may be obsolescent today but what has survived of it does no one any very great harm and is an integral part of the England so many of us love.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

DEMOCRACY AT WORK

In the British House of Commons occurred something which can only confuse the mind of a Hitler. There was outspoken and fierce criticism of the conduct of the war and of the government of which Winston Churchill is the head. Churchill is rather proud that criticism still is permitted in Britain. While not agreeing with his critics, he admits their right to criticize. That is something the Hitlers and Mussolinis cannot understand. It is democracy at work. —Niagara Falls Review.

Britain Reduces Horse Prospects For Race Tracks

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 27.—(CP)—Sport Shorts from Britain:

Ballynennan Moon is the wonder dog of British greyhound racing but the pooch has no sentiment.

Trainer Sidney Orton, a superstitious fellow, thought Bally would stand an excellent chance of breaking the Charlton Track record in the Spring Cup Final if he wore the collar of greyhoundom's immortal Mick the Miller. He placed it about Bally's neck before driving to the track.

Before Charlton was reached Bally had shown his disbelief in charms by chewing the collar to pieces. Then he went out and—didn't break the track record.

But Bally has won 19 of his 30 races since coming to England from Ireland last summer.

After June 1 British racing will be confined almost exclusively to horses under five years of age. It's a step towards reducing the number of racers in training, a war economy measure that's none too popular with veteran track followers.

Horses over four have formed the backbone of handicaps for many years and many well-known racers will disappear from the track.

"Nursery Handicaps"— handicaps for two-year-olds—will start Aug. 1, one month earlier than previously permitted.

Lionel van Praag, British speedway ace who made crowds gasp at his dare-devil antics, is announced as winner of the George Medal "for the highest bravery" while serving with the Royal Australian Air Force.

He was second pilot of an aircraft attacked by Japanese planes and forced to land on the sea last January. The aircraft sank and the crew of four took to their lifebelts. Van Praag helped support an unconscious member of the crew and also towed a non-swimmer. They were in the water 30 hours and beat off several shark attacks.

Robinson Clings To Win Streak 'By A Whisker'

NEW YORK, May 29 — (AP). — Ray Robinson still sports the longest winning streak in recent fistic history to-day, but only because a referee saw one low punch where most ringsiders saw two—and booed.

There was no doubt about the booing of the 16,673 customers both when the low punches were struck in the second round, and again after the fight when Robinson was announced the winner of a 10-round decision over baby-faced Marty Servo from Uncle Sam's coastguard.

The verdict for Robinson gave Ray a winning string of 121 straight fights—89 as an amateur and 32 as a pro.

It also established him as the outstanding welterweight in the ring to-day, outshining even champion Red Cochrane, who is in the United States Navy in California, and qualified him for a bout with Garvey Young, United tSates Marine titleholder from Akron, Ohio, in Madison Square Garden on June 11.

However, without the referee's penalty in the second round, Ray would have had a lot tougher time winning from the Schenectady slugger who carried the fight to him all the way. At the finish, Referee Billy Cavanagh voted the decision for Marty. Judge Bill Healey voted for Robinson, six rounds to three, with one even. Judge Tom Curley scored nine rounds for Robinson and none for Servo.

The damage was done in the second heat. Robinson struck low first, and the jeers went up. Before the end of the session, Marty also hooked one into the rough. But only Servo was penalized.

Some Sport Shorts From Great Britain

By ALBERT NICKLESON

LONDON, May 29 (CP)—She's in her 97th year but Mrs. Helen Chaloner from her Newmarket cottage occasionally risks "a bob or two" on the bangtails.

Only woman ever to hold a horse-training permit in Britain, Mrs. Chaloner saddled winners regularly up Newmarket way in the 80's and still is a keen follower of the sport although she hasn't been to a track this year. She likes to recall that when Miss Dollar won a sprint at Kempton Park more than 40 years ago, she had $6 down the line on the filly at 100 to 1.

As a trainer, Mrs. Chaloner owned several racers in partnership with Mat Dawson, Britain's outstanding trainer of his time. Her sons, George and Dick, were apprenticed to her as jockeys.

Seventeen-year-old Doug. Marks, who rocketed into jockey fame two years ago by winning the 1,000 guineas and the Oaks on the flying filly Godiva, must give up his cherished dream of becoming the King's rider. A fall from a horse gave him an infected spine and he's in hospital encased in a cast.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The hottest battle of the City Softball loop so far this season should bob up tonight at the Ashburnham Bowl when the Military Training Centre team and the hockey squad that played last winter under the Centre's name will fight it out in a league game. The hockey stars, now the Plaza Billiards, hope to break into the win column at the expense of the Soldiers tonight. On the other hand the khaki outfit are anxious to grab off a win so they can take undisputed possession of first place. The Royals' failure to secure a decision over the Juveniles the other night makes it possible for the Soldiers to lead the parade with two straight wins if they can take a fall out of Plazas in this evening's contest which is billed to start at 7 o'clock sharp and should be a honey. Neither club has announced its starting pitcher for the all-important clash but both expect to be at full strengh.

* * * * * *

Fans who were saying before Wednesday night's contest that the Juveniles were too young to bother other teams in the City Softball Loop have somewhat changed their views since the tie game with the Royals. As a matter of fact if adequate pitching strength can be dug up for the youngsters they will take care of themselves quite nicely. In young Freddy Garvey they have one of the snappiest catchers in the loop, a kid who can really hit that old apple too. The infield of the Juveniles is capable of snappy defensive work and in Bill Greatrix and Red Carpenter in the outfield, the Juveniles have two of the best ball hawks in the league. Those youngsters will rob City League batters of many a hit this season because they can go back, to either side, or come in to make catches and they get rid of that ball in a hurry too when there is occasion to throw. The Juveniles are a good hitting crowd too and they will probably improve in that respect as their confidence grows.

* * * * * *

The De Laval which should have made its debut in the City League race last Friday night, only to be disappointed because of rain will see action at last on Monday night at the Ashburnham Bowl when they will be stacked against Plazas. The new entry has not been issuing many bulletins on its possible lineup but Manager Griffin's outfit have rounded up a likely squad and are decidedly hopeful of making things interesting for all and sundry in the City League race this season. The entry of a new club will be welcomed by the fans who are always interested in fresh set-ups and new talent. The more trouble the De Laval can cause some of the other clubs the warmer will be its welcome from the fans who like to see the top outfits knocked off. That was quite evident the other night when the bulk of the crowd was pulling for the Juveniles to take the Royals for a ride.

They're Running Away

The big leagues are both beginning to take on the appearance of run-away affairs so far as first place is concerned. The Brooklyn Dodgers in the senior loop and the New York Yanks in the junior organization are steadily pulling away from their nearest opponents and both gained a full game yesterday at the expense of teams that a short time ago were snapping at their heels. The Dodgers took a 6 to 4 decision over the Boston Braves, with Kirby Higbe going the route and holding the Braves to seven spreadout hits. Max West managed to hit a homer with one on for Boston but outside of that Higbe was never in much difficulty. Earley started for the losers and the loss was his, although Sain and Donovan both took a turn on the rubber before the battle was over. In one of the tightest games of the season Chicago Cubs triumphed over the Cincinnati Reds 2 to 1 in twelve innings and Big Bill Lee, third of the Cub pitchers to see action was given credit for the win. The Reds were held to six hits and would have been shutout if it had not been for a homer by Sauer for the Reds in the second inning with none on. The score remained at 1-1 from the second until the Cubs pushed over the winning marker in the twelfth.

* * * * * *

In the American loop the Yanks moved further out in front by taking a close one from the Philadelphia A's while Detroit Tigers were manhandling the Cleveland Indians. The Yanks made good use of six hits to win 3 to 2 from the Athletics who pounded out nine themselves. Joe Gordon's single in the ninth sent the winning marker over. Incidentally it was the 13th game in succession in which the sensational New York second baseman has come through with at least one safe blow. Borowy was the winning pitcher while Knott went the route for the A's only to be nosed out on end. Former Buffalo twirler Virgil Trucks held the Cleveland Indians to four hits and they were beaten 6 to 2 by Detroit, despite a homer by Little Thunder Weatherly. Milnar was the starting Indian pitcher and the defeat was placed in his column. Ferrick and Eisenstat finished the pitching chore.

Leafs Roll Along

Toronto ball club, climbed to the lofty heights of second place in the International League race last night when they shutout the Montreal Royals 5 to 0 to score their thirteenth straight win at Maple Leaf Stadium. The Peter Campbell team hadn't much trouble grabbing off last night's affair for Jack Hallett allowed the Royals only two hits and London's own Frank Colman interjected enough punch into the first inning to win the ball game then and there. There were two on and two out when Colman strode out to the plate in the opening frame and he proceeded to drive one over the right field wall sending three counters across. That was ample to take the decision as the Royals could do nothing with the superb flinging of Hallett. The Leafs now start a long road trip and will not be back in front of the home customers until June 15. If they do nicely on the road they should soon be knocking on the top rung of the ladder.

* * * * * *

When the gamblers made Ray Robinson a 6 to 1 favorite over Marty Servo last night, they must have been basing the odds on the officials and not on the fighters. Servo had already given Robinson a great fight in their previous meeting and no the manner in which he battled last night never rated the odds announced before the fight. As it turned out the little coast guardsman came within an ace of toppling the champ—in fact the ... fans who watched the bout and of the thousands who listened to the broadcast description thought that he had won. The Associated Press gave Robinson the decision by the narrow margin of one round and even there Servo got the worst of the officiating for although both boys were guilty of hitting low in the second round, Referee Cavanagh penalized Servo with the loss of the round without warning him and then warned Robinson about illegal use of his head in the tenth and did not penalize him. At that Cavanagh voted for Servo as the winner, giving him five rounds, Robinson three and two even. As for the judges, one of the pair must have been haywire. One had Robinson in front six rounds to three, with one round tied and the other went the whole Robinson ticket, 9 to 1. If the officials were all honest in their verdicts it must have been a mighty close fight.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Estel Crabtree seems to have a magic effect on those Rochester Red Wings. They won their second straight game from Buffalo last night since he took hold of the squad....Joe DiMaggio seems to have forgotten that he is the highest paid man in baseball. Certainly his hitting so far this season does not rate him in that class.... Frank Crespi went in as a pinch-hitter in the eleventh inning of last night's game with Pittsburg and produced the single that won the game for St. Louis Cards 3 to 2. He has the proper idea of the duties of a pinch-hitter....Visit of the Picton R.A.F. cricket eleven tomorrow for a game with the Peterborough-Whitaker club at Nicholls Oval is expected to get the lid off the cricket season at long last....The Royal Air Force players have some fine cricketers and their games with the Peterborough eleven last summer helped to make the season a success....St. James' Bantams failed to arrive at the Oval last night for a Church League game with George Street Bantams and the fixture was awarded to the George St. team by default....In the juvenile series George Street were not so fortunate, losing 17 to 13 to All Saints.

Winning Rinks For Most Part Have Big Lead

By HERB MARTIN

Well, they're off—

The '42 schedule season opened last night on greens that were reasonably fast and seemed to be working well with both draws.

Just who is going to come out on top around Aug. 15th we hesitate to make any predictions. All that last night's winners have to do is to win sixteen more games in the schedule and they are 'home free.'

While we were a little late getting around last evening yet for the time we were there we had ample opportunity to 'look over a few of the strong aggregations—and there are some good ones too—but the best part of this schedule of ours is this, they all have to play each other and anything can happen, and most probably will. Our advice is this: 'Dont take it too seriously. One win does not give you a championship; more often it gives you a headache.'

With regards to the ladies' section, they've done it again. Played all their games on time, no defaults and no substitutes. If any other ladies' club or men's club for that matter, can hang up a better record than that, they will have to show us. It just can't be done. It's 100% all around.

Just who will win the ladies' section we don't know that either, but we do know whoever does will have to keep bowling all the time. They have some pretty good teams in there.

Don't forget the men's tournament to-night. The draw from the board will be made at 7.30 o'clock sharp. Please be on time. If you come late the chances are you'll be left off the draw. You'll get mad; you'll blame everybody but yourself, and besides it upsets the whole organization. Please co-operate with the committee. Thank you!

Fooled The Janitor

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 29. — (AP).—A blacked-out skylight on a downtown building was covered so well it fooled the janitor who painted it. Working on the roof, the janitor, Thomas Bond, 56, stepped through the blackened glass and plummeted 20 feet. He was not seriously injured.

The Bullet Was There

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29—(AP). Rowe Grogg says one of his tires is "shot," he means just that. When he discovered a flat tire on his car in a parking lot, Grogg called a station attendance. "Your tire was shot," the attendant reported. "I found a bullet in it."

TORONTO, May 29 — (CP). — Anyone who would like to run a 100-mile race for charity should apply to Leading Fireman Robert Bower, Civilian Fire Fighters' Corps Ottawa.

There is nothing phony about this. Bower's only concession to his 48 years is that he is turning to shorter events like the 100-mile dash. He would rather not race against a horse, either, although he probably could be persuaded.

Bower originally is from Edmonton. His longest race was 3,422 miles from Los Angeles to New York in 1928. The distance undoubtedly accounts for the slowest time in his long and honorable record—84 days. Once he ran against My Prince, a six-year-old gelding whose supporters said he could run all day. He could, but he couldn't run all week and keep up with Bower. After six days of racing at the Edmonton Exhibition in 1939, Bower finally beat the horse by 1½ miles.

Bower trips lightly over five miles a day to keep in condition at Ottawa and is so anxious to help a war charity he has made this concession in his offer to run a 100-mile race. He'll run against a relay team of three men, each of whom would run 33 1-3 miles while Bower did the entire distance himself.

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Outside of professional rasling, the best toughening-up exercise that has come to our attention lately is "suicide basketball."...Instead of playing according to no-contact rules, the player who grabs the ball on the jump lugs it down the floor like a halfback and the opposition can use any means it wants to stop him.

Alf Bristol, one of Australia's leading steeplechase jockeys now in the Merchant Marine and likely will get a couple of mounts at Belmont while his ship is in port...Tami Mauriello has turned down an offer to fight Jimmy Bivins on Cleveland's "Buy a Bomber" card because of a cut over his right eye..Carl (Handy-Man) Holland, Notre Dame frosh halfback, won 16 letters at Farmingdale, N.Y. high school—football 4, basketball 3, track 3, baseball, boxing and golf, 3 each; Drumbeater Joe Petritz wonders if anyone can top that record...At least he won't freeze to death with all those sweaters.

Wins Divorce

Glamorous Rita Hayworth, idol of motion picture fans, won a divorce from her husband, Edward C. Judson, wealthy oil man, after testifying that "he was extremely jealous and quarrelsome." In response to a question from Judge John Gee Clark, the actress said that a 'fair and just' property settlement had been effected between her and Judson.

TORONTO LEAFS STEAM-ROLLER ROYALS OUT OF SECOND PLACE

Hallett Pitches Two-Hit 5 to 0 Victory

By The Associated Press

Toronto Maple Leafs show no signs of letting up on the pace which brought them from last to second place in the International Baseball League standings.

Players sent from the Major Leagues are beginning to function as a unit and are rolling along in steam-roller fashion.

Last night Jack Hallet, former Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics moundsman, pitched a two-hit 5-0 victory over Montreal to oust the Royals from second place.

The Leafs teed off on Max Macon, Royal hurler, in the first inning for three runs which came as a result of Frank Coleman's home-run with two aboard. They added single tallies in the third and sixth. It was Toronto's 13th straight triumph in their home park.

Bobby Byrne of Newark Bears turned in the best performance of his professional career as he allowed Baltimore Orioles three hits for a 5-1 victory. Baltimore's lone run came in the first inning when Byrne walked George Staller with the bases loaded. The Bears tied it up in the third and won the game in the eighth with a four-run uprising.

Wings Clip Bisons

Rochester Red Wings won their second series of the year as they defeated Buffalo Bisons, 7-3. Jimmy Ripple led the attack against the Bisons with two doubles which drove in two runs. Ira Hutchinson held the Herd in check until the ninth when he gave way to Lou Sakas who smothered a Buffalo rally after the Bisons had counted twice.

Jersey City Giants came from behind to score two runs in the ninth, nosing out Syracuse Chiefs, 6-5. The victory gave the Giants the series, two games to one.

Cuban Tom Delacruz, Chief starter, was forced to retire when Gibby Brack opened the ninth with a line drive off his pitching hand. Les Hinckle relieving him was charged with the loss as he made an error and a wild pitch which tied the score, and yielded a pinch single to Floyd Beat that drove in the winning run.

Red Sox Fumble 12th In 17 To Senators 5-1

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Boston Red Sox come close to being the worst road team in the major leagues and this malady, which has kept them from resembling pennant contenders in the past, now has placed even their first-division berth in jeopardy.

The Red Sockers are a first-class outfit in Fenway Park at Boston. It's only when they venture away from those friendly fences that they stumble.

They were stopped 5-1 by Washington Senators at Washington last night and now have lost 12 of their last 17 encounters, all but three away from home.

This slump, which contrasts with Boston's feat in winning 14 of its first 21 games while playing mostly at home, has dropped the club within a game of the fifth-place St. Louis Browns.

The Red Sox were held to seven hits by Early Wynn, who helped win his own game by getting two singles and driving in two runs.

Joe Gordon of the Yankees extended his current hitting streak to 13 games yesterday and won a 3-2 decision for the world champions over Philadelphia Athletics by rapping a single with the bases loaded and the score tied in the ninth. The Yanks were held to six hits by Jack Knott, but Rookie Hank Borowy kept the A's in check even though giving nine.

Trucks Holds Indians.

Virgil (Fire) Trucks, strikeout king of the International League last year, pitched his first complete game for Detroit Tigers and held Cleveland Indians to four hits for a 6-2 victory. Trucks fanned six, but allowed a homer by Roy Weatherly.

St. Louis Browns rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to beat Chicago White Sox 6-4 and gain their sixth victory in seven games. A double by Rick Ferrell knocked in the deciding runs.

Brooklyn Dodgers set down Boston Braves again 6-4, with Kirby Higbe pitching seven-hit ball and choking off a Boston rally that netted three runs in the ninth, two on a homer by Max West. Higbe struck out pinch-hitter Ernie Lombardi to end the uprising.

St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of this outcome to strengthen their hold on second place in the National League with a 3-2 11th-inning triumph over the faltering Pittsburg Pirates, who now have lost 11 of their last 13 games.

Big Bill Lee, making a fine comeback this season, achieved his seventh victory by holding Cincinnati Reds to six hits while Chicago Cusb forged to a 2-1 triumph in 12 innings. Lee himself knocked in the winning run with a long fly.

COSTLY GRUDGE

LEICESTER—(CP).—Alex Allen, lathe turner at an aircraft factory, who was charged with having made parts to wrong measurements, was fined the equivalent of $450 for sabotage. He had a grudge because he was not "in the clique" at the factory.

Star White Sox Pitcher Says Farewell

Johnny Rigney, ace right-hander on the White Sox pitching staff, bids good-bye to Manager Jimmy Dykes and others in the Chicago clubhouse after hurling a three-hit game in his farewell appearance on the mound. Rigney, husband of the former Dorothy Comiskey, White Sox treasurer, will apply for enlistment in the army. He had been put in 1-A after being first placed in 4-F. LEFT to RIGHT in the picture are Charles Comiskey II., who some day will take over control of the team; Sam West, Rigney, Don Kolloway and Manager Dykes.

Zulu Kid Sponsor Of Jim Wilde Days Reappears

TORONTO, May 29.—That fellow Jack Fox, once an ambitious fight manager and promoter around Ontario spots, gets attention in Vancouver sports columns these days as one of the boys helping build up a fight show in the coast city for June 3. Lou Salica, well-known Toronto leather-pushing visitor, and world bantam champion, will face Ken Lindsay in the main go.

Fox has under his wing Claude Warwick, 1941 Dominion amateur featherweight champion, and may turn him professional on the Vancouver card.

It's more than twenty years now since Fox cut his first capers as a fight promoter in Ontario. And he caught headlines on both sides of the border, as well as from coast to coast—not to mention the British Isles with one of his first ventures.

Remember it? It was a world's flyweight title bout between Zulu Kid and the little Welshman, Jimmy Wilde, back in 1920.

Detroit Idea Blanked

Fox had visions of the fight in a Detroit ring, but Michigan State laws didn't deal kindly with the biff boys in those days, so he sponsored the show across the river, at the Windsor Armories, and invited Michigan to join the party.

Wilde, often referred to as the "bravest little man ever to hold a boxing title," had come to America the previous fall to seek his fortune via his padded fists. He had knocked out the Zulu Kid in London in 1916, but the Great War interrupted his boxing career. He spent two years in the army as a boxing instructor, only soldiering job in sight because of his size. He weighed scarcely 100 pounds.

An estimated building-jamming crowd of 5,000 Windsorites and Detroiters watched the "Mighty Atom" from Quicker's Yard, Wales, conquer Zulu Kid a second time. It was in a day when Zulu Kid, Frankie Mason and Johnny Rosner were America's top flyweights. The Zulu an Italian by the way, had always claimed he had been doped before his knockout by Wilde in England. Doped, others said, by Jimmy's trip-hammer right hand.

Defeated Notables

Wilde skipped through a hectic campaign in United States and Canada, beating Frankie Mason as well as Zulu Kid and other top-notchers. One of his last bouts on the tour was a win over Patsy Wallace in Toronto.

Back in London, Jimmy spotted Pete Herman twenty pounds and was kayoed in 17 rounds in a non-title event.

It was the Spring of 1923 before Wilde was in America again, this time to hunt the scalp of Pancho Villa, although Frankie Genaro was the recognized American champ at the time by virtue of a decilson over Pancho.

Wilde absorbed a terrific shellacking from Villa before the referee stopped the slaughter in the seventh round. Ringsiders said it was the most courageous stand of a beaten champion since Bat Nelson was counted out on his feet.

It was enough for Jimmy, who hung up his gloves for all time after that.

He visited Canada in 1929, fat and 37—owner of four small theatres in London, and boxing critic for the News of the World.

PGA Golfers Plan Campaign For War Relief

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., May 29—(AP) — Figuring that tournament golf is going to be "through" for the duration of the war within another six weeks, the professionals are getting ready to pitch in and carry on an organized country-wide campaign to raise funds for the army and navy relief societies and the Red Cross.

Between rounds of their annual P.G.A. championship at the Seaview Club here, they got together last night and agreed to shoot the works. President Ed. Dudley announced that the Association would contribute the services of its tournament manager, Fred Corcoran, to line up benefit matches in all of the principal cities, and the players, themselves, agreed to devote a good part of their time to the program.

Of the eight stars competing in quarter final matches today, six agreed to place themselves at Corcoran's disposal. The other two, Cpl. Jim Turnesa and Sammy Snead, already have signed up with the armed forces.

"Count me in for seven days a week," said Ben Hogan, the crack pro from Hershey, Pa., who is paired against Turnesa today. Byron Nelson of Toledo who meets Harry Cooper, the Minneapolis veteran, said he would be available two or three days of each week.

Snead looked good yesterday in trouncing Willie Goggin, 9 and 8. Hogan likewise beat his second-round victim, Ky Laffoon, by 9 and 8, and he appears to have too many guns for Turnesa in the quarter-finals.

The one that has the experts guessing is the engagement between Craig Wood, United States Open champion, and Jimmy Demaret, Detroit star. Both have been playing steady, under-par golf the last four days, and their meeting looks like a toss-up.

Only 116 Pounds Laid On Fairaris

NEW YORK, May 29—Alsab is estimated by Handicapper Jack Campbell to be at least three pounds better than any of the remaining 3-year-old luminaries in that official's imposts for next Tuesday's mile and a furlong Peter Pan Handicap of $7,500 added. The weight on Alsab is 129, on the Derby winner Shut Out 126. These assignments are of interest only in an academic way, as neither is expected to fill his Peter Pan engagement. Both, however, are pointing for the mile and a half Belmont a week from Saturday, in which they carry equal weights.

Requested, Sun Again and Colchis are grouped just behind the Preakness and Derby winners at 123 pounds apiece. Requested and Sun Again are temporarily shelved by the viscissitudes of racing, so that Colchis looms the probable starting high weight.

From this considerable distance it appears that his principal rival will be R. S. McLaughlin's Fairaris, the Canadian invader who is asked carry 116 pounds. Bright Willie, winner of the Swift earlier in the present Belmont meeting, gets in under 114.

Alfalfa Ready Next Week For Cutting

Alfalfa hay is approaching bloom in Peterborough county, and should be ready to cut next week. Spring grain that was sown during the latter part of April is about eight inches high, but some farmers on low flat land have not yet planted a peck of seed.

A Northumberland Holstein breeder recently sold a heifer for $1,000 and two mature cows for $350 each, of which it might be said in ephemeral slang, "that ain't hay".

Rain has been general throughout the province, many of the counties reporting more than two inches last week.

"It is many years since so much water has been lying on the grain fields," is a Durham comment. "Very heavy rains have held up all field work, and is causing some alarm to tomato crop growers," in Prince Edward.

Preparation of corn ground is general in Hastings; milk flow is good, and production of cheese is well in advance of last year. Reports indicate that no corn has been planted yet in Peterborough.

Ontario county says wet weather held up work for ten days. Many farmers have only a small acreage sown; indications point to earlier haying than last year. No more than 50 per cent. of the grain has been planted in Victoria, and a large acreage of barley, buckwheat and millet is predicted.

Some York farmers "have scarcely been on the land at all, and unfortuantely had very little plowing done last year on account of the wet."

Haying Week Earlier

Dundas says grain crops look excellent and hay promises to be well above the average. Haying will be a week or two earlier than usual in Frontenac.

The acreage of Sudan grass in Grenville will be considerably more than in the past; "hay should be a bumper crop."

"There is a good demand for Sudan grass for annual pastures, and there will be a decided increase in the seeding of alfalfa" in Prescott-Russell where about 60 per cent. of the seeding is done.

Renfrew says Spring conditions have been ideal, and seeding is completed except on a few low fields. Spring grain is making strong growth; planting of corn and potatoes has been general for a week. "Crop prospects were never better."

Cheese is paying nearly five cents a pound more than last year, and the output is substantially increased in Lennox-Addington.

Fall wheat is two feet high in Lincoln. The common note in the county reports across the province is the excess of rain with consequent retarding of farm work. Farmers who got an early start in April are in advance of their seasonal schedule.

The comment from North Simcoe apparently applies generally in regard to the variation in completed work. "Vespra township reports 80 per cent. seeding done; Matchedash township only 5 per cent; Sunnidale township 50 per cent. completed; Oro 50 per cent and Flow township 25 to 35 per cent. of which one-third is a complete loss.'

House Hears

could not say how many 30-day trainees had been recalled to the service since the practice started of keeping compulsory service trainees in permanent service.

But he said those who had been called for the 30-day training should all be pooled now with those subject to the later call-up for four months' training and permanent service thereafter.

No Evasion of Service

He said, however, that this was only his opinion and no decision had been made as to the course that would be followed. He agreed with Mr. Hanson that there should be no evasions of full military service by those training in university corps or drilling part-time with reserve units.

Complaints that farm workers were not getting the exemptions promised them in Prime Minister Mackenzie King's manpower policy announcement of March 24 last were made by a number of members.

Mr. Thorson said he had already discussed this matter at great length and he did not go into it again. He agreed with E. E. Perley (Con. Qu'Appelle) and other members who spoke on the subject that there was a problem because of the scarcity of farm workers in certain areas.

Mr. Perley said there would be a critical situation at harvest time in Western Canada because so many young people, boys and girls, had left the farms to enter the army and war industries.

George Cruickshank (Lib. Fraser Valley) protested the treatment accorded conscientious objectors who, he said, had fitted themselves into well-paid war work and thus avoided not only military service but the alternative labor service which is the fate of objectors who are called up and refuse to bear arms.

He said many of this class had entered essential war work before the call-up reached their age class and now would be classed as essential war workers.

No Escaping Says Thorson.

Mr. Thorson said conscientious objectors would not escape the alternative service regulations by that method. He also told Mr. Cruickshank, in reply to a question, that doctors and dentists were called up for service on the same basis as those in other walks of life.

Through the afternoon sitting, Mr. Ilsley stood off a barrage of argument from 18 Liberal, Conservative and C.C.F. members, including six from Ontario, urging extension of the insurance scheme to cover small coastal fishing craft.

Maritime Provinces members and those from British Columbia pictured the hazardous occupation of those who operate the shore fisheries and the importance of their efforts to the problem of United Kingdom food supply.

They recalled the disastrous enemy attack upon Atlantic coast fishing craft during the last war when many vessels were destroyed and there was long delay in obtaining reparations.

While many of the shore craft were owned by companies it was equally true that many were owned by their operators, and they often represented the owner's sole asset.

Insurance of these small craft through existing channels was impossible or obtainable only at a prohibitive cost, it was represented to the Minister.

"If the committee is in great earnest about this matter we will have to redraft the whole bill because it is impossible to incorporate in this bill the suggestion which has been made," Mr. Ilsley said.

"If it were done we would have only a very bad product. It seems to me that if fishermen's boats were destroyed by enemy action the normal procedure would be for the Government to protect them in some way.

"The Government must be trusted to a certain extent to assume its responsibilities in regard to these matters.

"Just to pour these fishing boats into the measure must not be done without giving the matter a great deal of consideration and I would ask the committee to leave it to the Government to meet the situation in a different way."

Insurance was given to inland ships because their risk was similar to the risk to property on land and the Act was primarily designed to insure property within the Dominion, the Minister said.

dited with destroying more than 65 Axis supply trucks behind combat units. In another operation bombers, escorted by fighters, were reported to have spread destruction amidst a concentration of 700 trucks.

Italians Holding Back.

British observers said that while Italian armored formations are known to be in the battle area, German units have been doing all the fighting to date.

The Ain el Gazala line consists of a series of well-fortified natural positions, with the gaps between covered by armored units.

Hence the front is fluid and the fact that German elements may be operating behind the most advanced British positions—such as the Nazi armored unit yesterday reported within 15 miles of Tobruk—does not necessarily mean a major breakthrough.

Bir Hacheim—the "well of wisdom"—around which the heaviest fighting has been developing, is one of the fixed positions in the British line. It is a tiny oasis about 50 miles southwest of Tobruk.

The current battle there developed when a German mechanized column struck from the west and was repulsed with losses.

The column then circled around Bir Hacheim to the south and struck northward between Bir Hacheim and El Gobi. There it encountered a British armored formation ready for business, setting off a raging battle.

Although May and June usually are the hottest months of the year in the desert, frequently reaching 120 degrees Fahrenheit, the weather so far has been good. There are no sandstorms, the maximum temperature has been about 90 degrees and moonlight permits a certain amount of tank warfare at night.

tion of the village where the attack occurred, evacuated all families and set fire to their homes in retaliation.

Czech circles here fear the executions in Prague are the forerunner of wholesale killings which will make previous reprisals in France and other occupied countries insignificant by comparison.

The German announcement said the six, all members of one family, had been shot because they had "hidden people who participated in acts directed against German authorities." All the family's possessions were confiscated.

There was no indication that those shot were connected directly with the attempt on Heydrich's life, but the Germans previously had announced the entire families of persons involved in that episode would be executed summarily.

Heydrich himself was reported in grave condition. An exchange telegraph dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, quoted reports from Prague as saying that Heydrich's spinal cord and spine were injured by three bullets which entered his body and that a German specialist had been summoned and performed an emergency operation.

Daluege Takes Over

Heydrich's post as Reich's protector was taken over, meanwhile, by Gen. Kurt Daluege, former Reich's police chief, veteran Storm Trooper and Elite Guard leader, on authority delegated by Hitler himself.

There were reports that Heinrich Himmler, head of the Gestapo and one of the most hated and feared men in Europe, was enroute to Prague to take personal charge of the inquiry into the assault on Heydrich and supervise reprisals.

A state of emergency already has been proclaimd throughout Bohemia and Moravia. All public meetings, sports events and theatre performances have been banned and all Czechs over 15 have been ordered to register with police. The decree said any man caught without a registration card would be shot on the spot.

The Istanbul advices concerning the purge instituted by Hitler in Berlin gave no explanation of the reported arrest of Von Brauchitsch, removed as army commander last December when Hitler took over the leadership.

Rations to be Halved

It was suggested, however, that imprisonment of Darre might indicate trouble on the food production front in Germany. There have been recurrent reports that the food situation in Germany is growing steadily worse, and only last week the Berlin radio announced Darre had been given "a leave of absence" as Food Minister.

According to one report, Darre warned Hitler that large deficits in the grain crop and other food supplies must be expected next winter and that present food rations must be cut in half.

Hitler allegedly flew into a rage, insisting a further cut was impossible because of the effect upon morale, and packed Darre off to a concentration camp.

The Gestapo also is reported active in German-occupied Belgium. The Belgium government news agency said eight Catholic Boy Scouts and their chaplain had been arrested at Alost. A leader of the Socialist youth guard movement in Brussels also was taken into custody, the agency said.

LECTURE CHANGED

The A.R.P. lecture for this weekend which was announced as "High Explosives and Incendiary Bombs" will be given June 7 and 8 by the Deputy Ontario Fire Marshal, Carl Caskey. LEFT CARS AT HOME.

Before setting out on their tour this season, Conklin Brothers decided to leave their automobiles at home. "We received permission from the Controller to take three cars with us, one each for myself, my brother and our secretary," Frank Conklin told the Examiner yesterday, "but the gasoline situation looked so serious that we decided to get along without any car at all. In an ordinary peacetime year there would probably be from 50 to 75 cars with the show. A lot of our people used to like to drive the circuit in their own cars, but this year that is all out."

NEW ARRANGEMENT

Sections of the platform used in front of the grandstand at Exhibition Park may be available for the band concerts in the parks this summer, Alderman Glover said at Thursday night's meeting of the parks committee. Part of the platform had been appropriated by the military camp authorities. Accommodation for the bands was left to the chairman, Alderman Curtis, who said he was arranging for the first concert in Victoria Park, Friday, June 5. Other concerts might be rotated to King Edward and Riverside Parks.

OVERSEAS BROADCAST.

CAR CATCHES FIRE.

Buck Hall, well known Charlotte Street barber, suffered painful injuries on Wednesday evening. He had started the engine of his car and it was performing nicely when it suddenly caught fire near the carburetor. Hall burned both hands smothering the blaze with a blanket. Damage was not extensive.

NO CIRCUS.

The rousing strains of "On the Road to Mandalay" being sung with hearty voices brought residents on Rubidge street rushing to the door Thursday with visions of the circus. But instead, a band of public school children, led by their teacher, who believed in the good effect of martial music, were stepping right along. But an hour or so later there was a different sight. The same group appeared, but they had dropped forlornly on the steps of Trinity church to rest their tired and aching feet, and there was no thread of song.

LESS CROWED.

It has been suggested that for those people who have been finding train accommodation rather crowded, that if they would buy their tickets at the uptown office instead of waiting till the last minute at the station there would be sufficient accommodation arranged and the wear and tear on everyone would be considerably less.

Harvey School Raises $70 For War Victims

During the Christmas-tide season of last year, the pupils of School Section No. 6 Harvey, made a contribution of $15.00 to help the air raid victims in Britain, and that for a school containing but 18 scholars would be considered quite an achievement, but this fades very much into the background with today's report for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, which lists the handsome amount of $70.20 as being raised by this same group to mark their second contribution, which came to hand through their teacher, L. McColl.

This school is situated at Rockcroft, 25 miles north of the city, and the assistance of Mrs. H. Cochrane, who donated a quilt, and Morley Pluard who donated a cushion, were the main features behind this highly successful effort on behalf of the fund.

Climaxing the selling of tickets for the draw by the children, a box social, and a concert by the children themselves, completes the story of how such a small group worked in a district that is none too thickly populated to raise such a splendid sum of money, and much praise is due to them and their teacher, and the donors of the prizes for the results achieved.

Marking the seventh time their names have appeared in the lists for the fund, the office girls of the Robt. Neill Co. Ltd. appear in today's list with the usual donation of $5.00, displaying a continuity of effort which bespeaks devotion to the cause which they thus steadily support. The penny box at Loblaw's is another regular contributor that can be counted on to continue help for the fund, with both the manager, P. E. Moore, and the staff maintaining a sympathetic interest in what it can do to help things along.

With today's deposit, practically the half-way mark has been reached towards attaining the next objective, with some $1,112 now on hand out of the $2,240 required to send the 18th donation of £500 to England.

Cricket Season Opens Saturday

At last the local cricket season will open at Nicholls Oval with a match tomorrow against well-known opponents, the R.A.F. Picton. The locals have had to abandon two matches this season owing to weather conditions, but hope for better luck tomorrow. The airmen are well-known here as they visited the Oval five times last summer. Later in the season the Peterborough-Whitaker men go to Picton where, we understand, a ground is now available.

It would be appreciated if local people would come up to the Oval tomorrow and give a friendly welcome to the visitors in recognition of the splendid work done by the Royal Air Force.

It is quite possible that Old Country spectators might contact men from their own district as the team is drawn from all parts of the British Isles.

After the match the teams will be entertained at the Y.M.C.A. by Mr. Gordon Monkman, president of the local club.

On the following Saturday, June 6, there will be a match against the Grove School.

Seeks Refund Of Cost Of Clearing Sewer

Mrs. Christina Powers, 106 Lock Street, spent $115 on clearing the sewer connection to her house, and through Peck, Kerr and McElderry asked for refund of the money she expended because the sewer was blocked by the roots of nearby trees.

City Engineer Parsons reported that the trees were on private property. "We cleared the connection in the street section, but this other trouble was on private property," Mr. Parsons said. "They changed from tile to iron pipe, and made other improvements. Any way we do not consider ourselves liable for blockage caused by trees not on the street."

That is the answer the clerk was directed to forward to Mrs. Powers' solicitors.

Observing Diamond Jubilee Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast, prominent citizens of Omemee village, and well-known through Emily township and the Peterborough district, will observe the 60th anniversary of their wedding on Saturday, May 30. Both are in good health.

Omemee Couple To Celebrate 60th Anniversary Of Wedding

OMEMEE, May 29.—(ENS)—Two pioneers of Emily township who have seen almost a century of history and progress flow along will observe the 60th anniversary of their marriage at their home in the village on Saturday, May 30.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast, who were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Balfour, on May 30, 1882. Following their marriage they resided on a farm on the first concession of Emily Township, and on this property this young, old couple enjoyed the happiest years of their lives. Faced with the task of providing a home and all the comforts, these two tackled life as a team, and their pathway has been made smooth because of the happy cooperation and cheerfulness that existed in their household.

Living in an era when extra energy was needed to make up for the labor saving devices we have today, the two battled the soil and the elements to gain a splendid reputation in the community. Both can recall when the roads running across Emily township were little more than trails, and the memories of their early days in their first farm home, are happy thoughts that recur at this time, to add more joy, as they journey closer to the sunset of their lives.

Three Children Living

Six children were born of the marriage, three of whom are still living, namely: Mrs. Percy Coad (Mary), Saskatoon, Sask.; Mrs. Melville Lathangue (Carrie), Ballyduff, Ontario; and Orman of London, Ontario. Those who have passed on were: Roy, killed in action in France, 1916; Winnifred, who died in January, 1937, and Mrs. Leard (Jean) who passed away in September, 1939.

Twenty-two years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Poast gave up farming and moved into the village of Omemee to reside. They will be home to their friends on Saturday.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Poast have Irish backgrounds. Mr. Poast's parents, Francis Poast and Anne Moore, came to Cavan township early in the last century, and Mr. Poast was born in the same township about four miles south of Omemee village. He is 83 years of age. Mrs. Poast's parents came from Belfast, Ireland, and settled in Emily township, where Mrs. Poast was born. They were William Balfour and Margaret Irvine. The homestead was two miles south of Omemee. Mrs. Poast is 85.

Life Member W.M.S.

During his lifetime, Mr. Poast has been a staunch Conservative, and a great worker for the United Church. His ambition was to be regarded as a man who had the time and inclination to aid in the work of the church. He served for a couple of terms on the village council.

Mrs. Poast up to a few years ago was an outstanding worker in all women's organizations in connection with the United Church, and appreciation of her efforts is indicated in the fact that she is a life member of the Women's Missionary Society.

Board Retains Gladstone Street

In the proposed renaming of several streets, the Board of Works Thursday night declined to extent the name of Princess across Lock street to Gladstone.

"Gladstone is an old established street and there are too many people living on it," was the attitude of the Board.

King Elward street disappears in the extension of Ware street. King Edward is only a block from Lock street to George street.

A suggestion of a year or more ago that Rink street be changed to Bourne street was definitely rejected. Recollection intimates that the reason for that change was put forth by relatives of a man named Bourne, employed years ago at Canada Packers, whose home was on the south side of Rink street between George and Aylmer streets.

Elm street retains its identity against the suggestion that it might become dignified wih the name of Hopkihs avenue across Monaghan Road.

"We'd have an insurrection along Elm street if we made that change," Alderman Glover said.

The Board stalled on Albertus avenue in the west end, conflicting with Albertus street, south of Lansdowne and east of Lock.

"We can't ask the township to change their part of Albertus avenue," Alderman Gordon salad. The city's section is north of Weller street.

The Board finally recommended Albertus avenue west, seemingly with a little note of doubt in that compromise. The same expedient was adopted in differentiating the two Gordon street names. One of them becomes Gordon avenue west. The other is in the Claraday section of North Monaghan.

Council Undertakes To Fulfil Promise

Getting around Thursday night to an old grievance on Monaghan Road between Bolivar and King streets where three or four new houses were built within the last few years, the Board of Works decided to keep faith with those property owners, if that was a salient consideration.

"I don't see why one man should be able to hold up the claims of three others," said Alderman Sands.

"If we made them a promise we should keep it," was the attitude of Alderman Bradburn.

F. G. McKenzie had written the council that the builders of the houses were promised that the sidewalk on the west side of Monaghan Road would be raised six inches.

Some detail about a garage in the neighborhood arose as a distraction, and nothing was done. Alderman Bradburn's motion seconded by Alderman Gordon, advised the residents of the Monaghan Road block to prepare a new petition and the council would undertake to fulfil their request.

Troops Plan Church Parade

Citizens of Peterborough will have the opportunity of witnessing a military parade on Sunday morning next, when the troops of the Military Training Centre here will, with the 2nd Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers (R.F.) parade to George Street United church for the morning service at 11 o'clock.

The invitation to attend the regular service of the church was extended by the pastor, Rev. H. Roberts, M.A., B.D., to Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., who on behalf of the officers and men of the Protestant faith gladly accepted.

The troops from the Training Centre will be met by the band of the Prince of Wales Rangers and members of that unit at the corner of Charlotte and George streets, and the parade will continue to the church.

Following the service the parade will return to the Centre by the same route while the Rangers will parade to the armouries. The service at the church will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Roberts, while the sermon will be preached by Rev. Captain T. W. Tyson, Protestant padre at the Training Centre here.

It is estimated that there will be about 600 men from the Training Centre in the parade. Members of the Catholic faith from the Centre will attend service at Sacred Heart church.

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press.

MAY 28, 1917. — H.M.S. Hilary, armed merchantman, sunk in the North Sea; four killed. French liner Yarra torpedoed and sunk in Mediterranean; 56 missing. French Premier Ribot and members of his cabinet returned after conferences with British war cabinet.

Beef Situation Is Bad But Be Worse

That the beef situation is bad but it will be worse before it's over, is the general opinion of those in the meat business. Gordon Mathews, manager of Canada Packers believes that the shortage will be over by the first of July. He explained this shortage by the fact that the stable feed cattle have been sold and the rest have been turned to pasture and are not ready for market. The armed services use great quantities of beef and have first chance at food supplies. In June their demands are going to be unusually heavy so civilians will simply have to take a back seat.

During the past week most of the Peterborough stores have experienced their first real shortage. For some time the amount of the shipments has been drastically cut, but there has not been an out-and-out shortage. T. L. Edwards' meat store has had its orders cut by about four-fifths of former amount, and they have no idea when they will be able to get more. All the smaller butchers are harder hit than the larger concerns. Braund's were without beef yesterday and this morning, and after this week have no idea when and where they will be given more.

The same situation exists in Loblaw's and the A & P stores. The former have been without beef since last Saturday, and the A & P since last Friday. Buehler's have been short this week too, and their orders have been reduced from 1000 pounds to about 142 pounds. But in spite of the scarcity of meat in this city, places like Oshawa and London are in a much worse condition, and according to the meat supervisors, Peterborough can count itself as being very lucky.

Community Fund Reaches Total $71,729

A summary of returns in the Red Cross and Community Fund campaign up to Thursday evening reveals that the returns now total $71,729.72, which is about $10,000 in excess of the objective set out.

This is an incomplete report as there are still some uptown offices and stores, and a few industries which have not made complete returns. This is causing additional inconvenience and work to the committee in that it stops them from cleaning up the drive and allocating the money to the various charities. It is expected that all returns will be in by Saturday at the latest.

Following is the summary to Thursday night:

	Objectives	Actually Reported

Library Shelves Hold 35,000 Volumes

For thirty-one years a landmark on the corner of George and McDonnel streets, the Peterborough Public Library is probably one of the least known places in town, in so far as the knowledge of what it contains and the method by which it is run, are concerned.

This is the city's first organized public library, although the Mechanics Institute, over what is now J. F. Strickland's office on Water street, carried on work of that type in a limited way for a number of years. Mr. F. De la Fosse was appointed chief librarian in October, 1910, but the library did not officially open until February, 1911. The library has a high rating in the province and the keen interest of the members of the staff contributes immeasureably to its success.

Two Systems

There are two systems used to tabulate the books, the Dewey Decimal system and the Cutter system. The Dewey Decimal is divided into nine sections as follows: 0—general works, 1—religion, 2—philosophy, 3—social services, 4—philology, 5—pure science, 6—useful arts, 7—fine arts, 8—literature, and 9—includes history, biography and travel. From these general headings the various sub-topics take their numbers. In the Cutter system, an electric pen worked by heat is used. A paper painted on one side is placed tightly over the book binding and then by writing heavily an impression is made on the back of the book. This is one of the few places in Ontario where this pen is used.

The top number is for the topical matter in the book and is gotten by looking up the subject matter in the Dewey reference book. The lower number and letter represents the author's name. It is arrived at by checking on the first three letters of the author's name in the Cutter reference book, and then using the number listed.

Fiction More Popular

Fiction is by far the most popular classification of book read, but since the war began there has been an increase in the amount of history, travel, literature and sociological works. The reference books are in great demand, particularly by those engaged in war work at the Canadian General Electric Company. Girls, who are university graduates, come in forlornly looking for something on cranes and derricks, and the men use it a great deal along with many of the men in the Training Centre.

In the course of the last three years there have been 4653 people registered downstairs as using the library regularly, but with the number of new residents in the city, it will largely increase. There has always been quite a large tourist clientele and it is hoped that it will continue this summer.

There are probably between 30,000 and 35,000 books at present, with 6,000 upstairs in the children's section. In a year there is an average of 2049 books bought. As is the case with most libraries the library is short of shelf space.

As a rule, most people take very good care of the books they take out, but there are a few come back mutilated, particularly those books dealing with art.

Juvenile Library

The children's library is conducting a splendid organization. This is for the children from one year up to those in second form high school. These children are particularly fond of dog and adventure stories and career books written by specialists in that particular field. During the fall, winter and spring there is a weekly story period conducted for over 200 children and the subject is usually a fairy story.

The children are encouraged to take a responsible part in the running of their section, As a mark of good behavior, they are allowed to mark the books when they come in, and they are also taught how to put them away and woe betide the poor youngster who returns a book in poor shape. According to those in charge they are far more strict than the regular authorities. During the school year talks are given in all schools on books and fairy stories and the children learn how to make use of the privilege afforded them.

Museum Pieces

There are many treasures to be found hidden away in the library that are worth seeing. A number of originals which include the "Historical Register" 1726 to 1735. Samuel Johnson's "Lives of the English Poets," and Oliver and Boyd's New Edinburgh Almanac, 1850. Others include "Good Words," 1878, Harper's Magazine 1865 and 1861, Debates in the House of Commons from 1876 on. There are all kinds of the most complete reference books to be had for the seeking, particularly on Shakespeare.

There are also some interesting old museum pieces tucked away out of sight. There is a piece of oak taken from one of the piles of the Old London Bridge, England, built in 1165 in the reign of Henry 2. It was taken out in 1630 when the present bridge was built and it was presented to the library by the late R. M. Roy, father of Fred Roy. Among other things the library possesses the first copy of Punch, printed in 1641.

For those people who have taken these things for granted and the folks who never bother to use them, it is worth while to go and take advantage of the splendid opportunities offered here, and you will find everyone very willing to cooperate in every possible way.

Mexico Moves To Declare War

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—(AP).—President Mauel Avila Camacho called upon an emergency session of Congress to-day to declare Mexico at war with the Axis—the first declaration of war in her history—and place the nation immediately upon a war footing.

In a Chamber of Deputies alternately gravely silent, then ringing with the tumuluous cheers of "Viva Mexico," the President pledged all the resources of the nation to 'collaborate energetically in saving America.'

His appeal to the Congress and by radio to the nation declared that Mexican neutrality had been violated wantonly by the torpedoing two weeks ago of the Mexican ships Potrero Del Llano and Faja De Oro.

An ovation of several minutes interrupted Avila Camacho when he said the 'disloyal, sneaking and cowardly attacks' had decided his government to "accept valiantly the realties" of the world situation and ask for a declaration of war against Germany, Italy and Japan.

U.S. Destroyer Escapes Pack Of Submarines

ST. LUCIA, B.W.I., May 27—(Delayed)—(CP)—The United States destroyer Blakeley reached port here tonight after coming safely through an attack by a wolf pack of Axis submarines which precipitated a naval battle.

The Blakely, crippled by a torpedo in a first submarine attack off Martinique Monday, was making a 20-mile run from Fort de France, where she put in Monday, to this island under her own power when the enemy attacked.

The detailed outcome of this battle, other than the Blakelely's escape, has not been disclosed.

It was indicated that one or more German submarines had been destroyed by United States planes, but whether in this encounter or in earlier operations following the first attack on the Blakeley was not made clear.

Naval authorities have been aware that a submarine wolf pack was operating in this area, hence the multiple attack on the Blakeley was no surprise.

This made it impossible to identify any submarine destroyed as the one which made the first attack Monday, when a torpedo launched from within French territorial waters off Martinique crippled the destroyer, on regular patrol duty off the French island.

The Blakely is known to have suffered loss of six men killed and 12 wounded.

During her two-day stay in Fort de France, the port of Martinique, the Blakeley was tied up alongside the French aircraft carrier Bearn, which figures in current negotiations between the United States and the local Martinique authorities looking toward effective neutralization of the island.

Members of the destroyer's crew reported the French were most hospitable.

$50,000 Bonuses Handed Out To Avoid Tax

WASHINGTON, May 29—(AP)—The House of Representatives Naval Committee was informed yesterday that the Lincoln Electric Company of Cleveland, O., had handed out bonuses in 1941 ranging as high as $50,000, and that among them was one of $25,000 to a $4,121-a-year plant foreman.

Others running from $3,000 to $5,000 went to a $30 and $40-a-week employees it was testified.

Edmund Toland, counsel for the committee, declared that he was presenting the Lincoln case to demonstrate how there could be "evasion and avoidance" of the excess profits tax through the payment of bonuses, and said he would show the need for a 'ceiling" on such payments.

Toland identified the company as the leading manufacturer of welding equipment in the United States, and declared that "practically all" of its business in 1940 and 1941 was for the government.

In 1941, he told the committee in opening the hearing, the company's gross sales were $24,449,213 as compared with gross sales of $13,905,059 for 1940.

HIS LUMBAGO HAS NOT COME BACK

Keeps Free of It With Kruschen

There can be no doubt about the effectiveness of the remedy this man uses against lumbago. Read this letter:—

"About four years ago, I had a bad attack of lumbago. After being in hospital for two weeks taking heat treatment, I started taking Kruschen Salts. Since then, I am happy to say, I have not been troubled with lumbago. I shall still continue taking Kruschen to be sure the lumbago won't come back."—A. C. C.

Why is it that Kruschen is so effective in keeping lumbago at bay? Simply because it goes right down to the root of the trouble, and removes the cause, which is in an impure blood-stream. The six salts in Kruschen help to keep the blood-stream pure and vigorous by promoting a clockwork regularity of all the organs of elimination.

Kruschen is a British product, obtainable at all drug stores, 25c. and 75c.

Seventy-five Years

IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF A NATION AND A BANK

The Fathers of Confederation visualized a nation stretching from ocean to ocean.

On July 1st, 1867, the cornerstone of that nation was laid.

It comprised the four Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick—377,045 square miles of territory, with a population of 3,372,000.

To-day, 75 years later, the nine Provinces of the Dominion of Canada, stretching from sea to sea, cover 3,694,863 square miles and support over 11,000,000 people. To-day, also, the productive capacity of Canada is more than twenty times greater than in 1867.

In May 1867, a charter was granted to The Canadian Bank of Commerce. In the past 75 years this Bank has marched shoulder to shoulder with Canada. It has served many communities from their inception, providing the banking services required for the expansion of agriculture, industry, mining, lumbering and fishing.

Merchantman Opens Fire On Sub Flying Boat Delivers Death Blow

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, May 29 — (CP). — Lumbering merchant ships are no longer the easy targets for marauding submarines they once were. They are equipped to hit back now, and hitting back they are — with good effect too.

Daily the offensively-armed freighters and tankers ease into this port, a few showing signs of scrapes with underseas raiders but with more and more crews telling of having successfully battled off U-boat attacks.

One instance concerns a tanker, captained by a phlegmatic Dutchman, that steamed in here with a hole blown in her side. "We didn't even slow down when the torpedo hit us," the captain said, adding that after a two-hour running fight the U-boat was forced off.

Thought Easy Mark.

Another case has an English freighter as the victor. Thinking the heavily-laden ship was an easy mark, a German submarine surfaced, apparently planning to pound the boat under the waves with a salvo of shells.

But the guns of the merchantman opened fire first and the submarine limped away. Later a flying boat delivered the death blows to the sub.

Reason for this change from the early days of the war, when a merchant ship's safety lay only in her speed, are new weapons naval authorities have had placed on the ships. Guns are now mounted and anti-aircraft batteries poke skyward from vantage points.

Gun Crews Are Trained

Manning the guns are not only seamen but specially trained army men dressed in regulation army uniform. Once, such a berth was considered dangerous, but there are now in this port soldiers who have ben sailing on merchant ships for months—with the shooting all on the credit side of the ledger.

Another big factor on the lowered mortality rate among seamen is the catapult planes. Manned by expert Royal Air Force pilots, these planes are tossed into the air from the decks of the ships at the first sign of trouble and go out looking for the cause of it.

The pilots know their job—many of them have ribbons to prove they are the cream of the fighter crop. And their one joy, apparently, is unloading their guns into a surfaced submarine or marauding raiders.

Detecting Subs

Other weapons to protect merchant vessel have also been developed. Many are used to detect the presence of submarines; others are along offensive lines. Strictly of the "hush hush" variety, the only thing known about these weapons is that they are very effective.

All in all, great strides have been made in protecting merchant sailors from one-sided attacks. They still prefer to run—as their job is not to fight but to get their cargoes through—but when cornered, a merchant ship can now slug it out on a much more even basis.

Convict Fools Many Doctors

CHICO, Calif., May 28 —(AP)—A former convict, without medical training, who posed his way into a high position on a hospital staff and successfully performed major operations, pleaded guilty yesterday to practicing medicine without a licence.

The 47-year-old man then was arrested on a charge of having concealed weapons in violation of California's gun law and was held in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Listed as Arthur Osborne Phillips, he was identified by the arresting officer, Joseph W. Williams, special agent for the state board of medical examiners, as an ex-convict with prison records in Georgia, Alabama, Maryland, Idaho, New York and Pennsylvania.

Performed Operations

Williams said that Phillips, posing as Dr. James Herman Phillips, had fooled both doctors and patients with his ability to perform abdominal operations, unassisted, during the two months he has been assistant chief surgeon on the Enloe Hospital in Chico, one of the largest in this section of California.

Williams' suspicions were aroused by Phillips' practice of initialling his prescriptions. California law requires the doctor's full name.

Williams said Phillips operated with credentials belonging to Dr. James Herman Phillips, former army surgeon now in a Tennessee hospital. The ex-convict obtained these by pretending he was the real Dr. Phillips and claiming he had lost the documents, Williams said.

Phillips, who came to Chico only two months ago, was earning $250 a month as a hospital doctor and rapidly developing a private practice.

Corporal W. H. Kelly of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police testified that he had paid Glenesk $75 in connection with a higher ration category rating application.

Air Schools 9 Of 10 Private To Try New Basis

By E. G. SMITH

OTTAWA, May 28.—Air Minister C. G. Power last night announced "an offer for a new basis of operation" for ten air observers' schools throughout Canada.

In the past the ten schools have been operated by private companies, six of them subsidies of the Canadian Pacific Railway, under Government contracts. They have been capitalized at $50,000 each and a complex system of remuneration for the companies has been in effect.

In making the announcement of the new plan, Major Power said that nine of the ten companies have voluntarily offered to run their schools on a non-profit basis apart from 5 per cent. on their capital investments and to return to the Crown all profits which have accrued from their operations since the inception of the schools.

The lone exception is the No. 6 Air Observer School at Prince Albert, operated by Prince Albert Air Services, Limited, an independent company. In a return tabled in the House on request of John G. Diefenbaker, Conservative member for Lake Centre, it was reported that ths company made profits of $12,021 in forty-eight weeks.

Tribute To Companies.

"On paper the profits of the operating companies might at first glance appear to be large," Major Power said, "but they are really not at all impressive when other factors, such as Federal taxes, are taken into consideration. Actually the operators deserve the gratitude of the people of Canada for the national function they are fulfilling.

They have helped to make the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan the success it is today."

The statistical data in Major Power's report came to Parliament through the questioning of Mr. Diefenbaker, who was a member of the Parliamentary War Expenditures Committee which, in closed sessions, probed war expenditures a year ago.

The profits ranged from $47,331 for No. 1 School operated at Malton by Dominion Skyways (Training) Limited, a C.P.R. subsidiary, down to the $12,021 reported for the Prince Albert School.

Under the Government contracts, remuneration was provided the concerns operating the schools in four directions: a management fee of $2,700 per month; flying hour profits of one dollar, later reduced to 35 cents; 25 per cent of the net savings, if any, effected below a large price fixed monthly for operational or maintenance expense, and 5 per cent. on invested capital.

First 24 Weeks

On this basis, the report showed that Malton profits in the first 24 weeks period were as follows: Management savings, $7,418; flying hours profit, $5,750; bonus on savings, $5,035. Total $18,203.

For the second 24 weeks period the profits were: Management savings, $7,627; flying hours' profit, $8,318; bonus on savings, $1,182. Total, $17,128.

Additionally, this company paid its parent company out of the management fee, $12,000 to cover cost of skilled personnel, making a total profit, according to the analysis, of $47,331.

The nine air observers' schools which have agreed to operate on a non-profit basis are those at Malton, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie, Man.; Ancienne Lorette, Que.; St. Johns, Que., all operated by Canadian Pacific Airlines Limited, and those at London, Ont., operated by Leavens Brothers Training Limited; at Regina, operated by Prairie Airways Limited; and at Chatham, N.B., operated by Northumberland Flying Training Company.

Brazilian Plane Sinks Axis Sub

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 28 — (AP).—A high Brazilian source said today that one of the Axis submarines recently destroyed off the Brazilian coast was attacked and sunk by a Brazilian plane piloted by a Brazilian crew.

It was said that two American fliers first sighted and attacked the submarine off the northeast coast on the afternoon of May 23, at the same time calling for assistance from land-based Brazilian air force planes.

The Brazilian planes, arriving shortly, joined the attack and one of them sank the raider, the Brazilian informant said.

Brazil is not at war with Germany and Italy, although she has broken diplomatic relations with the Axis.

Youth Is Warned To Keep Payments Up

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 28 — The Brantford Welfare Department laid a charge under the Parents' Maintenance Act against a local youth. Administrator Albert Crabbe stated that a family had been on relief for over 10 years and when the youth became of age he went to work and left his mother, paying board at another home. Acting Crown Attorney E. R. Read, K.C., said the boy was making over $20.00 a week.

When ordered to pay his mother the sum of $5.00 a week the boy walked to her and offered his mother his metal badge that employees of war work firms are issued. "What do you mean by that," asked Magistrate R. J. Gillen. 'Ive got myself to keep," replied the youth.

"I'll look after you, if you don't keep those payments up," said the court as the youth walked out.

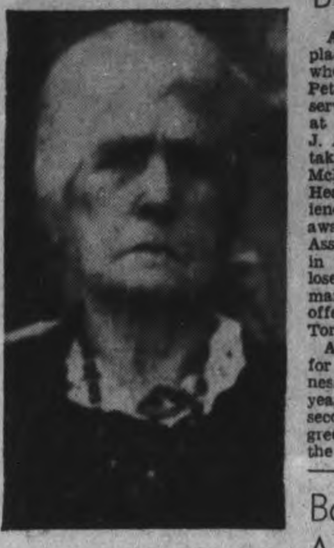
Oldest Campbellford Lady Mrs. Johnson Laid to Rest



MRS. J. B. JOHNSON

CAMPBELLFORD, May 29 (ENS) —Requiem mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church this morning for this town's oldest resident, Mrs. James B. Johnston, who passed away quietly at her home on Rear street on Monday. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Callaghan and was born in Marysville, Ontario, and had lived in this town for nearly fifty years. Had she lived till April 14th, 1943, she would have celebrated her one hundredth birthday. As a young girl Mrs. Johnston went to the United States where she married James B. Johnston, a veteran of the Civil War and railroad man, in the year 1867. They came to Canada early in the 1890's and after living in Belleville for three years, moved to Campbellford. He pre-deceased her in 1927.

Mrs. Johnston, whose father lived to the ripe age of 99, had enjoyed good health nearly all her life and her only serious illness up to the time of her death was the result of a fall she suffered on her 97th birthday. This rendered her inactive and the past two years saw her confined to her home where she, a devout Catholic, continued to maintain a keen interest in affairs of the day and also in the work of the Catholic Women's League of which she was a member.

Surviving her are one sister, Mrs. James Farrell, Rear street, and one brother, Myrt Callaghan of Edmonton. Evidence of the high esteem in which the deceased lady was held was seen in the many spiritual offerings. Rev. J. V. McAuley conducted the mass and interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. James McCann, Frank Lee, R. Cook, J. O'Sullivan, Jos. Kelleher, Pat Sarginson.

J. A. McKone, Host To Students Of Business College

This medal is awarded by the Business Educators' Association for speed and accuracy in typing. The school is sorry to lose Miss Heard, but due to her remarkable success she has been offered a remunerative position in Toronto.

A vote of thanks to Mr. McKone for his hospitality and thoughtfulness for the students throughout the year was moved by Mr. Paul Hickey, seconded by Miss Jean Garbutt and greeted with unanimous applause by the student body.

Minister Will Not Register C.W.V.S. After Steptember

The Hon. J. T. Thorson, who has refused to re-register the Canadian Women's Volunteer Services in Ontario in September, was questioned by the Conservatives in the House of Commons Thursday. G. K. Fraser, Conservative member for Peterborough West, asked for an explanation of the cancelling of the C.W.V.S. registration.

The War Services Minister replied that there was a good deal of confusion between the titles of the new government organization, The Women's Volunteer Services Division, and the Canadian Women's Volunteer Services. It was also thought, he stated, that it was not necessary to have either a national or provincial organization, but one organized on a community basis.

It was pointed out by G. K. Fraser that Mrs. W. E. West and her assistant, Miss Friede Held, of the Women's Volunteer Services division were being paid $4,800 and $3,000 a year respectively while the women of the C.W.V.S. gave their time for nothing.

Two of the leaders of the C.W.V.S. Miss Margaret Hyndhman, K.C. and Mrs. Murdoch MacKenzie went to Ottawa to work out a plan of co-operation with Mrs. West and they reported back to their Advisory Council that "after a long discussion Mrs. West apparently came to the conclusion that there was no place for our organization in the scheme of things.

"We have to be you, or you have to be us," was what Mrs. West said.

The local C.W.V.S. division has decided to await word from Ottawa as to the final decision reached before taking any action, Mrs. J. Wharry, leader, reported today.

The Peterborough C.W.V.S. has contributed a great deal to the war effort of the community, helping with the salvage, the Prince of Wales Rangers registration and in any other work where their services have been required. The organization came into being through a desire to further the war effort and strengthen civilian life.

Betty Kirn Weds William Turner

The wedding took place at 4.00 p.m. today of Elizabeth Irene Kirn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kirn, to William Erle Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Turner. The ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's parents under an archway banked with flowers, by the Rev. H. L. Roberts.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a street-length gown of romance blue lace with a matching hat in Queen Anne style. She carried a beautiful nosegay of Briarcliffe roses, lily of the valley, and gypsophilia.

After the ceremony a reception was held at which the bride's mother received wearing a gown of dusty rose with white accessories and a corsage of sweet peas and gypsophilia. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of olive green and white print, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and gypsophilia.

Later the bride and groom left on a short wedding trip. On their return they will live in Peterborough. For travelling the bride wore a redingote dress of blue and white print with white accessories.

With The Girl Guides

Guides and Brownies throughout Peterborough are praying for fine weather for Saturday, for they have planned a field day for all the companies and packs. Should it rain at any time between 7 a.m. and 2 p.m. there will be no field day, and it will be held the following week.

Here is the program the Games Committee has drawn up and all Guides and Brownies should clip this out of the paper so they will have a record of the events. All parents and friends are invited to witness the competitions, which will commence at 3:05 o'clock:

2:00 p.m.—Guides, Brownies and Guiders assemble in Victoria Park.
2:15 p.m.—Parade to Nicholls Oval.
3:00 p.m.—Official opening, Mrs. Allen, Division Commissioner.
3:05 p.m.—Brownie and Guide competitions and games.
4:30 p.m.—Individual Company and Pack displays.
5:30 p.m.—Parade to the field by the river.
5:45 p.m.—Flag break.
5:55 p.m.—Supper.
7:00 p.m.—Campfire and skits.
7:45 p.m.—Prize presentation.
8:00 pm.—Flag lowering.
8:05 p.m.—Taps.

I would urge all Guides and Brownies to bring something waterproof on which to sit, and also to bring a pair of rubber-soled, flat-heeled shoes for the events If the weather should be cool, wear a sweater under your uniform rather than wear a coat.

You will, of course, bring your own supper, which should be cold. First St. Andrew's Brownies have had to change their plans in regard to this. Instead of bringing 5 cents each to cover the cost of weiners to cook, as we had originally planned, each Brownie will have to bring her own picnic supper.

Any further information you may desire in regard to field day can be obtained from your own leaders.

The Scribe.

IN-LAW PROBLEM MENACES ALMOST EVERY MARRIAGE

Mother Should Not Visit Married Son Too Often or Wear Out Welcome.

No one will deny that the greatest danger that menaces almost every marriage is the in-law problem. Compared to her—for it is nearly always a case of female trouble—the philandering husband and the sloppy housekeeper wife are merely minor inconveniences. Mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law, who get in each other's hair, are first aid to the divorce court, and drown in their tears what should be happy marriages.

Why two noble Christian women, who are ladies, to boot, and who take the trouble to appease everybody else they know, should adopt guerrilla tactics in dealing with each other, nobody knows. Nor can anyone explain why the two women who love the same man and who desire his well-being do the one thing that they know destroys his peace and makes him most miserable. Neither can anyone see why two otherwise intelligent women do not perceive that the in-law relationship is whatever they make it, and that it can be either their greatest blessing or their worst curse.

These are mysteries hidden in the feminine psychology which the light of reason seldom penetrates, and the only remedy for the situation seems to be for every man to pick out a girl, who was a doorstepbaby, for his bride; but inasmuch as there are not enough of these to go around it does seem as if mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law should be able to negotiate some sort of a plan that would enable them to be friends instead of congenial enemies.

The mother-in-law, for instance, might camouflage joy, even if she doesn't feel it, when her son gets married. She might look more as if she were at a party and less as if she were attending his funeral at his wedding. She might welcome his bride with glad hosannas instead of treating her as if she were a thief who had somehow broken into her fold and stolen her innocent little pet lamb when she wasn't looking. Many a bride never recovers from the frost bite she got when she was introduced to her husband's family.

Can't Keep Son In Babyhood

And the mother-in-law might just as well face the fact that as much as she would like to she can't keep her son in a perpetual babyhood. By the time he gets along in his twenties he outgrows his rompers

Does Your Husband Think You Are a Good Cook?

By MARY MOORE

The ladies are really beginning to feel the squeeze now—I gave all the sugar we had to some guests out of town and my jar of peanut butter too. The sugar was easy because we use nothing but corn syrup and honey for sweetening (it's the patriot in me—for they are both 100% Canadian products.). In our community we still can get plenty of peanut butter too and it's one of the minor temptations of my lifetime to hoard a little but I'm committing myself herewith so I shan't be tempted again.

While we can get peanuts and peanut butter, be sure to serve them plentifully for it is chock full of Vitamin B and is a concentrated protein.

One of the ladies came for lunch on the same day she and her husband were invited for dinner. (He came from out of town to attend a convention.) I did not want to serve two "meat" meals.

Eggs in any form were too common to suit me so I resorted to the good old cheese file and found Cheese Croquettes—a dish I haven't eaten since my Grandmother used to "toss 'em" for us.

The aforementioned "squeeze" is apt to be felt for a long time on those delicious tid-bits of canned fish we used to tuck away at the back of the canned goods shelf. Such tasty morsels as Cheese Croquettes are going to have their place. All that training you've had in wielding a can-opener will have to be replaced by learning how to cook it yourself, this procedure will convince your husband you had hidden talent all the time!

Cheese Croquettes

One cup cheddar cheese, cut small, ½ cup grated cheddar cheese, 2-3 cup hot Thick White Sauce (see below), 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper. Make a hot sauce by melting 3 tablespoons fat, stirring in 3 tablespoons flour, and then 2-3 cup hot milk. When thick add dash of pepper and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stand over boiling water and stir in the egg yolks (unbeaten), then grated cheese. When cheese is melted (about 5 minutes) take from fire, fold in cut cheese, add salt and pepper. Taste to be sure it is well seasoned. Pour into greased pan to cool. Do not try to shape, but cut in squares or strips. Roll in beaten egg diluted with 2 tablespoons cold water, then in fine crumbs. Drop into deep fat (corn oil is cheapest and a Canadian product!) of 390 deg. Fahr. (bread cube browns in 40 seconds) and when underside is golden turn. Immediately remove to unglazed paper to drain and keep hot.

The sound of the name "Corn Fritters" sends a certain young member of our family into ecstasies. I think they are almost as good as Roast Beef and Yorkshire Pudding too.

Emem's Corn Fritters

Two cups corn, fresh or canned, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon melted fat, ½ cup milk, 1⅓ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking-powder. To the corn add salt, pepper, well-beaten eggs, melted fat, milk, flour and baking-powder. Fry two to three minutes in deep fat (370 deg. Fahr.) turning once. Drain and keep hot on unglazed brown paper.

McDonald Scotch Woodcock

(There are many of you who are quick enough to see this is a find. A restaurant in a very large city is serving it to office girls so fast they can't keep up with the orders between 12 and 1 noon.)

One tablespoon butter ½ tablespoon minced onion, ½ cup chopped celery, 2 cups tomato pulp, ¼ teaspoon salt, 5 eggs, beaten, dash of cayenne. Cook together 15 minutes all ingredients but the eggs. Add eggs stir in well, cook until eggs are set but not hard (about 5 minutes).

Scotch Woodcock traditionally uses a spread of Anchovy Paste instead of butter on the toast—but that was in pre-war days. This recipe does very well without the anchovies.

You will note that all these recipes so far are meatless, but this is not my sole purpose—I think meat's grand food, but I do want you to broaden your cooking horizon and if you learn how to make croquettes with a nice soft centre and crisp crust unsoaked by fat go farther and try Meat Croquettes too for I think (and Rector does to!) that they are an ideal form in which to utilize the last few ounces of your Sunday roast.

Meat Croquettes

One and one-half cups any minced or chopped cooked meat—veal or ham or roast fresh pork are best, 1½ cups thick white sauce (twice the recipe given in Cheese Croquettes above) eggs and crumbs. Mix meat into well-seasoned white sauce, then dip in egg and crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 390 deg. Fahr. turning once when underside is golden. Drain and keep hot on unglazed brown paper.

NOTE: I have a good recipe here for Parsnip Fritters that I think tops all methods of serving parsnips. Also more of these entree dishes you might like: chicken croquettes, veal croquettes, meat balls fried in deep fat and served with peach halves or pineapple slices, tomato and rice croquettes, eggs Benedict. If you would like me to print these, write to me in care of this paper.

QUESTION: I always read your page in the Examiner each week, and have gotten several helpful recipes from it. I noted your recipe for tapioca custard pudding, and while I have not tried it yet, I am writing to ask a question. Several years ago I lived with an aunt of mine, she used to make a very delicious tapioca cream pudding but just how it was made I never found out. It was made with the pearl tapioca and milk and eggs but what I have never been able to do is to have the pudding so that the tapioca is whole and round and not sticky and all in mass. Each ball was separate and when made with the eggs and milk was very delicious. Do you know how this may be accomplished? Thanking you for your many helpful hints. Mrs. James Fairy.

ANSWER: The recipe we gave gives the results you describe, each grain is separate. The popularity of this pudding has revived to such an extent that a famous delicatessen counter that you all know is selling ten quarts of it per day. To forestall further enquiries I'll repeat the method.

Tapioca Custard Pudding

One-third cup pearl tapioca, 2¼ cups milk, 2 eggs, 1-3 cup sugar or 2-3 cup corn syrup ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Wash the tapioca; soak several hours or overnight in cold water to cover completely. When ready to cook drain, and add milk and cook in top of double boiler over boiling water until tapioca is clear to the centre of each pearl. Then beat the eggs and add the sugar or syrup to them, salt and then pour the hot mixture over them slowly, stirring. Return all to double boiler and cook for about 5 minutes, to thicken egg. Remove from heat and add flavoring. This may be served hot or cold, but is usually preferred cold served with cream or strawberry or pineapple juice.

QUESTION: Some time ago you referred to the waffle recipe your uncle from the South left you. It contains too many eggs for me. What we do seem to have too often is sour cream (we are dairy farmers). Could you print a recipe for waffles using fewer eggs and some sour cream. I am humoring my husband in this as we have a new waffle iron and since he has to get his own lunch I make it as easy as possible for him by making the batter in the morning and all he has to do is bake them. I like your economical ideas and am trying to save all the vegetable waters. Peggy Montrose.

ANSWER: He's a lucky man to have such a helpful wife.

Sour Cream Waffles:

Two eggs, 2 cups sour cream, 2 cups flour, 1 tablespoon corn-meal, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt. Beat whites and yolks of the eggs separately. Mix with beaten yolks the cream flour, corn-meal, soda and salt, and finally the egg-whites beaten until stiff. Bake at once on a hot waffle iron.

Write again when we can be of help.

WAR... CANADA'S GREATEST INDUSTRY

Starting from scratch—without factories, without trained personnel, without blue-prints — Canada's scant twelve million people have built a tremendous armament industry.

Guns, tanks, motorized vehicles, planes, ships, small arms, explosives—equipment of every kind—are today in mass production. We have created a navy of 400 ships. We have equipped fighting forces of 450,000 men. We have played the major role in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, one of the greatest schools for fighting airmen the world has ever seen.

Such in broad outline is Canada's proud record. Much more remains to be done. Still greater effort, still greater self-denial must be the solemn pledge of all till victory is won.

This advertisement is published as a contribution to the general knowledge of our country's war effort and as an inspiration through the days ahead. For reasons of security complete figures are not available. The facts presented however, are impressive evidence of the growing might of Canada's war machine.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS . . . .

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

THE PLOT THICKENS

CHAPTER XVI

"You are William Talcott?"

"Yes."

"You are the manager at Abas Island?"

"I was. I have been relieved and am on my way back to New York."

"But you were in charge when the launch left the Island?"

"Yes."

"How long was Sebastien in your employ?"

"Five years. He came to us from San Juan to operate the distillation apparatus. I made him foreman three years ago."

"Did he have any enemies that you know about "

"No."

"Can you tell us where he got the stab wound in his arm?"

"Yes. The night before last a smuggler named Jackson attempted to land on Abas and we attempted to stop him."

"Jackson!" The chief of police became apoplectic. "Is he mixed up in this?"

"I don't know."

The chief appraised the group with a sour eye. "Which of you is Miss Paterson?"

She stepped forward. Smartly attired, she was, in a suit of gabardine, a flaring blue bonnet confining her ash blond hair. Cool and self-possessed, with not the slightest tremor betraying her emotion.

"You were one of the guests on Abas Island and a passenger on the launch. You arrived at two o'clock this morning. After clearing customs, where did you go?"

"Miss Swenson and I went to the home of my friends near Estate Cantante."

"Were you a witness to the attempted landing of the self-styled 'Captain Jackson' on Abas Island?"

"Yes."

"Would you say that the results were successful "

"No. After one of the crew struck Mr. MacDowell, Mr. Halsey grabbed a pistol and forced them to return to the schooner."

The chief scowled. "Mr. Halsey, I understand you and Professor Constantine spent the remainder of the night at the Grand. Did you go there directly after clearing customs?"

"Yes."

"Did you at any time during the night or this morning see any of Jackson's crew in Charlotte Amelie?"

"I can't say that I did. Things happened rather fast down there, you know. I doubt if I would recognize anyone outside of Jackson himself."

"Would you say that Jackson had sufficient desire to get even by knifing this man?"

"It would be possible, yes."

The chief quieted an uprising in his liver. "We have every reason to believe that Jackson was here last night. He left his calling card, a dozen natives smuggled in from Tortola. It is just possible also that he despatched a man to take care of the unfinished business of Abas Island. As I understand it, you are all passengers on the Blue Petrel. I see nothing to prevent your departure."

So it was over. Jackson's name had done it. Guilty or not, his reputation was enough. If they ever catch him, Talcott thought grimly, they'll hang him to the Postoffice flagpole before they start their investigation.

But it couldn't have been Jackson or any of his men who had murdered Sebastien. If it was revenge they wanted, they would have taken it on him or Halsey. And after unloading his freight Jackson wasn't one to stick around. No. Of one thing only was bill Talcott positive: The murder was directly connected with his frameup and the intrigue on Abas Island.

June Paterson came to him as they were leaving. Her hand rested on his arm, and softly she said. "I'm sorry, Bill. You were very fond of him, weren't you?"

He didn't answer. His eyes, hard and fathomless, were on Halsey. For he, despite his worldliness, was acting most strangely. Pulling away to walk by himself. Jumping at shadows. Scared that was it. Did he know more than he wanted to, or was he beginning to have misgivings about his auditor friend Struthers? Whatever it was, the man was frightened to death.

Talcott checked out at Hotel 1829, refused one of the proprietor's famed planter's punches, and with MacDowell rode to West India Wharf. MacDowell had changed: Wasn't cocksure any more. He kept his thoughts silent behind a puzzled face, and once on board the Blue Petrel, disappeared in the throng of basket-laden passengers.

Talcott sought a lonely spot forward, his mind filled with fat, faithful Sebastien. The man had feared violence and death, had offended no one. Yet a covert knife-thrust had finished him while in sleep under the stars he loved. Why had he been killed?

He recalled the words of the quiet, grey-eyed man. Sinister suggesting a web reaching out across the blockaded European Continent to envelop Abas in its toils. Intrigue for the control of a tiny, smelly speck in Anegada Passage. Not for nitrates alone. Something bigger. Some enterprise that could be carried on under the guise of a legitimate American business. Right under the guns of the destroyers at Saint Thomas. Right under the nose of Old Man Winters.

Why had Sebastien been killed? Were the plotters prepared to remove everyone of authority so that their work could be carried on unhindered? It didn't make sense. Surely Struthers must know that as soon as Bill Talcott reached New York all hell would break loose. The frameup would dissolve in thin air. But was it so simple as that? Had Struthers purposely played up the obvious so that his true machinations would go undetected until too late?

Halsey had the auditor's report. Perhaps in that report Talcott would find what he was fighting. Those carefully worded pages must contain more than a charge of shortage and payroll padding. For now sudden, violent death was in the cards; murder had become a part of the hand.

Talcott's eyes turned from the long concrete wharf. In five days he would be in New York. What awaited him there he could not fathom. He'd be sure of himself when Struthers, he thought, was playing a lone dangerous game. Now—

"Have you seen Halsey?"

"Eh?" He turned, startled, to confront Professor Constantine. So deep in thought had he been he hadn't heard the odd little man's approach. "Oh, Halsey? Can't say that I have."

The Professor clutched tighter to a voluminous book and transferred a bottle of pills to his left hand. "I thought he was right behind me. He complained of a headache so I secured this aspirin— Likable chap, isnt he? Pure Nordic. Very reliable —I do hope he doesn't miss the boat."

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, May 30

Perplexities and problems dominate so many activities of this day that it may be set down as doubtful. However, there may be much of a pleasant and productive nature in purely personal and social relations and there is some hope of overcoming adverse conditions by ignoring them for greater values. There may be little to expect from recognition or support from those in high places although friendly or more intimate ties may spell success.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter contradictory situations, in which problems and perplexities may have to be solved by personal prestige, efficiency and influence rather than business acumen. Some in important positions may be inclined to opposition or antagonism, but the friendship or cordiality may be used to advantage with others. There should be happiness and good comradeship, with festivity and warmth.

A child born on this day should have much ability and efficiency perhaps of an intellecutal, professional, cultural or social nature rather than business sagacity.

Remembrance keeps him near.
—Ever remembered by Wife and Family.

CLARK.—In memory of James Sylvester Clark, who died two years ago today, May 29, 1940.

Gone, dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Lovingly remembered by his son, Fred and Family.

and having Mother hold him by the hand and pick out his little playfellows for him, and he wants to start out on his own; and, no matter how much Mother weeps over his little shoes and his little red tricycle, he can't go back to them. There are other interests, other people in his life, and it is then that Mother will have to decide whether she shall share him with his wife, or lose out altogether.

Mother-in-law might well and profitably do a little remembering when her son gets married and recall how she felt as a bride, how she wanted to monopolize her husband's every thought and interest, how jealous she was of any interference of her authority, how determined she was to do her own way, how absolutely certain she was that she knew all the answers.

Remembering these things, mother-in-law will never go to live with her daughter-in-law as long as there is an Old Ladies Home left in the community. She will never even visit John and his wife too often or stay long enough to wear out her welcome. She will never criticize daughters-in-law's housekeeping or tell how she used to do things. And when the babies come, she will let their mother rear them according to the Baby Book and not by the way grandmother says she reared hers.

Suggestions For Happiness

If mother-in-law has the courage and the ability to keep her tongue behind her teeth and her fingers out of daughter-in-law's pies, daughter-in-law's suspicions will die down and her animosity perish, and she will take mother-in-law into her heart.

And on her part, if the daughter-in-law will try as hard to sell herself to her mother-in-law as she did to mother-in-law's son, she will make a friend who will stand by her and back her up in all her arguments with her husband and be a help in every time of trouble. It is much easier for a daughter-in-law to make friends with her mother-in-law than it is for the mother-in-law to make friends with the daughter-in-law, for every woman knows that whether she keeps her son or loses him when he marries depends upon whether her daughter-in-law likes her or not.

And as the mother-in-law should do a little backward thinking in her treatment of her daughter-in-law, the daughter-in-law should do a little forward thinking to a time when the curly-headed little baby boy on her breast will be taking to himself a wife, and that she will treat her mother-in-law as she hopes her son's wife will treat her.

Not a Grateful Soldier

Dear Dorothy Dix.—When I was a girl I saw a young man fall overboard from a boat. He was struck by some object he caught hold of as he fell and was stunned and would have drowned except that I plunged into the water and saved him. He never even thanked me for doing so, perhaps never realized that I had done it.

Then he was a soldier. Today he is a great general. Do you think I should die without letting him know I am still alive and remember him and the occurrence?—Mrs. A. T. C.

Answer.—As long as you are both old people there would be no harm in recalling yourself to him. But my experience is that people do not like to be reminded of past favors. Evidently graciousness was not one of the Generals' outstanding characteristics.

"Nerves" Can Be Changed Into Assets

Energy Needs Proper Direction

Squabbles in public—no wonder John and Mary can't keep friends. They get on each other's nerves and "blow up" at the most inopportune times. Yet they could be happy together, a charming pair—if they would learn to use their nervous energies constructively.

Instead, Mary frets over every trifle—John overbids his hand, the laundry's late. The least thing upsets her emotionally.

What Mary needs is an absorbing interest in her life. If she'd take over the leadership of the girls' club in her neighborhood she'd soon forget petty annoyances—become cheerful, vital, a pleasant companion.

"Speed-up" is John's middle name. It's rush to work, rush through lunch—no wonder he fumes and fusses, blowing up at the least provocation.

Learn to let down a little, John. Get enough sleep. Take time to enjoy your meals.

You'll do a better job, be a better "pal" if you and Mary would get out in the air, play games and take walks!

In our 32-page booklet a famous physician tells ways to control "nerves" to achieve serenity and vitality. Explains psychological causes of "nerves," also how to diet and exercise to gain radiant health.

For your copy of "Overcoming 'Nerves' and Everyday Health Problems" send 15 cents in stamps or coins to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T COVER BLINDLY

ANY GOOD bridge teacher will take a healthy wallop at the old Whist maxims upon every possible occasion. "Always cover an honor with an honor" is probably the worst of these when mis-applied to Bridge. A better revision would be: "Never cover an honor with an honor unless the apparent situation makes it seem that doing so will enable your pair to take more tricks than if you did not cover it."

North: ♠ 7 6 5 3 ♥ J 8 7 5 ♦ 10 8 ♣ K 6 5

West: ♠ 9 4 ♥ K 10 ♦ Q 5 3 ♣ Q 10 9 8 7 3

East: ♠ A K Q 10 ♥ 9 4 3 ♦ J 7 4 ♣ A J 2

South: ♠ J 8 2 ♥ A Q 6 2 ♦ A K 9 6 2 ♣ 4

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	3 NT

It was really a shame to watch North on this deal, an old-time Whist player, use his obsolete weapon to the disadvantage of his own side. He was just as badly clipped as if he attacked a machine gun nest with a slingshot, crossbow, scimitar or blunderbuss. After he led the diamond 10 for South to take the A and K, and West captured the third diamond, the stage was set for his lapse.

West led the club Q, and North, without a moment's thought, but impelled by force of habit, put on the K, which was dropped by the A. West now had nothing to do but run the rest of the clubs and spades for a total of eleven consecutive tricks.

After the deal, North explained that he thought he might set up a possible club 10 in his partner's hand by covering the Q. For that to be possible, however, South would have had to hold three clubs, in which case West would have had only four, and so probably would not have led the suit, but very likely something else.

With the more probable situation which existed, North should have foreseen that he almost surely could have blocked the suit by holding up the K. West would have thrown dummy's J under his Q, next would have led his 10, North ducked again, and the K would have locked West then in the dummy on the third club. The spades could have been run, but they would have brought West's total to only eight tricks. When he then led the heart toward the K, South could have taken the A plus two diamonds, beating the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A J 10 ♥ K Q 9 7 4 ♦ A K 2 ♣ 8 3

West: ♠ Q 8 7 6 ♥ 10 6 3 2 ♦ Q J ♣ A 10 7

East: ♠ 9 5 4 3 ♥ 8 5 ♦ 9 8 ♣ K Q 9 6 2

South: ♠ K 2 ♥ A J ♦ 10 7 6 5 4 3 ♣ J 5 4

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If North and South bid both hearts and diamonds before South gets into 3-No Trumps, what far-fetched reason might West have for preferring a lead of clubs to spades?

Only a Coincidence

TOWSON, Mo., May 29J—(AP).—There was plenty of excitement yesterday when the air raid alarm wailed and three bombers roared overhead. Civilian defence officials explained it was only by coincidence that the bombers happened along when a repairmen working the air raid signal system got some wires crossed.

HARD BRITISH COUNTER HOLDS HUN OFF TOBRUK

CAIRO, May 30 (AP)—British armored and motorized forces heavily counter attacked a steel spearhead of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's command about 20 miles southwest of Tobruk yesterday and many Axis tanks have been destroyed in fierce fighting, British general headquarters said today.

"More hard fighting must be expected," a communique said.

British forces counter-attacked "in the neighborhood of Knightsbridge and west of Acroma," it was announced, referring to an re^ lying between the Tobruk defences and the 50-mile-long Ain el Gazala-Bir el Hacheim line to the west, which Rommel chose to outflank rather than challenge directly in his drive launched Tuesday.

R.A.F. bombers, flanked by the fighters, kept up their intensive battering of the Axis tank forces and a communique announced that many of Rommel's armored vehicles had been smashed or left stranded in the desert.

Over the broad battle area British fliers fought with German and Italian pilots for control of the air.

The R.A.F. announced seven Axis aircraft destroyed yesterday and reported the loss of 12 of its own planes, but this loss included widespread operations extending to Sicily as well as over the desert.

Essentially, the major fighting apparently was at the heart of a triangle formed by three British strong points, the Mediterranean ports of Ain el Gazala and Tobruk and the desert oasis settlement of Bir Hacheim. British headquarters said it was "east of our main positions."

"Further south, our tank units, in close co-operation with the R.A.F., scored successes against enemy transport columns moving northwards (around Bir Hacheim) to join the enemy armored forces.

"Our mobile columns operating north and northwest of Bir Hacheim attacked enemy lines of supply and troops endeavoring to protect these."

Coast Road Shelled

Axis tanks shelled a coastal road northeast of Acroma from a nearby escarpment and "the enemy made an abortive attack along the coast road against our extreme northern flank," it was announced.

"It is known that many tanks have already been destroyed," the communique reported, adding it was not possible yet to assess casualties in the wide-spread operations."

With units of tank forces operating like fleets of warships on the vast, open land ocean of the desert south of Tobruk, there still was no clear indication of the outcome.

Tobruk itself which has come to be recognized as the immediate aim of the Axis, apparently still was safe as a British barrier to an Axis thrust into Egypt and the trend of the battle was giving British Headquarters new optimism.

Although the far-ranging operations, surging back and forth over hundreds of square miles of desert, held peril to both sides, Headquarters regarded the situation so far as satisfactory.

The R.A.F.'s apparent ability to retain mastery of the air over Libya in the face of the Axis drive also is encouraging. The R.A.F. is operating in close co-operation with the British tank units slashing at the Axis supply lines.

Heavy Night Raids Cost 13 Bombers

Convoy Off Frisians Set Ablaze
Huns Lose 7 Over U.K.

LONDON, May 30—(CP).—Striking heavily for the third time in two months at the same target, a strong force of British bombers raided an important group of factories of Gennevilliers, ten miles from the heart of Paris, during a night of widespread air activity, the Air Ministry announced today.

The ministry said that 13 bombers are missing after the night's operations—seven of the Bomber Command and six of the Coastal Command.

An enemy convoy off the Frisian Islands, north of the German coast, also was attacked. The Air Ministry said a number of supply ships were hit and set on fire.

With a full moon shining, the German Air Force stepped up its attacks on Britain again, but authoritative sources said seven planes of some 50 enemy bombers were destroyed.

There were casualties, including some deaths, but only slight damage was reported.

The raid on the factories at Gennevilliers was the first on war plants producing for Germany since Manneheim was bombed ten nights ago.

It was the sixth R.A.F. assault on industries in the Paris area in less than three months. Result of the raid was not given.

The Air Ministry also announced that docks at Cherbourg and Dieppe were bombed, mines were laid in, enemy waters and planes blasted railways and set fire to six freight trains near Lens in Northern France.

The Air Ministry said the enemy was producing important war materials at the Gnome-Rhone aero-engine works the former Goodrich rubber works and other manufacturing plants of Gennevilliers.

Canucks Scrape Masts In Attack

LONDON, May 30—(CP Cable).—Five Canadian squadrons flew with the R.A.F. in attacks on factories near Paris and on a convoy off the Frisian Islands last night.

Crews from squadrons commanded by Wing Commanders Johnny Fulton, Kamloops, B.C.; D. A. R. Bradshaw, London, Ont.; and A. C. P. Clayton, Vancouver, took part in the raid on the Gnome-Rhone engine

Reds Wreck 54 Tanks Single Battle

Kill 2,000 In South, Donets Bend Still Holds Firmly

MOSCOW, May 30 —(AP)—The Russians announced today that Soviet forces had knocked out 54 German tanks and killed about 2,000 Germans in new engagements still apparently dominated by the Izyum-Barvenkova sector fighting south of Kharkov.

The Red Army detachment destroyed 27 German tanks and about three companies of enemy infantry (perhaps 600 men) on a southwestern front sector, the Soviet information bureau said. The exact site was not announced.

Leningrad front troops "wiped out 400 Nazi officers and men and destroyed several guns and heavy machine-guns and a number of blockhouses and dugouts."

A Soviet armored force, lashing savagely against fresh German attacks in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector, destroyed 12 Nazi tanks and killed 300 enemy troops in a fresh phase of a battle now 11 days old, it was announced.

The Soviet information bureau announced that both tank and infantry assaults were again beaten off in the Donets River bend salient south of Kharkov, saying frankly the Russians were engaged in "defensive operations."

Red army gunners and airmen were credited with destroying 13 German aircraft in two days and Red Navy forces chalked up the sinking of two more Axis vessels in the Barents Sea—a 12,000-ton transport and an 800-ton trawler.

Kalinin front troops have liberated several settlements and killed 700 Germans, the midnight communique said.

The situation south of Kharkov, Nazi-held steel centre 400 miles south of Moscow, was again covered in general terms: "Nothing of significance took place in other sectors of the front."

Where Planes Count

CHUNGKING, May 30 —(AP).—Airman of the American volunteer group blasted strong Japanese positions west of the Salween River "with marked success" yesterday in a bombing and machine-gun assault, a communique said today.

"All bombs were seen to fall within the target area," the communique said.

All planes returned to their base.

John Barrymore Stage, Screen, Radio Star Dies

HOLLYWOOD, May 30.—(AP)—Gay, debonair John Barrymore, who lived life to the utmost and gave scant heed to the consequences, is dead.

The 60-year-old star of the stage, screen and radio, whose life was spent in the white glare of publicity, was almost alone when the end came at 10:20 p.m., P.D.T. (1.20 a.m. E.D.T.) last night. Only his medical attendants and his brother, Lionel, were with him when John crossed the border into death from the coma in which he had lain for hours.

In his last days Barrymore re-embraced the faith of his birth. His physician, Dr. Hugo M. Kersten, said he had been given the last sacraments by Rev. John O'Donnell, pastor of a little Roman Catholic church not far from the Hollywood Presbyterian hospital where Barrymore died.

Dr. Kersten said the immediate cause of death was nyocarditis, a heart ailment, complicated by chronic nephritis, cirrhosis of the liver and gastric ulcers.

Collapsed On the Set

Barymore, who had been frequently ill in recent years, suffered his final collapse May 19. He appeared at a broadcasting studio for rehearsal that night, his face contorted with pain. He came from his dressing room when the rehearsal was about to start, then staggered backward, tears of pain starting from his eyes.

To Rudy Vallee, who rushed to his aid, Barrymore said:

"I guess this is one time I miss my cue."

In a hospital ante-room when the end came was his daughter, Diana Barrymore, born of his marriage to Michael Strange, writer.

Barrymore once told a friend that every second of his life was an interesting experience, and his antics, on stage and off, bore him out. He was married four times, made fortunes and spent them, had a national reputation as a wit and was regarded as one of the most competent actors of his time.

He was an unpredictable man, sometimes aloof and reserved, then roguish and jovial. He was a favorite of newspapermen, to whom he was almost invariably cordial.

John is survived by his brother Lionel, his sister Ethel, and three children, Diana and Dolores Ethel Mae Barrymore, 12, and John Blythe Barrymore, 10, born of his marriage to Dolores Costello. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Married Men Call Up Nearing Fast

Army Scraping Bottom Of Available Single Men Up To 35

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 30.—(CP)—With mobilization authorities apparently scraping near the bottom of the pool of available single men of prime military age, the time draws nearer when married men may be called up for compulsory military service.

War Service Minister Thorson told the House of Commons Thursday that the Government will "very soon" start calling up single men up to 35 years of age.

That decision, reached only two months after the callable age limit was lifted from 25 to 30, is taken to indicate the army will get comparatively few men from the 25 to 30 age group and fewer still can be expected from the 30 to 35 age group.

The decision to call single men up to 35 instead of married men in their 20's indicates the government is postponing the calling of married men as long as possible since, other things being equal, the army prefers men in their 20's to those over 30.

The age classes now subject to call are men born between 1912 and 1921, single or widowers without children. The extension forecast by Mr. Thorson will make men born from 1907 to 1921 subject to call.

Wide Field Open

As the draft enters the higher age groups, however, it touches a field in which a larger proportion of men were married prior to July, 1940, the deadline set for marriage insofar as it affects a man's status under the mobilization regulations.

It also runs into a class of men in which larger proportion is physically unfit for service or occupying key positions in essential industries.

The national registration of 1940 showed some 260,000 single men in the 25 to 30 age group and 115,000 in the 30 to 35 age group. The number starts at 56, in the 25-year group and drops year by year as the age goes up until there were only 20,000 in the 35-year group.

Thus, at the time of the registration there were just over 375,000 potential unmarried draftees in the 25 to 35 age groups. Approximately half of these according to past experience, will prove medically unfit. Then, large numbers of men in these groups have enlisted and will not be available for call. Another large number will be farmers and farm laborers or otherwise eligible for postponement under present regulations. Others will be found in essential jobs.

They Hadn't Heard

WINDSOR, Ont., May 30 (CP).—Several members of the British Empire's fighting forces who attempted to enter the United States through Windsor following a report from Fort Erie, Ont., that border regulations governing men in uniform had been relaxed, were turned back to Canada here today. Immigration authorities at Detroit told them they had not heard of any changes in regulations.

Doctor Blamed In Four Fatal Cases

HAMILTON, May 30 —(CP)—A coroner's inquiry into four 'hospital table deaths ended to-day with the jury saying in its verdict that "in our opinion the anaesthetist appeared to have lacked the ability to recognize the danger symptoms in time to take the necessary measures to prevent death."

The jury, which required 75 minutes to reach its verdict, added: "This may be the result of some physical condition which has affected him in the last year after an apparently long period of successful practice as an an anaesthetist."

Evidence at the inquiry before Coroner Dr. D. G. McIlwraith showed that the anaesthetist in all four cases was Dr. Leslie M. Jones.

Ordered by the Ontario attorney-general's department after consultation with Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch, the inquiry was originally into the death of Mrs. Martha Ann Pond, 53, of Jarvis, Ont., in St. Joseph's Hospital last May 14. It was broadened to include the deaths in General Hospital of Andrew Gilmour, 53, AC2 Samuel E. Rozell, Jr., 20, and Mrs. Eva Margaret Lucas, 38.

Gilmour died May 3, 1941, Rozell last Oct. 31 and Mrs. Lucas last March.

The jury found that Mrs. Pond "came to her death from collapse of the lungs occurring under the anaesthetic during a surgical operation and possibly caused by a personal reaction or exceptional sensitivity to the gases used and that this appears also to have been the cause of the death of Eva Margaret Lucas."

"In the case of Samuel E. Rozell, Jr., and Andrew Gilmour, deaths seem to have been due to cause other than anaesthesia," the jury said.

Evidence started with details of Gilmour's death from Dr. William J. Deadman, pathologist at the hospital, who attributed death to shock after a three-hour lung operation.

"I could not put this death down as the result of anaesthetic," he said in reply to a question.

Heydrich Hangs On As Executioners Slay 10 More Czechs—18 Norse For 2

NEW YORK, May 30—(AP).—The B.B.C. relayed a report today that "10 more Czechs" had been executed in Prague and said it had been established that 18 Norwegian hostages were killed in reprisal for the death of two Germans in a fishing village near Bergen. C.B.S. recorded the B.B.C. broadcasts.

It is possible that the "10 more" executions at Prague duplicated earlier figures. If not it raised the total of reported firing squad reprisals for an attempt on the life of Deputy Reich's Protector Reinhard Heydrich to 28.

"Heydrich himself still seems to be in a bad way," B.B.C. said, "and most reports agree that he's unlikely ever to make a complete recovery."

On the Norwegian situation, B.B.C. quoted a Stockholm correspondent as saying that puppet Premier Quisling "has now forbidden Norwegian newspapers to give details when people die in Gestapo's prison camps."

"It is suggested that this new rule is a sequel to the outcry that followed an Oslo paper's story of how a well-known Norwegian teacher died because of his rough treatment when being transported to the Arctic Circle in a prison ship," the correspondent was quoted.

All those killed so far were residents of Bruenn, in southern Czecho-Slovakia. Four were women.

Just One Charge.

The same accusation was made against them all—that they harbored 'people known to have participated in activities against German authorities.' Their possessions were confiscated.

The other four, who apparently have not yet faced the rifle squads, include one woman said to be Jewish.

They were doomed on charges that they 'were found in possession of firearms although they had known that by concealing firearms they had made themselves liable to be sentenced to death.'

Although reports circulated last night that Heydrich had died of wounds inflicted upon him near Prague Wednesday, there was no confirmation.

An Italian news agency dispatch from Prague just before midnight last night said he was in a critical condition.

(A B.B.C. report quoting Stockholm sources said Heydrich had received a blood transfusion. The re-

NEW YORK, May 31 — (AP) — Madeline Webb, who will be 29 in three days, will spend this birthday and probably the rest of her birthdays in jail, as the penalty for taking part in a murder that netted $13.

A jury convicted her last night of first degree murder in the March 4 robbery-slaying of Mrs. Susan Flora Reich, but recommended mercy—that meant life imprisonment.

All her moans—"Please, Judge, I didn't do it, please"—could not shake the verdict.

76 P.C. Vote Free Trade

Canadians Want No Post-War Barriers With U.S.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(CP). — The magazine Fortune in its June number, out yesterday, carries an elaborate analysis of opinion in Canada and the United States which, it says, shows that 60.7 per cent. of the Canadian public believes the British Empire and the United States after the war should agree to fight for each other if either is attacked.

In the Canadian group, covered by mailed questionnaires, 14.6 per cent. voted for the formation of one country to include the Empire and the United States.

On other questions 76.3 per cent. of the Canadians who participated voted for free trade between Canada and the United States, while 72.9 expressed belief in free immigration between the two countries.

The Americans questioned were broken down into three groups, the public, a large group of prominent business leaders and a selected group of intellectual leaders.

On the question of the United States and the Empire agreeing to fight for each other, Americans voted in favor: Public 36.6, business leaders 46.8, intellectual leaders 47.4.

Kharkov Hinges on Von Bock at Donets

Capturing Passages Over River Could Cut Red Retreat, Undo Soviet Plan

Written for The Canadian Press by MAJ.-GEN. SIR CHAS. GWYNN.

LONDON, May 30—(CP Cable).—While Marshal Semeon Timoshenko and Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock are engaged in a great clash which is highly critical for both sides on the Russian front, Field Marshal Edwin Rommel has renewed Germany's attempt to advance in Libya.

On each front it is too early to form definite conclusions. In Libya it has yet to be proved that the German move has anything more than a local objective, but a clash of armored formations occurred quickly in the Bir Hacheim district.

Rommel's opening move seems to have been a wide sweep into the desert following the now customary method of attempting to outflank the strong British positions facing him. There is no doubt that the recent air attacks on Malta have enabled him to receive increased reinforcements, but it has yet to be proved that these are on a sufficient scale to enable him to make a prolonged and far-reaching offensive.

Von Bock's Aim

Timoshenko's Kharkov offensive after apparently having been brought to a standstill, is believed to have been at least partially renewed. His left flank, however, is still threatened by Von Bock's counter offensive striking northwards in the Izyum-Barvenkova region. Von Bock's aim undoubtedly is encirclement of the Russian forces in the wedge they have driven south of Kharkov, thus cutting off the retreat by capturing the passages over the Donets.

If the German attempt should succeed, Timoshenko would be forced to make a difficult retreat in which he certainly would have great losses and much of the disrupting effect on German plans which his offensive has achieved would be merely temporary. On the other hand, failure of Von Bock's attempt to achieve decisive results would have immensely important consequences. He has had to use reserves intended for other purposes and evidently has incurred heavy casualties in men and material in the intensive fighting of the last ten days, for which partial success would be no compensation.

Mexico's War Bills Pass

President Lacks Only Senate's Formal Move

MEXICO CITY, May 30—(AP).—Routine senatorial endorsements alone are needed by President Avila Camacho for a formal declaration of war upon the Axis powers and suspension of certain constitutional guarantees to combat 'espionage and fifth columnism."

Bills authorizing the President to declare war and granting him extraordinary powers passed the Chamber of Deputies unanimously last night, each by a 138-0 vote.

Almost simultaneously the most important Opposition Leader Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan—defeated by Avila Camacho in the turbulent 1940 election campaign—offered his services to the President "to defend my country wherever indicated."

Freedom of the press is one of 14 constitutional guarantees which would be abrogated for duration of the conflict brought on by submarine attacks upon Mexican merchant ships.

It is understood the President plans to deal directly with the numerous Nazi-inspired or pro-Nazi newspapers and magazines in Mexico which have been attacking the United Nations' cause here for months and even trying to undermine public confidence in the Government.

CONSCRIPTION FOR ACTIVE SERVICE MOVED WELL INTO FUTURE

Conscription Remote Cabinet Hints

Thorson, St. Laurent Both Indicate Present Setup Good

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, May 30 — (CP). — Declarations in the House of Commons by two Cabinet ministers appeared to-day to have moved the probability of conscription for service overseas well into the future.

War Services Minister Thorson told the House yesterday that "a strong case could be made" for maintaining the voluntary system of enlistments.

Justice Minister St. Laurent confirmed a report that he had written a constituent that "there is no intention for the time being to bring in conscription for overseas service."

Mr. Thorson's observation was made during a lively discussion of the War Appropriations Bill resolution in the course of which he said Canada was "isolationist" before the war and that he, personally, had held that attitude before the outbreak of hostilities.

In the discussion on compulsory service Mr. Thorson, who administers the National Resources Mobilization Act, said:

"I think a strong case can be made for the maintenance of the present (voluntary) system from the point of view of effectiveness of the war effort of this country....

"I think we will wish to use that method which will make the greatest contribution to the effectiveness of the war effort from the point of view of reality and not from that of theory."

These statements, coming on the eve of the debate on conscription, which is expected next week, were taken by some observers as indicating the policy the Government will reveal in that debate.

As soon as the War Appropriation Bill is passed, possibly early next week, Prime Minister Mackenzie King will move second reading of the National Resources Act Amending Bill which places in the hands of the Government power to conscript men for service in any theatre of war by proclamation.

50 Divorce Bills Speeded.

The house gave second reading to some 50 divorce bills after considerable debate over the manner in which divorce actions are handled. The Bills were referred from the Senate to the Private Bills Committee en bloc.

Conservative House Leader Hanson said Parliament should complete establishment of divorce courts

Compare Salaries Of Fire Departments

The salary of the Chief of the Fire Department exceeds $2,500 in only two of nine cities under review last night by the fire and light committee. They are Oshawa and Kitchener, the first paying $70 and the latter $370 more than the salary of Chief Gimblett.

The others are all under $2,500 as shown in the information garnered by correspondence with these comparable cities.

The salary paid to Deputy Chief Smith was the highest of all in that position of first lieutenant. Five of the nine captains are paid more than the relative salary in the Peterborough schedule. The salary of mechanics is higher in three of the nine cities.

A group of the firemen wrote the council for an increase of $200 in salary. The committee's report will be before the council Monday night.

Woman Is Injured So Husband Fined

A few days ago Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, 530 Parnell street, was injured when she fell out of a car driven by her husband, as the automobile was making a turn into a driveway. When police investigated the accident, they laid a charge of driving without adequate brakes against the husband, Gerald Fitzgerald, and he entered a plea of guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

The court was informed that the brakes on Fitzgerald's car were useless, and Magistrate Langley fined the accused $15 and $2.50 costs.

for her, too. "She's as innocent as my mother, Judge," he sobbed, even as the jury announced a sterner verdict for him.

Shonbrun and a third defendant, John D. Cullen, were found guilty of first-degree murder without a mercy recommendation, automatically dooming them to death in the electric chair.

The three were convicted of killing Mrs. Reich in the course of robbing her of a $1,500 diamond ring. Testimny showed they never were able to sell the diamond, and that the sale of the ring's mounting netted only $13.

Worried Over Girl

Shonbrun, who confessed to the murder in an effort to save Madeline, seemed more concerned about her fate than his own.

When the jury filed into the court room, Madeline, until then a spirited, defiant girl, struggld to her feet. Her face and lips were grey; her head and shoulders bowed. She leaned stiff-armed against the defence table, dishevelled dark hair falling over her eyes.

As the foreman intoned, "We find her guilty," Madeline swayed for a moment, as expressionless as a waxworks figure.

Then Shonbrun broke into sobs, crying "you've crucified her my God, my God."

Madeline, coming out of her daze, stretched her arms wide and moaned. "Please, Judge, I didn't do it, please. I beg you...."

Attendants quieted Shonbrun's sobs sufficiently for him to hear his own verdict. Cullen, the almost forgotten defendant, who did not testify during the trial, was silent still when he was found "guilty as charged."

tank weapons inflicting heavy losses on the German Panzer divisions. The fact there have been no reports of Timoshenko's withdrawing from Lozovo or elsewhere on this main front, but rather reports of a further push forward after a halt, indicates he is still confident he can repel Von Bock's counter strokes. The latter shows no signs of relinquishing the attack. It does not seem possible, however, that the crisis can last much longer and the extravagant German claims are losing some of their assurance.

Elsewhere on the Russian front there has been considerable activity offensive by either side. Reports but no clear indication of a major of a German concentration in the Smolensk area may indicate the intention to strike northwards at the Russian salient which partly encircled Rahev. On the other hand German reports suggest a Russian offensive south of Lake Ilmen is in preparation. The ground in the northern sectors does not appear yet to be dry enough for major operations.

Completion of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's withdrawal and the arrival of the monsoons have brought a lull in Burma although the fighting in which the Chinese have had successes continues on the Burma road in western Yunnan province.

In the Australia area the Allied air counter offensive was maintained and the Japanese appear to be husbanding their resources. The only major operations to which they are at the moment committed are in Chekiang in Eastern China. Is this an attempt to crush China's resistance while it is cut off from Allied assistance, or primarily a defensive operation to secure the home base from air attacks based on Chinese territory? The latter appears the more probable.

The air raid on Tokyo must be a disturbing indication that the home base is not completely secure and the possibility that an Allied air base might be established in Chekiang constitutes a threat both to the base and sea communications which could not be neglected.

Glancing back to May 24-30, 1917: Germany and her Allies intensified sea and air war 25 years ago and during the week ended May 30 sank the British hospital ship Dover Castle and the French liner Yarra in the Mediterranean. The British armer mechantman Hilary was lost in the North Sea. Seventeen German airplanes raided Folkestone on the English southeast coats May 25, killing 17 persons and injuring 174.

Rev. J. Ralston Comes To Trent Church

CAMPBELLFORD, May 30: — (ENS)—Presbyterians of this town turned out in large numbers to attend the induction service and welcome the newly arrived minister, Rev. J. J. Ralston, M. A., who arrived here on Thursday. The congregation, which has been without a local minister since February, 1941 when Rev. B. Simpson Black left for Bonar Presbyterian Church, Toronto, extended a call to Rev. Ralston following a meeting here on April 2nd. He comes to Campbellford with a wealth of experience which included the chaplain service in World War I and moderator of the Parry Sound Presbytery where he served for eight years prior to coming to this town.

The induction service began at 8 o'clock and was in charge of members of the Peterborough Presbytery with Interim Moderator, Rev. D. K. Perrie, B.A., Hastings, presiding and Rev. James D. Smart, M.A., B.D. of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough giving the sermon. As a basis for his timely remarks, Rev. Smart chose the Beatitudes and their application to the present day congregation was emphasized. Rev. W. Ernest Smythe of St. Andrew's Church, Warkworth, gave the address to the minister who he described as having been once again "set apart to the highest work of all". He reminded the newly inducted minister of some of the secrets of success and then went on to say that his (Rev. Ralston's) work had already shown "much fruit and been richly blessed." "May the good work you have done elsewhere be continued with this congregation", added Rev. Smythe declaring "the greatest thing you can give is yourself". Other advice he gave was that the first duty of any man who assuages to teach Divine things, is to take heed of himself. "There is no short cut to influence. He must be what he wishes others to be so that his life will be his most eloquent sermon". He declared the faithful discharge of duties in these times was a national service of supreme value.

Addressing the congregation Rev. Horace Kay, B.A., B.Th. of St. Andrew's Church, Colborne stressed attendance at divine service as the principal obligation of the congregation. He took as his text "And the Lord entered the Synagogue as his costume was that day". This, was what present day congregations had lost, the custom of attending church. "There are those associated with all our churches who attend occassionally. There are some who only go for weddings, some who only go for funerals, others to attend anniversaries, and I am wondering if there are not some here who will not be back till there is another induction". He characterized waning attendance as the most serious trouble confronting the church. Rev. Kay listed some of the oft heard reasons for none attendance and they ran all the way from the automobile, the radio, the week-end visitor to the sermon itself. "I was told by a distinguished member of the Presbyterian Church that preaching is largely responsible as it is dull and uninteresting and does not deal with the things of everyday life. I am convinced that it is none of these reasons which is responsible for the universal decline in church attendance. It is that we have lost the sense of obligation" He concluded with a tribute to the character and ability of Rev. Ralston adding, "I sincerely trust that you will uphold him by attendance at service at the house of the Lord on the Sabbath day."

Following the service a reception was held in the Sunday School rooms of the church and here clerk of the session Harold Dunk introduced members of the congregation to Rev. Ralston as they entered.

Flt. Lt. Ralph Christie of North Bay, Ont., whose award of the Distinguished Service Order was announced today, and Wing Cmdr. E. L. Wurtele of Montreal led coastal command squadrons to the Netherlands coast.

The R.A.F. "Dawn Patrol" squadron, flying under the command of Wing Cmdr. R. H. Niven of Calgary and with many Canadians in its personnel, also shared in the Frisian convoy successes.

Beaufighters of reconnaissance patrol spotted the convoys during daylight yesterday, steaming northward with supplies probably for Norway and the Petsamo front and at nightfall a powerful force of Hudson and Hampden bombers set out in pursuit.

When one convoy was sighted, the planes swooped into the attack, flying close to the surface, then rising to mast height to drop their bombs.

PO. L. J. O'Connell of Halifax who hit a ship the previous night, was so low that when he pulled his Hudson up to clear the supply vessel, the plane struck the mast and half the bomb door was pulled off. Despite this O'Connell brought his Hudson to base safely and made a perfect landing.

Governor Pays Annual Visit To Kiwanis Club

The Kiwanis Club had as its guest speaker on Friday Clifford Baragar, lieutenant-governor of this district, who was introduced by Leo Copp.

The lieutenant-governor spoke about the coming convention (district) at Bigwin Inn and mentioned certain things for the club to consider so that the delegate would be able to express an opinion at the convention. Then he spoke on the theme of "Why I am a Kiwanian in Wartime." He said Kiwanians are not tied by creed or class and are here to serve human needs. He stressed the International Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, particularly from this standpoint, saying that it was especially important this year since we are Allies. He closed by reporting some of the activities of Kiwanis Clubs in general and in this district in particular and mentioned the fine work of the Soldiers Recreation Centre under the direction of the Kiwanis.

It was decided to appoint Carl Browne to act as representative of the Peterborough Club at the International Kiwanis Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, this year, since neither the president nor the past president would be able to attend.

Next Friday evening the Kiwanis and their wives are to be the guests of the Cheesemakers' Association at Young's Point. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m., and it is hoped to have a large crowd in attendance. For those who have not made their own transportation arrangements, get in touch with Kiwanian Ted Pridham and he will see that everyone is looked after.

ATTEND THE SERVICES IN YOUR CHURCH TO-MORROW

Paul Gives to Christ The Value of God

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Paul, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the Church of the Thessalonians which is in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ: Grace be unto you and peace, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

1 Thess. 1:1

This is the first mention of our Lord Jesus Christ in Christian literature. Very probably this is the very first verse of the New Testament. Are you startled? Modern scholarship tells us that this epistle was written about A.D. 51; that is, about twenty years after the death, resurrection and ascension of Our Lord. The opening words are most instructive; they are full of theology-dogma.

Imagine a Greek gentleman, widely read in the scholarship of his day, unrolling this manuscript. He sees that the writer is a Jew with a Roman name who gives the Jewish salutation of peace in the Name of God the Father. Very probably this Greek gentleman had read with pleasure the orations of Moses in the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible in the Book of Deuteronomy which rank with those of Demosthenes. Moreover he knew that the Jewish people believed in the one living God, whom they called Jehovah, the Father, and held tenaciously to this faith.

He would be interested, if not astonished to read the coupling of the Name of God th Father with Jesus Christ. We are so familiar with these expressions that we do not realize their deeper meaning. The Name of Jesus would be familiar to him. It was the old word Joshua, which meant Saviour. Christ meant to him—the anointed one. It was the title the Jews applied to the man who would deliver them from the Roman yoke. He would be more gifted than Alexander the Great or Julius Caesar. He could understand that this Jesus is given the title of "Christ." But there was a greater word added. It was "The Lord." In that Greek translation of the Old Testament the Name Jehovah was translated as "The Lord."

This thoughtful Greek gentleman would come face to face with the problem. How is it that a Jew would add to the Divine Name of God the extradinary words: "The Lord Jsus Christ"?

St. Paul answers the question. St. Paul was no ordinary Jew. He was a member of the strictest sect of that nation and would glady die under the severest torture than deny that Divine Name. With all his heart, mind and sonul he believed in the One Living God.

But he had a marvellous experience. Once he had been a persecutor of this Jesus Christ. Then at the gates of Damascus the Lord Jesus met him. He became convinced that Jesus is indeed the Christ the Lord. As a Jew he had to make room for Jesus Christ in his thought of God. This was no easy thing. He went into the wilderness of Arabia for three years to think out the problem. This belief had cost him the loss of friends and high social position and bitter persecution. He gave Jesus Christ the value of God; that He is indeed the Son of God in a mysterious sense of the word.

There is more in this verse. He sends salutation to both Jew and Greek. The Greek gentleman knows the gulf between the Jew and the Gentile. The Jew looked upon himself as superior to the cultured Greek or the proud Roman. So you see what an advance it was for a Jew to send greeting to both Jew and Gentile.

The greetings are typical. "Grace be unto you." Grace meant all the beauty of manner and thought, which was the peculiar joy of the cultivated Greek or Roman. The word "grace" made an enormous appeal to the Greek or Roman gentleman of that day.

"Peace." Palestine was a land where peace was an almost unknown word. It was the battle ground of foreign armies from the east, west and south. Peace was a precious word to a thoughtful Jew. He could wish his friend nothing greater. "Peace be unto you" carried an intense hope to every devout Jew.

There is still more. Who is this Jesus Christ to Whom is given the title "Lord." He is placed on an equality with God. He is given the value of God. He is to the Christian the Saviour of mankind, the head of a new race, the King of Kings and Lord of Lords. Only those who have experienced His power to save can say with deep feeling and adoration:—

"My Lord and my God." "Think of these things."

Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God.

Close Church in Wartime

A good many people ask the question to-day, what has the Christian church to give to people in war time? A member of the British House of Commons at the beginning of the First Great War said that the churches should be closed for the duration. It is impossible he maintained to practice Christianity and fight a war at the same time. It is difficult for the churches to carry on during a war. The minister is often perplexed and scarcely knows what he should speak about to his congregation.

However, the church has something vital to give the people in these difficult days. The church is the mouthpiece of Christ and Christ is able to meet every emergency of human life.

There is one gift which Jesus promised His disciples, it is the gift of peace. Is there any need of human life that is more desperate than the need of a peaceful heart? Men are baffled to-day by war and women are troubled and often broken hearted. Here is a gift that the world needs, and Jesus is able to supply that need. Whilst this is truly a day of judgment, it is also a day when the church's message of comfort and hope is sought as never before.

Peace in war time will be the subject of the address in St. Andrew's church on Sunday night.

The Golden Text

Jesus in Gethsemane

"Not my will, but Thine, be done."—Luke 22:42.

Friday—Day of Suffering

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 31 is Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; 15:1-5, the Golden Text being Luke 22:42, "Not My will, but Thine, be done.")

WE HAVE studied Jesus' day of authority, when He turned the money changers out of the temple and spoke with authority therein; and before that the Day of Acclaim, when He rode triumphantly into Jerusalem with the multitudes shouting hosannas. We have reviewed the Day of Conflict on which the Lord was questioned by authorities who sought to find some cause to arrest Him as a dangerous person, but whom He silenced by His answers.

Last week we talked of the last time Jesus and His disciples sat together to break bread on the day of the Passover, and now we must approach the Day of Suffering, His night in Gethsemane, and the trial. The Jewish day began at sunset of Thursday, so it was really Thursday night that the events of the first part of to-day's lesson took place.

With His disciples Jesus went to the Garden, and He said to His disciples, "Sit ye here while I pray." Then taking with Him His three most beloved friends, Peter, James and John, He went further into the garden. To them He said, "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful unto death: tarry ye here, and watch." There He left them, and went forward, where He prayed that if possible "this cup" of sorrow and suffering be taken from Him, nevertheless, "Not My will, but Thine, be done."

His Friends Slept

He found His three friends sleeping when He returned to them, you remember, although our lesson does not include that painful scene, nor Jesus' sorrowful comment. The next moment Judas Iscariot and a mob of soldiers came upon them, and Judas betrayed his Lord. "Whomsoever I shall kiss," he had told the accusers, "the same is He; take Him, and lead Him away safely."

What manner of man was this who could live with Jesus of Nazareth and then betray Him with a kiss—a symbol of affection and tenderness? According to the record he was a cheat to whom money meant everything. He had been treasurer of the little band of disciples, and had cheated; now, for a few paltry pence he was willing to hand this holy man over to the executioners. "Master, Master," he said to Jesus, and kissed Him.

"And they laid their hands on Him, and took Him."

Next morning the chief priests held a consultation with the scribes and the whole council of the temple, and bound Jesus and took Him before Pilate, the Roman ruler of the province.

"And Pilate asked Him, Art Thou the King of the Jews? And He answering said unto them, Thou sayest it," meaning He assented.

Then the chief priests accused Him of many things, but Jesus answered nothing. Being innocent of all of which he was accused, His silence answered for Him.

"And Pilate asked Him again, saying, Answereth Thou nothing behold how many things they witness against Thee.

"But Jesus yet answered nothing; so that Pilate marvelled."

This night of anguish in the Garden of Gethsemane and the trial bring Christ nearer to us, if possible, than anything preceding it. As a man He suffered in His soul, knowing what lay ahead of Him, the agony and humiliation, but worst of all, the knowledge that so few of those to whom He had preached had hearkened to His voice to the salvation of their souls and the conversion of their lives.

We suffer with Him and grieve that the three whom He loved best on earth could not have kept awake to share His suffering. How many thousands of His followers, however, have since repeated His words when anguish came to them, and found comfort and fortitude by saying, "Not my will, but Thine be done." Submission to whatever suffering we are called upon to bear, and faith that with God we can carry on, gives us courage to face anything that may come to us in life.

Friday: The Day of Suffering — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; 15:1-5

Late Thursday night Jesus and His disciples went to the Garden of Gethsemane. The Lord told them to sit awhile and He would pray.

Later the traitor, Judas, came to Him with soldiers, and Judas went up to the Master and kissed Him as a sign that He was the one they sought.

Then the multitude with Judas, the traitor, surrounded Jesus and "they laid hands on Him and took Him," although His friends tried to protect Him.

In the morning the Lord's captors took Him before Pilate who asked, "Art Thou King of the Jews?" Jesus said "Thou sayest." (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 22:42)

Conscription Of Wealth

Yesterday we reproduced in our Fourth Column an editorial from the Ottawa Journal which discussed at length a statement made by the Hon. Ian Mackenzie in which he expressed his eagerness to conscript wealth in this country; the Journal pointed out that wealth was already being conscripted. Indeed, during the year just ended the increase in the national revenue from personal income tax, corporation tax, excess profits tax and national defence tax amounts to $374,200,000; surely that is conscription of wealth?

We do not like the expression "conscription of wealth." The word "conscription" has come to have unpleasant connotations in Canada; it has come to stand for a high-handed way of forcing people to do something which they do not want to do. Since the outbreak of war taxation in this country has increased sharply, and the people of Canada, knowing that the money was needed, have not wept nor cried aloud. On the contrary, we have heard many people speak approvingly of the increased taxation and express their thankfulness that they were still in a position to pay heavy taxes. And we venture to say that the Government has not heard any squealing from the large interests which have been hard hit by the corporation and excess profits taxes. Canada's wealth does not need to be "conscripted"; money does not have to be wrung from us by force. We have proved in the matter of Victory Bonds that we can give more than we are asked for, and give it with smiles and good grace.

For some deep psychological reason those servants of the Crown who deal with taxation and money frequently adopt what looks like a punitive, truculent attitude toward the taxpayers. Calm yourselves, gentlemen. There is no need to glower and fold your arms in that threatening manner. We will pay, and pay, and pay. All we ask is that you use our money wisely. Remember, many of us work very hard to get it.

Mr. Ilsley made some interesting remarks in the House this week. He said: "The Dominion is now free to increase its income tax to the level which the people should properly be asked to bear. That may be of substantial benefit to the Dominion as the years go on. In fact, that has been regarded as virtually essential if the Dominion Government is to finance the war with any degree of efficiency and equity." Obviously Mr. Ilsley is going to raise the income tax. Very well; if he must, he must. We will pay until we can pay no more. But our money is not being "conscripted"; we are giving it. Let us have that point perfectly clear, and let us keep the relationship between our Government and ourselves on a proper basis of courtesy. After all, they are our elected representatives, not an elect put in power to demand what we are quite prepared to give.

It is possible, of course, to interpret the expression "conscription of wealth" as confiscation of property. If it should begin to take on that complexion we think that the people will deal with it arbitrarily. But as long as it means taxation there is no need for any Government official to become truculent. We will give all we have, but we like to be asked nicely. After all, a polite government is one of the things which we are fighting for, isn't it?

In Bed Or Out Of It?

Every once in a while one of our contemporaries takes a stick to some popular piece of cant and gives it a good drubbing. The St. Thomas Times-Journal has recently attacked the venerable chestnut which speaks of the joy of the man who "dies in harness"; such men, who fall across their desks or drop in the street are considered by many people to be peculiarly favored. Not so, says the Times-Journal; "dying is, or should be, strictly a private affair, at home or in a hospital bed, with loved relatives and possibly some old friends around, if the fates are kind enough to will it so."

The death of Eddie Mead, a well-known figure in the sporting world of New York, gave rise to our contemporary's protest. Eddie had given some friends a tip on a horse; he then went into a barber-shop, probably for that hair-trim and shave which sportsmen feel to be an almost daily necessity, and when he came out he dropped in the street. The reporter who sent out the news said, "he went out as he would have liked, if he had been asked." Maybe so, but we doubt it; no man of taste would choose to die in the street, and if he did he would certainly choose some more romantic background than the frontage of a barber-shop.

But Death, the impetuous fellow, rarely gives us much choice in the matter. We die where he overtakes us and if he presents his bill in front of a barber-shop we must pay up then and there. And modern hygiene is taking some of the joy out of death also; medical science discourages those prolonged leavetakings at the bedside, those outpourings of last-minute wisdom, those crowds of relatives and stricken friends. Doctors prefer that we die hygienically and quietly, rather than in the grand romantic manner of the nineteenth century.

Of course, most of us, could we choose, would take death as it appears to the aged Bishop of Browning's poem, The Bishop Orders His Tomb In St. Praxed's Church. There he lies on his vast bed, propped up on silken cushions, his hands plucking at the embroidered coverlet, while he gasps out his last commands. The flickering candles cast a soft glow over the ivory face, and in the surrounding gloom children and admirers kneel in awe and grief. Thus, with every circumstance of worldy pomp, the old man makes a glorious exit, scoring off his enemies, praying and speaking the most magnificent blank verse. But alas, Death comes too seldom in this noble guise. Eddie Mead died outside a barber-shop, just after he had had a haircut; let us hope the barber did it just the way he liked it.

Despise It Not

"Despise not prophesying" says Paul in his first epistle to the Thessalonians. And we have always endeavored not to despise it, even when it tried our patience most. But we beg you to observe, ladies and gentlemen, that this is Saturday, the 30th day of May, and so far as we know Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini, and the Emperor of Japan are all in reasonable health, though according to Erik Jan Hanussen one of them should have met a disagreeable fate a week ago today. Last Saturday was to see "the fall of the man who wants to be the ruler of the world by brute force," according to this seer, and so far nothing has happened. Perhaps Fate, like so many other people, regards the war as an excuse for being slow on the job.

Hanussen's prophecies have the endorsement of Mr. Pierre Van Paassen, who is well-known as a writer of popular, sensational and not especially accurate books about world affairs. Some time ago Redbook magazine published an article by Mr. Van Paassen in which he told about Hanussen and his remarkable prophecies, which were so accurate that they brought him into disfavor with the Nazis and caused his sudden death. From Hanussen's papers Mr. Van Paassen made a selection of predictions which he included in his article, and some of them have a reasonable ring. For instance, one of them was that "British troops will march through Denmark" in August, 1942; whether they will be going east or returning west is not specified. Hanussen is said to have predicted the Reichstag Fire and the Anschluss, and the fall of Poland many years before these things were dreamed of, but his past record is impossible to verify. The thing which interests us is that May 23 has gone by and no man whom we suspect of wanting to rule the world by brute force has fallen.

Still, no reputable prophet ever makes himself thoroughly clear. Anyone who is familiar with the history of Greece and Rome knows that it was the favorite dodge of their prophets to say things which could be interpreted in several different ways; not until long after the event did the truth of the prophecy make itself apparent. We may be wronging the memory of Hanussen. Perhaps, when the full tale is told, May 23, 1942, will prove to be a crucial date. But just at present it looks as though Hanussen, and Mr. Van Paassen, had made a bad guess.

Salvaging The Normandie

Now that the necessary preliminary inspection and discussions are over a group of expert salvage engineers are about to bring the Normandie back into use. Their task presents some pretty problems; pretty, that is, for a salvage engineer; to the layman they merely appear insuperable.

The size of the vessel is the most notable factor in the operation of righting her. The Normandie has a registered tonnage of 83,423, and is thus the largest ship ever to be handled in the way of salvage. Also, because of the way in which she lies, her forward section is fulcrumed on a rock, and there is thus danger that she may be broken in two in raising. She lies on her side in a narrow slip, which allows little room for salvage machinery. The Normandie, being a liner, is more lightly built than a naval vessel, and thus special care has to be used in raising her and a great amount of internal shoring will have to be done if she is not to be even more seriously damaged in the salvage process. At present she contains 10,000 square yards of mud, which will take some time to remove, although this is not an especially complex procedure.

The U.S. Navy has given no indication yet as to what it means to do, but it has a plan. Clearly the slip in which the Normandie lies will have to be dredged before she can be floated, and this will mean that the stern will have to be supported in some way. The real trick will be in righting her, which will probably be done by pumping ballasting water into the compartments on the upper side. When the ship is righted she will have to be put in dock for repairs, and at present the only suitable dock is at Boston. However, before the righting process is complete another dock at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, large enough for the Normandie will be finished, and thus it will be possible to tow the ship there without going to sea and running the risk of submarine attack. The raising of the Normandie will be an historical feat of salvage, and we await more details of it eagerly.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Some men grow under responsibility; others swell.

Will gasoline rationong take the "wreck" out of recreation?

This is certainly everybody's war. Even the junk dealers are getting in the scrap now.

"Wife Divorces Love-Book Writer," says a headline. Possibly she reads between the lines.

Marshal Goering says, "Nature has treated us unkindly." Only what those may expect who outrage nature.

The wise fellow who got in his next winter's coal early has probably burned half of it by now.

Remember, if you have a pen that won't write, don't leave it at the post-office as formerly; give it to the salvage.

Whatever else Chakravarthi Rajagopalachariar may complain of, he will never be able to say that his name was "bandied about."

If Hitler had any understanding of human nature he would know that annihilating a Russian merely makes him mad.

Donald Gordon decrees that there shall be no more afternoon teas. Considering the kind of tea generally served at such gatherings, it is no great loss to tea-lovers.

"If I had my way," said the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, "the first conscript in Canada would be money." The bravery with which politicians are prepared to make other people's sacrifices for them brings tears to the eyes.

Recently the University of Wisconsin took a poll among 500 American editors to find out which newspaper with which they were acquainted they considered the best. Some commentators have made much of the fact that the New York Times got 79 per cent. of the votes, whereas the London Times got only 3 per cent. Without in any way wishing to disparage the great American paper we maintain that this proves nothing save that only 3 per cent. of the 500 editors ever see the London Times.

LOST LEXICON

Not having heard, along the streets of men,
The word for joy, the word for love, the word
That might be pity with her voice again,
O, now, for very long, not having heard
Aught but the sound for fear, the sound for hate,
The edged, the hissing and the quivering sound
That rage or sicken in our throats, of late,
Wherein no syllable of grace is found—
Lest the tongue thicken, and forget the way
Of an old speech that men no more employ,
I hold auditions in my heart, I say
The word for love, the stranger word for joy,
And pity, in grave sweetness like a rhyme,
Lest these be lost along our grievous time.

Franz Werfel Fulfils An Early Vow

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT IS not easy for an author who writes in German to get a hearing on this continent at present; almost everything is against him. It is not easy for an author to write in exile, though many have been forced to do so. And it is not easy for a man to write of the things of the spirit in a world which is deeply preoccupied with a great war and all the strictly material problems which it brings with it. But Franz Werfel, an exile now living in California has triumphed greatly over these difficulties and in his latest book, "The Song of Bernadette" he has given us one of the best works of his distinguished career. It is published in a translation by Ludwig Lewisohn.

Werfel is best known on this continent for his book, "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh"; in that great novel he records one of the little known heroic struggles which were as sparks from the bonfire of the last war. But he has long been known in Europe as one of the important writers of his time. His manner is notably European; he takes a long time over his work; he is uncompromisingly an artist, writing what he wants to write rather than what he feels the public might like to read; his approach to his work is aristocratic, and he never insults his readers by "writing down" to them. He is, in short, an author of integrity, and the honesty of his intention is apparent in every page he writes.

WERFEL is deeply preoccupied with the things of the spirit. He himself has written: "Even in the days when I wrote my first verses I vowed that I would evermore and everywhere in all I wrote magnify the divine mystery and holiness of man." Last year he produced what was beyond doubt one of the best books of 1941—"Embezzled Heaven"—in which he told the story of an old peasant woman who, with infinite care and sacrifice, educated her scoundrel of a nephew for the priesthood, in order that he might assure her a good place in the heaven which was, for her, the greatest reality of the universe. Now, in "The Song Of Bernadette" he retells, with simplicity but in great detail, the story of Bernadette Soubirous, the little peasant girl who, about eighty years ago, saw a vision of a beautiful lady (later identified with the Virgin Mary) in a grotto near the town of Lourdes.

Let no reader take fright at this description. Werfel has not written a conventionally "edifying" work about a young saint. Bernadette never thought of herself as a saint, and she never once said that the lady whom she saw in her visions was the Virgin. Nor did she have either an easy time in convincing others that she had visions, or the spectacular trials which are the usual lot of saints in stories. Instead she met with the most unyielding unbelief from the clergy of Lourdes and the strongest opposition from the civil authorities. Every attempt was made to prove her a common little swindler or a madwoman. Her time was that of the Empire of Louis Napoleon and his beautiful Empress Eugenie, when clerical and anti-clerical elements in France were being matched off one against the other by a government whose own instability had made it cunning. It was no auspicious time for a saint or a miracle-worker and the forces which wanted to prove Bernadette a saint and the forces which wanted to prove her a faker combined to give her a very bad time.

BERNADETTE'S story was simple enough. Helping some of her friends to gather wood near the grotto of Massabielle she suddenly saw a very beautiful and delicate lady standing high up among the rocks; the lady wore a white robe, a long veil, and a blue girdle; her feet were bare, but upon each, just above the toes, was a golden rose. Bernadette approached her with reverence and the lady gave her signs of favor and bade her return on the following day. In all, Bernadette visited the grotto about twenty times, and during the later visits she was accompanied by great crowds. Under the lady's direction she discovered a spring in the grotto which proved to have marvellous healing powers, although scientists found it in no way remarkable. At last the lady gave indications that she would come no more. When she was twenty Bernadette became a nun, and ended her life doing the useful work of the convent. But though her part in the affair was simple enough the miracles at Lourdes aroused the greatest interest and the most bitter controversy all over the world; scientists were affronted that such a thing could happen in their very own nineteenth century, and churchmen were in such dread of being duped that they heartily wished that the mysterious lady (or Virgin, if it were indeed she) had remained in heaven.

Werfel wrote his book in fulfilment of a vow. When he and his wife were forced to flee from France when the army of that country collapsed in 1940, they took refuge in Lourdes for a week before they were able to escape across the border. Then in his agony of mind the writer swore that, if he and his wife escaped to America, he would write the story of Bernadette, and he has performed his task with fidelity and complete artistic success. That Werfel is himself a Jew removes any suspicion of special pleading from the work. "The Story of Bernadette" is certainly the best novel to appear so far this year and there is no doubt that it will capture the imagination of readers everywhere for many years to come.

"OUT ON A LIMB"

—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

• Tobruk Is Rommel's Aim

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WHATEVER else as to Hitler's strategy can be read into the renewed Axis attack in Libya on British outposts for defense of Egypt, it is clear that the Tobruk bastion is Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's immediate objective.

Military opinion on both sides of the Atlantic seems agreed that the war-wrecked Libyan port, scene of an unforgettable stand by British Imperials for many months although completely cut off expect by sea, is the key point of the fifth Libyan campaign. However, even if the Nazis captured Tobruk, they probably would not try to invade Egypt immediately.

Word that one of four armored Nazi spearheads launched eastward had knifed to within fifteen miles of Tobruk's inner defense in the first rush strengthens the belief that Rommel has strictly limited objectives. This belief is based partially on difficulties of hot season offensive operations in the Libyan desert; but even more on the fact that within a month or so the sandstorm period, which makes an inferno of the trackless battle ground, will be at hand.

ESSENTIAL TO INVASION

That Rommel can hope to break through British defenses and into Egypt deep enough within the next four weeks to get beyond range of the sand devils is wholly improbable. The truth appears to be that he is now seeking only to seize the Tobruk outpost—which jammed like a poisoned thorn into the sea flank of his last abortive offensive—in order to prepare the ground for later major operations.

Nazi possession of Tobruk is essential to an invasion attempt on Egypt. It would require something more than mere holding of the port, however, to implement a drive far beyond it into Egypt effectively.

The previous Libyan campaigns have demonstrated that aggressive mechanized action in the desert has a strict limit. It is fixed by communications with the rear. It has worked out each time at about 400 miles.

The fact that made the heroic British stand at Tobruk possible was British sea control. The Tobruk garrison was supplied by sea at night when darkness rendered Nazi planes all but sightless.

VITAL OUTPOST

Tobruk now is vitally important to the British outpost defense line for Egypt because it can be used as a seaport supplement to the land communications supporting the front. Lacking sea control, it could not equally serve Rommel as a forward base to attack Egypt, at least until he had been able to stock it with fuel, ammunition and food supplies by truck trains. And that, against British air power or naval guns, would take time, particularly since the British front in Western Egypt or Eastern Libya is primarily rail-fed from Alexandria.

Matruh, the British railhead, lies 140 miles east of the Libyan-Egyptian border, connecting up with a hard-surfaced highway beyond that. All the advantage of better and shortening communications rests with the British in this fifth battle of Libya, which further implies that Rommel's mission is not only strictly limited in objective; but possibly designed as a diversion play to draw British attention away from some other Nazi offensive move.

Letter To The Editor

DEMOCRATIC EQUALITY

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—New issues demand new answers. The competitive system of capitalism is giving way to the giant of private monopoly. By the road by which every republic has toiled upward from the barren lowlands of early hardship and poverty a sphinx has ever stood, propounding the riddle "How shall a state combine the preservation of democratic equality with the increase of wealth in the hands of a few?"

The time has now come in the evolution of human intelligence when this riddle is to be answered aright, and the road to prosperity and human happiness freed forever for all the nations.

It is only needful that the people should so order their system of economy that wealth produced should be equally shared as it increases in order that however great the increase it shall in no way interfere with the equalities of the people; for the great and righteous justice of equality is the well of political life everlasting for peoples. And if a nation does not drink of that well its bones whiten the hilltop and plain as it testified by past history.

The place into which our civilization has now come is but the narrow portal of a future of universal welfare and happiness such as the Hebrew prophets painted in their Psalms.

Already the new propaganda of perfect assurance, of confident and boundless hope is spreading throughout the land.

Baalam was surprised when the ass he was riding rebuked him. The vested interests and International Monopolists are in for a big astonishment when the voiceless multitude speak up and demand that they be unhitched from the Chariot of Gold. The new doctrine is already making its force felt. It promises such good things to the mass of humanity that the whole people are rallying to its support. Because people are getting fed up with degeneration in high places. We have had plenty of graft and corruption in society of the past.

Popular opinion is now demanding high principle morals and ethics and scruples in officialdom. It is only when man loses his dignity and sinks to the animal level that he stoops to folly and roguery.

TALBOT KIRKPATRICK.

INSOLENT PATRIOTS

THE current issue of the little digest of Dutch news and views, "Voice of The Netherlands," contains a good story which we pass on.

Celebrations of birthdays of any member of the Dutch Royal family are verboten in Holland. It was Princess Beatrix's birthday, and the students of Delft University celebrated it thus: They rounded up every cat in the town. Around the neck of each puss an orange bow was tied. The cats were all put in a warehouse.

When the company was assembled the Nazi authorities were told by telephone: "There is a secret meeting of insolent patriots in that warehouse." The warehouse was surrounded by the Gestapo—the doors flung open....and miauling, spitting, and scratching dozens of cats flew in the faces of the Nazis.—Glasgow Herald.

SHELTER FOR A HORSE

I HAVE been hearing about what I am told is the only horse in England that spends every night in an air raid shelter. It is an Italian horse. After winning the Grand Prix de Paris, Nearco was bought by Mr. Martin Benson for £60,000, the highest price ever paid for a racehorse anywhere. The transaction was completed in a quarter of an hour.

Nearco was invincible on the racecourse, winning all the 14 races in which he started. Thirteen of them were in Italy. Within a few hours of the purchase Nearco's services were booked for three years. He earns 16,000 guineas a year in stud fees, at 400 guineas a time.

He is well insured, but Mr. Benson decided that the loss of such a horse would be serious for English thoroughbred breeding. So at a cost of more than £500 an air-conditioned underground shelter was built. Every night Nearco walks from his box to the shelter, every morning he is brought up again.—London Evening Standard.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And the king spake unto Ashpenaz the master of his eunuchs, that he should bring certain of the children of Israel, and of the king's seed, and of the princes....And the king appointed them a daily provision of the king's meat, and of the wine which he drank: so nourishing them three years, that at the end thereof they might stand before the king. Now among these were the children of Judah, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah....

But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself....And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces worse liking than the children which are of your sort? then shall ye make me endanger my head to the king.

Then said Daniel to Melzar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us pulse to eat, and water to drink. Then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants.

So he consented to them in this matter, and proved them ten days. And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat the portion of the king's meat.... And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm.—Dan. 1, 3, 5, 6, 8, 10-15, 20.

Blasting a Pack

ST. LUCIA, British West Indies, May 28 (Delayed)—(CP).—United States planes engaged a pack of Axis submarines a mile off Port Castries late yesterday, while the U.S. destroyer Blakeley, damaged by a torpedo three days earlier, limped the 20 miles from the Vichy-French Island of Martinique to St. Lucia. Hundreds ashore watched the attack.

Watchers said at least one submarine must have been sunk judging from the quantities of oil which floated to the surface after the 15-minute bombing and depth-charge attack by the planes.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS

TOO MANY GIRLS

CHAPTER XVII

MacDowell was in the act of putting away a quick one in the cocktail lounge when Talcott found him. "Halsey?" MacDowell grunted. "Sure I seen him. He's in his cabin. Got one all to himself. I went by there pust a minute ago and knocked and he yelled at me to go away. He's got himself locked in."

"What?"

"Sure. Maybe he's scared. Maybe he don't like the idea of gettin' a shiv in his back. Come to think about it, neither do I!"

Talcott ordered a brandy and seltzer and thought about Halsey's strange actions, and at the same time listened patiently to MacDowell's effusive complaints about the size of their stateroom. The combination didn't help his nerves. He was about to pull away when he saw Martha Swenson.

Coming in from the corridor entrance, she was, and she acted lost. She stood hesitant and would have turned away except that she saw him, and the confused look passed from her face. They met half-way and Talcott held a chair for her. "You'll sit down and have a drink with me, won't you?" he asked.

"I must confess," she smiled sadly, "that I have not much money in my budget for dreenks."

"My dear young lady! Forget our budget. You'll very quickly learn that in America it's the man who pays."

"An' pays," MacDowell grunted as he flopped down. "Where's your pal, the blonde tornado?"

"Miss Paterson is unpacking. She has so many nice theengs, so much clothes—" She sighed. "I had them once too. I will have them again. In New York my uncle has made arrangements for me to get a job. Not a very beeg job, but a beginning."

The drinks arrived and Martha Swenson lifted hers thoughtfully. "I would like to make a toast," she said. "Let us dreenk to the future."

"To the future!"

"Amen," Talcott sighed. That was something to drink to, all right. Strange how you could go along for so many years with nothing much happening to you and then bang! everything happened at once.

Yesterday there had been loneliness. Today—Martha Swenson, a charming dark-eyed, soft-voiced woman plying him with questions about the wonderful land of America. Walrus-moustached Patrick MacDowell, grunted over his liquor and trying to look intelligent. June Paterson, as unpredictable and omnipotent as a forest fire—and Bill Talcott was supposed to be her chaperon! These were compensations if you could but forget the rest of it.

Came the jar of movement and Martha Swenson jumped up. There was so much to see; a last glimpse of the town, the French Village, the ships; she went off by herself with a promise of cocktails before dinner.

'You're' cer'nly a fast worker," MacDowell hiccoughed. Already he was becoming green about the ears.

Well, you could make the most of what you had. Not every man on the boat was chaperon to one beautiful girl and escort to another. The stock of William Talcott was on the rise; that of Patrick MacDowell on the descent.

To the depths, MacDowell clung to his bunk like an overworked dishrag. One hand embraced his head, the other his stomach, and conveniently near as a paper-lined bucket. Talcott ignored him as best he could. Dexterously he whipped a tie to his neck, noted with approval the perfect fit of his dinner jacket and at the door most unkindly said, "I'll be back to report every half hour or so. I'll have the steward send you some pig's knuckles and kraut—"

He shut in MacDowell's groans and blithely stepped along. Life was wonderful; no matter what the past or the future, the present was a ship. He had four moon-filled nights and five sun-splashed days. He had his health and a pocketful of money. And he had, or so he thought, two lovely girls. True, the blonde was incredibly spoiled. She demanded the centre of attention and was as erratic as a straw in the wind. Which should have made her utterly impossible, but somehow it didn't. So much for the blonde.

The brunette was considerably different because—well, she was more mature. Quieter. She didn't burst on you like a hurricane; you just made the startling discovery that she was there. She had great warm dark eyes and an altogether disturbing voice and she had a trick of making even the most trivial things seem personal and exciting. So much for Martha Swenson.

Bill Talcott sighed. After six years of no feminine company at all, two at the same time was almost too much.

He stood in the doorway of the lounge, looking for the brunette; he didn't see her but he saw the blonde and his heart slowly turned over and kicked him in the throat. "You're her chaperon," he reminded himself savagely. "You have a date with the other one—"

As if that mattered.

"I saw that Norwegian nightingale making eyes at you," June Paterson announced. "So I decided it was time I asserted myself. Do you like me in this dress? I put it on just for you."

Green. Silk. He remembered the first time. "You are perfect," he said.

"You've improved considerably yourself. I remember you now. You're the Bill Talcott I used to know. Captain of water polo, right end on the Big Red Team, and the best dancer on the campus. For a while I thought I'd lost you."

There was banter in her voice; the flippancy of polite society fencing with buttoned foils. But her eyes belied all that; her eyes and the trembling of her mouth. The spoiled brat of memory was gone; a lovely, exquisite woman had blossomed in her place.

Outwardly he was calm. Unperturbed, a man of the world. Stink and sweat and nitrate dust? Surely not this man. Member of clubs, aristocrat; perfectly groomed, perfectly mannered, alert. Suavely continental as he held her chair, signaling a steward with his eyes.

And where was the brunette? June Paterson could best answer that. They shared the same cabin. If there be plot behind this, it was more pleasant than the intrigue of Abas Island. It really didn't matter—

Talcott lifted his glass. "To your perfection,' he said. "I thank

Campbellford Board Pays Fees Of Teachers Taking Course

CAMPBELLFORD, May 30 (ENS)—The annual report of Public School Inspector A. A. Martin, Brighton, and a lengthy letter from the Teachers' Federation in which the salaries of secondary school teachers was discussed at length formed highlights of the regular meeting of the Board of Education.

Secretary Wesley Stephens said the resignation of the kindergarten primary teacher, Miss M. MacDonald had been received. It was decided however to call a special meeting next Monday evening to deal with applications. Property Committee Chairman Walter Henson told the Board he had advertised for tenders to instal plumbing in the new teachers' room at the public school which it is planned to open in the fall.

The communication from the Teacher's Federatoin was primarily concerned with salaries paid to teachers in secondary schools. It drew attention to the reductions made during the depression years and felt that such reductions should now be re-instated (which has been done here) to pre-reduction levels. The advantages of a salary schedule were outlined and the practice of adopting annual increases until the maximum was reached were stressed by the Federation. The communication was laid on the table.

From the Department of Education came a letter dealing with the expansion of health and physical training courses which have now assumed a new important and obligatory roll. Some of the subjects embraced in the course for boys will form a particularly important function as pre-military training.

Principal E. H. Greig gave the Board some further enlightenment on this question. He said although the courses (both for lady p.t. teachers and male instructors) were not compulsory, they should be attended. He felt the department would view it as a distinct unwillingness to cooperate if teachers did not avail themselves of the opportunity to take these courses. One of the lady teacher, Miss Parker, already had her application ready to file for the course which begins in Orillia on June 22 while Mr. Shouldice was also planning to attend the summer cadet camp. "I wouldn't mind going to Orillia to take this course myself," added the principal. Chairman Richardson of the internal committee, voiced the opinion that the Board should pay the ten-dollar registration fee and on motion the secretary was authorized to pay this for three teachers.

After a report of expenses for high school art supplies prepared by Miss K. B. Ferris, had been read Mr. Greig urged the increase of the annual grant for supplies from $15 to $20. Despite a small 25 cent per pupil payment he said supplies were now badly depleted. Reason for this was that some of the equipment had been used to good advantage by other departments. On motion the grant was increased.

Though there were a number of suggestions for the betterment of the public school contained in the report of Inspector Martin this Board was well-pleased with his remarks feeling that he had been well satisfied with the condition of the school and the staff.

From the report of an inspection made in the home economics and manual training departments in the high school came the suggestion that some repairs and alterations be made on a chest of drawers and several tables in the former. This matter was turned over to Mr. Henson with power to act. Mr. Henson also observed that Inspector Martin's suggestion to put the new teachers' room on the first floor of the public school instead of in the basement, was something that should be looked into before final contracts were let.

Special The Examiner By a P.C.V.S. Student

Down, down, down into the murky depths of despair dove this week's war sales. We will not dwell further on this other than to disconsolately report that $190 in war saving stamps and $24 in certificates struggled to keep the torch of democracy burning.

Air Cadets?

We have before us a copy of 'The Canadian Air Cadet"—official organ of the Air Cadet League of Canada—and are astounded at the magnitude of this organization. Yes, we are astounded, but we are also ashamed that efficient action has not yet been taken in this city to form a squadron of air cadets. The press last October resounded with lengthy treatises and promises in favor of the league, but evidently Air Minister Power's endorsement of the training program had little lasting effect on the powers that be in Peterborough. Last January Flight Lieut. Jerry Wooll expressed a wish to donate a shield to be placed in competition among Collegiate Air Cadets, but without Air Cadets—what can the school do?

All of us have heard of the Air Cadet League, but how many know of its valuable training? Directly associated with the R.C.A.F. the League helps to solve the manpower problem accompanying the rapid expansion of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. The league has a ten-point program that we present in brief—

1. To assist in every way possible the financing and forming of Air Cadet squadrons in Canada.

2. R.C.A.F. command headquarters will handle administration of air cadet squadrons.

3. Training will be the equivalent of that received in the I.T.S. course of the R.C.A.F.

4. There is a $1 grant for each senior cadet, a maintenance grant of $1.25 per uniformed senior cadet, and a band grant of $2 a year per instrument.

5. Free equipment will be issued to squadrons as soon as available.

6. The R.C.A.F. will distribute manuals of instruction for us in air cadet training.

7. Uniforms are issued on a deferred payment basis and will cost approximately $14.50 each.

8. R.C.A.F. liaison officers will conduct examinations.

9. Summer training stations will be held for senior cadets and officers.

10. Communications regarding administration and training will be directly through R.C.A.F. command headquarters. For league matters communicate with the league headquarters in Ottawa.

This summary clearly illustrates the ideals and aims of the Air Cadet League. Boys from 15 to 18 years of age may enroll as cadets—and public spirited citizens can lend their support as officers, financial backers, instructors, or committee men. Other large cities and schools have Air Cadets—why can't we? Two years will complete the course for each cadet (over 200 hours of actual instruction).

Co-operation is assured by the R.C.A.F., but the initative has to be taken in the city and collegiate. Last October a committee was formed consisting of H. L. Garner, Lewis Hambly, H. C. Sootheran, Lieut. Col. Dewart, Captain H. A. Craig, T. J. Carley, and Alex Sollitt, but nothing has been heard from this committee since February 20. The need is urgent, so let's go!

Teasettes

Glimmerings of action were seen this week from the HI-Y club of Peterborough, as ten members exerted themselves on the salvage trucks on Thursday. Could it be that this august body has finally decided to do something besides dance and hold mysterious discussions? We hope so.

Several pictures were taken at the Karnival this week by an up-and-coming camera fiend. The Camera Club itself seems to have spent all available energy on the spring hike several weeks ago.

That shattering roar that has been heard lately around the school is nothing serious—its merely Colin Jack and his latest investment—a massive blue motorcycle (?). Nicknames such as Rastus, Sambo, and Baldie are being bestowed upon the cycle's former owner—Alden Gourley—who plunged this week and got a brush cut.

A registration notice in the paper this week reads, "full time students, or those confined in an asylum." Don't read this too fast or you might get the wrong impression.

It is rumored that a new song is in the offing: "Let's Carve a "V" On Every Maple Tree." The music committee seems to be on its toes. Miss Weddell has been pepping up the singing of "Waltzing Matilda," with many intriguing variations—making it one of the most popular songs in the school repertoire.

The final exams are drawing nearer and consequently news is becoming scarcer due to the falling off of activities at the Collegiate. One thing we can all do, however: boost war sales next week and keep the old flag flying.

TORONTO, May 30 — (CP). — There may be a baseball record to beat this, but it can't be by much; Winnipeg (Northern League, "C" Class) Maroons scored seven runs off two Fargo-Moorhead pitchers, had one out and the bases loaded and not a single Maroon had been charged with a time at bat.

No, son, this is not Grimm's fairy tales. It happened earlier this week in the first inning of a league game in Winnipeg. Norman Erickson, first Fargo-Moorhead pitcher, walked seven of the first eight men to face him. The other laid down a sacrifice bunt, for which no time at bat is charged.

Erickson was replaced by Bob Dill (who played hockey with Springfield Indians last season), but the parade went on. Dill walked the first three batters to face him, creating the situation chronicled previously. A third pitcher, Tom Laidlaw, allowed one more run before getting the other two outs.

After that eight-run start, Winnipeg won, 12-9.

Roll Call:

Roy McDonald of Ottawa, veteran six-day bike rider and one-time North American cycling champ, has joined the R.C.A.F. as a fireman... Walter Beard, veteran Canadian jockey, will retire after the Calgary race meeting and plans enlistment with the R.C.N.V.R.

Incidentally:

Each Toronto Maple Leaf hockey regular received $1,200 as his Stanley Cup playoff share...Bob Goldham got a full share although he spent only part of the season with Leafs, and Ernie Dickens got a half-share for his excellent relief work late in the season and in the playoffs...Lou Salica's manager is breathing clouds of suspicion over Salica's June 3 scrape with Ken Lindsay in Vancouver....He told Promoter Jack Price he insists on an American referee because "it means too much to the champ to take a chance on a hometown decision." Salica's world bantam title will not be on the line at this meeting...Rumors continue to float in hockey...One of the latest is that the Quebec Senior Hockey League will be an all-Montreal affair next year...Slighty Corny: Horseman J. A. Packer, who has a stable at Blue Bonnets near Montreal, says he expects the maximum from his horse Minimum....What a way to end a week.

Sacred Heart Boys Defeat St. Peter's

In the Catholic Softball League game Friday night Sacred Heart defeated St. Peter's 12-11. This was St. Peter's first loss of the season and Sacred Heart had to go extra inning to cop the verdict. The losers came from behind in the seventh inning to score seven runs, which put them two up, but this lead was wiped out by Sacred Heart in their half of the inning. St. Peter's were unable to score in their half of the eighth inning while Sacred Heart pushed across the winning marker with a single by Johnston in their half of this frame. For the winners Heffernan, Reynolds, with 3 hits each, led Sacred Heart at the plate, while Father Wolfe with 3 for 5 led the losers.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Maybe it was the heavy shower around four-thirty o'clock or maybe it is that the boys have not, as yet, hit their stride or maybe it was something else, but whatever it was the attendance at last night's tournament was very small, so small in fact that instead of rink games they had to play doubles.

We had intended to stay till the finish but those little beggars that fly through the air and take the odd nip at you made it so uncomfortable for us that we had to move and move fast. However, we did stick it out until the first round was over and we witnessed some mighty fine bowling. It was a grand night to bowl, the greens were in good condition and outside of the attendance everything was fine. We don't know who the winners were, but we'll find out later.

To-night the first Saturday evening mixed tournament will be held and Jimmy Baird, chairman, is looking for a good crowd. Phone your name in early. 7.30 o'clock is the hour.

Monday evening, Group No. 2 play their first schedule game.

Wood Predicts Demaret Will Take Snead

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, May 30.—(AP)—Craig Wood, the United States open golf champion who took a humiliating 7-and-6 beating from Jimmy Demaret in the quarter-finals of the P.G.A. title meet, predicts that Demaret will slip a similar dose to Samuel Snead today and probably go on to win the $2,000 first prize.

"I never saw better golf that he shot at me," the blond from Mamaroneck insisted after yesterday's round. "They can call him a playboy, but he's no playboy out on that course right now. He's driving just as long as he wants to and his putting is something to see. He's playing now like he did back in 1940."

Wood referred, of coures, to the winter when Demaret, fresh out of Houston, Texas, won virtually every money tournament in sight and wound up capturing the masters' crown at Augusta, Ga. That was Jimmy's last important victory, though he won the Argentine Open title last winter. Jim did too good a job of relaxing and celebrating after his big season. Probably more important, he lost his putting touch.

Turnesa Chases Hogan

A final between Demaret and Cpl. Jim Turnesa of the Fort Dix tomorrow would be a natural. Jim is the next-to-youngest of the seven golfing Turnesa brothers, of Elmsford, N.Y., and all he needed to do to reach the finals was defeat Byron Nelson today. Nelson is regarded by some competent critics, including Tommy Armour, as the greatest golfer who ever lived.

Still Turnesa might take him. Nelson has been complaining since the tournament opened at the Seaview Club that his game was not "right," and he came close to proving it yesterday. Harry Cooper, the Minneapolis veteran, had him three down with only four holes to play. Nelson pulled it out, shooting birdies on three of the last four holes to catch Cooper on the 36th and then defeat him on the 39th.

Those who have watched Turnesa play here—especially those who saw him whittle down Ben Hogan yesterday by a 2 and 1 score—are willing to bet Nelson couldn't spot him any such lead and live to tell the tale.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

City League fans should see another good battle Monday night when the new De Laval team will make its debut, facing the Plaza Billiard outfit who showed a lot of power last night in turning the Soldiers back 11 to 5. Incidentally the De Laval club has had a recent practice victory over the same Soldiers so that the Plazas had better not make the mistake of believing that they won't have to fight all the way Monday night to grab off a win over the latest entry in the loop. Bill Lewis is expected to get the pitching call for the De Laval team while the Plazas may start young Bob Crowe, juvenile star of last season or send Dave Wilson right back again. Tom Parsons, the other Plaza heaver, is out of action for a while because of an operation on his toe. The game will be called 7 o'clock sharp at the Bowl and rates a real crowd. Plazas are playing colorful ball and reports from the De Laval camp say that the new club will trot out a pleasing team who will battle the hockey squad every foot of the way.

* * * * * *

There were a number of new features about last night's Plaza-Soldiers game that made it noteworthy. In the first place it marked the debut of Pat Calladine as a City League umpire. Pat worked behind the bat last night and turned in a good card. It was a new experience for a former player who was notorious for jockeying the officals. The Plazas turned out in smart new gold and blue sweaters. Then the scoreboard made its first appearance of the season and that improvement was appreciated by the fans. Ned Vitarelli joined the hockey squad for the first time this campaign. Two former members of the Soldier squad of last season were back again last night for the first time in the person of Irish Kilfoyle, last year's pitching star, and Herrick who was a regular with the 1941 squad. Both of these players were missing when Soldiers played their first game against the Juveniles.

* * * * * *

Eddie Starr, always a powerhouse at bat in baseball hasn't had much hitting luck since he turned his attention to softball but the manner in which he was laying into the bigger ball last night indicated that the peppery backstop has found his strikes at last and that from now on he is liable to be bad news for the City League pitchers. Starr had four for five last night and the only time he did not hit safely he drove one deep to right field only to have Haynes grab it. Incidentally the Plazas used bunts to good advantage. They were dropping them perfectly, beating out no fewer than five for clean hits. And when they were not bunting the hockey squad was going for distance, their sixteen hits including five doubles, Ellis getting two of them and Heal, Don Crowe and Eddie Starr one each and bashing Joe Blewett drove the ball far into centre field for a homer with two teammates trotting home in front of him. Sero of the Soldiers who had five hits in his first City League game and two for four last night, driving in two runs.

A Scoring Rash

The American League broke out into a rash of scoring yesterday and in the three afternoon games the three winners piled up a total of 42 runs which must be a season's high. The New York Yanks topped the run-getting parade when they sank the Washington Senators to the tune of 16 to 1. The men of McCarthy slapped out 17 hits and their blows included homers by Bud Hassett, Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon. It was Di Mag's ninth circuit clout of the season. Gordon has not hit safely in his last fourteen games. Lefty gomez had two firsts. It was the first game he had finished this season and also the first he had won. Jack Wilson was in the van of a parade of Washington pitchers and the loss was ticketed to him. And while New York was slapping the Senators around the Detroit Tigers were handling the Cleveland Indians much the same kind of a mauling. The Bengals won 14 to 3 and as a result are a half game ahead of Lou Boudreau's slipping Tribe. Hal White was the winning pitcher while Cleveland started Al Smith and had to call on the reserves. Rudy York and Franklin hit homers for the winners and Rookie Hocket had one for the Indians.

* * * * * *

Chicago White Sox came from a long way behind to topple the St. Louis Browns 12 to 8. The Brownies led by 8 to 3 going into the eighth and looked to have the game tucked away in the old gunny sack but the Pale Hose scored four runs in the eighth to make it close and came back in the ninth with five more to take the decision, Biskin was the loser and the win went to Haynes.

* * * * * *

New York Giants only made three hits off Pitchers Ed Head and Casey but in spite of that fact Mel Ott's talent managed to squeeze out a 3 to 1 pected from those who have refused to pay their notes. The holders of chalked up against Casey. Philadelphia won a close one from the Boston Braves, taking the decision 2 to 1 with Melton the winning pitcher and Erickson the loser.

Norwood Rink Threatened

The Norwood hockey rink, fulfilment of a dream of Alex Kempt's and the pride of the whole community a few years ago may go on the auction block soon, according to the following editorial from the Norwood Register: "Several Norwood residents have made the suggestion that the village should take over the rink. Last winter, with one of the best rural rinks in the province standing idle, a considerable number of Norwood young people were obliged to go to Hastings and Havelock to skate in open air rinks. Without going into the past and ignoring the mistakes that were made, it is agreed by nearly everyone concerned that the building is going from bad to worse. A portion of the roof has caved in, there are two holes at the peak and it is doubtful if there is a single pane of glass left in the entire building. Most of those who have paid up their notes are quite willing to call them contributions to the "Good and Welfare of the Village" and not much in the way of bringing the rink back into operation can be expected from htose who have refused to pay their notes. The holders of the mortgage have but one course and that is to foreclose and sell the building to be wrecked. Other villages have taken over defunct rinks, made them pay expenses and in some cases a profit. At any rate it would provide a place at home for young people to skate. All it needs is a bit of courage on the part of the council. If it should be necessary that the ratepapers ballot their approval the Register believes it would carry."

Boston Red Sox in the only night game played in the American League last night continued the carnival of scoring the other clubs had started in the afternoon and handed Philadelphia A's a 14 to 2 trouncing. Toronto's Dick Fowler was one of the two A pitchers to face the Sox onslaught and they had a tough night particularly when long Ted Williams was anywhere in the neighborhood of the plate. Williams stepped up there in the first inning with Christopher pitching and two runners on the bases and drove the ball out of the lot. Then in the eighth with Fowler on the hilltop and a runner on every base the Boston powerhouse slammed his 14th homer of the season, giving him a total of seven runs batted in during the engagement. Mister Williams is evidently out to win the long distance honors all by himself and he is in a fair way to do it. He has already batted in 52 runs while Johnny Mize who leads the National loop in the same department has supplied transportation for only 32.

Soldiers Held To Six Hits By Dave Wilson

Plaza Billiards uncorked too much power for the Military Training Centre club in last night's City League game at the Bowl and the hockey squad, hammering out sixteen hits, defeated the Soldiers 11 to 5 and climbed up on even terms with them in the second slot, a half game behind the leading Adam Hat Royals.

Fireball Dave Wilson held the Soldiers to six hits, several of them scratchy and with the exception of a wild streak in the third frame when he passed three men and all of them scored the former Hastings twirler had the losers well under control. The Plazas played snappy ball behind him with Webb Starr doing some flashy fielding at third.

Irish Kilfolyle, ace pitcher of last year's Soldier squad was called on to handle the Plazas in last night's game but he was no mystery to the winners who got to him for sixteen blows and finally drove him out of the game in the eighth, setting the stage for an effective piece of pinch pitching by Ken Fleming. Right-fielder Haynes for the Soldiers had seven catches during the eight innings played.

Eddie Starr led the Plaza batters with four hits in five trips to the plate and Pitcher Wilson beat out three perfect bunts. Jim Ellis had a pair of doubles and by far the most valuable single blow was struck by Joe Blewett who slammed a homer to deep centre with two on in the fifth. Sero and B. Anderson with a single and double each in four appearances at the plate were leading hitters for the Soldiers.

Plazas started with a run in the first inning when Heal scratched a double back of first, and scored on a couple of outs. In the second Crowe, Eddie Starr and Wilson all bunted safely and when Kilfolyle threw high to third on the third bunt Crowe score. Heal, Kingdon and Wade all flied out.

That Wire Again

The Soldiers went in front in the third inning when they scored four runs. Kilfoyle and Haynes walked and were moved up a peg on a sacrifice by Barnes. B. Anderson hoisted to centre for what should have been an easy out but as in the Royals-Juvenile game the other night the ball hit the high wire across the field and was deflected into a double and Kilfolyle scored. O. Anderson was passed to fill the bases, Sero doubled to left, over Wade's head and Haynes and B. Anderson registered, Ossie Anderson going to third. A moment after he carried the fourth run of the inning over on a wild pitch. Wilson shot down the rally by getting Herrick on a drive to Heal and striking out Tummon.

Plazas closed the gap in the fourth. Eddie Starr led off with a single to right and Wilson bunted safely. Heal flied to B. Anderson and Kingdon rolled to the same player. Wade walked, filling the bases and Joe Blewett also strolled to send in Starr. W. Starr rolled into a force play at second.

The Plazas broke the game wide open in the fifth. With Ellis out Crowe boomed a long double over the cars in left and Eddie Starr shot a double to the same field to score Crowe. Wilson bunted safely for the third time in succession. Heal flied to right but Kingdon walked to fill the bases and Wilson scored on Wade's scratch single to the box. Blewett boomed a mighty homer to deep centre field to send in Kingdon and Wade in front of him. W. Starr flied to Haynes to end the big frame.

The Soldiers got one back in the seventh. Haynes scratched a hit on a bounder over Wilson's head. Barnes bunted and Wilson's throw to first hit the runner on the head, Haynes going to third on the error. B. Anderson rolled to W. Starr. O. Anderson's single past third scored Haynes. Sero forced Anderson at second and after Herrick walked Tummon struck out.

Plazas got two unnecessary runs in the eighth. Webb Starr led off with a single, Ellis doubled and Ned Vitarelli batting for Crowe, walked to fill the bases. Eddie Starr's fourth hit to left scored W. Starr and Kilfoyle was through, Ken Fleming taking over. He got rid of Wilson and Heal on popups to Sero but Kingdon rolled to O. Anderson who fumbled and Ellis scored. Johnny Johnson, batting for Wade, rolled to Herrick to retire the side.

Head, once a left-handed pitcher, until that member was broken for the third time, has won five games and lost none thus far this season, to lead his league.

Cubs Take Reds 6 to 5 In 11; Phils Win 2-1

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom Sunkel is a 29-year-old left-handed pitcher who is blind, or practically so, in his left eye and getting his second, perhaps last, chance in the Major Leagues because New York Giants are in such dire need of hurlers.

A few years ago Sunkel was one of the best prospects in the minor leagues, the king of the Southern Association pitchers for Atlanta in 1938. St. Louis Cardinals lifted him into the National League the following year.

But a cataract resulting from a childhood injury by a playmate caused his vision to fail that year and the Redbirds let him go. He didn't show enough this Spring for the Giants to make much use of him, either, his efforts being confined to three or four relief calls.

Yet today he is the toast of seven of the clubs in the senior circuit because he is the pitcher who has handed the swashbuckling Brooklyn Dodgers their last two defeats.

Manager Mel Ott of the Giants sprung him on the National League champs last Saturday simply because he was a southpaw and he downed the Dodgers on seven hits.

A Tough Assignment

Yesterday he pitched another seven-hitter at Brooklyn, this time over a 10-inning route, and whipped the Dodgers again 3-1. Sunkel had to be good beacuse Ed Head pitched no-hit ball against the Giants for seven innings.

Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds battled into extra innings for the second day in a row and the Cubs won again 6-5 with a run in the 11th when Joe Beggs walked pinchhitter Dom Dallessandro with the bases loaded. Claude Passeau was the winning hurler.

Rube Melton pitched a six-hitter for the Phils to beat Boston Braves 2-1. It was the Braves' third straight loss.

New York Yankees captured their 18th victory in 21 games 16-1 at the expense of Washington Senators. There was a lot of slugging, 17 Yankee hits that included homers by Joe DiMaggio, Buddy Hassett and Joe Gordon, but the sensation for the New York fans was seeing Pitcher Lefty Gomez make four hits himself while hurling four-hit ball. Last year Gomez made only nine hits all season.

Sox Wallop A's 14-2.

A similar slugging show was staged by Boston Red Sox at Philadelphia in beating Athletics 14-2 in a night game with Ted Williams smashing two home runs, one in the first inning with two on and another in the eighth with the bases loaded. They were his 13th and 14th of the year.

Detroit Tigers tore into Cleveland Indians for a 14-3 victory with big innings of three, four and five runs. One of them Rudy York's 10th homer. The Indians made 13 hits off Hal White, three less than the Tigers, but left 12 runners stranded on base.

Chicago White Sox made a spectacular surge of nine runs in the last two innings to come from behind and beat St. Louis Browns 12-8 after letting the Brownies score six runs in the fourth inning. Don Kolloway came up three times with the bases loaded during the game and belted in six runs with a double and two singles.

BLAMED HIS CAT

TORQUAY, England—(CP). — Capt. James Daniel Cameron said it was all the cat's fault, but it didn't save him from a $9 fine for showing a light from his house contrary to blackout regulations. The cat played with the string of his window blind and caused the spring roller to snap the blind up.

Rounding The Turn For Home In Six-Furlong Dash

A pictures, to gladden the hearts of all the followers of "The Sport of Kings" is this scene at Belmont Park track as the field rounded the turn for home in a six-furlong dash. Cherrydale (2) and Chabelle (11), nearest rail, are leading here, but Hubub came from behind to win.

Buffalo Bisons Ends Leafs' Streak 7-6 In 11

By the Associated Press.

Syracuse is well down in the Second Division of the International League but in Nathan Andrews and Charles (Red) Barrett the Chiefs have two of the league's best pitchers. Barrett has the most victories, seven, and Andrews now has four.

Andrews shutout Baltimore Orioles 7-0 on five hits last night making 22 innings in succession in which he has held the Birds scoreless.

Mike Naymick and Ray Flanigan of Baltimore gave up only seven hits, but their team mates contributed three errors which counted heavily in the Chiefs' scoring.

Buffalo Bisons ended three-game Toronto winning streak and their own two-game losing string by defeating Burleigh Grimes' crew in 11 innings, 7-6.

Buffalo took an early lead on three runs in the first only to have the Leafs tie it with three in third and go ahead with three more in the seventh. The Herd scored once in the seventh and gained a tie by counting twice in the ninth.

Just Like That.

Mayo Smith opened the 11th inning for Buffalo with a single. Jimmy Outlaw sacrificed him to second and after Dutch Meyer walked, Mike Rocco hit a fast bouncer to first-baseman Joe Mack who threw to Eddie Leip, forcing Meeyr at the keystone. Smith rounded third and continued home as Leip was upset by Meyer's slide. Mike Roscoe, the fourth Buffalo hurler, was the victor.

The pace-setting Newark Bears, behind the seven-hit pitching of Mild Candini, defeated Jersey City Giants 7-0. Newark scored five runs in the third inning. The Giants put on a serious threat in the third when they loaded the bases with one out, but Candini made Joe Orengo hit into a double play.

Rochester Red Wings lost 5-4 to Montreal Royals. Chet Kehn, Royal starter, had a 5-0 lead going into the fifth when the Wings knocked him out of the box with a four-run barrage.

Al Sherrer then entered the fray and stopped his former mates with two hits and gained credit for the triumph.

The Royals sent Clem Dreisewerd to an early shower when they scored four times in the first two innings with Tom Tatuf supplying the knockout blow—a home run with one on.

Callura Kayoes Garcia In 5th

HAMILTON, May 30. — Jackie Callura added Sammy Garcia to his list of victims here last night when the local boy polished off the Boston scrapper via the kayo route in the fifth round and after he had meted out considerable punishment to a boy who has twice beaten Wilson, present holder of the featherweight crown. It was the feature bout on a Navy Fund card.

After the first round Garcia was more on the defence than offensive and a well-beaten boxer for the last three round.

The crowd numbered close to 4,500, somewhat smaller than expected.

Angelo Callura, making his first home start in more than a year, gave his supporters plenty to enthuse over when he scored a technical kayo over Mickey Doyle, Boston, in 2:25 of the fourth round.

The first amateur fight and the card opened brought Patsy Brandino Hamilton, into action against Larry Johnston, Port Colborne, with Brandino the winner after five two-minute rounds. Only in the third did Johnston measure up and in that round he staggered Brandino with a right hook, but in the last two rounds Brandino handed out considerable punishment to the Port boy to be an easy winner.

Tony Brandino made it a clean sweep for the family when he outpointed Billy Seep, Port Colborne, in five rounds. It was a ding dong battle, with both boys going all out.

Harry Hurst, Montreal lightweight, and now a member of the R.C.A.F. stopped Hub Smith, also of the R.C.A.F. in the fifth round of a scheduled six-round bout.

The affair announced as an exhibition, was just that, as Hurst started right from the start to carry his less experienced opponent, and it was lack of condition more than hard punching that sent Smith to the canvas three times in the round before he was counted out by Referee Justin Campbell.

Hurst made little use of his right hand, other than to hold his opponent up.

Yesterday's Stars

Don Kolloway, White Sox—Batted three times with bases loaded and drove in six runs with double and two singles.

Lefty Gomez, Yankees— Held the Senators to four hits and made four himself.

Rube Melton, Phils—Fanned nine and held the Braves to six hits.

Harry Danning and Tom Sunkel, Giants — Danning made two of his team's three hits and Sunkel hurled seven-hit ball for 10 innings for victory over Dodgers.

Big Feat Facing Whirly Today; See 50,000 Out

NEW YORK, May 30—(AP). — They're loading Whirlaway with 129 pounds today, putting Eddie Arcaro on his back and sending him out to try to pick up $28,000 of the ..65,000 he still needs to catch Seabiscuit's all-time money-winning record.

This $28,000 pay cheque is waiting in the fifty-sixth and richest—running of the Suburban Handicap, time-honored Memorial Day feature at Belmont. It's all Whirly's—if he can whip eleven other handicap secretary's box. But, since these eleven include Market Wise, Attention and Challedon, it figures to be quite a day's work, even for little Mr. Big Tail.

Record Expected

There'll be anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 customers—depending on just had far the gas and tire rationing has affected Gus' Fan's jalopy—on hand to see this happen, and no one will be surprised if there's a new one-day record for American betting posted at the big Long Island plant. Last Saturday $1,933,493 was fed the mutuels. This time the Suburban is supported by the Roseben Handicap, which drew ten crack sprinters to the entry box, and it is likely the mark of $2,096,613 posted at the 1926 Kentucky Derby may be wiped out.

Whirlaway hasn't been to the races since he whipped a $1,000,000 field in the Dixie Handicap May 6. That job boosted his bankroll for two and a fraction years of racing to $361,811, leaving him right behind Sun Beau's $376,744 and within shouting distance of the Biscuit's $437,730, and Warren Wright's little whizz-bang expects to catch 'em all before the summer's out.

Mr. Parker Corning's Attention—rated by many as Equipoise's best son—and W. L. Brann's Challedon, great horse of a couple of years ago, also were in the Bixie field, but something new has been added for the Suburban. This is the Cinderella horse from Lou Tufano's barn, Market Wise. He and Whirly haven't tangled since Market Wise whipped the Kentucky Cannonball last fall.

Weighty Problem

And for today's mile-and-a-quarter Whirly is spotting both the Long Island standard-bearer and Attention five pounds apiece. In fact, tradition is all against the long-tailed flier and the 129 pounds on his back this time, for never has a four-year-old carried more than 127 and won the Suburban. Your Chance had only 114 aboard last year.

Back of Whirlaway, Attention, Market Wise and Challedon to-day are eight other "guys named Joe." They are the California quintet—Hugh Nesbitt's stretch-running staretor, Airplane-Manufacturer W. E. Boeing's Welcome Pass, and the movies' stars, Louis Mayer's Painted Veil, Myron Selznick's Can't Wait and Harry Warner's Paper Boy—Townsend Martin's Bollingbroke, Roy Martin's Our Boots and Challedon's stablemate, Pictor. Their chief hope lies in the fact that they are carrying only feathers on their backs compared with Whirly's load.

PRODUCER GAS SAVING

LONDON — (CP). — If Britain equipped 50,000 gasoline-burning vehicles with producer gas equipment instead of 1,500 as now, the saving in petroleum fuel would be 500,000 tons annually, it is estimated.

Noted Speedway Now Golf Haven

Indianapolis, May 30— (AP). — For the first time in 24 years Indianapolis enjoyed a quiet Memorial Day. And automobile race fans could talk only about how Mauri Rose came from far behind to win last year's 500-mile race at the speedway.

The race one of the first sports casualties of the war, was called off months ago. And so the 2½-mile oval track, the huge enclosure and the mile-long grand stands were sadly deserted.

The only persons around were the golfers on the speedway course, 9 holes of which are inside the track. Instead of the roar of motors and the cheers of more than 100,000 spectators, only an occasional shout of "fore" arose.

When, if even, another race will be run is something no one knows.

LAKEFIELD, May 30 (ENS) — The pupils in Miss Aileen Young's room, Grade 3, have donated $7.01 to the Lakefield Red Cross. The kiddies deserve a word of praise as they ran errands, wheeled babies, sold flowers, washed dishes and helped in many small ways to earn this money.

Friend of John Carveth, radio operator of the merchant marine, and former high school student here, will be interested to know that he arrived in Halifax last week and is now in New York.

Bill Clark and Ray Jackman are attending the Firemen's training course at Adelaide Street Fire Hall in Toronto this week.

Misses Pauline Butcher and Constance Orr leave next week to work on the fruit farms.

Recent visitors in the village were Misses Constance Stuart and Sherry Knowles of Montreal with Mrs. Stuart; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Taylor and Grant of Kempville with Mrs. Kidd; LAC B. Chads of London with his grandmother, Mrs. W. P. Webster; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Madill, Ottawa, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Erskine; Miss Isobel Wray, John Wray, Bill McLauchlin, of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Moore and Jon of Tyrone, Mrs. A. Three Funnels And Tennis Court Once Were Here

As work progresses toward the salvaging of the former luxury liner Normandie, now the U.S. vessel Lafayette, this picture is made. You are looking aft of the bridge, down the sun desk where the three giant funnels and tennis courts once were. All the vessel's superstructure was cut away when the immense task of righting the vessel was undertaken.

Housewives Find Rationing Is No Hardship

The housewives of Peterborough are not worried in the least about the new ration restrictions. The majority feel that it will not be difficult, and certainly no hardship, to keep within the new tea and coffee and sugar allotment. A number, interviewed by the Examiner, are already using one or more of the sugar substitutes and most seem to be under the limit allowed for sugar, half-a-pound per person a week. Tea has been reduced by one-half the former consumption, and coffee by one-quarter. The women were all of one accord about refreshments being served at the various meetings, feeling that it should be out entirely or at least cut down so that rationed foods would not be used.

Mrs. Robert Abbott, 754 Water street, who has a family of six, says they use very little tea and so far they have not used up their sugar ration each time. Moreover she does quite a bit of baking, and at this time of year makes a point of having cakes without icing and using fresh fruit instead. Much of her other baking is done with molasses, corn syrup and honey, and she reports the result quite as enjoyable as when she used sugar exclusively. She also hopes to increase the amount of her preserving this year, if the sugar ration permits.

"I intend to do up more jams and jellies this year," Mrs. Maurice Holt, 467 Water street, said. "I use tea and coffee every day but I think I can keep well within the limit. I buy tea bags and there are twenty in a package and I find them very economical." Mrs. Holt's method of stretching out coffee is rather novel. She buys a pound of expensive coffee and one less costly and mixes the two brands. She finds it cheaper and the coffee lasts longer.

Mrs. Harold Rehill, 222 Dalhousie street, has cut her tea ration in half since the new law came into effect. She admits she has had to do a great deal of baking but makes it a point to keep rigidly within her allotment of sugar. As for preserving, this year she hopes to be able to increase it considerably. Along with the others, she feels that these meetings could do without refreshments, but thinks it may be hard to make the break.

"I find it cheaper to do away with preserving and use the frozen fruits throughout the winter," Mrs. J. K. Hughes, 514 Weller street said. "We don't use coffee but so far have kept within the tea limit. With my sugar ration, the amount I get for one week lasts for two."

Mrs. James Wharry, 498 Hunter street west, has been cutting down on all the rationed foods, and has found that she never needed to use her whole amount, even though she does a reasonable amount of baking. She intends to do as much preserving as possible, within the sugar limit, this summer and strongly believes in the restriction of food served for a purely social purpose.

Mrs. R. Turner, 515 Water street, says it does not require much planning to keep within her tea and sugar ration, but she does not do much baking. Like most of the others she wants to do more preserving this year and she said she felt the women of this city deserved credit for the way they were submitting voluntariy to the rationing.

"I think the system is very fair and certainly no hardship," Mrs. Clare Collins, 740 Water street, stated. "We don't use much tea or coffee, but with five in the family I have had no trouble with the sugar ration." Mrs. Collins uses a lot of honey and corn syrup and says it is easy to find recipes that have substituted these for sugar. She does not intend to increase her preserving, but will use honey and corn syrup there instead of sugar.

Mrs. C. Cummer, 511 Homewood avenue, find that she is able to keep well within her tea, coffee and sugar limit and cuts down wherever she can. She does not do much cake-making nor does she plan to do any preserving since there are just two in the family.

All these women, and their sister housewives of Peterborough, are doing their very best to co-operate in every possible way with the government in the saving of food and it is this type of support that is going to win the war. Without their help the task of supplying the country with food would be a difficult problem.

81 Years At Work Is Record Of Lakefield Man

LAKEFIELD, May 30 —(ENS)— On Sunday, May 31, Wellington MacDonald, one of the oldest and most respected villagers will celebrate his 89th birthday. Since the age of eight when he began making his own way in the world, Mr. MacDonald has been engaged in many interesting enterprises.

He was born in a log cabin on the banks of the river, not far from the village and at 15 went to Selwyn where he spent a year learning the trade of wagon-making. This he had to abandon when his employer, Richard Varthy gave up the wagon business for a tavern.

Mr. MacDonald was then employed by J. C. Sherin of Lakefield where he served a three-year apprenticeship in the grocery and dry goods business. He then began carpentry, a trade at which he became very skilful. Shortly after this he married Miss Elizabeth MacDonald and with no barbering experience, borrowed equipment, and with a barber chair which he made himself, carried on a successful barber business for 12 years.

Mr. MacDonald started what was possibly the first band in the village. He gathered together a number of would-be musicians, bought 12 brass instruments from T. Eastland of Apsley (out of his own savings) and the group engaged Finch Miller of Peterborough to come and give them musical instruction once a week. The result was very gratifying to both Mr. MacDonald and the citizens as the village soon had an excellent band.

In 1908 he and his two sons went west, and homesteaded in Alberta. At the outbreak of the last Great War in 1914 they sold their land and returned to the village. His wife died in 1925.

During his lifetime Mr. MacDonald has seen many changes. At one time when foods were expensive (and incidently work scarce) he paid $5 a bag for potatoes and $10 a barrel for flour.

During the past 12 years he has had several bad accidents, including a spinal fracture, and a hip fracture, but notwithstanding his adversities he has always had a pleasant smile and a cheery word for all with whom he comes in contact.

He lives alone and finds enjoyment at his work bench in his little carpentry and repair shop on the banks of the Otonabee. He is one of the oldest members of Lakefield Baptist Church, having joined 60 years ago.

He has two sons, Bruce in Alberta, Charles in Saskatchewan, and two daughters, Mrs. C. M. Schick (Cora) of Indianna, and Mrs. Grotefend (Mabel) of Peterborough. He also has 12 grandchildren.

heaven for Lowell Byrd and Cornell and memory."

She did not smile. Her eyes were wide, glistening, and radiance touched her cheeks. "I too thank heaven," she responded softly.

And then it was broken. A steward was coming toward them, circumventing tables. "Mr. Talcott?" he asked. "I have a wireless message for you, sir."

Talcott accepted the envelope, begged leave of June Paterson and ripped it open. There were three words only in the message but they brought him rudely back. "No answer," he said to the waiting steward, and then sighing, stared moodily at his unfinished drink.

Mrs. Geo. Weller Re-elected County WI Head

WARSAW, May 30—(ENS).—One hundred delegates and members of the eleven branches throughout the county gathered at the United Church at Warsaw for the seventeenth annual meeting of the Women's Institutes of the county of Peterborough.

Mrs. George Weller, district president, presided, and opened the meeting with community singing, led by Mrs. E. Birdsall, followed by Institute Ode and Lord's Prayer.

Correspondence included a letter from the Department in regard to the jam fund for Britain also one from convention secretary stressing the need for donation of $1 per branch to the convention area.

Owing to tire and gasoline restrictions it was decided to write County Council regarding the annual grant instead of the usual committee attending the County Council meeting.

The district delegate, Mrs. G. Brown of Trent River, gave a very detailed and gratifying report on the Toronto convention.

The reports of the conveners of the standing committees showed a greater understanding of the work and that the branches were more and more realizing the importance and benefit of reporting their activities.

Mrs. E. Birdsall, Federated member, explained the Federated Board, Central Fund and Price Ceiling Board, and also gave valuable information regarding salvage collections for war work.

The meeting adjourned for lunch, which was served in the basement of the church.

The afternoon session opened with assembly singing, followed by a very pleasing address of welcome by Mrs. David Miller of Warsaw, which was replied to by Mrs. Charles Smith of Apsley, who extended an invitation to Apsley for the next district annual providing there are no gasoline and tire restrictions. However, in case of emergency, Warsaw being more central, it was decided to again meet here.

Roll-call was anewered by thirty-eight official delegates from the eleven branches, who later voted that the substantial balance from a voluntary collection taken at the lunch hour to defray the expenses of the meeting be sent as a donation from the district to the jam fund for Britain.

Mrs. E. Birdsall took the chair for the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. George Weller; 1st Vice, Mrs. E. Birdsall; 2nd Vice, Miss Iva Smith; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Harry Mann; Federation representative, Mrs. E. Birdsall; alternative, Mrs. H. Shearer; District delegate, Mrs. Clare Price; alternative, Miss Iva Smith; Auditors, Mrs. W. G. McLaughlin and Mr. M. T. Lean; Vice-chairman to convention area, Mrs. George Weller.

The new ruling of standing committees was accepted and the conveners were appointed: Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. Henry Little, Lakefield, R.R. 2; Citizenship, Mrs. S. Wood, Buckhorn; Historical Research, Mrs. Jane Thompson, Westwood; Home Economics, Mrs. Allen Gill, Lakefield; Social Welfare, Mrs. T. Brown, Trent River; Junior Activities, Mrs. Clare Price, Havelock; War Work, Mrs. Stuart Graham, Hastings, R.R. 3.

Guest speaker, Mrs. Clarence Hayes of Georgetown, brought greetings from the Department and explained Institute work in general. She urged the promptness of sending in reports and spoke of ways of getting new members in the branches. She also advocated that good use be made of all channels of education through courses offered by the Department. Mr Hayes spoke of democracy on the home front, which is one of the most important jobs. The speaker said: "Our first duty is the community front line. Be interested in the schools and churches, for both are the strongest and greatest democracies, by giving leadership to the youth of the nation."

Miss Lenore McIlvena favored the audience with two vocal solos, "V For Victory" and "I Am a Canadian."

Mrs. Hayes conducted the co-operative program and the choice of project was "Uses of whole wheat," under local leadership, with a training school for leaders to be held in Peterborough late in September and October.

Miss Minnie Charlton of Lakefield gave an instrumental number.

Although overshadowed now by the great battle of Kharkov, fighting continues in the Murmansk sector on the Russian northern front, where British and U.S. supply lines to Russia are at stake. This German bomber was brought down by Soviet anti-aircraft fire on the shore of the Barents Sea.

This Week In Radio

This summer finds many of the popular programs remaining on the air. Among the broadcasts that are to continue are Information Please, the Rudy Vallee program, Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge, the Telephone Hour, Voice of Firestone, Fred Waring's Pleasure Time, Johnny Presents, Mr. District Attorney, Hour of Charm and Ellery Queen. Jack Benny and his gang will present their final broadcast for this season on Sunday but will return at the same time and over the same stations in October.—The people of England at war will be introduced to radio listeners by Robert St. John, N.B.C. correspondent in London, in a new weekly series of broadcasts beginning Sunday at 1.00 p.m. over WEAF.—For one broadcast only, Columbia Workshop will be heard at a different time Sunday when "The City Wears a Slouch Hat," will be presented over CFRB at 3.00 p.m.—Victor Sifton, former newspaperman, and now Master-General of the Ordnance, will speak on the subject, "Equipping the Army," over CBL Sunday evening from 7.50 to 8.00. Mr. Sifton's talk is one of a series of broadcasts, entitled "Your Army," in which senior officers of the Canadian Army at Headquarters in Ottawa discuss army problems.—Sir Norman Birkett, K.C., one of England's most distinguished lawyers, will be "Guest of Honor" speaker Sunday at 9.00 p.m., C.B.L.

The C.B.C. has announced the premiere of a brand-new Variety Show to take the air at 10.15 CBL Sunday. They will present outstanding Canadian and American stars. The latest popular tunes, French-Canadian folk music, famous hits from the works of modern composers and familiar songs will be written into the pattern of this streamlined musical program.—Madeleine Carroll is to be starred on the Cavalcade of American program Monday (WEAF, 8.00 p.m.) In this appearance the beautiful actress has the title role in "Clara Barton" Civil War drama of the life of the American Red Cross founder.

Clare Boothe, playwright and author, speaks over WABC on Tuesday at 10.30 p.m. She will speak in connection with a dinner for the United China Relief. This is her first radio talk since her recent return from the Near East and India.—Canada is on the march again against tyranny and oppression and the names we see on the shoulder badges of the lads in the streets are same regiments which distinguished themselves in the last Great War. The battle honors of Canadian regiments are currently the subject of a series of programs being presented over CBL on Wednesdays at 10.15 p.m. The June 3rd program will salute the famous Black Watch Regiment of Montreal.

"That Brewster Boy," formerly heard Wednesdays, shifts to a new spot this Friday night (WABC, 9.30 p.m.) Eddie Firestone, Jr., portrays the 'teen-age lad Joey, who is constantly getting himself and his family into hot water.—Fannie Hurst, well-known author, will appear over WJZ in a brief series of discussions. The broadcasts are titled "Thinking Out Loud," and will be heard Mondays through Fridays at 5.00 p.m. This will mark the program debut of the novelist.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

COWS KILLED

John Moore, prominent Dummer township farmer, reported the loss of five cattle by lightning this morning. Mr. Moore lives just south of Cottesloe near the boundary and discovered his loss when he went after the cows this morning. The electrical storm was particularly violent during the night.

LAKE TROUT PLANTED

Charles G. Kingan reported today that a large consignment of lake trout had arrived and would be distributed in the following lakes: Ketchecum, Gold, Bottle, Eagle. Mississaugua was stocked a week ago. More pickerel have been placed in Indian River, Lovesick Lake, Little Lake, Stoney Lake, Otonabee River, Buckhorn Lake, Chemong ake, Pigeon Lake and Deer Bay.

RE-APPOINT T. F. MATTHEWS

Announcement that P. J. Mulqueen and T. Frank Matthews have been re-appointed members of the Toronto Harbor Commission for a period of three years, was made Friday by F. R. Scandrett, acting general manager. Mr. Mulqueen has served as the Dominion Government representative for twelve years, while Mr. Matthews has represented the Board of Trade since 1939.

CATCHES MUSKIE

A small boy fishing for pickerel at the foot of Simcoe street, tied into a big maskinonge this week. His shouts for assistance brought one of the gas-house employees on the run. The man played the fish to the edge of the water and when he showed the youngster it was a muskie, te youngster was a mighty disappointed fisherman. The man released the fish without lifting it out of the water, and the only thing the small boy would say was "Watch that line mister it cost me fifteen cents."

GRENFELL BALE

The Grenfell bale will be packed early in June. Please send good used clothing and old silk stockings to Grafton's Store.

GOES TO KINGSTON

Popular Elmer Crough, a well-known figure in the Customs Office, has left for Kingston where he is entering the Ordnance Corps.

HOUSE IS STRUCK.

During the heavy electric storm which went around the city on Friday night the home of Lawrence Oliver near Lakefield and owned by John LaMay was struck by lightning. One side of the building was badly splintered, but no person was injured.

ANOTHER DANDY

Frank Hughes, well-known local fisherman hit his stride on Friday evening at the Cavan stream when he caught a large brown trout. The fish was 21 inches long and will weigh between four and five pounds. This is about the sixth large brown trout which has been reported and is proof that there are plenty in the Cavan area.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY

A. Cekota, assistant general manager of the Bata Shoe Company, Limited, of Frankford, Ont., will address the Rotary Club at Monday's luncheon on the subject "The Continent of Europe Between Two Wars." Mr. Cekota is a native of Czechoslovakia and has been with the Bata organization for over twenty years in various interesting capacities.

THEY TURN IT ON

Those pouter pigeons in the wild life show of Conklins must have been an inspiration to some of the chesty lads—and lassies around town. They look like the ultimate in strutting.

STAMP SALES GOOD

Students at the Peterborough Collegiate are not easing up to any great extent in the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates, but conditions and competition have cut into their total to some appreciable extent. This week total stamp sales amounted to $190.00 while sale of certificates was $24.00.

RETURN OF EXCURSIONS.

From every indication it would appear as if the Otonabee river would take on considerable of an old time appearance this summer. Excursions by river steamers have already been contracted for. Many have not been down the river for years and many new-comers have never been past the Locks Bridge. With the shortage of gas, canoes will likely be seen in large numbers as well. Corinthian Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, are holding a moonlight on Friday the 26th and St. Paul's Men's Association is holding a congregational picnic on the 24th.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Considerable damage was done to two automobiles as the result of a collision at the corner of Donegal and Hunter streets Friday night. Sidney Mitchell, R.R. 5 Peterborough, was driving south on Donegal street. As he reached the intersection of Hunter stret, Oscar Driscoll, 487 Murray street, who had been driving south on Park street, made a left turn to go east on Hunter street and the two vehicles met in collision. Damage to Driscoll's machine was estimated at from $80 to $90, while the other car also suffered considerably from the collision. Neither driver was hurt.

18th Donation Passes Half Way Mark

When the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund first came into being, it was decided that returns would be deposited in the Canadian Bank of Commerce daily, there to accrue until the sum of £500 had accumulated, which would then be forwarded direct to the Lord Mayor of London. Following out this principle, not a banking day has elapsed since December 5, 1940, when a deposit of money failed to have been made, which in itself must be a record of some sort or other. So far to date, seventeen donations have been cabled, sixteen of which were for the specified amount of £500 each, and one special donation at Christmas was sent which amounted to £1,100, being a double contribution with £100 added as coming from the children to the children of England. This makes a total of £9,100, which in Canadian currency at the rate of exchange which has remained the same since the fund was started amounts to $40,768.

At the present moment, including to-day's deposit, there is a balance in the bank of some $1,140 towards the 18th donation, which puts it over the half-way mark, with $1,100 being required to make that an actual fact.

Last year, the City Carpet Ball League went without their customary banquet to close the season at which time they made a donation to the fund. This year they have followed the same procedure, and in to-day's list there is recorded a donation of $12.00 in their name per G. G. Groombridge, secretary-treasurer, and D. Leether, president, the result of a collection taken at a social evening in lieu of the banquet, which they felt was hardly consistent with a total war effort.

Another echo of the dog show appears in to-day's list, when the proceeds of a draw sponsored by the Sugar Bowl on two prizes which remained over from it had come to hand, amounting to $10.00, per G. Dormer, proprietor of the store. The gent.'s toilet set was won by Horace Miles and the dog leash by Ossie Johnston.

Another of those personal donations so full of the best in human nature is listed with $3.00 being given "In Memory of Bill," and once again your commentator remarks: "No better way to honor the memory of a loved one or friend can be found than by giving aid to those who stand in need."

A collection from the penny box located at the Bank of Toronto added another $1.15 to the day's receipts for the fund.

This Blood May Save A Life

Through clinics located in most of the larger cities of Canada, the Canadian Red Cross is receiving 3,000 donations of blood each week which is made into life-giving serum for use in transfusions to wounded soldiers, sailors and airmen. So great is the demand that the Red Cross is increasing its facilities as rapidly as possible to take care of 5,000 donations each week. Above: Laboratory technicians take samples of each donation which is carefully tested.

Red Cross Officials Are Confident Blood Clinic Will Open June 15

2nd front—Red cross officials .. ..

Workmen are making good progress on the new blood donors' clinic at the corner of Water and Brock stret, and Red Cross officials of this city are confident that the opening date of June 15, may be kept.

J. K. Sheehy Construction Co. has the contract for all carpentry and interior painting, plumbing went to Regan and Shaughnessy, and the wiring to Miller-Powell. Exterior painting and connecting up of the heating system remain to be let. Most of the equipment has been ordered, and little trouble or delay is expected in this regard, as the Red Cross gets priorities on the material, in view of the fact that it is a vital war project.

The building which is being converted into a blood clinic was occupied by Metcalfe Auto Electric for the past several years, and it has the advantage of a central downtown location. Progress on this building should impress local citizens with the urgent necessity of registering for blood contributions so that the 2,000 men required for a steady supply of Peterborough's quota will be ready just as soon as facilities are arranged here to accept the blood.

For Overseas Service

This blood bank being established in Peterborough is for overseas service, and Red Cross officials have hoped that enough women will come forward as blood donors to meet the local blood demand. For quite some time the local needs were met by men in the factories, but as soon as the blood bank is started here, this particular branch of war work may be taken over by the women, thus relieving many men who can donate their blood to the overseas bank.

Any man or woman between the ages of 18 and 55 may volunteer for blood donor service, and there cannot be too many, as the need for blood on the war fronts increases daily. One huge offensive by the British and Canadian forces would undoubtedly bring about an extreme demand upon blood reserves. The fact that a second front will probably become a reality this summer, makes it imperative that work be rushed to completion on clinics all across Canada.

Women May Volunteer

Men are preferred for the overseas blood bank, but women may volunter for this, as well as volunteering for the home service branch. Anyone wishing to register may do so at the Red Cross rooms in the Library on any week-day except Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 5, or Tuesday or Thursday evenings from 7 to 9. If this is not convenient the volunteers may telephone Mrs. Charles Ray, No. 8633, or telephone Clare Collins, manager of Neill's Shoe Store.

The blood of five donors is needed for the average treatment of one man, so the need is great and urgent. A reserve of serum must be built up for the use of Canadian forces in action, and Britain's blitz casualties.

One of the forward strides in medicine since the beginning of this war has been the discovery that how to successfully process whole blood into dried serum which may be stored on ships, at the scene of battle or in hospitals, indefinitely and still be 100% effective.

Procedure Simplified

In the last war the only method of transfusion was direct, arm to arm, from another person with the same blood type. This limited the number of transfusions that could be given, and the number of lives saved. The development of dried serum has simplified the procedure. Powdered serum mixed with a little sterilized water forms a restorative blood plasma which can be transferred into the vein of a wounded person regardless of blood type. Even if a man does not actually lose blood from an open wound, nearly every badly injured person suffers from shock. Vital liquid flows from the blood vessels into the damaged tissues and unless the loss is replaced the patient begins to die.

Bible Society Is Planning Canvass

The annual canvass in the interests of the Bible Society will be held in Peterborough during the next two weeks. Ladies of the churches of the city have again generously agreed to undertake this important work. The local committee responsible for the work of the Bible Society in the city represents the Upper Canada Bible Society, which is the official representative of the British and Foreign Bible Society in the old land, the oldest and largest Bible Society in the world. Without the aid of this great organization the work of all the missionary societies would be almost impossible as they are the means scriptures in the native tongue of the many peoples of the world.

Canvassers will carry the official canvassers book which will be the authority of the local committee to collect funds for this cause.

44 p.c. Of Men Rejects From The Army

The Hon. George Hoadley in addressing a public meeting Friday night at the Co-Op Hall told his audience that health is the great foundation on which human happiness is built and that when the government is preparing so many of the Canadian boys for fighting, the least they can do for those at home is to care for the families, particularly the children.

"It is appalling the number of twenty-one year old men, who are at the gateway of life, who have been turned down as physically unfit for the fighting services. A total of 44 per cent have been rejected already. This situation should be stopped now before the ravages of ill health become even worse."

One Flour

Mr. Hoadley also stressed the idea of having only one class of flour milled in Canada. He said more time should be spent on seeing that the proper vitamins were put in, rather than on the appearance of the bread. In that way everyone has a fair chance of getting something of the highest quality.

"The province of Saskatchewan is the best organized in Canada for preventive medicine. People in these areas where the scheme is working, pay through taxation for health maintenance and municipal doctors receive an income worthy of their work without the worry and stress of collecting their fees. In this province there is one doctor who has had over 2,200 visits in one year and who made 134 calls to the home. If sickness is caught at the beginning, there is rarely need for hopsitalization.

"There are 40 different self-sufficient districts in the province of Saskatchewan. Health units are set up and each unit generally has about 20,000 people under a trained medical health officer who has a staff under him. The cost is from 50 to 60 cents per capita. This is superimposed on every district. One individual must be in control of both the preventon and the actual care of sickness. In the matter of cooperation everyone must be willing to compromise a little on his own specific ideas."

Health System Works

Mr. Hoadley's assistant, Miss Marion Stewart, who is well-versed in her subject gave a straightforward talk. "It has been proven in Manitoba that with the proper system, the general health can improve. It all goes back to the mother and the child," she said. "If the mother has proper pre-natal care and later the child has correct supervision, then other conditions have a chance of being righted. The Rockfeller Foundation made a study of conditions in Manitoba and were amazed at the progress made in preventive medicine. As a matter of fact a Canadian provnice was the first in the world to work out this successful plan for better health."

Miss Stewart said the number of defects found in school children is increasing. The sad part of it is that these defects are discovered but the parents can not afford to have them corrected and they will not accept "charity." For the past four years there has been a steady increase throughout the country in the province of Ontario.

Death Rate High

The death rate of infants in the first year is exceedingly high throughout Ontario, the wealthiest province, running as high as 45 per cent. But Peterborough, county and district, has one of the worst records in the entire province, that of 62 per cent of the death of babies in their first year.

"Now the women of the different communities are beginning to study in earnest about a better health foundation and the motto should be: Go all out."

A Brilliant Student

Pilot Officer John McMillan, R.C.A.F., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom McMillan, Rubidge Street. This boy placed near the top of his class, one of the largest yet to be graduated at any training school in Canada, and his outstanding records won him a promotion to the commissioned ranks.

Propose Closing Riverside Dump

The Riverside dump is to be closed to the public if the council gives approval to a proposal of the Fire and Light Committee.

When C. W. Caskey, deputy fire marshal, was here for the Threshermen's convention, he went out for a walk and saw the "eternal" fire on the west side of the river at the foot of King Street. He considered it a hazard to the Peterborough Canoe Company, C.P.R., Empress Hotel and other properties.

"And a nuisance to the people of Engleburn," Alderman Sullivan, chairman, remarked.

Mayor Hamilton said he was wondering whether the city was required to keep a disposal place of that nature. His opinion was that the community had done its part in providing the incinerator.

"Close it up and we'll find out," was the pragmatic approach to the question by Alderman Sands, who seconded Mayor Hamilton's motion.

Men Required To Aid In Salvage Drive

It was an avalanche. The Salvage collection in district 3 on Thursday last almost swamped the ladies. There was also a shortage of men for the trucks. About 25 men are required each collection night and next Thursday night if any man wants to help out in manning the trucks, be at the old pattern shop of the Wm. Hamilton Co. on Reid street in old clothes at 6 o'clock and he can get an important war job for that night.

It was marvellous how this district went to work on this Salvage question. Its going to take a big haul from any other district to catch up with them.

Next Thursday the collection will be made from both sides of Brock street down as far as the north side of Wolfe. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, says there is no use making two bites of a cherry and if his men can get the helpers they can clean this area up in short order. The district runs from the river west to Highway 28 and the section outside of the city in the west end.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN ROBBED

Found in a very drunken condition, a driver for a local bread company was arrested by police Friday night in a laneway near a hotel. He had a considerable amount of money and bread tickets on his person and the officers consider the man very lucky not to have been robbed. This morning in police court he pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and was fined the usual $10 and costs.

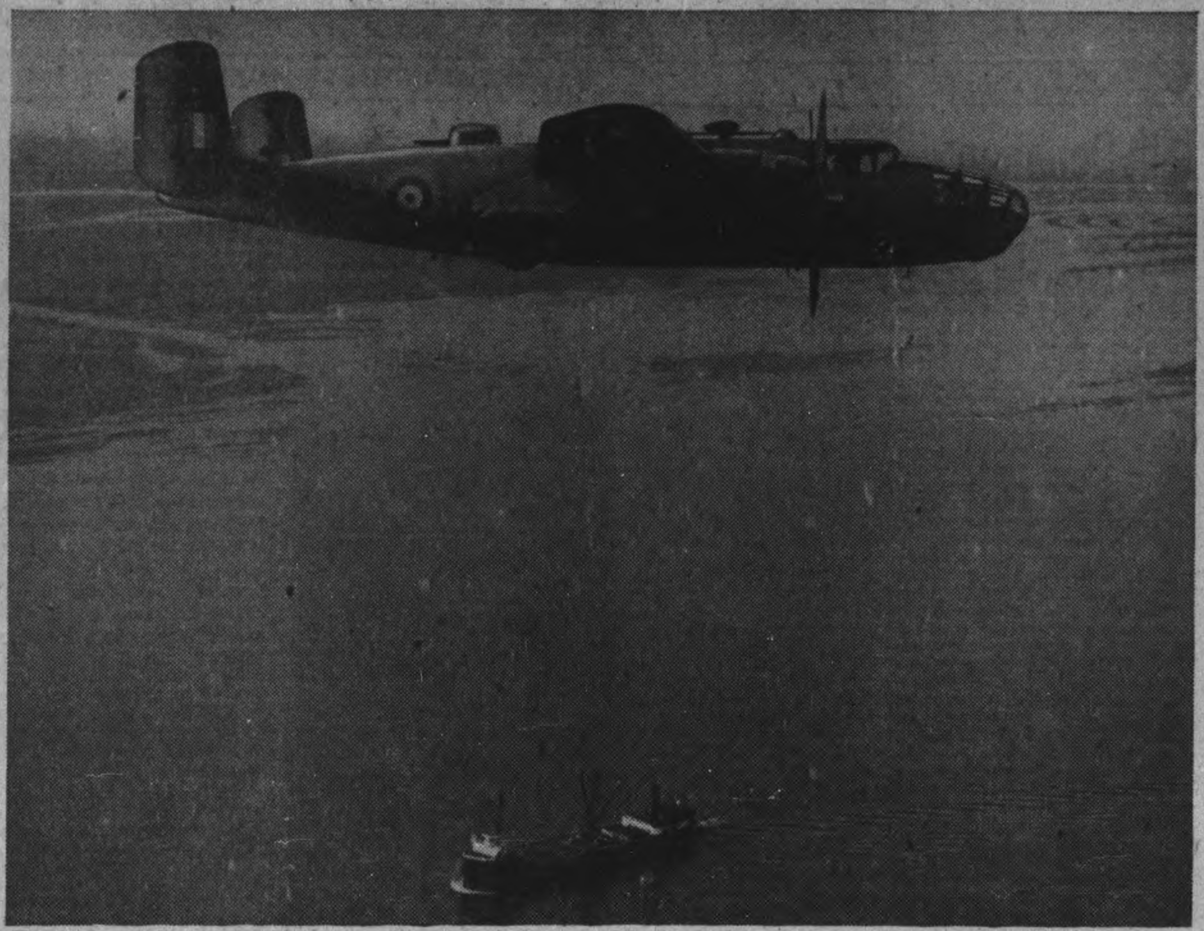
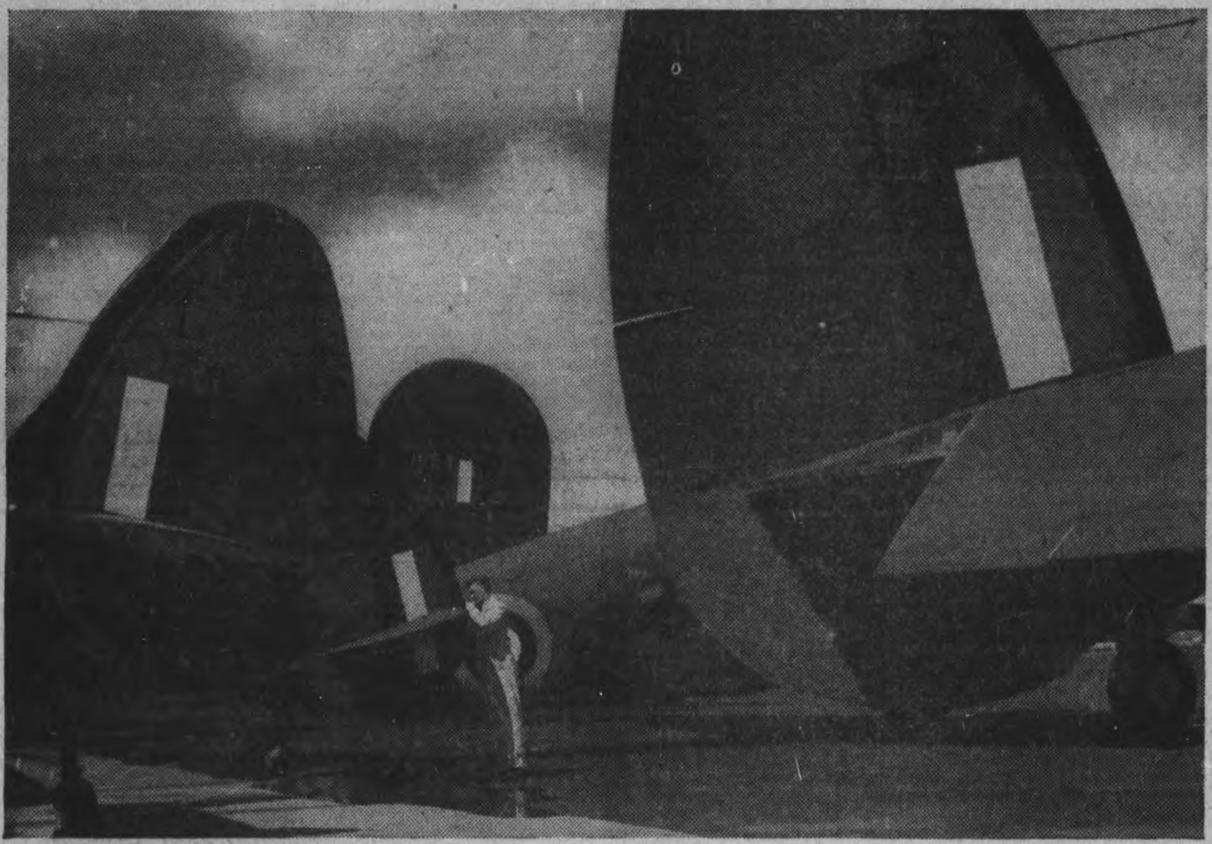
Steady Stream of Bombers Flows to Battle Fronts from Canadian Base

Head of the R.A.F. Ferry Command is Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick Bowhill, G.B.E., K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O. His command extends from Montreal, P.Q., to far-off India.



Fresh from the production lines of a United States factory a giant bomber wings out to sea, headed for Great Britain. From the Ferry Command station near Montreal these big machines pour across the ocean in a steady stream. Almost before the paint is dry they are hammering their blows upon German targets.

Typical ferry pilots. Captain A. J. Leeward, (left) is an American civilian pilot, veteran of many ocean flights. Flying Officer R. A. Jackson is a Royal Air Force pilot.



Behind the great success of the Ferry Command — its plane losses have been under two per cent in spite of Atlantic hazards — lies the careful planning and work of men on ground. Photo shows a rigger as he inspects the surfaces of bomber's big tail assembly. New film, "Ferry Pilot", dramatizes ferry service.

Upon operation of bomber's motors depends the lives of its crew and many thousands of dollars worth of vitally needed aircraft. Fitters are shown as they check motors for flight. Cat is one of many kept at aerodrome to catch field mice, which gnaw fabric of aircraft. Pussies have hopped Atlantic as stowaways.

This picture shows a large collection of bombers temporarily roosting at the Ferry Command airport near Montreal before making the long hop over the Atlantic. It gives an idea of the vast quantities of heavy aircraft swarming each day in and out of this aerial cross-roads. After ferrying the planes overseas the crews return by bomber or fast ships. Many are flown to Britain by crews newly graduated from air schools in Canada. Liberator type, shown in foreground, recently flew Atlantic in six hours and 40 minutes. Work of Ferry Command is subject of the latest National Film Board release, appearing June 3.

Favor Religion Being Taught In High School

TORONTO, May 30. — Religious education in Primary and Secondary Public Schools was urged on Wednesday at the Anglican Synod of the Toronto Diocese. "There are 600 places in Ontario where religious instruction presently is being given in Public Schools, but there are only a few cases of it in High Schools," Rev. Canon R. A. Hiltz reported.

"The Ontario Educational Association has taken a definite stand favoring religious instruction in the schools, and there has developed in the last two years much closer co-operation between the O.E.A. and the inter-church committee headed by Bishop A. R. Beverley. This committee, which includes all non-Roman denominations, has made great progress toward arranging religious instruction in all Public Schools," he continued.

A committee was appointed to study the problem of downtown churches. Rev. E. L. Wasson reported on behalf of a parochial finance committee which he headed that "there should be fewer churches downtown, but better staffed and better equipped, not only for regular services, but also to do social service work."

The committee cited the case of one downtown parish in which 582 families reside, 29 per cent of them Roman Catholics, with the Church of England having the next highest percentage. "The United Church comes next," committee reported, "and in the parish there are two United Churches, employing two ministers, catering to the spiritual and other needs of eighty-three families at an approximate cost of $5,000 per year for each church. Might it not be reasonable, in such a case, to make a proposal that the other non-Roman bodies withdraw from this area leaving the Church of England in charge because its numbers are greatest? This might imply that in some other downtown area the United Church, for example, might be left in charge."

Synod acted on the report and decided also to ask that the General Synod make a pronouncement as to what constitutes membership in the Church of England in Canada, "such pronouncement to emphasize the importance of considering financial support of the church as a part of worship."

Rev. Mr. Wasson's committee recommended use of filing cards to classify members as those who regularly attend the service of the church and assist in its work or support, those whose connection is more or less nominal and their attendance spasmodic, and those Anglicans in the parish who are indifferent to the Church.

J. O. Little of Newmarket said members "should be ashamed" of the little money they give to the Church.

Synod endorsed a proposal to add to the Finance Committee certain trained men who could assist in allocating parish allotments. "The trouble with the Church of England in Canada is that it is run by too few people," said F. G. Venables, after the proposal had been criticized. "The sooner the Church cuts across some of these old rules and makes a fresh start the better it will be for all concerned."

The Nazis Sea Now?

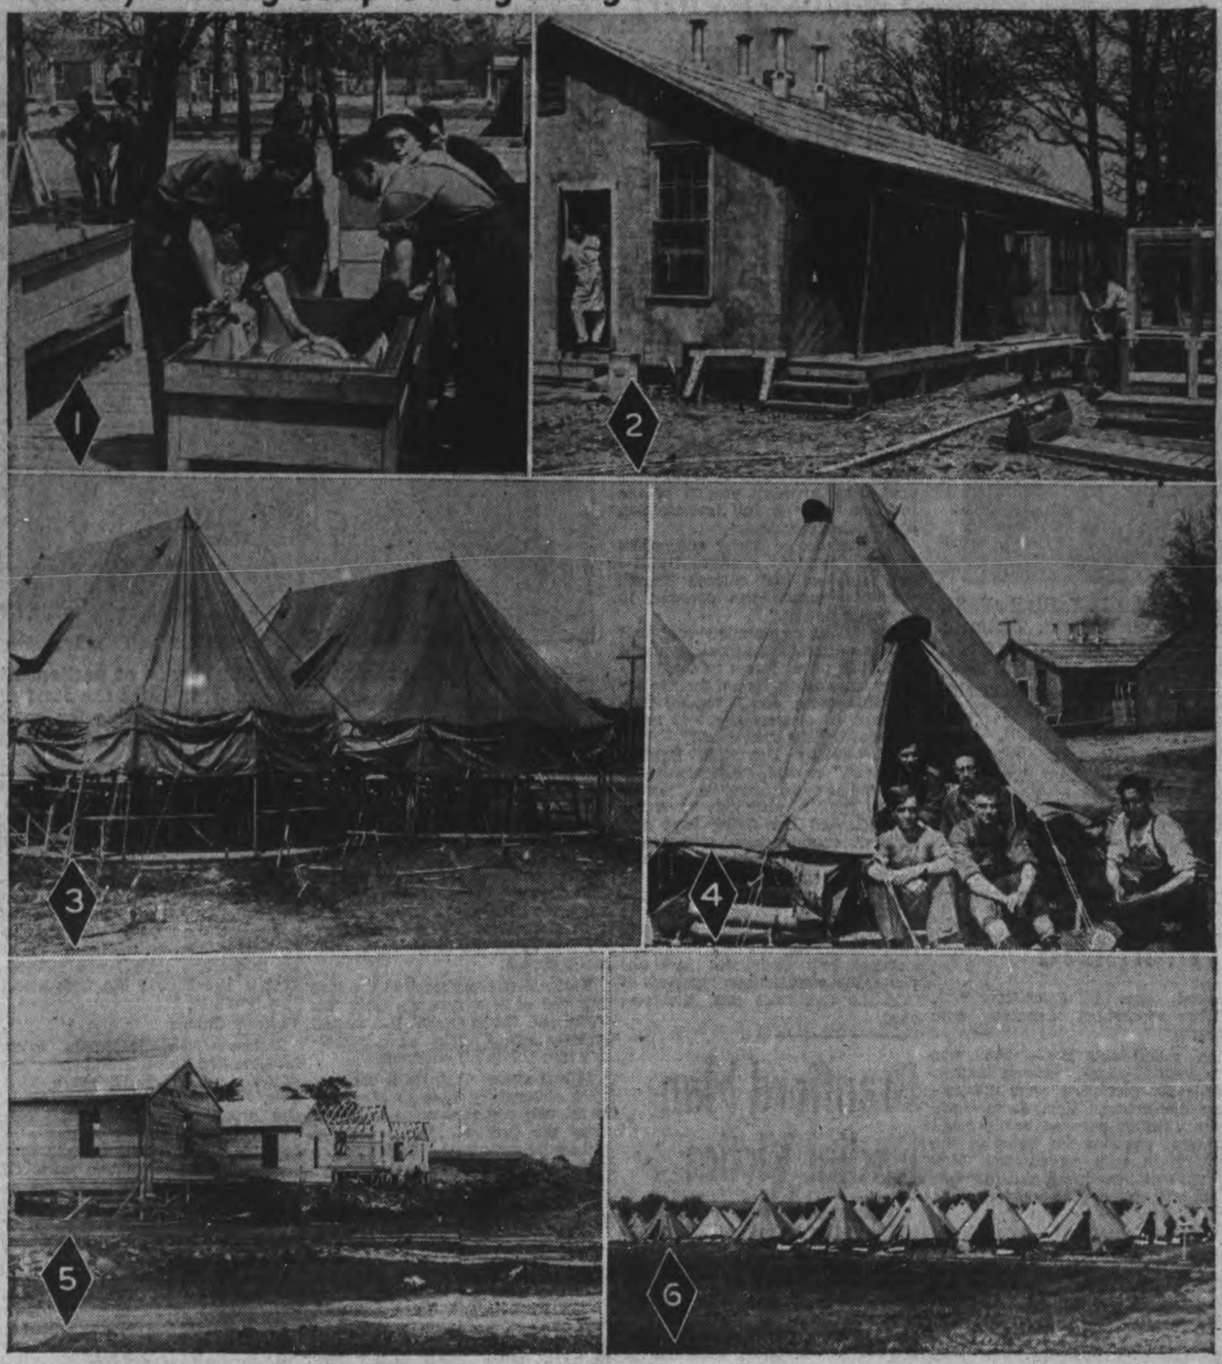
A German naval action in the Mediterranean also was reported.

"An escort vessel of the German navy sank a British motor torpedo boat by gunfire off the Libyan coast," the communique claimed.

Military Training Camp Is Being Enlarged



1. Some of the new arrivals are seen washing their dishes in the open air sink at Barriefield Camp. 2. One of the new kitchens which was built to cater to the men who are now making their homes in tents. 3. Two of the large mess tents. 4. A group of the boys sitting in front of one of the bell tents which is supposed to house five soldiers. While on active service overseas these same tents might house twice that number. 5. A scene of some of the buildings which are being erected at the C.O.T.C. 6. A distant view of some of the tents, which are now providing homes for these enlisted men.

9,000 Men Will Be Given Training At Barriefield Camp

KINGSTON, May 28—Barriefield camp area is being enlarged both in buildings and parade grounds to make room for about 9,000 members of the Canadian Army who will train in this district. Officials of the Department of National Defence state this building scheme will continue until there is ample room for all the enlisted men.

The camp area is so crowded at the present time, due to lack of housing accommodation, it has been found necessary to erect several hundred tents, which will provide sleeping quarters for the soldiers until permanent buildings are constructed. This construction scheme is proceeding very satisfactorily considering poor weather conditions recently.

The scheme of training and housing of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men has changed greatly in recent years. The writer, along with hundreds of other ex-service men now living in this ditrict, can well remember Barriefield camp when it consisted of tents and a very few buildings, the latter being used by the camp commandant and his staff.

Barriefield in those days was a sea of mud after a heavy rain storm, while today all the main roads are paved, and practically all of the men, until in recent weeks, have been supplied with permanent buildings in which to live and receive meals.

The camp area is now expanding in an easterly direction with the possibility of the Department of National Defence securing more land on the south side of No. 2 Highway east of Vimy Barracks, now owned by Harold Harvey.

The camp area, which includes Vimy Barracks, the permanent home of the Canadian Corps of Signals and the Canadian Ordnance Training Centre, occupies all the property on both sides of Highway No. 2 from Barriefield village to a point about three miles east.

The Vimy Barracks which is located on the south side of the highway is being enlarged to accommodate the large number of men who are being trained for that important branch of the service. This training centre, which previous to the war trained men who are now serving in the different radio stations on the northern shore of Canada, has already proved its worth in training signallers who are now serving in active theatres of the war.

Col. E. Forde, camp commandant, when speaking to the writer said the number of signallers needed in the present war is unlimited and for that reason the expansion program must be carried out as quickly as possible. Col. Forde said that some ground, which for years had been used for training purposes had now been made available for sites of some of the new buildings.

"The soldiers simply have to have all the practical work possible and with this in mind the Department of National Defence is considering buying more land for this development," said Col. Forde.

Many Officers

There are over 200 officers in training at the Vimy Barracks and to find sleeping accommodation for these officers is one of the problems which has confronted the staff from time to time. Many of these officers are living in wooden structures which have been erected in recent months.

The building scheme which is now well under way, will provide houses in which the enlisted men, who are now living in tents will make their home. All these buildings are supplied with toilet facilities and running water.

The expansion on the north side of the highway, which is occupied by the ordnance training centre, is very extensive. Buildings of every description are being constructed in all parts of the camp. Some of the buildings are being erected on farm lands which were acquired some months ago. The land is level and will be easy to develop.

The enlisted men who are now living in tents claim they are enjoying the life very much. When the writer called at one of the tents he saw five young soldiers busy reading and writing. "We think the life is great," said one soldier who came from Western Canada.

The large mess tent, similar to those used in the First Great War, appeal to the soldiers. The meals, which are prepared in new cook houses which were recently built, are very appetizing. The cooking is done according to military regulations with stress being paid to the needed vitamins.

The Department of National Defence, Ottawa, is well aware of the fact if the soldier is to be content and happy he must have sufficient recreation. The Canadian Legion, the Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus and the Y.W.C.A., the latter through its hostess houses, are endeavoring to cater to the men during their off hours.

Challies Says Power Exchange Steal From Eastern Ontario

OTTAWA, May 30—(CP)—George H. Challies, Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Dundas, said Thursday in an interview that if Ontario and Quebec carry out plans for an exchange of certain water-power sites on the Ottawa River it will be "a straight steal of Eastern Ontario's natural resources in favor of the Toronto and Niagara areas."

"This means the end to any hope we in Eastern Ontario may have for a worthwhile industrial and rural development," Mr. Challies told a local newspaper.

Mr. Challies was commenting on a bill introduced in the Quebec Legislature last Tuesday to allow the Provincial Government to enter into an agreement with Ontario for exchange of power sites. In Toronto the legislation was described as first step in clearing the way for launching of a scheme by Ontario which would eventually develop 400,000 horsepower.

No Future Power Resources

"Eastern Ontario is fortunate in having within its borders, at Carillon, Chats Falls and Des Joachims, about 500,000 possible horsepower," Mr. Challies said. "But Chats Falls is already developed and its 25-cycle power goes to the Niagara system; and if Ontario's share of the proposed Des Joachims is also developed at 25-cycle and so must go to the Niagara system, and if in exchange with Quebec Ontario loses its share of the power possibilities at Carillon, then Eastern Ontario has no future source of 60-cycle power within this area.

(Power used on the Niagara system is 25 cycle while 60 cycle is used in Eastern Ontario and Quebec.

"As the further St. Lawrence development now appears a very remote possibility, the only alternative to satisfy Eastern Ontario's rapid increase in power needs—should this agreement with Quebec go through as now proposed—would be for Ontario Hydro to install 60-cycle generators at Chats Falls.

"It seems most unfortunate that a definite proposal was not made for the development of Carillon with those interests controlling the Quebec side, and with Eastern Ontario's needs in mind, because Carillon is the logical source of low-cost power within easy transmission distance of Eastern Ontario municipalities.

No Market in Quebec.

"Had this latter idea been successfully carried out, the power on both sides of the Upper Ottawa would have been available for Niagara system, because there is no immediate market for power in Quebec at that point.

"I would like to make it clear that the Upper Ottawa site is to produce 25 cycle power for the Niagara system, to be paid for and owned by this system, while Eastern Ontario loses 200,000 horse-power which would be Ontario's share at Carillon. If this is a good move for Quebec it certainly is not for Eastern Ontario.

It had been suggested that Eastern Ontario's needs could be supplied by the new Madawaska site, "but the capital cost of power from this site will be more than double that of the nearby Chats Falls plant, where the cheaper power is going to the Niagara system."

HEALTH CHATS

By D. B. AVISON, M.D., D.P.H., Medical Officer of Health

The need for physically fit men in time of war focusses attention of the causes of rejection and is a forceful lesson to us that in the years of peace we have neglected many things that ought to have been done to insure a healthier citizenry. While able bodied citizens are essential in time of war, we should remember that it is equally essential in times of peace and aside from the joy and comfort that good health brings to the individual, it is an economic asset at all times to the nation. Altogether too much attention is focussed on efforts to return the ailing to health and not nearly enough on efforts to see that good health is maintained.

The vast majority of babies are born healthy and most of the troubles that come later are due to someone's mismanagement. The time must surely come when not only doctors will be paid to keep people physically fit but when the people will be compelled to go periodicaly to doctors for physical checkups and compelled to put into practice the advice given. Children will be considered not only the children of their parents but children of the State. Many people who believe this are still baffled by the idea of cost, but cost in the long run would be less than that expended now on treatment and if we could be convinced that many things such as beauty aids, alcholic drinks, tobacco, etc., are not essential, we would have plenty of money for our essential health needs.

I have been going over a list of the causes for rejection from the Army in this military district, and I presume the conditions in other military districts are not dissimilar.

The need for glasses and other eye troubles head the list with over 22 per cent. Except for a few hereditary cases, young men of military age would not have need of glasses if proper attention to their eyes had been given throughout childhood. Reading in poor light through the years with consequent eye strain and lack of attention to minor eye infections are the major causes for eye difficulties in early life. How easily most of these rejections could have been avoided!

The next highest cause for rejections were foot troubles, with over 10%. Again, aside from a few congenital foot troubles, the majority are result of neglect in the growing years. How many children are allowed to wear shoes that are too short or too narrow, forcing the feet to assume unnatural positions and shapes causing hammer toes, bunions, corns, fallen arches, etc. New shoes are often bought that are absolutely unsuited to the feet they are forced to house and often shoes that are suitable when bought are worn after the feet have grown too large for them. A foot specialist in our schools to see that the children had properly fitting shoes would have saved the loss to the nation of many of these rejections. Think, too, of the years of discomfort that these men would have been saved had their feet been always properly housed.

And so, as one goes down the list of causes of army rejections, one is appalled by the number that need never have had their troubles at all—stomach troubles the result of faulty diet, ear troubles the neglect of colds, rupture that should have been corrected years before, dentures the result of dental neglect, etc., etc.

Our whole attitude towards the importance of health preservation needs changing. When that attitude has been changed the cost question will solve itself. Experience would soon show a happier population, lessened relief costs, lower sickness bills, increased state earnings from taxes and tens of thousands ready and fit to serve the nation's needs.

These Men Are Among R.C.A.F. Flying Boat Squadrons Now In Far East

After service with the R.A.F. coastal command, a large squadron of the R.C.A.F., flying huge, long-range Catalina flying boats, has been sent to the Far East where the men joined forces with other United Nations' fliers in the struggle to head off Japanese drives for strategic bases for invasions of China, India and Australia. This picture was made as the men embarked on their voyage. One of their Catalinas forms the background. In this group are shown: (BACK ROW, Left to Right), Sgt. T. C. Kelley, Winnipeg; W. O. G. C. Vichyites Down 2 British Craft Far Off Algeria

LONDON, May 30 (CP).—A British communique said today a Catalina flying boat was forced down at sea, a British naval plane was shot down and one Vichy aircraft was shot down in a clash between British air-naval forces and French squadrons from 10 to 20 miles off the Algerian coast May 18.

(A Vichy communique reported May 19 that Britain had lost two planes and France one in a gunfight which developed after a British patrol plane was challenged by a pursuit craft while flying over the Bay of Algiers.)

The Admiralty and Air Ministry issued a joint 350-word statement presenting Britain's version of the incident "after a full investigation of the circumstances."

A statement of Vichy authorities that the incident occurred because British forces had entered French territorial waters was declared to be "quite untrue."

The British communique said that Catalina aircraft was scouting ahead of British naval forces in the Mediterrnean when it turned back to investigate some small vessels "apparently in distress about 10 miles north of the Algerian coast."

"Two Vichy Dewoitine fighters appeared," it said, "whereupon the Catalina at once turned back northwards. The Vichy fighters nevertheless attacked the flying boat and seriously wounded three of the crew. As a result, the Catalina came down on the sea in a position some 20 miles north of the Algerian coast."

British naval planes, a destroyer and a Sunderland flying boat and land-based Vichy aircraft were then engaged and each side lost one plane, the communique reported. It said the Catalina's crew was rescued.

Belleville Presbyterial W.A. Holds Annual Meeting In Marmora

MARMORA, May 30—(ENS). — The tenth annual convention of the Women's Association of the Belleville Presbytery, which includes branches in Hastings and Prince Edward counties was held in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on Thursday, with morning and afternoon sessions. Delegates and visitors totalled almost three hundred, despite the fact that a few remote branches sent notice that gas rationing would prevent representation. Registration of delegates and visitors was in charge of Mesdames F. R. Wells and F. S. Sweet.

The morning session was opened with community singing led by Foxboro W.A. The devotional period was taken by St. Ola W.A. The treasurer's report, which was presented by Mrs. Macklin of Stirling in the unavoidable absence of the treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Shorey of Foxboro, showed a favorable balance on hand. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. (Rev.) W. P. Fletcher, Marmora. Reply was made by Mrs. G. F. Lent, Belleville.

The presidential address, delivered by Mrs. J. McKeown, Springbrook, touched upon Service. The speaker stressed neighborliness, the bearing of one another's burdens, service to our country, and the giving of incentive to immigrants from other lands to become good Canadian citizens.

Fifty-Three Societies

The secretarial report was given by Mrs. Harry Murphy, Belleville. Fifty-three societies sent in reports last year, and from these Mrs. Murphy gave an interesting sketch of the different activities. Roll call of executive was followed by reports from the different branches. Mrs. J. A. Lott of Frankford, district organizer, gave an inspiring talk on "Reminiscences." As the president in the initial year and two succeeding years of this Presbytery organization, she was able to outline the various stages of its growth. Since its inception, she has given 52 addresses which has entailed the travelling of 1,800 miles.

As guest speaker, Rev. Lydia Gruchy of Toronto, brought an interesting message to the gathering. She spoke of the number of churches at present without ministers, partly due to war conditions. She felt more scope would be given to women in the ministry of the church. he said that though the qualifications for the ministry were high, they were nevertheless attainable.

Various committees having been appointed, Victoria W.A. of Prince Edward County, conducted a quiet half hour. Adjournment was then made to St. Andrew's Hall, where an excellent repast was served by the ladies of Marmora W.A.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened with community singing led by Foxboro W.A., and the devotional period taken by Cannifton W.A. Other reports of branches were heard.

A round-table conference was conducted by Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Belleville, producing some interesting discussions. Rev. A. M. Laverty, Stirling, gave an inspirational address, stressing the value of the church in each community. Mrs. J. A. Lott introduced and installed the officers for the ensuing year as follows:

District Organizer, Mrs. J. A. Lott, Frankford; Honorary President, Mrs. J. McKeown, Springbrook; President, Mrs. E. Ward, Picton; 1st Vice-President, Miss Audrey Brickman, Victoria; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Harold Elliott, Stirling; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. Morris Stickle, Trenton. Secretary, Mrs. Harry Murphy, Belleville; Treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Shorey, Foxboro.

Following the installation, prayer was offered by Rev. Lydia Gruchy.

A vote of thanks having been tendered to all who in various ways had contributed to the success of the convention, Mrs. J. McKeown, retiring president, received of gift of beautiful roses, for which she extended thanks, at the same time expressing appreciation of co-operation received during her term of office. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher, after which the National Anthem was sung to close a most successful convention.

The injured man was removed to the Brantford General Hospital suffering from a crushed chest, a fractured right leg, and multiple small lacerations.

The car was dragged down the right of way for 56 yards before the radial was brought to a stop.

The car was completely wrecked and was jammed under the radial with such force that a railway engine had to be employed to separate the wreckage.

Bananas From Guatemala Are Being Sold Here

After a month's absence, for the first time in present memory, bananas were back again today in local fruit stores and at lunch counters, all the way from Gautemala, Central America.

National Grocers received the first car load of 20,000 pounds early this week, and the shipment had passed entirely out of their hands yesterday into the retail channels.

It was stated that these bananas were shipped by boat to New Orleans, and distribution was made from the Gulf of Mexico port by rail for delivery in the United States and Canada. This information also included the detail that this was the first shipment ever made by railways from New Orleans.

Possibility of another car for Peterborough being forwarded Monday was also mentioned with the likelihood that it might reach here before week is out. That, however, was not regarded as a certainty. The Central American fruit is said to be of much larger stalks than the bananas from the West Indies, a source of supply that has been temporarily severed by German submarines.

Drama of Trade

The enterprise of the distributing agents of the fruit trade, a service that seems to gain stature by accomplishment in surmounting difficulties, is reflected in the distances to which it reaches for the fruit and vegetables that are offered in the stores in the prosaic round of business. Consumers hardly ever associate drama with bananas, onions, grapes and the other products which look much the same as accustomed stock which rarely arouse a question about their origins.

Bananas have always been so commonly present that no one thinks of the journeys they have come, and the ingenuity of despatch by which they are delivered. Quite an interesting little lesson in geography lies behind the fruit stand this week.

Chilean Onions

Bananas from Guatemala below Mexico; Red Emperor and the green Alermia grapes should get a little bow, too, for they were grown in the Argentine. Chile on the east coast of South America has sent Spanish onions, the first sold over the local counters in two years. Of course there are Bermuda onions from Texas, but the Chilean variety is described as the real McCoy, or whatever the Spanish idiom for McCoy may be.

The 1942 potatoes are from Alabama. Last week and during the early Spring weeks they were grown in Florida, but the growing season is moving northward, and by the time the imports from Alabama have become commonplace, the Ontario potatoes will be be on your table.

Paducah Berries

Strawberries are now coming in from Kentucky, packed in Paducah, Kentucky, Irvin S. Cobb's old home town, and grown by the McCracken county producers' association. Tomatoes that were grown outdoors are here from Texas. The winter stock grew under the Mexican sun. Hothouse tomatoes are also in the Peterborough stores, an excellent product of Ontario green houses.

Peas in the pod were picked in California and Mexico, and string beans from Louisiana; celery from Florida; cabbages from Texas. Local gardens are already yielding spinach, asparagus, green onions and radishes. But, apparently there is no much romance about onions produced by the soil of North Monaghan. Probably, the gardeners of Chile don't rate their Spanish onions high in the drama of agriculture. Those onions had to travel far, like the prophet, to get recognition and attention.

After receiving attention from a local physician, the youngster was taken to the Belleville General Hospital, and it is not known whether or not the sight of the eye will be saved.

Mrs. H. T. Rehill Re-elected W.C.T.U. President

Business was the chief factor considered at the W.C.T.U. meeting held Friday in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. with a splendid attendance of interested women.

The worship service was taken by Mrs. W. H. Morton, who chose as her theme "The influence of the home." An appropriate scripture lesson emphasizing the value of home training in early life upon temperance. An appropriate scripture lesson from Proverbs, was read by Mrs. Morton, and the devotions were closed with prayer, led by Mrs. J. H. Rowe.

Reports from the various departments were received, all showing fine progress made during the year in the different activities which make up the W.C.T.U. An interesting feature of the meeting was the display of temperance posters made by the public school pupils of the city. The winners to be announced later.

Mrs. J. H. Rowe took the chair during the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. H. T. Rehill; vice-president, Mrs. H. Alton; recording secretary, Miss Helen Bannister; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. F. Lane; treasurer, Mrs. A. J. Throop; superintendent to be appointed by the above executive staff.

Mrs. Rehill took the clip sheet responsive exercise which dealt largely with statistics, stressing the unseemly great use of cigarettes, which averages two and one-half cigarettes smoked daily in Canada by every man, woman and child. Announcement was made that the W.C.T.U. county convention for Peterborough-Northumberland will be held at Plainville United Church on June 11. Mrs. J. H. Rowe was appointed to take the memorial service at this convention. An invitation was accepted by the union to hold their next meeting at the cottage of Mrs. B. W. Manning at Chemong Lake on the last Thursday in June.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Registered U. S. Patent Office

With Peterborough Red Cross Branch

One of the most heartening features of Red Cross work is that of the Junior Red Cross with more than 900,000 members in 30,000 schools across Canada. This band of young people of both sexes are working nightly for the war effort and at the same time learning an invaluable lesson in healthy living.

When this war is over the future of Canada will depend on the strong bodies and minds of the young Canadians who today make up the huge army of boys and girls enrolled in the Junior Red Cross. Having learned the rudiments of good health, they are making the lessons the foundation for good citizenship in adulthood.

But the study and practice of good health habits is not the only thing the members of the Junior Red Cross are doing. Much of their time is now devoted to helping their less fortunate brothers and sisters in bomb wracked Britain. They have raised funds to purchase 14 mobile kitchens for the fire brigade of Britain, 5 ambulances for the British Red Cross, 3 station wagons, utilicon, 3,000 blankets and the endowment of a bed in Taplon Hospital. These are just some of the invaluable contributions made to the war effort by the young members of the Canadian Junior Red Cross since the beginning of the war. Also the sum of $500,000 has been raised.

The latest responsibility taken on by the juniors is the financing of eight war nursuries in Britain for homeless children. Grateful letters from the matrons in charge of these havens tell of the importance and growing need for this rescue work and the great place it fills in giving homes to children who otherwise become waifs and strays.

In addition to war work, Red Cross juniors aided 1,544 crippled children in Canada last year.

In this community, the young people are appreciating more and more keenly the magnitude of the great struggle and are helping in a very substantial way. In the inspectorate district of Peterborough West and Victoria East, each public school has contributed an average of 5 cents per pupil from January, 1942, to March, 1942. From September, 1941 to December, 1941 the sum of $1,870 was raised by War Saving Stamps and between $2,500 and $3,000 is expected for the first six months of 1942.

The public school children of the same district also sent donations to the Navy League for Christmas cheer for sailors in 1940. This amounted to $190.43 and in 1941 it was $201.30. Every school sent contributions. The Indian School at Curve Lake was no exception. The collection of salvage by the children has been really remarkable. In certain communities huge quantities of scrap metal and old rubber tires are piled up waiting for trucks to take it away.

There are approximately 2,500 pupils in this school district and practically all are enrolled as members of the Junior Red Cross. Sewing and knitting are done under the instruction of the teachers and at Christmas time special articles, some from the manual training pupils, are made.

The work of the Junior Red Cross in the city schools will be dealt with in another issue.

DOROTHY DIX

VITAL INTEREST IN LIFE WILL END UNHAPPINESS.

No Woman Doing Her Bit For Her Country Suffers From Boredom Now.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Why is my life so empty? Surely there is a reason for it. Could I, if the cause were found, eliminate it? Or are such things permanent? Are we scarred inwardly from outside forces, by things we apparently have no control over? I am ill. I am poor. I am young. I am pretty. I am intelligent. I am tired. Please help me. HUMAN BEING.

ANSWER: Well, I'm tired, too, tired to the point of exhaustion of having young women write me that their lives are empty when the world is running over with interests and duties and responsibilities and opportunities; when there are lonely people starving for companionship, discouraged people needing to be bucked up, friendless people needing to be mothered.

You can't pick up a newspaper without reading a dozen calls for help from women. Women are wanted everywhere for war work, for defence work, for Red Cross work, for hospital work; yet idle women have the nerve to complain about their lives being empty. Believe me, no woman who is doing her bit for her country is suffering from an empty life now. Her life is too full of helpfulness and sympathy to leave any place in it for boredom and that I-dont-know-what-ails-me feeling.

But lots of women have it and, strange to say, they seem to cherish it instead of taking drastic means to cure it. They enjoy sitting up and pitying themselves because all the prize packages in life haven't been presented to them on a silver salver and they get a kick out of bemoaning themselves because they aren't glamor girls, or millionairesses or married to Fairy Princes.

They never seem to realize that the luckiest of us would find ourselves in the red if we figured out all our liabilities without crediting any of our assets. For we get out of life just what we put into it, and if we never put into it any courage, any purpose, any unselfishness, any love and care for those about us, our lives are bound to be empty.

You say you are ill. That's bad. But you have all science at your command now to heal you, and you need not feel that your case is hopeless. And, better than any drug known to materia medica, is the stimulant of having some vital interest and purpose in life. So go to work at something that will make you forget your aches and pains and feel that life is still worth living. And, even if you are doomed to invalidism remember the many heroic women who have carried on from sick beds, that they made the shrines to which people came to gather fresh courage and strength to meet their own problems.

You say you are young and pretty and intelligent and yet your life is empty. Be ashamed of it. Fill your bucket so full of good deeds there will be no place in it for repining.

AN EASILY CONSOLED WAR WIDOW.

Dear Miss Dix: My dear husband has left me, having been called in the draft. He has been gone three months and I don't know where he is. My old boy friend from out of town wants to start in where we left off before I married my husband. Since I may never see my husband again and I am not getting any younger, do you think it would be all right for me to go out with this man? Nobody in town would ever find out about it. What do you think? S.M.H.

ANSWER: Well I think you are about the most easily consoled war widow I have ever encountered, and that your ability to love the man who is nearest when t'other one is away, entitled you to take the medal among unfaithful wives.

Apparently you are not giving even a casual thought to your husband who is risking his life to defend you from the fate worse than death that has met the women in the conquered countries in the war. You are not asking yourself how he will feel to know that you could not be true to him even for three months and that the minute his back was turned you took back your old sweetheart because you wanted somebody to take you around and give you a good time.

Pretty shabby treatment, I'd call it. And don't fool yourself into thinking that he won't hear about your affair with the old boy friend. There is always someone to pass along the bad news.

IT'S BEST TO GO SLOW.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am in love with a young army officer stationed at a nearby camp. He has asked me to marry him. I want to do it because I love him so, but one thing troubles me. I know nothing whatever about him except the little he has told me about his family. I read in your column the other night that girls should check up on boys who are strangers to them before they married them.

What I want to know is: How can I do this without hurting his feelings, or having him think I do not trust him? JANE DOE.

ANSWER: If the young man had a proper appreciation of the right thing to do under the circumstances he would take the initiative and go to your father and tell him all about himself—his family, his background, what means he has of supporting a wife, and give him the names of several reputable men in his community to whom he could write for verification of his statements. He would realize that when a girl marries a man she puts her life into his hands, and that she has a right to know what sort of a bargain she is making and what risk she is taking.

In former times, when young men asked their daughters' hands in marriage, fathers used to demand to know of the suitors if they could support their daughters in the way in which they had been living; but nowadays, when girls mainly support themselves, parents seem to wash their hands of all sense of responsibility as to their daughters' husbands and let them marry any Tom, Dick or Harry who somes along, without even finding out what their real names are.

When a girl is infatuated with a boy she thinks that love is enough and that it doesn't matter who he is, or where he came from, or what sort of a family he belongs to, or what his past record is, because she is so certain that even if he comes from a different class than she belongs to, or that he has led a wild life, or that he has never supported himself that as soon as he is marhimself, taht as soon as he is married he will change into her heart's desire. But, alas, this does not happen.

The few words that the preacher or the Justice of the Peace murmur over him in the marriage ceremony are no magic incantation that changes the lad from what he is into what he should be. He is the same before and after taking. Nor can any mere wife change what centuries of breeding and twenty years of rearing have made him.

So go slow girls. Look your gift husband well in the mouth before you marry him. Especially in these war times.

Cragg-Trebilcock Nuptial Ceremony at St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's United Church was the scene on Saturday, May 30, of the wedding of Florence Scott, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Trebilcock and niece of Miss Elizabeth Scott, Hunter street, to Dr. Charles Edward Allen Cragg, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Cragg. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young performed the ceremony and the church was decorated with palms, ferns and bridal wreath. Mr. H. Harle supplied the wedding music and during the signing of the register Miss Frances Millard sang "O Fair, O Sweet, O Holy" the piece which had been sung at the wedding of the bride's parents.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Andrew Scott of London, Ontario. She looked beautiful in a gown of pearl pink heavy satin, fashioned with a basque bodice with a yolk of chantilly lace which had been worn by her mother on her wedding day, and a long, very full skirt falling into a long train. Her long veil of white net hung from a dutch style cap of chantilly lace and she wore a pearl necklace. She carried a waterfall bouquet of dream roses, deep opal pink butterfly roses, pink larkspur and swansonia.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary McPherson, wore a gown of Queen Elizabeth blue taffeta with a basque bodice and a long full skirt of polka dot net over taffeta. The bridesmaid, Miss Jean Hamley, cousin of the bride, wore a dress of similar style in shell pink and both carried mixed bouquets of pink roses, snapdragons and blue larkspur. The best man was Dr. Donald E. Hubbell and the ushers were Dr. Lawrence Leslie, Dr. John Fraser and Dr. Warren H. Wilkins, all college friends of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, where Miss Elizabeth Scott, the bride's aunt, received the guests wearing a gown of ice-blue crepe de chine with panels of matching lace, a hat of matching blue straw trimmed with French flowers, and corsage of forget-me-nots and marguerites. The groom's mother also received, wearing a gown of dutsy pink embossed chiffon, a deep purple straw hat trimmed with French flowers and a corsage of orchids. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Andrew Scott of London, Ontario, wore a floor-length dress of blue crepe with a picture hat of black leghorn straw trimmed with pale pink flowers.

Later the bride and groom left on a short wedding trip. For travelling the bride wore a suit of powder blue and white printed silk, a navy hat and navy wool topcoat and navy accessories. Dr. and Mrs. Cragg will live at 96 Bagot street, Kingston, Ontario.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 31

Sunday's horoscope is a very auspicious one for all manner of social, cultural and affectional activities, with many pleasurable as well as profitable engagements in such connection. But be alert to dangers, losses, theft or disagreeable entanglements while traveling, in correspondence or in money matters.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a happy and prosperous year in all those associations dealing with home, social, artistic and cultural developments or in such forms of business as concern these. In finances, business, writings, travel, agencies there are hazards of loss, theft, fraud and misrepresentation. Much activity and pleasure are seen in the affectional or romantic realm with possible engagement or marriage.

A child born on this day may have a happy and lively social and emotional life, being friendly and magnetic, but its business affairs may be complicated by fraud.

For Monday, June 1

Monday's astrological forecast is for rather fruitful and propitious culmination to ambitious projects, after some stubborn obstacles as well as surprising, sudden and strange circumstances are cleverly disposed of. This may occur not only by sound judgment, politic maninpulation and the use of an enhanced magnetic personality, or by personal influence with those in power.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a successful and progressive year by the exercise of sound ideas and judgment as well as tact, finesse and attractive personality, when deceptive, peculiar or baffling situations meanace. Strange situations may challenge sagacity and shrewd evaluation of difficult problems. In private life there may be a prospect or happiness and realized ambitions.

A child born on this day may be endowed with many excellent talnets, artistic, legal, intellectual or literary rather than purely business. Its gracious and attractive personality will help it to success.

Help the Young People To Health - Happiness

What a common sight to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidences of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anaemic nature and require a preparation containing iron to improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system and helping to improve the blood content.

Lovely Wedding Need Not Be Expensive

Plan in Advance

Although the war forbids extravagance, you can have a lovely wedding. It doesn't take money. The important thing is to know what's correct.

"Such a beautiful wedding." They will say that of yours—if you plan it right—whether formal or informal.

The formal bride looks lovely in her bridal gown and veil, but you may look lovely, too, marrying informally in suit and hat.

The groom's clothes are in key—cutaway and striped trousers for a formal afternoon wedding or business clothes for an informal one.

On the bride's budget will be invitations, refreshments, music and expenses at the church. The groom's will include the license and the ring, the fee for the clergyman.

Our 32-page booklet explains all the etiquette of expenses, describes every detail of correct formal and informal wedding dress for bride, groom, attendants and guests. Tells etiquette for ceremony and reception.

For your copy of "Planning and Budgeting Your Wedding" send 15 cents in stamps or coins to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

CROSSING THE DECLARER

EVERY DEFENSIVE player against a No Trump game is conscious of the fact that declarer's side might have bid a major suit if it was held, whereas a considerable minor suit might have been concealed. Consequently, a major suit lead is usually preferred to one of the minor. Knowing this preference, we are now seeing occasional cases of smart players getting into 3-No Trumps without any sure protection against one of the minor suits, simply because they do not expect it to be led. The next stage of that evolution will come when we find a number of good players intentionally selecting a minor suit lead in preference to a major.

It was quite clear to West on this deal that his opponents had bid the two red suits, and that therefore a lead of one of the two black suits was indicated. Following time-honored custom in such cases, West led the spade 6—the unbid major. It takes no particularly fine imagination now to figure out how South got all 13 tricks, making an unbid grand slam.

If West had felt that South was taking advantage of his side's probable preference for a major suit lead, and had crossed him by opening a club, in the expectation that it might be his partner's long suit, the contract would have been set with five immediate tricks in that suit.

Examination of the deal shows that 5-Diamonds or 5-Hearts could have been made beyond peradventure of a doubt, considering the way that the opposing cards were located, but that is another story.

Your Week-End Lesson

If your partner has shifted with a minimum bid to your higher-ranking suit from your lower-ranking one which you have just bid, what is the underlying principle to help you decide whether to raise the call still higher?

Less Ontario Gas Says Howe, No Aid To East

OTTAWA, May 30.—Cutting Ontario and Quebec gasoline coupons from a five to a four-gallon value would not provide railways with extra tank cars for gasoline shipment to the Maritimes, where the coupon has been cut from a five to two-gallon value, Munitions Minister C. D. Howe told Commons yesterday

He was replying to a question submitted by A. J. Brooks, New Brunswick Conservative, on behalf of fifteen St. John, N.B., labor and commercial organization, whose telegram to Mr. Brooks concluded with the declaration that "answers to the above questions imperative to preserve national unity and faith in the Government's integrity."

"I can only say what I have said before," said the Minister, "that every gallon of petroleum products that can be shipped to the Maritimes is being shipped. The situation in Ontario and Quebec is quite separate from the situation in the Maritimes Provinces. As for the national unity and faith in the Government's integrity, my principal interest at the moment, and paramount interest, is to supply sufficient gasoline for the navy, the air force and the merchant marine."

German Sub Rammed By American Freighter

This Nazi submarine came off second best in run-in with an American freighter somewhere in the Atlantic. The submarine attacked, and then had to submerge in a hurry as the freighter turned on its assailant and tried to ram. The keel of the freighter caught the undersea boat across the foredeck before it could duck deep enough. Damage can be seen (circled). This photograph was made at the German port where the sub put in for repairs. The ramming cut short this raider's marauding expedition.

Bigger Gas Cuts Due Soon; May Split A's

OTTAWA, May 30.—(CP)—Reduction in the amount of gasoline available to the average motorist will be announced shortly, and plans for making it effective now are being worked out, it was understood today.

Whether there will be a cut in the basic ration unit of five gallons a coupon or a rearrangement of categories has not been decided.

Canada's gasoline and fuel oil supplies now are in a more critical state than at any time during the war, and reduced consumption is considered essential to maintain adequate reserves and provide for needs of the armed forces.

Oil control officials are making a double-barrelled attack on the shortage by attempting to reduce consumption and increase supplies.

One point which officials say the public has failed to grasp is that the petroleum supplies of both the United States and Canada, which are interlocked, are primarily a problem of transportation.

"We don't need new sources; what we need is larger transportation facilities," one spokesman said.

Reserves Adequate

North American oil reserves, underground and above ground, are considered quite adequate to provide all requirements of the United Nations, but the problem is to move the oil to the points where it is needed. Known United States reserves were reported by the American Petroleum Institute last year at 19,024,000,000 gallons, the largest on record, and they have increased since that time.

The transportation problem has been illustrated in both Canada and the United States by the acute shortages experienced along the East coast—shortages which resulted in the Canadian Government cutting the basic ration unit in the Maritime Provinces from five gallons to two gallons.

In the United States 30 barges are under construction to increase petroleum movements through inland waterways, but steel shortage has prevented a larger program, and it is admitted the new fleet will give only proportionately small relief.

Under peacetime conditions a tanker left one of the Gulf coast oil ports every 80 minutes carrying petroleum. Tanker losses through submarine action, delays as a result of necessary convoy systems and transfer of some of these ships to Pacific routes have reduced these shipments by more than 50 per cent.

War Needs Mounting

The tankers carried 95 per cent. of the petroleum requirements of the Eastern seaboard. Now, with shipments cut, requirements for direct war purposes are steadily increasing. United States authorities report that even with rationing the current gasoline supply in the Eastern United States will be only about 42 per cent. of the demand.

Similar figures for Canada are not available, but officials say there is little difference between conditions in the two countries. In Canada the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is making heavy demands on gasoline resources. Training of one pilot requires 12,500 gallons, it is estimated.

Action in the Pacific has cut off normal Australian petroleum supplies and at the same time led to heavily-increased demands in fuel oil for the navy. Battleships use 120 gallons of fuel oil in a single mile of cruising.

Requirements for naval vessels operating from the Eastern Canadian coast are an important factor in the present gasoline shortage in the Maritimes. Munitions Minister Howe recently told the House of Commons that all available lake tankers and tank cars are being used to move fuel oil east for the navy. No accommodation was immediately available for gasoline, he said.

Two Sections for Licenses

One plan which Canadian oil control officials have had under consideration is known to be a proposal to split "A" category gasoline ration licenses into two sections. "A" license holders—owners of non-essential cars—are entitled under present arrangements to from 300 to 380 gallons a year.

The proposal has been made that drivers in this class who use their cars for driving to work should receive more gasoline than those who use their cars only for pleasure. This, it has been suggested, might help relieve congested public transportation systems but there has not yet been any authoritative indication that the plan will be accepted.

Already thousands of licenses have been recalled and scaled downward but indications in official circles are that this action has not resulted in a sufficient reduction in consumption.

Tests Under Way On Mosquitoes And Black Flies

MARMORA, May 30 — (ENS).— Some important experiments are being carried out in Marmora township for the next few weeks by H. A. Munro, M.A., B.Sc. and C. S. McNary, B.Sc. of the Science Service of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The experiments are in relation to biting insects such as mosquitoes and black flies which in some countries carry malaria and yellow fever and become a serious problem in some military campaigns.

In this section, such insects, though numerous, do not carry disease which makes the district a favorable location for carrying out these experiments. Both the Canadian and British Governments are concerned in the work.

Dr. G. H. Hammond of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Ottawa who has been spending various periods here for the past few years is also continuing his study of "white grub control in Ontario." Dr. Hammond states the grubs will be very numerous this year and this statement has been borne out by several local agriculturists. Investigations at various spots north of Crowe Lake revealed an average of over a hundred grubs in a square yard of earth.

Ottawa Acting To Relieve Beef Shortage

OTTAWA, May 30 — (CP). — Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said yesterday immediate action is being planned to relieve a beef shortage which has developed in Toronto, and that the expectation is a board announcement dealing with prices will be forthcoming within a few days.

Informed sources said it appears some Toronto butchers whose permitted prices under the price ceiling imposed by the board last year were higher than others, have been able to obtain beef, while those who were under a low ceiling have ben unable to buy at prices which would permit them to sell at a profit.

The entire beef cattle situation was affected by heavy shipments across the United States border this year during two quota periods in which cattle could be shipped at preferred duty rates, and this was believed to have left a sufficient shortage that farmers were able to take advantage of the best prices offered.

Toronto retail meat merchants yesterday protested to the board against what was described as "unexplained and unnecessary delay in dealing with the situation despite earlier promise of immediate settlement."

Price ceiling adjustments by the board to permit wider distribution of beef supplies among all butchers were considered possible.

Burns Fatal To Cavan Farmer

in all the provinces. (At present only Quebec and Prince Edward Island send divorce cases to Parliament.) M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House Leader, termed the method in which Parliament has to pass on Divorce Bills "a tragedy and a farce."

At question time, Mr. Hanson referred to a letter from the Justice Minister to the secretary of the Quebec East Liberal Club. Reading from a published translation, he quoted the passage on conscription which Mr St. Laurent confirmed as "probably a correct translation of what I wrote."

Mr. Hanson asked if it was "a reflection of Government policy," and Mr. St. Laurent replied: "It stated to the secretary of the club my opinion of the situation and of the purpose of the Bill now before this House.'

Thorson Starts Something.

Mr. Thorson's reference to the voluntary system came later in the course of a rather heated debate on Canadian publicity in the United States.

Mr. Thorson aroused a barrage of cross-fire from Opposition groups when he stated that before the war Canada, like the United States, was an "isolationist" country.

There was a chorus of cries: "Speak for yourself" from Conservative and New Democracy members, and Mr. Thorson, when he could continue, said:

"I am perfectly free to say that I was one of those who believed it might be possible for North America to hold itself aloof from the quarrels of Europe."

"And let the Empire go to the dogs," said John R. MacNicol (Con. Toronto-Davenport).

"That view is one that cannot now be held by any thinking person," the Minister continued.

"And it never could be held by any thinking person," C. E. Johnston (N.D. Bow River) interjected.

Mr. Thorson said he had come to the view that no nation could stand alone and he had wholeheartedly supported Canada's entry into the war.

That action by Canada had been one of the strongest arguments against United States isolationist view and had been so recognized by American isolationists, in his opinion, said the War Services Minister.

This aspect of the debate was provoked by a suggestion from Brooke Claxton (Lib. Montreal-St. Lawrence-St. George), that a Canadian information bureau be set up in New York to tell the story of Canada's war effort and endeavor to remove misunderstandings on this point in the minds of Americans.

An American Question

Mr. Hanson said Americans were wondering "how in the world this country can have a total war effort if it does not practice total war."

He said there was without question a "feeling of frustration in the United States with respect to our war effort.

"They know that our industry is in production, they know that we have a good army overseas and a good army in training in Canada.

"Yet they know from their own experience and their own example that Canada has fallen down, according to their standards, in one particular feature.

"In the United States press the plebiscite was greeted as an overwhelming manifestation on the part of the Canadian electors in favor of total war and when they find that it does not mean total war there is a feeling of bewilderment to which they have given expresison.

"They will never truly appraise our effort in this war until that position is cleared up."

Mr. Thorson said he wondered if that feeling had been expressed as frequently in the United States "as it is expressed by certain persons in Canada."

To the accompaniment of a series of interruptions and jeers from the opposition, Mr. Thorson asked Mr. Hanson to compare the number of men raised by the draft with those raised by voluntary enlistment in Canada.

"I am prepared to say we are raising more men for our armed forces by our voluntary system than the United States is raising at present by its draft system," the Minister declared.

There were shouts of "by coercion" and "by backdoor methods" from Conservative ranks, and "what was the plebiscite for?"

Mr. Thorson said that the situation described by Mr. Hanson prevailed in the United States from a mistaken view of the facts.

"And much of that mistake is brought about by people of Canada who are decrying everything that is of a voluntary nature," the minister added.

Mr. Thorson said this whole question would be covered in the debate on the Mobilization Act amendment when, "in as cool a manner as possible, we can deal with the merits or demerits of compulsory service overseas."

He expressed the view that a good case could be made for maintenance of the voluntary system as the most effective way of raising men.

But the forthcoming debate, he said, would "go a long way toward dispelling the heat and frenzy that has grown up in many quarters—in some cases fomented in other cases as opinions honestly held."

On the question of publicity in the United States Mr. Thorson said those who had endeavored to use propaganda in that country had failed to improve relations. Canada had not attempted propaganda.

Now that the United States and Canada were united in a war effort the situation had changed and extension of Canadian information in that country was desirable.

He referred to the report that Charles Vining of Montreal had been commissioned to study the publicity situation in the United States and said he was hopeful that when the report was received Canada will be able to embark upon a system of publicity that would give no offence to that country.

1250 BOMBERS DESTROY GREAT CITY OF COLOGNE

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 1—(AP)—Germany can be knocked out of the war by fall, crushed by huge fleets of British and American bombers, air experts predicted today as the German city of Cologne lay in flaming ruin under the most devastating air raid in history.

When the R.A.F. sent more than 1,000 bombers with the greatest weight of steel and explosives ever borne on wings into the Rhineland Saturday night, these sources declared, its fliers heralded not only an eventual invasion of Hitler's Europe but also the systematic destruction of his war machine, city by city, factory by factory.

More than 1,000 Canadian airmen—four squadrons of the Royal Canadian Air Force and hundreds of other Canadians in the R.A.F. — took part in the aerial smash. It was the 107th raid on Cologne, about the size of Toronto.

The R.C.A.F. bombing squadrons were commanded by Wing Commanders D. A. R. Bradshaw of London, Ont. Johnny Fulton of Winnipeg, Johnny Fauquier of Ottawa, and A.O.P. Clayton of Vancouver.

The Canadians, returning to their bases, agreed there had never been a blaze comparable with the one they had left behind them. Sqdn. Ldr. Len Fraser of Winnipeg, a veteran bomber, called the raid "a piece of cake."

Po L. G. Higginson of Montreal, captain of the first aircraft to return in his squadron, estimated the smoke column over Cologne at 8,000 feet, and Fauquier, who returned a little later, added another 2,000 feet to that figure. Still later reconnaissance showed smoke had risen to 15,000 feet.

Most of City Aflame.

Fauquier estimated that nearly seven-eighths of the city was in flames and declared "it didn't seem possible we could do any more damage than had already been."

Of such magnitude was the raid that only a masterwork of organization, with the bombers swarming over their targets at six-second intervals, made it possible.

Its paralyzing might was told in astronomical figures:

Jap Midgets Sneak In Sink Old Ferry Meet An Inferno

SYDNEY, Australia, June 1. — Japanese midget submarines apparently launched from a mother ship off the Australian coast, sneaked into famous Sydney Harbor last night and were greeted by a thunder of gunfire and depth charges which probably sank three of the tiny craft and thus averted damage to vital shipping.

The only achievement of the suicide raiders, believed similar to the midget undersea craft which figured in the attack on Pearl Harbor last December 7, was the sinking of an old steamship used as a ferry.

The raid, however, carried the war to Southern Australia for the first time, and gave the residents of Sydney — the largest city in this broad continent — an exciting night punctuated by the sounds of heavy gunfire.

The submarines which presumably slipped through a narrow shipping lane in the mile-wide harbor entrance, were spotted first at about 11 p.m. and two sudden gunshots from Allied defence batteries touched off a veritable inferno.

Searchlights sprang in action on all sides and their beams swept the harbor as more guns fired their salvoes.

One searchlight picked up the periscope and upper portion of the conning tower of one submarine, which was believed sent to the bottom by gunfire.

Bombs Laid Everywhere

Two other submersibles, Allied Headquarters said, were believed sunk by depth charges loosed by Allied naval vessels which combed the bay in all dicetions.

Twenty-one passenger aboard a ferry crossing the harbor when the shooting broke out had grandstand seats for the show.

British AA's Pick Off Plum Over Libya Lines Downing Rommel's 2 O.C.-Get Interesting Diary

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES in The Libyan Desert, May 30—(Delayed).—Gen. Ludwig Cruewell, Commander of the German African Corps and second only to Field Marshal Edwin Rommel in the North African Command, was captured yesterday and found in possession of a dairy which showed he conferred with Hitler only a week before Rommel's latest attack.

Cruewell, 55, former Commander of Nazi tank formations in France and Yugoslavia, was taken prisoner when a reconnaissance plane in which he was a passenger was forced down by anti-aircraft fire in the centre of the British lines.

Earlier it had been thought that Lt.-Gen. Nehring had taken command of the Corps—there even was a rumor that he had succeeded Rommel—but it became apparent that he was sent to the desert only to fill in for Cruewell during the latter's home leave.

Cruewell, who became a full General last December, left the desert March 24 and returned May 24, just two days before the zero hour for the African Corps' new drive.

Cruewell probably is the most important General yet to fall into British hands.

"Captured Italian officers gave him a most deferential Fascist salute when he departed," said a British officer who escorted Cruewell to quarters assigned to him.

The tall ruddy-faced, grizzled officer with the grime of the desert struggle still on him faced newspaper cameras unabashed.

Asked what he thought about the Russian campaign, where he participated in the Kiev drive last Fall, he replied curtly, "I don't speak on military or political subjects."

British Pound Axis Units On All Sides

2 Narrow Pathways Through Mine Fields Huns Only Escape Hope

CAIRO, June 1 — (AP). — The bulk of Field-Marshal Edwin Rommel's two German tank divisions—the backbone of his Africa Corps—was reported trapped and attempting to escape British forces to-day with the Army of Lieut.-Gen. Neil Ritchie waging a fierce battle from all sides and from the air in effort to wipe them out.

The Germans' only hope, a British communique indicated, was to win a "battle of the gaps" by holding open two narrow passageways through British minefields to the west which the Germans had cleared and where they had concentrated anti-tank artillery to protect their route of escape.

British Headquarters announced that Gen. Ludwig Cruewell, in direct command of the Africa Corps under Rommel, had been captured. The 55-year-old former commander of an armored division in Yugoslavia was taken prisoner when his reconnaissance plane was shot down in the desert.

British informants said that the Germans, faced with the choice of using the minefield gaps to bring up supplies or to withdraw the tanks, apparently had chosen the latter course and that the offensive, begun five days ago, had turned into a furious battle by the Axis forces to escape encirclement.

R.A.F. Pound Oil, Water Lines.

The R.A.F., reporting the loss of 19 planes in continuous operations over the battle area in the last 24 hours, said its fighter and bomber attacks on the Axis mechanized forces were maintained "with outstanding effect."

The planes are concentrating on supply columns attempting to move oil and water to Rommel's forces, as well as engaging in actual combat with the tanks and armored cars.

"Many enemy transport vehicles were destroyed and damaged and although our fighter effort was directed principally against the enemy's land forces, several combats developed over the battle area," the R.A.F. communique said.

At least four Axis planes were shot down and others were "probably destroyed." Bombers blasted the Martuba airdrome and objectives in the El Tmimi area.

Other bombers ranged as far as Messina in Sicily. A heavy attack was pressed home last night at the Derna airport and "large fires were observed among the dispersed aircraft."

Rommel's Orders

CAIRO, June 1—(AP). — British authorities announced today that an order of the day by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, dated May 26, ordering the offensive which British forces apparently have defeated in Libya has fallen into their hands.

"The armored army of Africa, in the course of great operations, moves today to a decisive attack against the British mobile forces in Libya," this order read.

Gigantic Wave Drowns Six Fishing In Erie

CLEVELAND, June 1.—(AP).— A huge wave catapulted shoreward along a 60 mile stretch of Lake Erie before dawn yesterday, caught holiday fishermen unawares, drowned seven persons, injured at least seven and cast numerous small boats against the beaches.

Variously described by eye-witnesses as from four to 20 feet high, with a second crest of smaller proportions, the wave struck from Bay Village on the west of Cleveland to the vicinity of Geneva on the east

The dead:

Mrs. Esther Allen, 48, and George H Forrler, 44, both of Berea, nearby. They were fishing from a pier at Bay Village.

Robert Michaels 14, of Cleveland, who had been fishing from a jetty here.

Merrill F. Riley, 50, of Cleveland, Merle Edward Diehl, 45, of Cortland, O.; Orlo Lenney, 29, and his wife Esther 25, also of Cortland. They were fishing from small boats offshore between Fairport harbor and Geneva.

Dr. J. J. Nassau, director of the observatory at Case School of Applied Science, said the wave probably was caused by the wind.

Describing the scene at which four were drowned, Edward Anderson, 26 and Joseph Lozar, 31, both of Cleveland, said they had been fishing from a boat all of Saturday night in choppy water and shifting winds. Fearful of a storm, they worked their 14-foot craft toward shore as they noticed a dark streak in the sky.

Their boat was picked up by the wave and flung past another, which capsized. They were able to reach two of the three occupants, but Riley was drowned before aid could reach him.

South Russia In Calm For New Blow

Soviet Air Raiders Wreck Scores As Hun Remass Tanks

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 1.—(AP)—The three-week battles in the Crimea and the Ukraine which opened the Spring campaign on the eastern front have ended in a calm which finds new lines stabilized and both sides preparing for new and perhaps more violent outbreaks.

As the result of the early May offensives the Germans now are holding lines advanced to the Kerch Strait which separates them from the Caucasus, and the Russians are occupying deep wedges about Kharkov in the Ukraine.

The lull was signalled today by a Soviet communique which said there was nothing to report from the front.

Such action as there was to report during the week-end occurred on the Kalinin sector northwest of Moscow, not in the Kharkov zone, where the Red Army was reported taking the initiative in local operations, perhaps with the idea of beating the Germans to the punch for the second time this year.

Nazis Mass More Tanks

The Germans were reported, however, massing a vast concentration of tanks behind the southern front, and Russian reconnaissance pilot said that in one sector they saw an armored column which stretched throught streets of a city, on through the suburbs, and as far as the horizon.

During three days of attacks on such forces one force of Russian airmen reported destroying 50 tanks to add to a toll of more than 100 tanks and several hundred trucks smashed during the previous two weeks.

In another raid with a German airdrome as the target the Russians said 18 planes were destroyed and one new Focke-Wulf fighter shot down.

Germans Flock From Rhineland

LONDON, June 1—(CP Cable).—Hundreds of thousands of homeless people are being evacuated from the Rhineland following the great R.A.F. raid on Cologne, Reuters news agency reported today in a message from the German frontier.

Wealthy Germans in the industrial area were said to be anxiously trying to move to safer districts.

Although Britain's huge bombers stayed home last night, informed sources said they were held back solely by bad weather over the Continent. Despite the scale of the Cologne raid, they said, the Bomber Command was set to attack again had the weather been favorable.

Bombers Talking

WASHINGTON, June 1 (AP). — Bombers are talking to Germany now and their language needs no comment, State Secretary Cordell Hull observed today.

Asked at his press conference if he had anything to say about R.A.F. mass air raids, Hull replied he thought the bombers were speaking well for themselves, as they probably will continue to speak, louder and louder, as the war goes on.

US Soon to Double Bomb Show

Waiting On Nothing To Gain Air Superiority Says Gen. Arnoldi

LONDON, June 1.—(CP).—Lt.-Gen Henry H. Arnold, head of the United States Air Forces, announced to-day he had 'practically completed' conferences with British leaders aimed at developing 'the maximum impact of our combined air strength' of Germany.

Gen. Arnold, who arrived in Britain last week, declared:

"It is obvious no offensive against Nazi-occupied Europe can succeed without air superiority and we mean to have it."

He spoke at his first press conference since his arrival.

He praised Saturday nights mammtoh raid by the Royal Air Force on Cologne as a 'wonderful show' and said the sooner American planes could take their place side by side with the R.A.F. on similar raids 'the better it will be.

He avoided questions regarding when United States fliers would be flying from the British Isles, saying: 'I hope the first you hear about it will be when they arrive.'

He said the American Air Force in Europe would be a balanced unit of fighters, bombers and all other types of planes.

'In gaining air superiority in any theatre,' he went on, 'we havent time to wait for ideal airdromes, ideal aircraft or ideal conditions.

'Our enemies have demonstrated that they are willing to take their losses. We must be prepared to take our losses, too, but we are going to make them count.

Keep Americans Intact.

'It has been agreed that the best results will be achieved if American crews fly in American planes as American units except when emergency conditions dictate another course.

'Allocation of aircraft is being arranged wtih this principle in mind.

'The chief consideration of our conversations has been to ensure that increasing demands of American units of United Nations aircraft production do not impair the British air offensive now or in the future. I believe a mutually satisfactory balance has been struck.'

"We are determined to get every possible fighting plane into the fight," he continued.

"No combat planes are being kept back in the United States beyond the absolute minimum required for tactical training.

"Prime Minister Churchill and President Rosevelt have assured the people of our two countries time and again that we will hit the enemy hard and relentlessly until his military power is broken.

"The R.A.F. has recently been carrying out raids on a scale never before known in the history of warfare in pursuit of this policy."

He said he had sent a message congratulating Air Marshal A. T. Harris, chief of the R.A.F. bomber command, on the Cologne raid, and concluded:

"My visit has, I hope, hastened the day when our air arm shall join in an air offensive against the enemy which he cannot meet, defeat or survive."

In reply to questions he said it "has not been fully decided" whether to put the Eagle squadrons of the R.A.F., formerly of American volunteer fliers, into the American Air Force.

25 Huns Strike Back At Canterbury

CANTERBURY, England, June 1—(CP).—Three waves of German air raiders, totalling some 25 planes, attacked this ancient cathedral town early today with tons of high explosives and incendiaries.

Several historic buildings were wrecked by bombs or fire during the raid, which apparently was in reprisal for the R.A.F.'s devastating attack on Cologne Saturday night.

Among buildings hit were two churches, two schools, a hotel and a newspaper office. Many homes were wrecked or burned out.

(An authoritative source in London said the Canterbury Cathedral doubtless was one of the Germans' objectives, but added: "It is not proposed to assist the enemy by giving any information as to whether damage was caused or not.")

Scarcely any section of the town was missed by the bombers. Several large stores were wiped out in the business section, and at one time this whole area was a mass of flames. All the fires were under control by daylight.

Though many residents were left homeless they went about their work today as well as the emergency permitted. By mid-morning farmers were bringing stock into town—in many instances leading it over smoldering wreckage.

First official reports said 12 were known killed but that other bodies might be found.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. William Temple, was in the town during the raid but he was reported safe.

Girl Cut Down In Boston Park

BOSTON, June 1—(AP).—A 'teen age girl, screaming as she fled before a knife-brandishing pursuer along a parkway path beside the Charles River Basin, fell and was slashed to death today, within view of horrified back bay ap artment dwellers.

Three Boston University students pursued and captured the killer.

Police said that the girl, Fidella Briand, 18, of suburban Woburn, was walking to her classes at the Fisher Business School when she was accosted by the man, armed with a foot-long butcher knife. The man gave his name to Patrolman James Leonard as Harry Adams, 28, of Somerville, a dish-washer in a Boston West-end restaurant.

Harold Breski, 21, and Henry Gates, 21, and Lyle Wilson, 19, pursued the man and the screaming young woman along the pathway outside a lagoon, but were too far behind to prevent the tragedy.

Gates and Breski said that just before they overtook the man, he JERSEY CITY, N.J., June 1 — (AP)—The Swedish diplomatic liner Drottningholm brought its first batch of 908 passengers, including diplomats, newspaper reporters and citizens of the American republics safely home from Europe today.

Ship's officers said that three Axis submarines were sighted on the 10-day trip from Lisbon, but that Capt. Sigfrid Ericsson, the skipper, did not tell the passengers for fear of alarming them. The ship's itinerary had been given in advance to all the belligerents.

Admiral William D. Leahy was the first to leave the ship, accompanying the body of his wife who died while he was United States ambassador to Vichy.

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), June 1 (AP)—Gen. Vladimir Zinov, former Bulgarian Minister of the Interior, was executed by a firing squad today after a Sofia court martial had convicted him of espionage, said a Sofia dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio.

"He was a tool of Bolshevism and its agents working under the protection of diplomatic unity," the radio said. It added that the General, at his death a reserve officer, "never could get over the failure of his May 1935, uprising," in which he was accused of plotting the death

Giant Halifaxes Devastate Cologne, Then Whip Night Fighters On Way Home

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 1—(CP Cable). — While bomb - battered Cologne smouldered and Germany squealed and threatened reprisals for the gigantic week-end air attack, Canadians told jubiliantly of their hand in this devastating operation.

At least three All-Canadian squadrons, commanded by Wing Cmdr. Johnny Fulton, Kamloops, B.C.; Wing Cmdr. D. A. R. Bradshaw, London, Ont., and Wing Cmdr. Clayton, Vancouver, returned to their bases with every aircraft intact.

Part of 1,250 planes which Saturday night spread fire and destruction in the heart of the industrial Ruhr, the Canadian were bucked not only by the raid's success but also by the fact they were able to score victories over Nazi fighters while en route home.

"We are ready for anything anytime," was the general reaction among the Canadians as they settled down in their messes and talked about history's greatest raid.

It was PO. J. G. Middlemass of Wainwright, Alta., navigator of a four-engined Halifax, who told of destroying a JU-88 which attempted to stop the Canadians. Another crew shook off three enemy fighters.

Middlemass said the German attacked with machine guns and cannon, damaging the Halifax's tail turret, port wing flap and gasoline system. Both mid-turret and tail gunners replied and saw the enemy machine suddenly dive and explode on the ground. The Halifax's captain was able to land safely despite the fact all three landing wheels were punctured.

A Wellington captained by Sgt. Elmer Peters of Westville, N.S., outmanoeuvred three Germans. The crew was composed of Sgt. Jack Archibald, St. Brieux, Sask.; Sgt. Sam Zareikin, Montreal; Sgt. Jimmy Lowe, Kenogami Que.; Sgt. Bill Morgan, Vancouver, and Sgt. Tommy Murphy Castor, Alta.

"There was flak to be sure, and lots of it, but not as concentrated as usual," said Peters. "Saturday night Jerry just didn't know what to do. He just pointed his guns upward and let go."

En route home Lowe saw an enemy night fighter closing in and Paters had barely shaken off this plane when two more fighters had to be evaded.

Food Pinch Hitting Paris

Mob Kills 2 Policemen, Storms, Loots Food Store

VICHY, June 1.—(AP)—Growing seriousness of the food situation in occupied France was emphasized today by dispatches from Paris reporting that two policemen had been killed and a third wounded while attempting to halt a mob storming a food store.

Despite efforts of the police, the mob looted the store, tossing food to those outside.

Several arrests were made as a result of the incident, attributed to communist activity.

In another demonstration of violence in Paris a group of youths tumbled an equestrian statute of King Edward VII from its base

These outbreaks occurred while Pierre Laval, chief of the Vichy government, was in Paris conferring with industrial and labor leaders.

Following the conferences Laval issued a communique in which he called for greater efforts by France's workers and emphasized a need for stepping up production in industry and agriculture.

Italian Seawolves Laugh

Officers Enjoy Drowning Brazilians' Struggles

KEY WEST, Fla., June 1—(AP).—Four officers of a submarine believed Italians laughed from the conning tower of their vessel recently as they watched members of the crew of a torpedoed Brazilian merchantman struggle in the water near their blazing craft.

Two torpedoes thundered in rapid succession against the ship May 24 near Haiti. Six men died, two of them killed in the explosion and four in the rough sea attempting to reach lifeboats. Forty-five survivors reached land after 29 hours in lifeboats, and were brought to Key West.

The attacking submarine had the head of a long horned goat painted on its conning tower. In the goat's mouth was a red rose.

"I believe that submarine was Italian," said Chief Engineer Haroldo Nascimento. "Brazil has some submarines that were made by the Italians, and their lines are remarkably similar."

The laughing officers shouted inquiries as to identity and tonnage of the attacked ship. Capt. Jao Batista Gomes figured he believed the undersea craft was of recent construction. It was of average size and was freshly painted, he said.

RED FORCES STRIKE ON KALININ FRONT NORTHWEST OF MOSCOW

90,000 Hun Lost At Kharkov

Soviet Claims Victory Sapped Nazi Punch For Rostov

MOSCOW, June 1 —(AP)—The centre of action on the Russian front apparently had shifted from Kharkov to the Kalinin sector northwest of Moscow today where, for a second time this spring, the Red army reported beating the Germans to the punch.

The battle of Kharkov, which now has simmered down into relative quiet, was the first instance and the Russians announced it as a triumph.

Without denting their own reserve power, despite losses of 75,000 men, they declared they had forestalled a Nazi push on Rostov, drained German reserves and diverted 36 Nazi divisions which had been massed opposite that gateway city to the Caucasus. A Russian communique has put Nazi losses on the Kharkov front at 90,000 or more men captured and killed, 540 tanks and 200 planes destroyed.

On the Kalinin front, a communique said yesterday, the Germans tried to strengthen their positions by moving in large reserves but, striking first, the Red army seized "important enemy lines" and left about 1,100 Germans dead or wounded in repulsing counter attacks lasting three days.

An editorial in Red Star, the army newspaper, said the battle of Kharkov showed major revisions in the German tactics, with the Nazis' former reckless advances discarded in favor of cautious pressure.

It urged intensification of Soviet scouting to detect the enemy's plans and permit Russian forces to strike where an attack was least expected.

The sinking of three enemy ships, a transport and a trawler in the Gulf of Finland, and an 8,000-ton transport in the Black Sea, was announced in the Soviet information bureau war bulletin last midnight.

Authorities said that the spirit of co-operation between the people and air raid services was remarkable and that many were unwilling to leave their homes though the houses often were ringed by fire.

The Berlin Version.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 1 — (AP). — German planes struck at Canterbury last night "in reprisal for the terror attack by the British air forces on the centre of the the city of Cologne," the German high command said today.

"Thousands of high explosive fire bombs" were dropped on the ancient city of southeast England, and pilots observed large fires after the low level attacks, the communique said.

The communique yesterday said "great damage" had been done at Cologne. Today, the air raid precaution services were praised.

"The air raid precaution services without thought of personal losses considerably limited the spreading of fires by noteworthy vigilance and prompt action," the communique said.

The Berlin radio said last night that 111 civilians were killed in the British raid on Cologne and it was stated that 'great damage' was done in the central part of the city, but the radio quoted German military quarters as claiming that only "about 70" planes took part.

Zinov was a firm opponent of King Boris' pro-German policy and an exponent of close collaboration with Yugoslavia."

BBC said 19 others were arrested with Zinov in April.

As they took up the chase, the man closed in on the girl, she stumbled, and the pair rolled momentarily from view into shrubbery on the path. Then the assailant appeared again, running.

Child Welfare In Wartime Real Problem

COBOURG, June 1. — (ENS) — Problem of child welfare during war-time was the subject of an interesting address by Kenneth Hodgert, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society of Northumberland and Durham counties, at the weekly luncheon of Cobourg Rotary Club. The speaker was introduced by Joseph Patterson and the vote of thanks was moved by Reuben Freeman.

"War is an adult business; it always has been, and I think you will agree, a rather nasty business. But the children are in this war with the adults; you cannot keep them out of it. Hundreds of children, yes thousands of children have been bombed, starved, wounded and some killed. They are in this war whether we want it or not," said Mr. Hodgert.

"Our Canadian children are in this war, whether we want it or not and we are beginning to see many direct as well as indirect results of this war on children. Our Children's Aid Societies of Ontario, although they were not given as much work as they were prepared to take on, did a good job and are continuing to do a good job of looking after children who came to our shores from Great Britain. Children who were uprooted, leaving their homes and parents, and coming to a strange land to live with strange people and to be supervised by strange people—and I mean strange in a good many ways.

"A good many children in Canada have said good-bye to their fathers, some of them never to see them again, some of them for at least a long time. The mothers of a good many of these Canadian children are too busy to look after their children the way those children need, too busy to do the job that needs to be done so far as the children are concerned.

"There is need for day-care of young children of working mothers; there is need of lunches; supervised play centres; teachers; there is need for trained people to work in this field. As you know, not every person can look after a group of young children. It takes knowledge and skill and it takes some time to develop. Over two million children in our schools in Canada today—those are the boys and girls who bear the heavy responsibility of the future. Some of them within a few years will be in our armed forces—some will be taking their part in essential industry. Most of them will have the job of reconstruction. They must be prepared for that. We cannot afford to neglect or let down in any way on any service for children. Not when the war is over, but now. Now is the time for us to review, to consider, to revise our ideas, if necessary, and to be very definite and clear in what we are trying to do for and with children. What are we trying to do? What are our objectives? It is not enough that a child should have food, clothing and shelter for a number of years. These are important, but not as important as some other things. Think of these boys and girls in terms of a few years hence, when we may hand over to them the world we have made such a mess of, for them to build anew," he declared.

Educate The Children

"Some people have tried to shelter and protect children from this fact that we are at war. It cannot be done. But what must be done is to help these children of all ages—they need to know, these children of ours, what we are fighting for and need to know that in definite, clear-cut terms which they can understand. Not the glorification of war, most certainly not, but an understanding by these children of the cruel necessity of this war; not hatred, not intolerance but the fact that we are fighting for things in which we believe and for our way of life—that we are fighting against aggression, cruelty—these things must be told to our children in terms that they can understand. They cannot be left out and furthermore they should have every chance to take part in this war, there should be a chance to do salvage work, War Savings Stamps, Red Cross, working on farms—a long list. They have a part to play and a job to do. Let us take them into the work and into our confidence. This war is being fought for our children, so that our children, so that all children, not just of Canada but the world, can have a place, a world that is worth living in.

Must Think For Themselves

"What kind of individuals will they be? They have to be persons who can think for themselves—not just individuals who can do as they are told. Think of what that one objective means in terms of home training—in terms of community endeavor—in terms of school—in terms of every situation in which they are placed. The child, as I have just stated, has to be an individual who can think for himself—he has to be prepared for work, to be willing to have that knowledge or skill which will enable him to work. He has to be an individual who can work and play with other people—get along with other people—who can cooperate. He has to be an individual who is sensitive to the feelings of other people—not self-centre, but sensitive to the fact that other people live and work in the world with him.

"When our homes and schools are democratic in spirit and method, the products of those homes and schools are democratic in spirit, as well. When the home fails, all is lost, until we can substitute another home for that home which has failed. There is one lesson which the Children's Aid Societies have learned—there is nothing that can take the place of a home—there is nothing that can take the place of a good home.

Training and responsibility means arranging conditions in the home, in the school, in the community, for practice in doing worth-while things without constant supervision and direction, practice in initiative, practice in carrying through things started, practice in self-discipline. That kind of training takes time—it takes years and nothing can take its place. Hitler has given us an example of what education can do. True, it is not the kind of education you and I believe in, but an education for the things we think are completely wrong and misguided.

Effective home life is the best guarantee we have that the child will be a happy, healthy, creative adult. It is our job to preserve in the children of our country an ideal and lasting peace; an ideal of a world in which all people can live happily. Let us not lose sight of that ideal today. It is our job to foster in our children tolerance, thoughtfulness, consideration for others and the most important contribution of the home and family is to foster and develop a feeling of belonging.

A. E. Watkins Is Elected Head Bible Society

A. E. Watkins, representative of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, was re-elected president of the local committee of the Bible Society at a well-attended annual meeting in th Y.M.C.A. on Sunday at 4:30 o'clock. The other officers re-elected with Mrs. E. V. Warne 1st vice-president, T. H Boddy, 2nd vice-president, G. H. Roper, secretary-treasurer, members of the executive committee, Miss M. Eastwood, J. F. Morrison, and A. E. Sanderson.

Plans for the city-wide canvass to be undertaken by the women of the churches of the city were discussed.

The local committee of the Bible Society is the official body representing the Upper Canada Bible Society, which is affiliated through the Canadian Bible Society with the British and Foreign Bible Society, with headquarters at Publishing House in London.

The stream of the Scriptures has been maintained since the start of the war and translations, revisions and new editions have continued to proceed from the Empire's Capital. Six new translations have been published during the year bringing the British Society's translations up to 747. World translations total 1,051. The total circulation for last year reached the remarkable total of over 11 million copies. The contributions received from the citizens will help to keep this important work at the highest possible level in these tragic times.

A suggestion was made by a member of the committee that a large number of younger people now earning who would not have the opportunity to give to the women canvassers on their call would welcome the opportunity to give to this most worthy and vital work. Contributions might be left at their places of residence to be given to the canvassers or made direct to the secretary-treasurer at the Y.M.C. A. All canvassers will carry the official collector's book and citizens are asked to make sure they are contributing to none other than accredited representatives of the Bible Society.

Sodality Girls And L.O.L. Aid Red Cross

CAMPBELLFORD, June 1 (ENS) —The Campbellford and Seymour branch of the Red Cross benefited from two events in this vicinity during the week-end. In town the Blessed Virgin Sodality of St. Mary's church sponsored a Bingo in the Catholic Women's League rooms on Bridge street and as a result of this made their initial contribution to the Society amounting to approximately $14.00. Sodality President Helen Keating thanked all who had contributed to the success of the evening.

Coincidentally members of L.O.L. 1338 at Stanwood were holding a dance at their hall. They raised upwards of $12.50 for the Red Cross, but had a smaller crowd than they usually attract by virtue of the weather and other activities in the district. The Ellis family of Havelock provided the music and Charles Ellis and Robert Lisle presided for the square dance numbers. Master of Lodge Earl Brunton revealed that another affair of this type would probably be held for the Red Cross early in the fall.

I.O.D.E. Get $25

Nearly twenty-five dollars was raised at a bingo given under auspices of the Trent Valley Chapter I.O.D.E. on Saturday evening. It was the first affair of this character that the Junior Chapter has arranged and entire proceeds will be used to furnish supplies of wool and other materials which are being made into various articles for soldiers, sailors and airmen. Up to the present their activities have principally comprised vanishing teas, cards and draws on different items. The Regent, Miss Clara Lucy, expressed appreciation on behalf of the Branch to Mr. Hilton Beatty, who assisted with the conduct of the bingo, and to all others who contributed to its success.

Driver Is Given 7 Days In Jail

Pleading guilty before Magistrate O. A Langley, K.C. in police court this morning to a charge of drunken driving, Charles Dwyer, 25, of R.R. 11, Peterborough, was sentenced to seven days' imprisonment in the county jail.

Dwyer was arrested near the intersection of Armour Road and Park Hill Road Sunday night after the coupe in which he was driving had shot off Armour Road into the ditch at the east side of the road. The car had been travelling south at the time of the accident.

Constables Leo. Murphy and John Morrow who investigated, took Dwyer into custody on a change of driving while drunk. A case of empty beer bottles was found in the car.

This morning after pleading guilty Dwyer asked Magistrate Langley for a fine instead of a jail sentence so that he could get back to work, but the court informed him that there was no fine in such cases.

Two Youngsters Held On Theft Charge

Two youngsters, one 12 and the other 14, are under arrest at Oshawa, in connection with a couple of thefts that took place at Buckhorn last week. A club bag was taken from the car of Herb. Haynes, parked in front of the hall in which a dance was taking place. The same night the cottage of N. Pearson was broken into and a quantity of silverware taken.

The two youngsters were traced as far as Haultain and then back into town by Provincial Constable Price Morris, who recovered the stolen bag and most of the silverware, and the boys were afterward located in Oshawa.

On Thursday night two verandah chairs were stolen from the Lakeview House in Young's Point.

Reckless Driver Is Fined $25

Francis Traynor, Lindsay, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of reckless driving but after hearing some evidence Magistrate O. A. Langley remarked that the charge might perhaps have been better laid under the Highway Traffic Act instead of under the code.

However on the Lindsay man's plea of guilty a conviction was registered and Traynor was fined $25 and $3.25 costs.

The charge against him followed an accident at Rubidge and Charlotte streets in which a car driven by Traynor collided with a truck driven east on Charlotte street by Ken McCannan. Four persons were injured in the crash and the two vehicles were badly damaged.

After Traynor had pleaded guilty McCannan gave evidence as to the accident stating that Traynor had failed to stop at the stop sign on Rubidge street before entering the Charlotte street intersection and as a result there had been a collision with McCannan's truck.

"It looks as if this charge was laid because of what happened rather than because of what took place leading up to the accident," commented the Magistrate before fining Traynor $25 and costs.

Born in Ennismore Township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Nurse, he has spent his entire life in the farming industry. His wife, Elizabeth Franks, predeceased him seven years ago. The late Mr. Nurse was a member of St. James' Anglican Church, Emily.

There remain to mourn him, one daughter Mrs. F. Johnston, a brother, Robert Nurse, of Fowler's Corners, and four sisters, Mrs. Thomas Franks of Peterborough; Mrs. George Nurse of Bridgenorth; Mrs. James Reid of Young's Point, and Mrs. J. Franks of Moosejaw, Sask.

Saturday Night Shoppers Get Wet

May vacated the premises leaving the taps running and water all over the place. Her performance Saturday night really rated five stars in the aquatic league, stalling until the folks got up town and in from the country, and then turning on the big nozzle.

Buses were packed with people and the streets packed with cars. About 10.30 or thereabouts, the motorists penalized themselves for their habit of flocking to the main stem when a red light held them up for two blocks.

A veteran taxi man folded at 11.15 after three or four entanglements in the main street traffic. He said he muffled the telephone and went to bed.

Most of the stores boomed with business from seven onward, and the first splash of rain shortly after nine drove folks into the shops or under their awnings. That was only a bit of preliminary range-finding, those first mammoth drops that splashed on the pavement. Half an hour later May went into her last act and dampened or drenched a lot of the folks washed out the remnant hopes of the neighbors from the country.

THREE POINT LANDING.

A Westclox employee caught in the deluge on Saturday evening, was standing under Steadman's awning on Charlotte street, when he decided to rush to his car on the south side of Charlotte. There is a pronounced dip in the pavement in front of Loblaw's which was filled with water, and just as the runner hit the curb, he tripped and flopped face down into about eight inches of water. The other shoppers howled with laughter, and a girl in front of the hotel, piped up with "Did you bottom it, buddy," while the bedraggled gentleman continued to his car, in low gear. His wife sitting in the car was chuckling too —McG.

Axis Trying To Retreat S. Of Tobruk

Many Tanks Trapped R.A.F. Knocks Out 400 Vehicles, 48 Hrs.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 1.—(AP). — British Headquarters announced today that Axis forces, with which British troops have been locked in a furious tank battle for the last five days south of Tobruk, are trying to withdraw to the west.

The announcement also said that Gen. Ludwig Cruewell, one of the commanders of the German African army, had been taken prisoner when his reconnaissance plane was shot down over the desert.

Headquarters declared that the Axis' withdrawal effort had already 'partially succeeded,' but said a large portion of enemy's tanks and motor transport still was trapped east of the minefields guarding the British defence line stretching south from Ain El Gazala to Bir Hacheim, 50 miles distant.

These forces, part of a column which swept around Bir Hacheim last week and cut in behind the British lines, are being attacked relentlessly by British armored units and planes, the communique sad.

Escape by Minefield Gaps

The portion of the Axis forces that already have withdrawn to the west succeded in working its way through gaps in the minefields and have concentrated a considerable force of anti-tank artillery in an attempt to prevent British mechanized units from closing the gaps, the bulletin added.

British artillery and bombing planes were said to have the minefield gaps under continuous bombardment.

It appeared that the battle was entering a decisive phase, and British military leaders yesterday expressed cautious optimism over the outcome.

Field Marshal Edwin Rommel's armored forces were reported to have been badly battered, but it was not immediately clear whether the Axis withdrawal was necessitated by heavy losses or by inability to move up adequate gasoline and water supplies over extended communication lines.

An R.A.F. communique yesterday declared British planes had knocked out 400 enemy vehicles in the preceding 48 hours, in addition to uncounted numbers destroyed by the land forces.

British Headquarters said the general situation was "not unfavorable"—a statement to which Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck added color by dispatching a jubilant message of congratulation to his troops.

"Well done, 8th Army," he told fighters, "stick to it. Hang on to him. Don't let him get away. Give him no rest. Good luck to you all."

Three Are Hurt, Hit By Cars

Three pedestrians were hit and knocked down by motor vehicles over the week-end but none was seriously injured.

Leon Leonard, 14, of 114 Hunter street east, ran out from behind parked cars on Hunter street just as Orrick Pollock, 416 Rogers street was driving east on Hunter street. Eye-witnesses say that the boy ran directly into the path of the car and the driver had no chance to avoid an accident. The boy was knocked to the pavement. He had to have three stitches put in a cut on his right arm and suffered bruises on his head and left arm.

Five-year-old Elizabeth White, 545 Gilmour street had her left leg and right arm bruised when she was struck and knocked down by a car driven by Ned Vitarelli, 541 Elm street. Vitarelli had been driving west on Charlotte street and was making a right hand turn into Park street. There was a line of south-bound cars on Park street waiting for the light to turn and the child ran out from between two of these cars in front of Vitarelli's machine. The driver tried to avoid hitting her but had no chance.

J. T. Miller, 221 George street, was knocked down but escaped injury when he stepped off the curb on George street Saturday night in front of a car driven by John Faiers, Reid street, that had been parked in front of John Brownlie's stand and was just pulling away from the curb.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy.

Soldiers Hold Parade To George Street

Under leaden gray skies Sunday morning, large crowds watched hundreds of soldiers from the Training Centre, under the command of Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., along with the Second Battalion of the Prince of Wales Rangers, under the command of Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, parade smartly like veterans with the Prince of Wales Rangers Band under the direction of Captain W. H. Peryer, to George Street United Church where they received a warm welcome from Rev. H. L. Roberts.

A Better World

Captain, the Rev. T. W. Tyson, hurled a challenge at the khaki-clad men who filled three-quarters of the large church. He told them that before a better world could be built, based either on the Atlantic Charter or the five principles of the Christian Church, the spirit of evil abroad today must be defeated.

He defined patriotism as having two root meanings: (1) love of land, (2) love of home. In early history there were nothing but migratory tribes whose sole loyalty was to the clan. Out of this, he said, grew the desire to build cities and nations and so man's loyalty was and is to his home. His patriotism has been extended from the home to his country. When the country is invaded the home is threatened, and when the home is endangered, the country must have help.

Wanted Co-operation

"When the early people began to build cities, they wanted only to live and work together in a co-operative community. But confusion arose because some of the people didn't want to build a city on the principle of good will and they spread rumors and hate and intolerance."

Captain Tyson pointed out that a similar condition exists today. Two decades ago, the people of the world said they were weary of war and wanted peace, but, he said, that men of ill will across the sea spread false rumors and so there is the resultant conflict today.

Unity Essential

The closing words of the address reiterated the need of defeating these men of intolerance and hate, before a new and better world can be built, and stressed the fact that the citizens of Canada belong to Canada and not to any one province and that unity is essential.

"God is God and right must win. We will take up where we left off and build a new world like the house which was founded upon a rock," Captain Tyson concluded.

Mrs. J. Goforth Passes, Aged 78

TORONTO, June 1.—Mrs. Rosalind Gorforth, 78, widow of Rev. Dr. Jonathan Goforth, who for 48 years shared her husband's missionary service in China and Manchuria, died here yesterday. She had been a resident of Toronto since their retirement in 1935, a year previous to the death of Dr. Goforth.

MRS. J. GOFORTH

Mrs. Gorforth won recognition as an evangelistic missionary in China. She was presented with a medal by the Chinese Government for her work on behalf of relief for the starving millions during the famine of 1920. An article, written by Mrs. Goforth, and translated and published in many languages, which made an appeal for the famine victims, resulted in a fund of $200,000, which she personally handled. Many adventures were encountered in her mission work in China. A miraculous escape was made during the Boxer Rebellion in 1900, and six times Dr. and Mrs. Goforth lost their home through fire, floods or bandits.

The year following their retirement Mrs. Goforth accompanied her husband on a tour of Canada, and attended many of the 400 meetings which he addressed. She was the author of a number of books.

Born in England, Mrs. Goforth was the daughter of the late John Bell-Smith, founder of the Royal Academy of Art in Canada. The late F. M. Bell-Smith, prominent Canadian artist, was a brother. The family came to Canada when Mrs. Goforth was a child, and for some years lived in Montreal before coming to Toronto. A a young woman she was active in the work of the Sackville Street Mission, where she met Dr. Goforth, then a college student. She went to China shortly after their marriage. She was a member of Knox Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Van Gorder, wife of Dr. George Van Gorder of Boston; Mrs. Jeffrey, wife of Rev. D. I. Jeffrey, missionaries in French Indo-China; and Mrs. Moynam, wife of Rev. F. Moynam, of Toronto, and three sons, Paul Goforth of California, Lieutenant-Colonel Wallace Goforth of Ottawa, and Captain the Rev. J. F. Goforth, with the Canadian Army in England.

Gas In Montreal Minus Coupons

MONREAL, June 1 — (CP). — A Standard reporter wrote that gasoline is being bought in Montreal without coupons.

A standard reported wrote that he had visited a group of service stations throughout the city, and that, while the majority of attendants assured him it was impossible to get gasoline without coupons, a few "told me of what they had heard from customers or helped me get a few extra gallons myself."

(G. Caron, Montreal oil controller, said that "rumors have been widespread about illegal sale of gasoline, but at least to our knowledge nothing tangible has ever come of it.")

The Standard reporter said one attendant told him he had good reason to believe books of counterfeit coupons were being sold at $5 each.

Show Of Minesweeper Comforts Delights Port Hope Audience

PORT HOPE, June 1 — (ENS). —On Saturday afternoon the committee of the minesweeper H.M.C.S. Port Hope, held an informal afternoon tea at the Town Hall, where each and every one could see what their generosity and co-operation could make possible.

The number of woollen articles, leather jerkins, radios, waste paper baskets, games, and books made a fine display. A rough estimate is that eighteen hundred dollars would be the value of the goods displayed.

The chairman of the committe J. B. Holland, with Mrs. Holland, received and with the rest of the committee did everything possible to make the donors of the gifts feel that it was a real Port Hope Day. One especially nice feature of the occasion was that the men of the committee, including His Worship Mayor Gifford, spent the entire Saturday afternoon and evening helping to make the exhibition a success.

Those pouring tea during the afternoon were Mrs. S. Gifford, the wives of the local clergymen, Mrs. P. A. C. Ketchum from T.C.S., and Mrs. J. Hozack, president of St. Mary's Altar Society, and representatives from each similar women's organization: Morrish Women's Institute, Welcome Red Cross unit and the lady members and wives of the committee all assisted.

Mrs. T. Murphy, who had charge of the perfect kitchen arrangements, was congratulated especially on the lovely cups of tea, which Mrs. Murphy claimed was kept to the ration amounts, and none was wasted.

Although this tea was not intended as a money-making affair, many left donations amounting to around $25.00, which will help to keep the ship for the duration.

The only thing needed the equipment are books, of which a great number are still required.

Youth And Parliament

A contemporary regrets the absence of young men in Parliament. This, it says, is supposed to be a young man's war, but the men who are directing it are not young. Very true, but in this respect Canada fits into an age-old pattern; old men make wars, young men fight them. Our contemporary also wonders if Parliament's present lack of prestige is not in some degree attributable to the fact that there are so few young men in the house? We doubt it. Canada, as a country, does not care for youth; it likes age, and the weight and experience which are supposed to be its accompaniments. If Canada has an elderly Parliament it is because she wants one.

We are inclined to place the responsibility for this situation upon Canadian youth itself. Our young people are not, on the whole, greatly interested in public affairs. Except for a small number of ardent Left supporters they have no burning desire to put their hands on the wheel of the ship of state. They would rather be passengers than pilots. True, when the need for an army arises, our youth responds, but an army is quite a different thing from a Parliament; it is in some respects easier to be a good captain than a good M.P. Our young men do not look upon politics as a desirable or possible career.

Is this perhaps because it is so hard to get into politics in this country? In Britain it has long been understood that a young man who wishes to enter the political field may do so by any one of a number of paths, if he chooses to fit himself for the life. A secretaryship to an already successful politician is the best of all stepping-stones. The novice is expected to make himself useful until it is possible to find a place for him, by which time he should know the political ropes.

But most of our Canadian M.P.'s enter the political field comparatively late in life with no special training for legislation and, it is to be feared, no very high idea of it. How many of the present members ever made a study of government or of political economy? How many ever read any new books on these subjects. What vision of Canada's future have they? How many know anything about economics? How many are able to distinguish between national prosperity and business prosperity? How many could, on demand, state the political doctrine of the party which they are supposed to represent? In short, how many of them have ever trained themselves, or been trained, as politicians? Let none of them say that they have no time for this sort of thing. It is their business, and surely they know their own business?

If there is something wrong with our Parliament it is because there is something wrong with ourselves. If we do not know enough, or care enough to demand first-rate representatives, it is time we changed our ways. And we shall only change our ways by doing some real thinking about government and what we expect from it. We cannot expect first-rate thinking in Parliament if there is none in the country as a whole. And as for youth—if it wants its chance, it must do this necessary thinking and so make its own chance. When thinking is to be done the competition is rarely overwhelming.

Mr. Coldwell Speaks Up

Mr. Coldwell, the C.C.F. leader, spoke up in the House of Commons on Thursday on behalf of conscientious objectors, who cannot, under the circumstances, speak for themselves. He said that the head of the war services board in Saskatchewan was "a gentleman who has only one point of view and that is... that every ablebodied man ought to be in uniform." Mr. Coldwell went on to say that the "alternative service" to which conscientious objectors in Saskatchewan were sent was more in the nature of punishment. "I say that no man should be given any opportunity to exercise sadistic propensities in time of war," said Mr. Coldwell at another point; "we are going to reap the whirlwind if we sow this kind of wind of cruelty in the present war. If we do this, wherein do we differ from Hitler or the Nazi regime?"

We do not know the rights and wrongs of the situation in Saskatchewan, but we do not think that Mr. Coldwell would have spoken in this pointed manner if he had not had some cause. The type of mind which wants every able-bodied man to don a uniform in wartime is well-known everywhere; much of the violent agitation for conscription comes from such sources. It is useless to argue with people who hold this view that a country which is all army is almost as much in danger as a country which has no army at all; it is useless to talk to them of the necessity of balancing the size of a nation's army against its production of equipment of that army; it is useless to talk to such people of the necessity of maintaining certain civilian services without which neither the army nor the country as a whole could operate. But it is most useless of all to argue with them about the rights of conscientious objectors. They insist that objectors are slackers, and nothing will convince them otherwise.

It takes great courage to be a conscientious objector; the plea of scruples of conscience is not any easy way to avoid military service. Not only during the war but for many years after it the objector must bear the stigma of one who would not fight for his country. Nor is it easy to plead conscientious objection; the tribunals which examine such pleas are strict and have no patience with cranks and windbags and shirkers. Fortunately for this country, the number of conscientious objectors within its boundaries is very small, but once these men have been verified as genuine objectors they should be treated decently, for the reasons which Mr. Coldwell states.

Britain has made a remarkably good job of the conscientious objector problem in this war. Her tribunals have, upon the whole, been models of fairness; men of intelligence, not usually connected with the army, have been induced to sit on them, and they have given fair hearings. If an objector thought that his trial was unfair, he has been permitted to appeal it. No governmental authority has the right to override a man's conscience, and we are glad that Mr. Coldwell has drawn attention to this fact. We are in a war for freedom, and our freedom means freedom to refrain from doing anything which we believe to be wrong, including fighting.

Battling John Barleycorn

Our Australian allies are engaged in a mighty civil war over beer at present. Beer is the great drink of the Antipodes, preferred by most of the population far above strong spirits or wines. But wherever beer flourishes its opponents flourish too and in Australia the "wowsers" (as persons of extremely strict and unbending temperament are called) are agitating vigorously for further restrictions on the sale of beer. John Barleycorn is putting up a stiff fight, however. Australians are, upon the whole, hearty fellows, little given to metaphysical speculation, and when they want beer they want it. If beer is bad for them they are prepared to take the risk. They have done a lot of good fighting on beer in the past, and they do not want to be deprived of their drink now, when everything points to a stiff struggle.

The desire to take beer from fighting-men is one without historical precedent. Even Xenophon records that it was drunk strong and bitter by the armies of Cyrus, and every army since has provided some equivalent. Indeed, in the Napoleonic wars the British victories were unhesitatingly attributed to the nutritive and heartening qualities of British beer. It is questionable whether this is the time to try the experiment of an unwilling teetotal army.

Of course, there is much to be said on the other side. One chaplain complains of drunken scenes on military pay-day. Surely the military police are able to deal with these? And of course, heavy drinking means hardship, though it is hard to convince a soldier who may have to repel an invasion any day that prudent saving is a good scheme.

We touch on this Australian situation because agitations against the sale of liquor have been heard in some quarters of this country. In wartime John Barleycorn always comes in for a few hard knocks, but somehow he survives. A barleycorn is, and has been for centuries, a symbol of immortality.

Death For Der Henker

At the time of writing it appears that Reinhart Heydrich is dead. The bomb which was placed in his automobile by an unknown Czech patriot injured the second-in-command of the Gestapo dangerously and the latest report, not completely verified, is that he has died of his injuries.

Is there a soul anywhere on this earth who will mourn? Certainly not among his comrades of the Gestapo; that organization is not celebrated for the tenderness of its feelings and secret police are rarely loved by their comrades. Will the Nazis regret the passing of Heydrich? Only as a useful tool, a merciless killer, a vicious beast to be released in any occupied country which became too troublesome. And there will be no mourning, no regret and no respect among the people of the United Nations. The cant which removes the dead from the reach of criticism cannot protect Heydrich. If the Hangman is really dead what honest heart will not rejoice therefore? An evil life has been snuffed out and the air of the whole world is sweeter. Many will regret that Heydrich, who sent so many men and women along the dark path, can travel it but once himself; it would be more fitting if he were chained to the prow of Charon's ferry and dragged, choking, back and forth across the Styx for a million years.

Himmler is in Czechoslovakia and many wretched Czechs will be slaughtered to avenge Heydrich. The Czech government in exile has adjured its people to stand firm and endure whatever trials may come upon them. But however many Czechs may be killed the victory will remain with them. They have shown that their spirit is unbroken and that they will seek every opportunity to kill their oppressors. Heydrich is the first. Who will be next? The twilight of the Nazi gods is well advanced; slowly and inexorably the night will close upon them and the night will be horrible, filled with slaughter, filled with wailing, as the world rids itself of pestilence.

The Riddle Of Eire

Both Britain and America say that information about the movements of American troops in Northern Ireland is leaking out to the Axis from Dublin. Once more this draws our attention to the melancholy condition in which Eire finds herself. Having won independence of Britain, for so long her hated master, Eire has been leaning over backward in this war in her attempts to maintain a dangerous neutrality.

Cynical though it may seen to say so, it is not possible for a country in the position of Eire to remain truly neutral in this war; either she is with Britain or against her. Self-interest shows the people of Eire that their only hope of survival lies in a British victory, but natural perversity and a desire to coddle any enemy of Britain's makes them flirt dangerously with Berlin.

America, however, has no ancient grudge to feed, and has done Ireland many favors in the past. During most of the nineteenth century the U.S. was the land of promise to the starved Irish peasants who were unable to wring a living from their own unfortunate country. The U.S. then, is not going to take it in good part when Eire endangers her soldiers by tattling their comings and goings to Berlin. In their desire to hurt Britain the Irish are hurting themselves. There are surely plenty of Murphys and Kellys in the American Expeditionary Force who will be bitterly angry with those cousins who, for no clearly discernible reason, are putting them in mortal danger.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A news dispatch begins, "Italy is massing a strong army..." We don't believe a word of it.

Beefing about the beef shortage is now in order. It is certainly a meaty problem.

AROUND THE CORNER

Around the corner I have a friend,
In this great city that has no end;
Yet days go by and weeks rush on,
And ere I know it a year has gone.
And I never see my old friend's face,
For life is a swift and terrible race.
He knows I like him just as well
As in the days when I rang his bell
And he rang mine.
We were younger then;
And now we are busy, tired men—
Tired with playing a foolish game;
Tired with trying to make a name.
"Tomorrow," I say, "I'll call on Jim
Just to show I'm thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes—and tomorrow goes,
And the distance between us grows and grows.
Around the corner, yet miles away:
"Here's a telegram, sir,"
"Jim died today."
And that's what we get and deserve in the end,
Around the corner—a vanished friend.

News and Views Of Interest To Ontario Farmer

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE value of a soaking rain to farming was never better demonstrated than by that of May 14th and 15th. Its healing effects after light frosts and the thorough wetting of crops of all kinds placed the Ontario farmer at least ten days ahead of an ordinary year, and that gives him what the boy calls "a head start" for the whole year. Keeping ahead of your work depends so much on getting ahead and that is where the farmer is now. To be ready for the hay crop early is so important for the quality of the crop. As soon as the potatoes and field roots are planted and the corn, or like crops, drilled, the mower and haying implements should be put in order, so that on an hour's notice well sharpened mower knives can be humming through the hay.

If alfalfa, or other clovers, is to be put in a silo, it should be cut early. When you see one alfalfa bloom in the field get out the mower and before you finish, if you have considerable crop, you will be wishing you had started earlier. Alfalfa ensilage is much better for early cutting, you then get your field completely cleared, and the alfalfa scarcely stops growing. It comes right along for a second crop days ahead of fields cut later and the production of your soil is both better and greater.

Hay is cut much earlier in Ontario than it was some years ago. There was a time when some farmers waited until they had the maximum of bulk before cutting, and I recollect a farmer saying to me that he had cut too early one year and the cattle liked the green hay so well that it really lasted no time at all, and he remarked it would not happen again. Those were the days fo coarse timothy, almost ripened, and neither palatable nor nourishing, and that sort of feeding is no longer indulged in. We want today the choicest feed we can make from our hay meadows.

Farmers should examine their alfalfa and clover fields carefully and endeavor to produce as much seed this year as they possibly can. Seeding fields to clovers and grassers this year was curtailed by lack of seed, and a great many more acres would have been "seeded down," as we say, this spring if the seed had been available, but seed merchants were unable to get anything like the supply they needed. There is a similar shortage in Britain and prices have become very high. All results point today to the value of new seeding and wartime farming is demanding rotations of clover to build up the soil. Small seeds are likely to be worth having next spring.

ORDERS have been given the British dairy farmers to produce milk or quit farming. There is to be no let down in the production of milk in this war crisis, and if farmers refuse to continue to furnish the allotted milk requirements their farms will be taken from them and handed over to people who will do the job. There is going to be no mistake about what must be done. Farmers who recently quit milking cows must return to the business.

The new policy as set forth by J. L. Davies, Chief of the Ministry of Agriculture's milk production branch, has been made public to this effect. In future all dairy herds are to be regarded as an essential part of the farm. Farmers planning to turn over from dairying to other types of farming are to be stopped. In cases where they persist, they will be ejected by the county war agricultural committees and their herds and farms either run by the Government or handed over to other farmers willing to carry on milk production.

Farmers who have already turned over to other types of farming and have empty cow sheds will be asked to fill the empty stalls. If persuasive methods fail, committees have been instructed to use compulsory power.

Cows for filling the sheds will, it is understood, be obtained for the present from farms already overstocked in relation to the feeding resources of the farmer's land. Again persuasive methods will first be tried to get such farmers to hand over their cattle. But this will be followed by compulsory action if necessary. The first object in this plan is to increase the milk production for the winter of 1942-43, but the arrangements are to be made with 1945 and 1947 in view, so it will be a long term plan for the production of that most important food, milk, for the British people.

These milk orders carry with them important regulations with regard to the health of dairy cows. Strict watch is to be kept on herds where low yields are due to disease. It is planned that veterinary inspectors should visit such herds regularly and where the owner is not prepared to take effective steps to provide treatment, this will be compulsorily carried out on the War Agricultural Committee's instructions.

For some time there has been a considerable dispute between the British Ministry of Agriculture and the National Milk Board, also involving the National Farmers Union. It was feared this might impair the milk supply, and so the British Ministry issued these orders "conscripting" the cows.

Extremely high prices for land in England seems to have fallen off recently though livestock prices seem to be increasing. An estate of 1415 acres at Wallingford sold recently for £61,000 which would work out to about $190 per acre. The estate included a modern Queen Anne style residence set in beautiful gardens and doubtless many buildings and cottages necessary to this amount of land. This estate lies on the southern bank of the Thames and is a very desirable stretch of land. The price is not much indication that British people fear investments in English soil. It is not as high as some earlier sales as the Government has been endeavoring to curtail anything like land speculation.

Sweden is making an effort to at least partially solve the cattle feeding problem in that country. They had reached the stage where cattle were being slaughtered to avoid their starvation. They experimented with fodder cellulose, a product of the pulp mills, now to this they have added fodder yeast, another pulp mills product, and the mixture has proved fairly good. The tests have been successful enough to encourage a big Swedish Forest Products concern to begin the production of this fodder upon a commercial scale.

The demand for beef in Canada seems to be such that when the quota to the U.S. was filled it did not disturb prices, in fact, fed calves went up to $12.50 and heavy steers at the time of writing are bringing $12.00 for tops, with fat cows selling as high as $10.00 and good veal calves bringing $15.00. There will doubtless be some careful consideration given to the present fat cattle market, and likely before this appears in print some decision will be made about where we go from here. Grass is good, and feed prospects are quite favorable. It is essential to feeding an army that we get this grass made into meat and milk. Farm labor is short and this is probably the critical year of the war.

•Crucial Phase Approaching

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

THERE are indications that the approaching last quarter of the third year of the war may bring developments which will make it the crucial period of the struggle.

That is not to say that the war can be lost or won by either side in the next ninety days. No imaginable happening short of a successful revolt against Hitlerism in Germany could do that. Even optimists see no hope of a revolt in the Reich unless and until cumulative military defeats and the advancing shadow of impending starvation weigh down on the German people.

Within the next ninety days, however, there may be portents on which sound judgment can be based as to whether this is to be a long or a short war. From them could be predicated the nature, scope and direction of the Allied war effort.

As this potentially all-important three months star, war fronts are flaming with action. Battle is joined in Russia, in North Africa, in China, in the Western Atlantic, in the Mediterranean and in the air over Britain and the European Continent. Yet it still is far from certain whether these are more than preliminary skirmishes of the crucial campaign.

It seems fantastic to say that a battle in Russia in which at least 1,000,000 men are engaged might be merely a "local action," a tactical rather than a strategic engagement. Official Russian and German reports from the Kharkov region are so utterly at variance, however, that there is no possibility of reconciling them to get a true perspective on this monster battle.

It certainly does not yet mean that either the Russians or the Germans have committed themselves to an all-out offensive. It is still uncertain whether the preliminary German thrust in the Kerch Isthmus was designed as a distraction to cover Nazi preparations to move in the Eastern Mediterranean, or as a first step in a major effort to overrun the Caucasus and seize its oil treasures.

There are strong indications that Marshal Timoshenko was convinced it was against the Caucasus that Hitler was preparing to strike. His Kharkov offensive appeared intended to disrupt that Nazi design before it could be executed.

Timoshenko's success or failure cannot be measured alone in terms of territory lost or won. The extent to which he has exhausted the winter-gathered German resources for a major offensive on any front must remain an unknown and dominant facto in the war picture.

Among other possibilities underlying Russian strategy of the moment is always that of luring the foe into a major effort on the Eastern Front as the essential preliminary to the opening of an Anglo-American second front in the West.

There is no reasonable probability of a second-front attack until it is certain that Hitler is committed beyond recall to major offensive operations in Russia or elsewhere in the East. Russia's Western Allies are making ready, but biding their time. They have made no definite commitment yet beyond the British air offensive.

About all that can yet be said is that within the next three months may of the ifs, ands and buts of today over Nazi intentions and Allied preparations must disappear.

LAKEFIELD

Chinese Feast Features Club Session

LAKEFIELD, June 1 — (ENS).— An Oriental atmosphere prevailed in the Sunday School room of Regent Street United Church on Friday evening, when the Missionary and Service Club held a Chinese feast to raise funds for missions. Scarlet streamers on a snow-white background, vases of spirea, scarlet candles, and Chinese decorations gave the tables a festive air. Scarlet is the predominating color in China due to the age-old Chinese belief that it is the color for joy and good luck. The waitresses added to the scene by wearing quaint Chinese costumes.

Tables laden with curios from the Orient proved a great attraction.

The feast was opened by the singing of the Chinese National Anthem with Mrs. J. R. Hull at the piano. A Chinese menu wass erved, consisting of rice, chow-mein, dill pickles, and moon cakes.

Mrs. Jack Brown then gave a short talk on Chinese customs. Due to the fact that China is one of the oldest country in the world, it is also one of the most interesting. The president of the Circle, Mrs. Alexander Graham, spoke a few words of welcome to the guests and explained the purpose of the festival.

Mrs. Stanley Richardson took charge for the devotional period as follows: Hymn, "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun"; Scripture reading by Mrs. Douglas Davis; prayer by Mrs. S. A. Grylls; reading, Mrs. Charles Hunter; solo, Mrs. Dora MacMillan. Rev. George Kelly gave a very interesting review of the book, "The Keys of the Kingdom." This was also very appropriate, being the story of the adventures and adversities experienced by a broad-minded Scottish priest serving in China.

Mrs. MacMillan moved a vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. Kelly which was seconded by Mrs. Hunter.

Mrs. J. R. Hull favored the audience with a solo and the festival was brought to a successful close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Sammy Snead Captures P.G. Association Trophy

By GALE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, June 1.—(AP). —Sammy Snead, they said, never would win a United States' national golf championship, because something always seemed to happen to him in the closing stages of a tournament when the galleries were running wild and the players' hearts were in their throats.

They were wrong. Sammy held the Professional Golfers' Association championship to-day and had $2,000 worth of war bonds in his pocket as he left for Washington to be inducted into the navy's physical training program.

The 30 year old Canadian open champion, after having suffered probably more major disappointments than any top flight golfer, finally came through with a 2 and 1 victory over Corp. Jim Turnesa in yesterday's 36-hole title match at the Seaview Club here.

It was a fighting victory, too. Sam stood three down at the half-way point. The crowd of 3,000 was vociferously pulling against his every shot and rooting for the swarthy little soldier from Fort Dix. And under those circumstances Snead went out to shoot some of the greatest home-stretch golf ever seen.

Crowd Cheered Turnesa.

A triumph for Turnesa undoubtly would have been more popular. The little guy with the nerves of steel and no business whatsoever in the finals of a P.G.A. championship, had captured the fancy of everybody. The crowd who had been cheering his every shot for two days as he scored upset victories over Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson, two of golfdom's greatest players. Yet Snead richly deserved his victory.

Snead's finish would have dazed any opponent. The 35th hole, where the match ended, was typical. Sam overdrove the 313-yarder by some 60 feet and then chipped into the hole for a birdie two.

Turnesa, 29 year old member of the numerous Turnesa golfing clan, also earned all of the superlatives lavished on him. He 'made' the tournament. Completely unheralded, the stock, dark little fellow completely upset the professionals' 'routine.' Odds of 50 to 1 could have been had against him at the start and there were no taker.

Gets Gehrig Bust

Ed Barrow, president of the New York Yankees, is shown admiring the bust of Lou Gehrig, presented to the club by Mrs. Gehrig and mounted by Barrow. The bust will eventually go to Cooperstown, cradle of baseball.

Lawn Bowling

A great many of our bowlers know that for many years now, Wednesday afternoon, throughout the summer months, has been a half holiday, and that being the case, the schedule committee never scheduled any particular games for Wednesday afternoon and evening, but this season it is all together different. The committee is well aware of the transportation problem, and all that it involves, and having that in mind they have prepared an extensive program for Wednesday 'home' bowling.

The program is not being arranged with the idea of stopping anyone from going away, if they so desire; that's their own affair, but it is being arranged so that the great majority of bowlers, who will be compelled to stay home owing to the gas rationing, etc., will have some place to go and spend the half-holiday, so on this coming Wednesday afternoon we intend running our first local open mixed tournament from 1.30 o'clock to 6.00 o'clock The draw is to be made off the blackboard and the fee is set at 25c—and then in the evening at 7.30 o'clock No. 2 group, of the men's section, will play scheduled games. We are hoping for a fine day and a goodly crowd. These Wednesday tournaments are being supervised by B. Chesler's committee.

We were not able to be out to the greens on Saturday evening, but we believe that the weather man halted all the fun after the first round had been completed. It had been a broken week for bowling and Saturday night seemed no exception.

Although the season has only begun we have already noticed many bowlers—old and new—breaking the rules. The one that seemed to be outstanding was where score boards, bowling bags and nets, ladies' handbags, dead bowls, etc., were all piled in the ditch and in fair territory. This is strictly against bowling rules. We might as well start out the season right and we feel sure it will help us all to enjoy the game in the way it is meant to be played.

Cricket Notes

The local cricket season at Nicholls Oval opened on Saturday, when the Peterborough - Whitaker team scored a win over their old friends and foes, the Picton R.A.F. This was the sixth meeting of the teams and the first local win, the final score being, P-W 62 for 6 wickets (innings declared closed), R.A.F. 33.

Scoring was slow and difficult owing to the dead condition of the pitch, long grass in the outfield and accurate bowling, but some good cricket was shown by both sides and the score probably represented double the actual total under normal conditions.

The local men batted first and lost Smith at 4, but then T. Williams joined Langhorne and the pair made the best stand of the afternoon, which produced 23 runs, when Williams was stumped for the day's high score of 20, including some fine strokes on the leg side. Later Wild and Langhorne added 14, and on Pagett (7) joining the latter, 19 more were added, taking the total to 62 for 6 and at 5.30 the innings was declared leaving Langhorne not out for an invaluable 16. He had batted throughout the two hour innings, put up a strong defence against some good bowling, and never looked like getting out.

Following is full score and analysis

Peterborough-Whitaker C.C.

Hoag Safe At Home On Hayne's Single

Myril Hoag, White Sox centrefielder, was safe at the plate in the eighth inning of the game between the Chicago White Sox and the Cleveland Indians in Cleveland. Hoag scored on Pitcher Joe Haynes' single despite the efforts of Catcher James Hegan to make the put-out. The umpire is Ed Rommel. White Sox won, 9-7.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The first appearance of the De Laval team in the City League campaign tonight is creating a lot of interest among softball fans who are anxious to get a line on the new entry in the loop. The De Laval team is stacked up against the Plaza Billiards who blasted the Soldiers 11 to 5 Friday night and will be out for their second win in succession tonight. De Laval have been quietly rounding up a strong club and having been getting in all the practice possible so that they should be ready for the acid test tonight and give Plazas a real battle for the honors. It will be Bill Lewis on the firing line for De Laval against either Dave Wilson, or young Bob Crowe for the hockey squad. Crowe pitched smart ball for the Juveniles last season and if he makes his City League debut against De Laval tonight his work will be watched with interest. Altogether it shapes up like a colorful battle all around and the biggest crowd of the season will be in the stands. The game is called for 7 o'clock sharp.

The girls' softball teams will be hard at work this week getting the final practices in before the season gets under way on Friday night. Some of the clubs have had a number of workouts already but the drills will be in earnest this week, particularly in the camps of the two old rivals, C.G.E. and Westclox who have been selected to meet each other in the opening game that will pry off the league season at the Bowl on Friday night. Nothing has been given out from either headquarters yet as to the probable lineups but both clubs have a number of last year's players available as a starter and the gaps will be filled in with new performers. Westclox have lost Elinor Craig and Marg Selkirk, two of their strong hitters of last season and Barb Williamson, one of last season's pitchers who is now in Ottawa and not available. However the Big Bens will probably turn up with a strong side and the same is true of the C.G.E. who should have little trouble in filling up any vacancies.

Peterborough-Whitaker cricketers were at home Saturday to the Royal Air Force eleven from the Picton Bombing and Gunnery School and emerged victorious over the British players in unexpectedly easy style. The Peterborough team batted first and declared their inning closed when six wickets had fallen and the scoreboard showed a Peterborough total of 66 runs, with Williams and Langhorne the principal contributors. Then Frank Dyer, bowling with deadly accuracy took all the steam out of the Air Force batting by getting the first three wickets for the cost of only one run and the visitors, failing to rally after that bad start, were all out for 33 runs. The R.A.F. eleven included in its lineup here a former rugby football international in L.A.C. Davies who used to play for Wales, a first class county cricketer, P.O. Ruck, a former Kent player and a table tennis champion in the person of Cpl. Tabbenor. Incidentally A. Morris, Y.M.C.A. supervisor at the Picton Bombing and Gunnery School who accompanied the eleven Saturday said that the Y.M.C.A. was sponsoring all kinds of sport in the R.A.F. schools in Canada, including rugby, soccer, softball, cricket and table tennis.

One thing seems reasonably certain in the American League race and that is that the Cleveland Indians have shot their bolt and no longer appear to be a serious threat for the New York Yanks. The Tribe has been falling back rapidly, with the result that the Yanks despite the fact that they have been getting little help from Joe DiMaggio who has been in his worst slump since joining the big show, have had little difficulty in opening up a wide lead. It looks now as if the chief opposition the McCarthyites have to fear is from the Boston Red Sox, who are in-and-outers despite their batting power and the Detroit Tigers who have been showing unexpected strength. In the games over the week-end Cleveland skidded badly again and although the Yanks did drop one-half of a Sunday double-header to the A's, Lou Boudreau's gang find themselves still further away from the top today. Elden Auker, who has been pitching great ball for the Brownies was a winner over Jim Bagby in the first game of a double-header with the Indians yesterday and Johnny Niggeling was too much for the Cleveland crowd in the second game.

* * * * * *

Boston Red Sox were the biggest gainers in either loop over the week-end, winning double-headers on Saturday and Sunday. Philadelphia were the victims on Saturday, losing both ends of the twin bill with Chase the winning Boston pitcher in the first game and Yank Terry carrying the mail in the second. Bobby Doerr came through with a homer to cinch the second battle. Sunday with Ingersoll's Lefty Judd on the mound the Red Sox smothered Washington Senators 11 to 1 in the first game and nosed out the Washington gang 4 to 3 in the second with relief pitcher Brown getting credit for the win. Phil Marchildon was the victim when the Yanks defeated the A's in the first game of a double bill 11 to 7, Donald being the winner, but Harris held the Yanks to four hits in the second game, one a homer by Joe Gordon and the Athletics won 4 to 2.

In the National League yesterday Brooklyn took another pair from the Boston Braves, who fall all to pieces when facing the Flatbush Fusiliers. Curt Davis pitched the opener with the Bums winning 10 to 2. Dixie Walker had a homer with the bases full for Brooklyn and Pete Reiser also hit for the circuit for the Bums. Max West had a four-master for the Braves. Cincinnati Reds twice made the wrecked Pittsburg Pirates walk the plank. Bucky Walters held them to five hits in the first game which the Reds took 8 to 2 and Ray Starr pitched brilliant six-hit ball to shut the Corsairs out 6 to 0 in the nightcap. New York Giants also snapped off a double killing at the expense of the Phillies yesterday. The Giants grabbed off the first 5 to 2 with Lohrman holding Hans Lobert's gang to four hits while Carpenter was the winning pitcher in the second effort in which the Giants collected 7 to 1. Pollet delivered a masterly effort to shutout the Cubs as the Cards won 3 to 0. The game, however, cost St. Louis the services of their star rookie Stan Musial who was hurt.

The professional golf stars staged quite a show before the championship of the P.G.A. was finally captured by Sammy Snead who came up with a sizzling final round to wrest the honors from Corp. Jim Turnesa, member of the famous golfing family of that name, Turnesa had disposed of Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan and Harold McSpaden and when the soldier went three up on the Canadian open champion in the first 18 holes of the final 36-hole round, it looked as if the service man was due for the highest honors in the P.G.A. event. But Snead finally found his strokes in the last 18 holes and playing superb golf squared the match at the 27th hole and went on to win 2 to 1. The gallery, popular as is Snead, was disappointed. They had been pulling for the soldier star whose work throughout the contest had been spectacular. But it just wasn't to be. Snead was too good when the pressure was on.

Peterborough Golf and Country golfers, after several disappointments owing to weather finally managed to get a sweepstake event out of the way Saturday when Orley De Graw and M. Hardill were the first flight winners and Andy Rutter won the second flight event with Frank Jobbitt the runner up. The club hopes to be able to stage its official opening and dinner on Saturday. There was little doing at the Kawartha Club over the week-end. Bad weather Sunday washed out the program. However it was noticeable that some of the members are really saving gas. They came trundling out to the club house on bicycles.

O. A. DeGraw Top Flight Winner

The men's section of the Peterborough Golf Club held their first Saturday afternoon sweepstake on Saturday. The turn out was good and the scores, considering the soft playing conditions and the rough which is very high were not too bad, in fact the rumor has been officially denied that a player got lost in it, it was only his clubs. (Greens committee please note).

First flight winners were, handicaps 19 and under—1st low net, O. A. DeGraw, 81-10—71; 2nd low net, M. Hardill 90-16—74.

Second flight winners, handicaps 20 and over—A. Rutter 95-20—75; F. Jobbitt 100-20—80.

New members event, low net—G. Putman 94-15—79.

High score on one hole— J. H. Vernor, 12 on the 11th.

Next Saturday, June 6, the official opening day and dinner will be held, this event due to bad weather, has had to be postponed twice but even so promises to be a big event. Many familiar faces will be missing, due to looking after sterner business, the war.

The sweepstakes will begin at 1.30 o'clock with special events and the dinner will be at 6.30 o'clock. Members are asked to keep this date in mind. The chairman of the green's committee has promised to have the rough cut this week so the players surely will have an easier time of it next time out.

Following were Saturday's scores:

Meets his old

LUNENBURG, N.S., June 1.—(CP).—Arthur Carruthers, a Saskatchewan flier, got a welcome from an old friend when he made a forced landing on a farm here yesterday. He climbed out and whistled, and a horse came galloping up to him. The horse was 'Major,' who had been raised from a colt on the Carruthers farm in Saskatchewan and later shipped to Nova Scotia.

Modern Iroquis ?

BURLINGTON, Conn., June 1. —(AP).—'Memakidzenpup,' a sign on a cottage at Lake Garda, attracts little attention, because in Connecticut such Indian names as Pocotopaug, Wangumboag, and Wononskopomuc are common. However, it takes a keen eye to translate the cottage sign because it means "Me, ma, kids and pup."

YANKEES AND DODGERS INCREASE LEADS IN HEAVY SCHEDULE

Detroit Tigers In 2nd Place, Red Sox Third

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Major league baseball enjoys a well-earned rest to-day after the busiest week-end of the season, which brought disastir in double doses to many of the pennant contenders and success in the same quantities to those who could withstand the pressure of four games in two days.

A total of 392,280 paying fans swarmed to the ball parks to watch the bargain bills offered during the double holiday, 197,820 of them on Memorial Day and 194,460 on Sunday.

Here are some of the more important happenings witnessed'

New York Yankees stretched their American League lead to eight full games, although their eight-game winning streak was snapped by the Philadelphia Athletics in the second game of yesterday's double-header.

Brooklyn Dodgers boosted their lead in the National League to six games by stopping Boston Braves twice yesterday after dividing a pair with New York Giants the day before.

Cleveland Indians skidded into fourth place in the American League, while Detroit Tigers took over second place and Boston Red Sox moved up a notch to third.

St. Louis Cardinals replaced Boston Braves in second place in the National League by winning two out of three during the week-end while the Braves managed only an even split in four games.

Ties Hornsby's Record.

Mel Ott, playing his 17th year in the majors—all with the Giants—and his first as manager, tied Rogers Hornsby's National League record of 1,582 runs batted in by driving two runs across in yesterday's twin triumph over Philadelphia Phils. It took Hornsby 23 seasons to establish the mark. Babe Ruth's major league record is 2,209.

Max West of the Braves, who had hit only two home runs this season and both of them last week rapped four in two days.

As for the games themselves, two of yesterday's scheduled double-headers were cut in half by the weather, but five of the six played resulted in double victories.

The lone exception was at Philadelphia, where New York Yankees came from behind with a seven-run sixth-inning rally to whip the Athletics 11-7, then bumped into Luman Harris, who checked them with four hits to give Philadelphia a 4-2 decision in the afterpiece.

Elden Auker and Johnny Niggeling shared the pitching honors as St. Louis Browns stopped the Cleveland Indians, 5-4 and 8-3, with Don Gutteridge collecting six hits in eight trips to the plate.

Boston Red Sox crushed Buck Newsom and Washington Senators, 11-1, in the first game and took the second one 4-3 on pinch-hitter Lou Finney's two-run single.

Aging Ted Lyons pitched and batted Chicago White Sox to a 9-4 ten-inning triumph over Detroit Tigers, getting three hits in five appearances. The second game was halted in the third inning with no score.

A Grand Slam Homer.

Curt Davis pitched Brooklyn Dodgers to a 10-2 triumph over the Braves as Dixie Walker hit a grand-slam homer and Whitlow Wyatt tossed a six-hitter in the nightcap to make it unanimous, 3-1.

Bill Lohrman pitched the Giants to a 3-2 decision over the Phils in the first game, anl Bob Carpenter yielded only seven blows in the second game, won by the Giants, 7-1.

The flundering Pittsburg Pirates were no trouble for Cincinnati Reds, who won the opening game 8-2 on the five-hit pitching of Bucky Walters and scored a 3-0 shutout in the nightcap.

Howard Pollet pitched St. Louis to a 3-0 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. A scheduled second game got no farther than the last half of the first inning.

Both circuits played a full schedule of double-headers Saturday, with the American League drawing 105,795 customers and the National League 92,025. Largest crowd of the day was the 43,330 paid at New York's Yankee stadium where the world champions took two games from Washington Senators.

In the National League Brooklyn Dodgers got to Carl Hubbell for two runs in the ninth inning to trip the Giants 7-6 in the first game before 34,715. The New Yorkers slammed into Johnny Allen for six runs in the first inning of the nightcap and coasted to a 7-3 triumph for an even break.

Cards Whip Reds

Chicago Cubs swept a twin bill from Pittsburg's slumping Pirates 10-5 and 3-2. St. Louis Cards whipped Cincinnati Reds 10-5 in the nightcap after losing 3-2 in the opener to Johnny Vander Meer. Cincinnati suffered a severe blow in the second game when they lost the services of their star outfielder, Mike McCormick, for eight weeks. McCormick fractured his leg at the ankle while trying to beat a force play at second base.

Boston Braves beat the Phils twice 4-3 and 10-1. The Braves' Max West slammed out three homers and drove in seven runs in the two games.

In the American League the Yankees beat the Senators 5-1 in the opener on Charley Ruffing's six-hitter and took the night-cap 6-4. The Tigers and the White Sox split two games before 31,659. A seven-run splurge in the ninth inning of the second game gave Chicago a 12-5 decision over Detroit. In the opener four home runs, two by Pinky Higgins, brought the Tigers a 9-4 victory.

Philadelphia Athletics ended a seven-game losing streak by beating Boston Red Sox 5-4 in the second game after losing the first 10-6. Ted Williams hit his 15th homer of the season in the nightcap.

Cleveland split with the Browns as the winning runs crossed the plate with two out in the ninth inning of both games. Ken Keltner's double drove in Oris Hockett for a 5-4 Tribe victory in the opener. Lefty Al Hollingsworth, former National League, held Cleveland to four hits in the afterpiece for a 2-0 win over Rookie Red Embree.

Philly Moundsman In Uniform

Hugh Macahy, formerly of the Philadelphia Phillies, is now serving Uncle Sam in the U.S. army. He is shown taking the mound in uniform when he came to Shibe Park to participate in the Philadelphia-Pirates Service Fund game.

Newark Lifts Wins To Seven Straight

By The Associated Press

Newark's Bears of the International League blasted their way to four triumphs during the Memorial Day week-end and now boast a winning streak of seven straight and a record of nine verdicts in the last ten games played.

During the spree which has lifted the Bears five games in front of Montreal, only five pitchers have gone the route, but when twirlers failed, the batters came through. Fourteen homers were hit during the past week.

Both pitchers and batters were hot yesterday as the Bears trimmed Rochester Red Wings twice, 6-4 and 11-2. In the first, Al Gerheauser allowed only six hits, while Bill Johnson and Bud Metheny hit homers.

Mel Queen's speed ball was hit for only five blows in the nightcap. Russ Derry contributed two homers and Metheny one to make his triumph even easier.

Montreal also won all four games of the big week-end. Royals squelched Syracuse 3-1 in yesterday's opener and then took the second, 4-3, when Les Burge and Gene Moore connected for four-masters with a mate on base each time.

Jersey City pulled into a third-place tie with Toronto by taking a pair from Buffalo, 11-5, and 2-0. Toronto, meanwhile, bowed twice to Baltimore, 2-1 and 7-5.

In their first victory, Jersey City picked on George Barley and Al Sierra for 16 hits and in the second Hugh East scattered five blows over as many innings for the shutout.

Sherry Robertson was the Oriole hero. His two-run homer accounted for the Baltimore runs in the first contest. He came to bat in the final frame of the nightcap with Toronto ahead, 5-4, and two mates on base. He clouted a round tripper for the decision.

In games Saturday the Bears defeated Jersey City 4-3 and 10-5, Montreal down Rochester 7-4 and 6-0, and the Orioles whipped Syracuse 7-3 and 8-7. Toronto and Buffalo split their holiday double-header, the Bisons taking the first game 15-4 but losing the nightcap 6-0.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, June 1 (AP)—Study in contrasts—or is it?...Britain's wartime sport has become a week-end affair with players and fans engaged in war work through the week. Saturday two cup final soccer games drew 120,000 fans...In the United States baseball is going on a business-as-usual basis and not getting rich from week-day customers...Saturday and Sunday Major League doubleheaders drew 392,000 ...looks as if the athletes might as well save their efforts for occasions when the fans are willing and able to turn out...as further proof, five big horse tracks drew 170,000 fans Saturday...When Market Wise won the Suburban at Belmont, it was the first victory for Lou Tufano's stable in 27 races since the Widener at Hialeah.

Two of the first families of fistiana will be joined, appropriately enough, right on Jacobs Beach on June 28 when Pte. Adam Pianga of Camp Upton and Jean Monteith of Detroit will be married at St. Malachy's church on W. 49th St....Jean is the daughter of Promoter Scotty Monteith, once manager of Johnny Dundee, and Pte. Pianga is, of course, young Kid McCoy, the crack welterweight...Billy Soose the ex-middleweight champ, also is to be married soon—on June 14 to Peggy Unger of East Greenville, Pa., and Al Braverman was married here last week...All three are managed by Joe Gould, who claims with all these weddings he is being divorced from his stable.

Ready Sale Is Found For Poultry

Poultry sold freely on the produce market Saturday. Prices were firm at 28 to 35 cents for hens and chickens, with the bulk of the selling at 30 to 32 cents. Broilers brought the top prices at 35 cents, and roasters were 32 and 33 cents. Most of the hens went at 30 to 32 cents.

Eggs were steady and unchanged in price. The larger grades sold at 35 and 40 cents a dozen, and the rest scaled down to the pewees at 25 to 27 cents. Butter was 37 and 38 cents.

At the outdoor market farmers sold potatoes at $1.75 and $1.80 a bushel, some at 40 cents a peck. Maritime stock was $2 to $2.25. Herb Doig featured Chippewas from down near the sea at $2. Demand was active for table stock, and the seed varieties also went well.

The planting season is advancing rapidly, and greenhouse men reported that their supplies are getting near the end. Tomatoes were 75 cents a hundred, but the general price for seedling plants, flowers and vegtables, was 20 cents, some of them at two boxes for 35 cents. Growers offered thousands of tomato plants. One man from Brighton came up with a truck load of them, mostly in flats of one hundred.

Training For "Second Front"

Lads of the "Highland Regiment" are pictured, TOP, in commando dress during drill. Their faces are blacked, and their feet muffled in sacking. The Highland regiment to which they belong is formed of youngsters 18 years old, who join up for intensive training until the day they are old enough to join the regiments of their choice. The LOWER photograph shows men of the Royal Northumberland Fusiliers splashing ashore through the surf to gain a beachhead; practice for the "real thing."

Aussies Blast

Residents of the city of approximately 1,300,000 were kept awake most of the night by the explosion of depth charges dropped in an attempt to ensure the destruction of any raiders which might be hiding on the bottom.

That the midget submarines were launched from a parent ship—probably somewhere in the Coral Sea—seemed a virtual certainty, for the tiny undersea craft have a short range and the nearest Japanese land bases are approximately 2,000 miles to the north of Sydney.

It was recalled that the midget submarines which figured in the Pearl Harbor attack were designed to carry only two men and had a range of not more than 300 miles. One of these craft was captured intact at Pearl Harbor and another was reported sunk.

The raid on Sydney was the first Japanese attack on a major Australian city, though several small communities in the north, such as Darwin, have been bombed from the air.

During the First Great War the German merchant raider Wolff laid mines off Australia and catapulted a plane which reconnoitred the coast near Melbourne. In the early months of the present conflict an unidentified vessel laid mines in Bass Strait betwen the Australian mainland and Tasmania.

1250 Bombers

Three-fourths of Cologne was on fire and under a three-mile-high pall of smoke.

More than 1,000 bombers roared over their German targets in Cologne, and elsewhere in the Rhineland and the Ruhr Valley in a 90-minute procession of death and destruction.

Perhaps 1,250 planes in all, including the bombers' protective fighter escort, was the greatest aerial armada ever put into the skies at one time.

Six million pounds of bombs were dropped. Twice the number of planes and four times the weight of explosive and incendiary bombs that ever were dumped on Britain in a single night, even at the height of the German air assault, were used.

Six thousand airmen took part in the single, intricately co-ordinated air attack and it was estimated that 100,000 men in ground crews at home sent the planes off from scores of bases.

Even the Germans admitted "great damage" to Cologne, their fifth largest city, although the Berlin radio scoffed at the British announcement of the scope of the attack, quoting Nazi military sources as claiming only 'about 70" planes took part.

44 Planes Missing.

The British losses were 44 planes, picked off by 500 anti-aircraft guns and many night fighter squadrons.

On the basis of British reports that the R.A.F. used 1,250 planes in all this was a loss of less than 4 per cent—compared with the 10 per cent generally mentioned as the maximum losses which still would mark a raid as a success.

Only Berlin, Vienna, Hamburg and Munich surpass Cologne in size within greater Germany. Beside being an important manufacturing centre of 768,000 population in the heart of a great German industrial region, Cologne also is a great Rhine river port and the hub of rail lines connecting Germany and France.

Though one ponderous blow virtually had flattened a great German city, the raid's significance lay for British authorities in the vision it raised of more, and worse, to come for the enemy.

Prime Minister Churchill pictured the Cologne attack as part of a master strategy rather than an isolated achievement.

He told the fliers in a message of congratulation that their work was "proof of the growing power of the British bomber forces" and also "a herald of what Germany will receive, city by city, from now on.

And The Yanks Are Coming

The BBC told the German people it was but "the first step" and reminded them that "The Yanks are coming" to add their might to Britain's bombing strength.

Air sources said that the accomplishment, which the air ministry called "highly successful," was the work of British forces alone. Joined by American planes, they said, Allied air fleets may deliver blows three times as great.

Well-informed experts agreed that a succession of such raids, increasing in scale as United States air forces become available, might bring Germany to her knees by autumn.

This echoed a recent contention of Air Marshal A. T. Harris, chief of the R.A.F. bomber command, that "if I could send 1,000 bombers over air experts predicted, it would be the war by autumn."

Once the task of smashing German industry had been achieved, the air experts predicted, it wuold be relatively easy for Allied armies to invade the continent.

"The German army would be short of all types of equipment and its troops shaken by steady attacks on their homes." one commentator observed.

"Sooner or later, German industrial workers, especially those conscripted from Allied countries would rebel."

These sources said the aim probably would be at an average of 1,000 planes on each night of attack but that it would be necessary, at times, to send over 3,000 bombers — all great, four-engined weight-carriers.

Such a force could drop 10,000,000 pounds of high explosive and incendiary bombs. Some of the R.A.F.'s biggest, newest four-engined bombers each bear a greater load than a whole squadron of the smaller Blenheims.

Listed by them as targets for the future are Vienna, Chemnitz, Graz, Erfurt, Linz, Hindenburg, Gleiwitz and others—all industrial centres scattered across greater Germany from Upper Silesia to Austria.

Although Britons have learned to expect the Nazis to strike back swiftly and forcefully after such raids, the only counter-blow was a pre-dawn attack on Canterbury today.

A communique said there were some casualties and fires in the town, chiefly in shopping and residential districts, but there was no indication the assault was on a large scale.

Three German raiders were destroyed during the night and London, which had been bomb-free since July, 1941, was under a brief air alarm early today. No bombs were dropped.

British planes again were over Germany last night, according to a Berlin broadcast which said no bombs were dropped. They may have been reconnoitering to determine the effect of Saturday night's bombs, dropped in such swift profusion that the air ministry so far has issued no detailed reports of the damage.

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM J. SCOLLARD

ENNISMORE, June 1—The funeral of the late William J. Scollard, who passed away at his home in Ennismore was held on Tuesday morning from his late residence to St. Martin's Parish Church, the parish of which the deceased had been a faithful member during the seventy-seven years of his life.

Rev. V. J. Gillogly was celebrant of the solemn mass of requiem, assisted by Rev. C. J. Carroll of Norwood and Fev. G. Wolff of Peterborough. Also present in the sanctuary were His Excellency Rt. Rev. Denis O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough; Rev. J. V. McAuley, Campbellford, and Rev. J. Finn, Peterborough.

The honorary pall-bearers were: P. G. Sullivan, William H. Crough, Thomas Cavanagh, William Harrington, T. H. G. Crough of Ennismore, and Michael L. Crough of Peterborough. Active bearers were Matt Foley, John O'Connor, Michael Cavanagh, Fergus Crough, Sam Killen and John F. Young.

In the death of Mr. Scollard St. Martin's parish loses one of its oldest and most ardent members and the example set by the deceased in his duties towards God and his church will long live in the memory of those who for so many years knelt with him in paying homage to his Creator. He was a member of St. Martin's Holy Name Society, also of the Altar Society of the parish and of the League of the Sacred Heart.

The community suffers the loss of a highly respected citizen who met old and young alike in an exceptionally cheerful manner, a character which endeared him to all and very particularly to the little children; but nowhere will the late Mr. Scollard's loss be more keenly felt than in his own home, that home within the confine of which he found perfect happiness and contentment. A kind and loving husband and father he lived his life for his home and family.

In conveying words of sympathy to the bereaved family, Rev. J. V. McAuley, who during the funeral service, delivered a very impressive sermon, eulogized the late Mr. Scollard's life as that of the good Christian, whose every day spent in this world was a preparation for that hour when he must meet his Creator. The deceased was a member of a family, one of whom the late Bishop Scollard of North Bay had been called to the service of God and that heritage of true faith which characterized the home of the parents of the late Mr. Scollard, was passed on by him to his own family, who will cherish the memory of a faithful and devoted father, whose happiest moments were spent when his children gathered around him for the family prayers. The great numbers who called at the home of the deceased to express their sympathy to the bereaved widow and family and to pay their last mark of respect to one whom in life they had learned to regard as a kindly friend and neighbor, was a final tribute to a life-long resident of this community.

Numerous spiritual and floral offerings were received, and present at the funeral other than the immediate family were friends from New York, Ottawa, Hamilton, Peterborough, Downeyville, Lakehurst, Douro, Otonabee, Smith and Ennismore, filling St. Martin's Church almost to capacity.

Rev. C. J. Carroll Rev. J. V. McAuley and Rev. V. J. Gillogly officiated at the graveside prayers.

The late Mr. Scollard is survived by his sorrowing widow; five sons, David and John of Brantford, Patrick J. of Hudson, Ont., William G. of Capreol and Leo of Ennismore; two daughters, Mrs. Angus Twomey of Smith, Anna, R.N. of New York. Two sisters, Mrs. P. J. Moloney and Elizabeth of Ottawa, all of whom were present at the funeral. The deceased is asiso survived by twenty

Fishermen Get 31 Pickerel

CAMPBELLFORD, June 1 (ENS)—The high water which is serving to limit the fishing in some parts of the Trent River has apparently had little adverse effect on luck of those who frequent the water below Healey Falls. On Saturday a party of Americans from Medina, N.Y., headed by Fred Hinckley captured a load of pickerel that would be enough to make even a skeptic happy. They brought back a boat load of 31 after spending the greater part of the day on the water. Weights ran all the way from 3 to 7 pounds and Mr. Hinckley who headed back for Medina on Sunday, and has been a regular visitor at Cole's Point for several years, hopes to return for another bit of fishing early in July. They crossed the border at Lewiston with a full tank of gas and are not worried about the supply required for the return journey.

LEAVES FOR RADIO INSTITUTE

Friends of Stroyan Leith, Jr., on Saturday presented him with a handsome present on the occasion of his leaving the C.G.E. to enter the Canadian Electronic Institute to take further courses in radio engineering and technique. Stroyan had for many years his own broadcasting station, VE3 ANE in the city and had communicated with many parts of the world through short-wave transmission. CALLED UP AGAIN

Trainees who were called up under the National Mobilization Resources Act for military service more than 18 months ago, and whose medical category was too low are now being re-examined for military service. Fifteen men each day will report to the Armouries as they are called for a complete medical examination. In short it amounts to this: men who received their call and took their medical, but were never ordered to report for training are now being called for medical eaxmination by military doctors, and these military doctors don't fool. Of course the re-examination is not necessary in cases where the men have enlisted for active service before being called regardless of the category which was originally assigned them.

ENLISTMENTS STEADY

There has been an unprecedented spurt of enlisting in the city of Peterborough since the Prince of Wales Rangers left for Camp Niagara, and upwards of fifty men have been accepted. This morning two more left for Lansdowne Park, Ottawa. They are D. Lazure, 573 Walnut street, formerly employed at the C.P.C. and now with the Army Service Corps, and Harry Lewis, Havelock, formerly unemployed, now with the Ordnance Corps.

SMART SUMMER DRESS

Quite a number of soldiers were noticed on leave over the week-end dressed in the new walking out uniforms, with low cut collars, low oxfords, black sox. These uniforms resemble that of an officer rather closely and make the army boys even smarter looking than the air force fighters.

A BUSY SPORT

Eight recruits for active service were given medical tests this morning at the Training Centre after enlisting at the Armouries, and in the group was Jimmy Miller of Dufferin street. He was formerly employed as a postman but is now being attached to the orderly room staff, Prince of Wales Rangers, 2nd Battalion.

ROUTE MARCH TUESDAY

According to orders at the Prince of Wales Rangers, 2nd Battalion at the Armouries, the unit will route march down George Street on Tuesday evening at 8:15. There should be a first class turn out for this march, and unless the unit steps along smartly, the boys standing on the pavement may decide to join the 4th Battery, whose marching makes them one of the smartest units in this part of Ontario.

ON A HIKE

Taking advantage of the few hours of sunshine Saturday, a large crowd of Girl Guides gathered in Victoria Park, carrying their flags. They lined up in smart formation and then set out briskly in marching order, on a hike.

NO SUGAR FOR THEM

"Some people seem to have gone one step further than the government asked them in sugar rationing" N. Douros of the Churchill remarked to a reporter today. "They say they don't want any sugar at all, doing without it altogether. Most people take what they get and don't say anything about it, but these others they just are not having any sugar at all. May be that is the way people are; some do more than they are asked, and some do less."

The total customs and excise receipts for the month of May, 1942. total $328.588.27. Checking back to last year the total was $528,427.12, showing a decrease in 1942 of $199,-836.85.

THEY WANTED ADJOURNMENTS

Half a dozen liquor charges were on the calendar at police court this morning but only one was disposed of on a plea of guilty with the usual result, a $10 fine. The others asked for adjournments and the cases had to go over. However Magistrate Langley announced that some of them would have to be proceeded with tomorrow.

IN NEED OF SMOKES

A letter has been received from Ira Peters, who left with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, and who has been overseas for more than nine months. He speaks highly of the kind treatment he has received in England. Pte. Peters describes living conditions as being pretty fair, with one exception, the lack of smokes. This soldier expressed the hope that perhaps some smoking material could be sent through a local tobacco fund, and his present address is: C53-226 Ira Peters, R.C.O.C. No. 1 Detachment, Canadian Army Overseas.

Lily Lake Event To Give Aid To War Victims

The Lily Lake Women's Association is a group of ladies who have been very active in raising funds to help along various war charities, and in particular their efforts have materially assisted the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund on a number of occasions.

This coming Wednesday a community auction sale is being held under their auspices at D. R. Wilson's farm, one mile west of Jackson Park, commencing at 1:30 p.m., when Gordon and W. J. Hancock will act as auctioneers to dispose of quilts, furniture, fruit, pickles, wood, chickens, maple syrup, towels, mirrors and dishes, etc. Many donations of new articles have been received for this event and there will be a draw made for a quilt, tickets for which have been on sale for some time, and all proceeds of this will come to the fund. Lunch will be served for 25 cents per person, and an attractive feature will be a table of farm products and home-made cooking for sale, with proceeds also for war purposes. This should prove to be an attractive centre to spend the Wednesday half-holiday.

The Peterborough Chapter, No. 161, Order of the Eastern Star, has made a direct contribution from its funds with a cheque for $11.00 per Mrs. H. Jocelyn, Worthy Matron, and Mrs. Al Heckman, Treasurer. This group has been making regular monthly contributions towards a mobile canteen in addition to the help they give to the victims of air raids in Britain through this fund.

Three Public School girls, Rosamond O'Keefe, Madeline O'Connor, and Doreen Whitmore, held a bazaar on Saturday at 247 Park Street, selling a variety of wares, such as home-made candy, cakes, canned goods, preserves and lemonade to raise the sum of $6.05, and they got satisfaction out of doing this work to help those in need, for they plan to repeat it in a short time; and all had previously worked to give help to the fund.

Two other girls, Patsy and Beverly Martyn, 582 Waterford Street, both of whom had worked for the fund, turned in $5.30 on this occasion as a result of a draw they held on a rug, this marking Patsy's sixth effort and Beverly's second. The draw was made by Mr. Dearborn, principal of Central School, and resulted in ticket 956 being the winner, which gave the prize to C. D. Munro, a member of the staff of that school.

Still another group of youngsters is heard from with help for air raid victims in Britain, when Mrs. Arthur Earnshaw, teacher at S.S. 1A, Burleigh, brought in $2.56 from the pupils at that school.

Less than $100 is now required to pass the $42,000 mark for the fund.

Bonus Cheque Given To Aid Greek Relief

Louis Yeotes crossed the path of John E. McConkey, R.R. 3 Lakefield, in that conjunction of time and disposition known as the psychological moment.

Mr. McConkey had a cheque for four dollars that was burning his pocket. It was bonus money of some kind, and Mr. McConkey decided he was going to give it away to somebody who needed it.

And then he met Mr. Yeotes. "Honest I didn't know the man. I hate to say that, and I don't think I ever saw him before. He stops me, and says 'You're the very man I'm looking for. Here's a $4 bonus I got, and I don't know anybody who needs it worse than the Greeks. They need it far worse than I do. The papers say they're starving. I wish it was $4,000.'

Wasn't that fine?" Mr. Yeotes added. "I send the money to headquarters in Montreal, and our committee takes charge of any gifts and see that they reach our people somewhere. Any persons who have some money to spend in help are reminded that the Greek Relief Fund needs anything they can give. Just leave the money at the Royal Bank, corner of George and Hunter street, or I would be glad to receive it."

190,001 Gallons Of Rain Per Acre Fell On Farms During May

Eighteen days of rain in May set up a new record for the month of 6.94 inches, according to the local records, A. O. Phillips informed The Examiner today.

"That means seven inches of rain just for the purpose of a little estimating," Mr. Phillips said. "One inch over an acre of ground would total 27,143 gallons. Therefore the farms of Peterborough Country have received approximately 190,001 gallons of rain per acre last month. The man with 100 acres may try to realize that a grand total of 19,000,100 gallons of water fell on his farm during May."

Mr. Phillips looked into the moisture records for the last forty-two years, and found these facts:

Highest month's precipitation, July 1902, 8.65 inches. Second month in the rainfall quantities: July, 1938, 7.35 inches.

And close behind these record-holders in the period from 1900 up to the present was our own departing May with 6.94 inches.

Just forget the calendar bounds for a moment and Mr. Phillips points out that rain for the last 32 days was 7.77 inches. To the 6.94 inches for the 31 days of May, add .83 of an inch which well on April 30, and you come out drenched with the 7.77 figure. And as Mr. Phillips was talking to a reporter in the office this morning it was still raining, or, in quasi-official terms, precipitating.

The previous record for that month was May, 1912, with 6.82 inches.

And also in the weather facts for last month was the average daily maximum temperature of 66.2 degrees, and the minimum of 46.3 degrees.

Place Antelope Game Preserve

Elk, Himalayan Thar, Chukar partridges, wild turkeys and now fleet antelope. At least that is the venturesome plan being arranged by Charlie Kingan of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association. The four first-named species have been successfully introduced to the Crown Game Preserve, but it is likely Mr. Kingan has gone out on a limb when he tries to introduce antelope to this part of the country.

Even D. J. Taylor, deputy-minister of Game and Fisheries, is a little bit skeptical about this venture, for in his letter he remarks, "I shall expect to hear of your negotiating for a shipment of elephants almost any time."

Another letter to the Department of Lands and Mines, Alberta, and replied to by D. E. Forsland, superintendent of game, indicates the belief that antelope would not survive being shipped east. He also states that it is almost impossible to obtain specimens without shooting them, because they are so fleet of foot. The only alternative would be to obtain some fawns from a zoological garden or a park, and ship them in individual crates, then raise them on the bottle.

Still Mr. Kingan believes the venture is worth a try, so he has instructed the superintendent of game to secure a pair of antelope, and ship them express collect. Mr. Kingan plans to import the antelope in a car along with cattle, having about one-third of the car boxed off to give protection to the antelope.

Four Hotelmen Face Charges

Charges against the proprietors or staff members of four of Peterborough's leading hotels of conspiring with some of the American engineers employed at Geneloo during the past winter to defraud the Dominion Government by enabling the engineers to recover more expense money than they were entitled to were read in police court this morning.

There were fourteen charges in all, laid by Corporal Karl Lockwood of the Cobourg deatchment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the accused in all the cases elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty. They were defended by T. J. Carley, K.C. and J. F. Strickland, K.C. and the cases were all adjourned until the week after next.

One of the charges—they were all identical except for the names involved—was that the accused "unlawfully did conspire with J. Woodman by deceit, or falsehood or other fraudulent means, to wit, by giving false receipts for room rent, namely receipts for larger sums than were actually paid by the said J. Woodman, to defraud the Dominion of Canada or a department of the Government of the Dominion of Canada, to wit the Department of Munitions and Supply by enabling said J. Woodman to recover from the Dominion of Canada, to wit the Department of Munitions and Supply, the amounts shown by such false receipts, instead of the amounts actually paid, contrary to the provisions of the Criminal Code and Section 444 thereto."

Young Priest Is Assisted By 3 Relatives

Assisted by three relatives in the priesthood, Rev. Joseph Lynch of Otonabee, who was ordained Saturday morning at St. Augustine's Seminary, celebrated high mass for the first time Sunday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart.

His assistants were his brother, Rev. P. J. Lynch, parish priest at Kearney, Ontario; and two uncles, Rev. Dean O'Leary of Saskatoon, and Rev. Dean M. J. O'Leary of Bracebridge. In its aspect of the relationship of the four principals of the Mass, the main event of the feast of the Holy Trinity was probably unique in the long history of the Catholic community of Peterborough.

The congregation which occupied the church to its capacity included the mother of Rev. Father Lynch and the other members of his family, with relatives and friends from other parishes. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, parish priest, congratulated the young celebrant of the Mass on the attainment of ordination after long preparation, and paid tribute to his parents, the late Thomas Lynch and Mrs. Lynch, on having raised up to the service of God two sons in the priesthood and one daughter in the sisterhood of St. Joseph. Mr. Lynch had been a stalwart member of the church of the Sacred Heart and supporter of St. Joseph's School, Otonabee, in which the young priest had begun his education, going on to St. Peter's School in the city.

Salvage Crops Problem Of Many Farmers

When May arrived full of agricultural promise after the phenomenal sunshine of April, farmers began thinking about a salvage campaign of raking their lands and barns for scrap iron and other materials for for the steel factories. But, now that May has gone they are concentrating on ways and means of salvaging the crops and what is left of a season whose fair aspects have been dimmed to a mere spark.

"How late can oats be sown?" was a question asked of F. C. Paterson this morning.

"One man told me he had planted oats about June 20, and had a splendid crop," said the enquirer. "Another friend of mine was farming in the United States back in '17 and '18. It rained like this, but he sowed oats on July 10 and had one of the best crops he ever gathered."

Mr. Paterson recalled an experiment of last summer when two fields were planted with oats as a nurse crop for clover. Elmer Milburn had one field and Gordon Hancock the other, and they had a feed crop practically until the frost came.

Taking the side of caution, Mr. Paterson said that oats were not usually sown after the first week n June, not later than the tenth of the month. Buckwheat is another late crop, but that seed is not as plentiful as in normal times.

At any rate today's question points the direction of farmers' altered planning, actually a salvaging of the hopes born of April and heavily diluted by the disappointment of May.

HOW TO GET A $100 LOAN WITHOUT ENDORSERS

Monthly payments to fit your own income

A quick, simple way to borrow for emergencies

WOULD a cash loan help you? If you have a job, you can borrow at Household Finance without fuss or bother—and at reasonable cost. You may repay your loan in monthly instalments which fit your own pocketbook.

Just this to do

All you do to apply for a Household Finance loan is to tell us how much you need and how you wish to repay.

You may choose the most convenient payment plan from the table below. Suppose you borrow $100 to be repaid at $9.46 a month. Twelve instalments of $9.46 each will repay your loan in full. You may prefer to repay sooner in order to reduce the cost. Six monthly instalments of $17.85 each—a total of $107.10—will also repay a $100 loan. The cost of your loan, in this case, is just $7.10. A $25 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $4.46 each costs only $1.76.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household—just the ability to repay in monthly instalments. This spares you the embarrassment of asking friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit.

Household Finance loans are usually made on furniture or car. But we consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in 24 hours or even sooner if necessary. If you should get sick or lose your position while paying on your loan, Household will show you every consideration.

Let Household help you

People borrow at Household to pay taxes, insurance, medical, dental, hospital and funeral expenses, school fees, and overdue bills of many kinds. Household service helps men and women, both married and single, to take care of emergency expenses and work their way out of debt.

McQuire-Scott Nuptials At Bride's Parents' Home

The home of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Scott, 343 Stewart street, was the scene on Saturday afternoon of a lovely wedding, when their only daughter, Ann Jean, became the bride of Ralph Douglas McQuire of Arvida, Quebec, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Crysler McQuire of Port Colborne. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. S. McKay of Toronto, an old friend of the family, and Dr E. W. Young of St Andrew's Church. The fireplace had been banked with great baskets of mauve and purple iris, brought by the groom's mother from Port Colborne, and bridal wreath and iris, brought by the bride's uncle, Dr. A. L. MacNabb. from Toronto. Mrs. W. B. Faith, B.A., of Ottawa, the bride's aunt, played the wedding music, and Mrs. Leonard Mackie sang 'Because,' during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a long gown of white brocaded satin with bridal sleeves, a sweetheart neckline and a short train. Her circular fingertip veil of white embroidered tulle hung from a satin halo trimmed with a narrow band of white tulle ruching. She carried a bouquet of Joanna Hill roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Isabel Douglas of Montreal, attended the bride, wearing a gown of eylet-embroidered tea-rose organdie with a hat of pink tulle, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and forget-me-nots. The groom was attended by Mr. Jack McQuire.

After the ceremony the bride's mother received the guests in a gown of royal blue lace with a matching hat trimmed with dark red roses, and wearing a corsage of American Beauty roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a gown with a pale pink lace bodice and a gathered skirt of pink jersey, a pink and black hat and a corsage of harmonizing flowers. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mrs. J. S. McKay, formerly of Neemuch, Central India, and a former editor of an Indian newspaper.

Following the reception, the bride and groom left on a short motor trip. For travelling the bride wore a navy blue pinstripe suit with matching hat and accessories. They will reside in Arvida, Quebec.

Entertain Teams After Cricket Match

After the cricket match on Saturday between the Peterborough-Whitaker Club and the Royal Air Force cricketers from Picton, members of both teams and officials were supper guests of the Club president, Mr. Gordon Monkman, at the Y.M.C.A. The host was supported at the head table by Group Captain Cox, D.F.C., Commanding Officer of the Picton Station, P.O. Ruck, Mr. C. V. Elliott, Mr. W. A. Brown and Mr. A. Morris, Y.M.C.A. superviser at the Picton camp.

After dinner, the Club president welcomed the visitors, and said that cricket was having a difficult time but that members of the Air Force stationed throughout the Dominion were being of great assistance.

Group Captain Cox, in response, said the Air Force was highly appreciative of the hospitable reception which they had always received here. He said that on leaving England he had been told he need not pack his cricket kit as there was no cricket in Canada, but he had received a pleasant surprise when a Manitoba team in Winnipeg completely overwhelmed his own Air Force team. There is now a pitch at Picton and the Air Force hopes for several visits from the Peterborough team.

A successful evening was passed with community singing and reminiscences. All the visitors were from the Old Country, and many parts of Great Britain were represented. There were men from Yorkshire, Lancashire, Essex, Kent, London, North and South Wales and other places.

Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., reported. In addition garments, blankets and quilts valued at $58,698 had been shipped to Polish peoples deported to Russia, in the first quarter of the year. Most of these articles for Poland were new, but some reconditioned clothing of heavy warm quality were also sent.

One of the largest undertakings of the War Services Committee of the Order is in providing field comforts for sailors, soldiers, airmen, minesweepers and merchant marine, distributed in Canada and overseas; comforts sent to the British Red Cross for next-of-kin prisoners-of-war parcels, comforts and personal property for members of the Women's Auxiliary Territorial Services, for the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, members of Allied forces and Britain's fire fighters. Total of these gifts. Mrs. Angas announced, was $291,600 in the past twelve months valued on cost of material at $204,672.

Greatest single project of the War Service Committee is providing new clothing, bedding and gifts for bombed civilians. Work in this essential field has amounted during the year to over $215,000, with a total of 461,500 articles either made or purchased by members of the Order. Under the chairmanship of Lady Reading, this help has been distributed through the Women's Voluntary Services, with 2,000 distributing depots.

From I.O.D.E. War Funds alone, knitted comforts, ditty bags and cash donations to Navy League of Canada were in excess of $53,000. This sum does not include work done by the Chapter for Sea Cadets, Navy League hostels, canteens, maintenance of seamen's clubs, entetrainments, etc.

The camps' library committee set up to distribute recreational reading material, which the Government requested the Order to especially undertake, has sent out 550 tons of magazines and books for Canadian fighting forces, as well as 16,000 paper-covered books purchased from publishing houses in Britain for British prisoners of war, and for troops in England. The committee has also distributed 20,000 packs of cards, games, puzzles, radios, gramophones and furnishings, Mrs. John H. Chipman, of Toronto, convener of the committee, reported.

With the opening of air training stations across Canada where men come from all parts of the British Empire, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland and the United States, hospitality was extended by the Order. In reporting on those phases of the I.O.D.E. activities, Mrs. Irving Hall, of Toronto, reported that chapters have set aside $10,675 for entertainment purposes, while many hospitality houses and service clubs although not entirely financed by I.O.D.E. funds, are under the Order's management. Sick men are visited, with one chapter alone reporting 6,025 visits made, with many men taken into members' homes during convalescent periods.

Special tribute was paid by Mrs. Angas to Imperial Oil, Limited, which placed its service stations across Canada at the disposal of the Order for receiving gifts of clothing and books from the general public, amounting to 1,000 blankets and quilts and altogether over 10,000 articles of clothing, and in addition, tons of magazines and books.

Special projects of the I.O.D.E. during the year, included in the extensive war service committee report were the cigarette fund which centralized the work of distributing cigarettes at the request of authorities in England; jerkin linings for the hundreds of fur jackets made up by furriers across Canada. A total of 5,359 jerkins for seamen were sent out by the Order in the past twelve months.

SHIPS AND LIVES MUST BE CONSERVED

Notice to

PUBLIC EATING PLACES

(Hotels, Restaurants, Boarding Houses, Clubs, etc.)

We must face the fact that it is increasingly difficult and dangerous to bring in supplies of any kind from over the seas. The danger to ships and lives has increased. The need for cargo space to carry vital war supplies becomes more urgent.

New regulations require that Canadian homes reduce their consumption of tea by at least half, their consumption of coffee by at least one-fourth, and sugar to ½ lb. per person per week.

Every effort must be made by proprietors and operators of public eating places to bring the use of tea and coffee by their own establishments, into line with the spirit of the law. Evidence abounds that they will find a ready co-operation on the part of their customers.

IMPORTANT FEATURES OF THE NEW REGULATIONS ON

TEA AND COFFEE

TEA—No operator can use more than one tea bag or the equivalent amount of loose tea for one person at any serving.

COFFEE—Providing more than one cupful of coffee at a serving is forbidden.

Discontinuance of extra servings of tea or coffee, previously given without charge, does not necessitate reduction in price charged.

IMPORTANT FEATURES OF THE NEW REGULATIONS ON

SUGAR

No sugar container, or loose or wrapped sugar to be left on the table, counter, tray or saucer.

No sugar shall be served unless asked for by the customer.

Not more than three lumps or two teaspoonfuls of sugar for any beverage, or more than two teaspoonfuls for any dessert, cereal or other food, shall be served at any one sitting.

Perforated shakers for dispensing granulated or fruit sugar are forbidden.

No operator of an establishment may purchase, acquire or accumulate more than one month's normal supply of tea, coffee or sugar. (Exception: those in areas remote from supply.)

CARIBBEAN CRISIS

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

MYSTERIOUS MESSAGE

CHAPTER XVIII

At dinner Talcott found himself seated at the chief engineer's table beside June Paterson. Two empty chairs were, he presumed, for MacDowell and Halsey. Professor Constantine, surrounded by books and pill bottles, was alone at a table by the stairs and apparently oblivious to his surroundings. Martha Swenson had made a new acquaintance and, it seemed, a conquest; the ship's physician was pouring his soul into her ear.

Talcott stowed away food and thought about his wireless message. From Lowell Byrd it was; three words only, "On the job," in response to his transcription of events. But it lifted a great burden from his mind and at the same time reminded him that he had work to do. How could he, isolated on this ship, accomplish anything within the four days allotted to him before he must face accuatsions in New York? Where could he begin?

By paying court to June Paterson? Hardly. She had become tantalizingly desirable; had changed completely since the stormy hours on Abas. He was not blind to her glances, the mounting color beneath her tranlucent skin, the lingering pressure of her hand on his arm. But what could he do? With prison and possibly death facing him, what could he offer her?

Halsey came down to dinner finally, and Talcott was immeasurably relieved. Halsey was pale and rather stiff, but his clear eyes and thoughtful manner told that whatever fight he had held with himself he must have won. He spoke quite civilly to Talcott, occupied the chair on June Paterson's left. Talcott, taking advantage of the break, excused himself to look after MacDowell. And as he left the dining salon he felt her disappointed eyes follow him.

MacDowell was doing as well as could be expected. "This always happens to me," he groaned. "I'll be like this until we get to New York. I dunno why I let 'em talk me into it."

"You should get out in the air. This place is like a shoebox."

"You're tellin' me. Air. Well, maybe later I'll try it. Tell the skipper of this tub to decide which direction he wants to go—"

Some instinct, sharpened to an incredible fineness in the past troublesome hours, warned Talcott. An out-of-place squeak, an almost inaudible scrape; whirling, he yanked open the door.

A man was there, gripping the door jambs to remain upright. An incredibly ugly man. There was not a single hair to his head; he had no eyebrows, no eyelashes; he looked, horribly, like some thing that had just been born. Yet he must have been all of 50. A flush extended over the full surface of his baldness and his red-rimmed little eyes were beady with the fight of discovery.

"Well?' Talcott demanded.

"Excuse, please!"

"What the devil do you want?"

"My stateroom is the next — I make mistake—"

"Do you usually enter your stateroom on hands and knees?"

A fleeting, baleful stare was his answer. And they, key in hand, the hairless one groped to the adjoining door and let himself in.

Talcott watched long and thoughtfully. Certainly he had never seen this man before; impossible for memory to forget that ugly head. Yet something about him prodded memory. And the memory, whatever it might be, was not pleasant.

Perhaps it was of no consequence. Talcott shrugged and gave noncommittal answer to MacDowells moaned question. Briskly he set off along the corridor, trying to shake the vision of that ugly, thing-like head from his mind. Halfway to the companionway he had to hold up to allow a steward to bring an armload of linen from a locker.

On impluse he asked, "Who is that passenger with the completely bald head?"

The steward frowned. "Bald—Oh, him! That's Mr. Webber. He's a tailor in New York. His first vacation in twenty years, he said. We had him on the down trip. He stayed over in Saint Thomas— He was on B Deck coming down. Got changed down here because there was too much noise— He's a good tailor. Measuring me for a suit. Funny, ain't it? On his vacation and still working, see what I mean?"

And that was that. Bald-head had been on the down trip and his stateroom was different going back. Which might account for his being in front of the wrong door, but it wouldn't account for his trying to enter the room on hands and knees.

Talcott moved forward. Mr. Webber could wait. More important business was at hand; the business of determining just what was in the "report" Struthers had given Halsey.

MacDowell had said that Halsey had stateroom K to himself. He went directly there and, receiving no response to his knock, tried the door. It was locked.

In anneyance he turned and in that moment another steward was coming from another cabin, bearing a tray. Quite casually, Talcott said, "Oh, steward! Mr. Halsey left an envelope for me. Will you let me in please?"

There could be nothing wrong. An aristocratic-looking gentleman in evening dress who was a little put out at finding a door locked. Unfortunate that one gentleman could be so forgetful of another; was that a banknote in the aristocratic gentleman's hand? It was.

The steward let him in and went whistling on his rounds.

Talcott moved swiftly, surveying the room. A regular bed here instead of bunks; Halsey's bag lay open and empty in the rack beneath the bed. An open wardrobe door swung gently with the motion of the ship, revealing neatly-hung suits. On the bureau were personal articles; military brushes, a strap-watch whose hands pointed to nine o'clock; film cartridges, a small camera, toilet articles.

Where was the most likely hiding place? Too bulky, that envelope, for Halsey to carry it with him. Talcott searched the bureau, found nothing; ran his hand over the clothing in the wardrobe, found nothing; pulled out the bags beneath the bed, found nothing.

He stood, scratching his head in vexation, and glared. It had to be somewhere. Beneath the pillow? No. Nor in the bed. Nor— Wait a minute!! On a table magazines were piled in disorder. Somehow they didn't seem to lie just right; there was a bulge in the midst of one that didn't belong there. Talcott crossed swiftly, shuffled the magazines, and the envelope was in his hands.

It was sealed, of course; gobs of red wax along the flap. He had no time for experiments in deception; with Halsey's nail file he ripped the length of the envelope, and then stared incredulously.

Paper, plain blank paper was in his hands. Not a mark defiled its white surface.

He was going through it again, juts to make sure, when he heard a noise at the door.

CHILDREN'S ATTITUDE TO LIFE DETERMINED BY PARENTS

Their Morale Can Be Developed Early; Unhappy Persons Are Cowards.

A MOTHER asks: "Can you teach children a philosophy of life?" Surely. As a matter of fact, whether parents realize it or not, they determine their children's attitude toward life and set the pattern of the kind of men and women they will make. It is nonsense for parents to say that they do not influence their children and that they leave them free to make their own decisions. In the crisis of our fate we do not stop to argue about the wisdom or folly of our acts, nor are we motivated by some fine-spun ethical consideration. We do the way we do because of the prayers we learned at our mothers' knees and the ideals they instilled in us.

Before a child is six months old we can begin developing its morale and giving it a code to live by. If every time the little toddler falls and bumps his nose we pick him up and weep over him and pity him and "poor darling" him, and say "did the bad floor hurt mother's precious angel?" we can turn him into a whiner and a complainer who will go through the balance of his existence howling to high heaven over everything unpleasant that happens to him, and expecting to be sympathized with instead of blamed for his failures.

But if, on the other hand, when the baby comes a cropper Mother lets him rescue himself from his spill while she calls out cheerily: "You're not hurt. Jimmy is a brave boy. Jimmy doesn't cry," Jimmy will bite back the tears and come up laughing. And Jimmy will make the sort of man who can take life on the chin and whom no disaster can ever knock out.

If you will think of the most unhappy people of your acquaintance, you will realize that they are all cowards. It is not that they have had more misfortunes to bear than the balance of us for, God help us, none of us escape drinking our cup of bitter tea. We have all been through the weariness of toil. We have known pain and sickness. Death has robbed us of our loved ones. But if we had the brave attitude toward life, as Stevenson says, we did not let our sorrows spoil our whole lives. We rose above them and found happiness in the good things that were left us.

We can teach aur children to be strong or weak. We can make them sturdy oaks or clinging vines. We can teach them to stand on their own feet or be leaners whom some-one else will always have to support. One of the most pitiful sights in the world is the pampered child who is the prisoner of love and whose over-fond parents never let it have one moment of freedom, one breath of independence, one chance to develop any initiative.

A Foredoomed Failure

From the time he can walk somebody holds him by the hand. Somebody supervises his play. Somebody picks out the children he should know. Somebody protects him from making any mistakes, or getting into trouble.

And when this poor little manikin, who has never learned to take care of himself, goes out into a hard-boiled world where the race is to the swift and the battle to the strong, he is a foredoomed failure. That is why the children of the poor going up the ladder so often meet the children of the rich coming down.

We can teach children to accept life as it comes to them and make the best of their bargain. A friend once came to visit me, bringing with her a frail little child who was forbidden to eat ice cream of which she was passionately fond.

"Oh, well," I said, "if Annie can't have ice cream we won't have any more for dessert."

"Yes we will," replied the child's mother. "All her life Annie will have to see people having things she would like to have and that she cannot have, and she must learn not to envy them, or make herself unhappy about it."

Must Work For Success

Translate that spirit into automobiles and fine clothes and jewels and furs and social prestige and you would rob life of half of its disappointments and strivings and frustrations for women.

And, finally, we can teach children that as they sow they must reap. Make them face, from their infancy up, the cold, hard fact that there is no getting around that immutable law. If they want success, they must work for it. If they want health, they must keep their bodies fit. If they want the respect of those who know them they must deserve it. If they want to be loved, they must be lovable.

No miracle is going to hand the lazy loafer a fortune. No intervention of Providence is going to save the drunkard and the wastrel from wrecking his health. No tears of repentance, of regret, are going to wash clean the skirts of the girl who has dragged them through the gutter. Every one of us reap the harvest that we have sown.

So if you teach children to be brave, to be self-sufficient to make the best of the hand that Fate has dealt them and to watch their steps, you have given them a pretty good philosophy of life.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WINNIPEG, June 1 — (CP). — Canada's wartime cry: "Sport must carry on to maintain civilian morale." Moose Jaw reviewed the process.

When baseball faded from the Saskatchewan city this year due to loss of players through enlistment, the remaining diamond veterans were inconsolable. Then the city took to softball in a big way and now the hardball athletes may be seen chasing around Ross Wells Park in what they called a "sissy game" not long ago.

The eight-team City League plays double-headers four nights a week and Moose Jaw Royals of the Saskatchewan Inter-City League are at home every Tuesday. Commercial and school leagues are numerous, and Moose Jaw claims it rivals any Canadian city in softball teams per population (20,496).

Incidentally:

Fight promoter Jack Price asked the one-time world heavyweight champion, Jim Jeffries, to referee the June 3 non-title bantam fight between champion Lou Salica and Keny Lindsay in Vancouver, Lindsay's home town. Jeffries replied he'd be delighted— for $1,500 and transportation from Berkeley Calif. P.S.—Jeffries will not officiate.... Like father, like daughter: Lionel (Big Train) Conacher's daughter starred in a recent Toronto schools track meet.

Scouting:

Manager Joe Ryan of Winnipeg Blue Bombers tells how the Dominion football champions obtained Art Stevenson, team captain and Western Interprovincial Union scoring leader last autumn. In 1937 Ryan read an article by Stanley Woodward, then president of the American Football Writers' Association, selecting a team from small colleces that Woodward said "would play to a standstill" any all-American team named that year. As quarterback Woodward chose Stevenson of Hastings College, Nebraska, who "can pass, kick and run and is a brainy field general." Ryan learned Stevenson was anxious to become a doctor and induced him to enroll in medicine at Manitoba University, where Art has now completed his fifth year.

Roll call:

Home Course Gives Start in Fashion Art

Career Girls Gets Good Pay

Excitingly successful! That's how every young fashion artist feels when her first cheque comes in. And it doesn't take years of study to become proficient. You can begin to learn at home.

With the aid of charts, you are shown how to start your figure, draw the head. Draw a vertical line for body and legs, an oval for the head. Then draw horizontal lines for bust, shoulders, hips and waist, slanting them as the pose requires.

You easily draw the graceful poses of fashion figures when you know such simple rules as this one. Weight on one side of the vertical line is always balanced by weight on the other—in a letter "S" effect. On the side supporting the body, draw the hip high.

The main contours flow easily now and your garment should follow these contours faithfully. Be sure to play up the main features, for your aim is to sell the dress. And place its centre on the figure's centre.

Our 24-page instruction book shows in detail, with charts and illustrations, how to draw the fashion figure. Explains perspective, foreshortening, line and wash techniques, the drawing of fabrics and furs.

Career Girls Get Good Pay.

For your copy of FASHION DRAWING MADE EASY, send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Peterborough Examiner, Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of the booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE YOU ANY MORE?

SUPPOSE you have bid two suits in their regular order, the higher one first and the lower one second. If your partner then makes a shift at that same level, from the second suit to the first one, without raising the bid, it should not be hard for you to decide whether to raise. If your hand is minimum—that is, no stronger than you absolutely required to make the bids you have already made—you should pass. A raise by you at such a time is unsound unless you have more values than you have so far shown.

South's last bid on this deal was badly out of bounds. If he counted up his hand, he would find that he had hardly any more than enough to make the calls he had made. Unless his partner was able to bid 3-Spades instead of 2-Spades, on the third round, there would be only an extreme luck chance to make a game.

Actually, North had a hand so weak that it barely justified what he had done, his opening call of a minor suit followed by 1-No Trump, and then a mere preference.

After the diamond 4 was led, the opponents took three tricks with trumps and one each in the side suits, setting the contract three tricks. Even the 2-Spades bid by North would have been down if South had passed.

South: ♠ K 8; ♥ J 10 6 4 2; ♦ Q; ♣ K J 7 6 4

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

If North opens this deal with a weak No Trump bid, South calls 2-Hearts, East doubles and all pass, what is the correct defense to defeat the contract?

ROSENEATH, June 1—(ENS). — The meeting of the W.I. was held on Thursday afternoon, one week earlier than usual, so that final details regarding the district annual to be held at Roseneath on June 5 might be cleared up. The committee in charge of refreshments at the district annual was named as follows: Mrs. Harold Taylor, Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite, Mrs. Clark Sandercock, and Mrs. James Timlin.

It was decided to fill five ditty bags for the Navy League of Cobourg. This action was taken following the reading of a communication from Miss Muriel Hayden of Cobourg.

The society will apply to the Department for a short course in emergency knitting to be held in November. The project chosen to apply for at the annual was first choice. A speaker service on "Nutrition," and second, "On Wise Buying"

The question of observing the 35th anniversary of the organization of the society was discussed, and laid over until the next regular meeting.

A letter of thanks for socks was received and read from Pte. Hilton Pringle. Mrs. C. Grigg, leader of the local Girls' Club, gave a detailed statement on the results of Achievement Day held at Brighton. A contest and community singing followed the business session. A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess, who served refreshments at the close.

Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society Hold Tea

HAVELOCK, June 1—(ENS). — A highly successful event, in the form of a Musical Tea was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society. The hall was decorated with baskets of tulips, lilacs and flowering almond. A large table was attractively arranged with a lace cloth, silver rose bowls of lily-of-the-valley and tall white candles in silver holders, and at each end was a silver tea service, where tea was poured by Mesdames Chiles and Clarke.

Twenty small tea tables were neatly arranged about the hall, where the guests were seated during the musical program. The Red Cross president, T. P. Lancaster, was the chairman, and after a few introductory remarks, the curtain rose on a tableau, "The Rose of Heaven," which made its own appeal to the hearts of the audience. In the centre of the stage stood a Red Cross nurse, taken by Mrs. Frank McKay, while all about her, were British refugee mothers and children in suitable costumes. Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson sang the solo, "The Rose of No Man's Land." Mrs. C. Brice recited the poem, "Rose of Heaven," and all joined in singing "There'll Be Bluebirds Over the White Cliffs of Dover." Two Dutch refugee children, Jean and Joan Quinn, sang "My Sister and I," while Mrs. T. W. Quinn presided at the piano. Reeve E. W. Seeney, in his address, commended the ladies for all the war work they had accomplished in the past, and wished them continued success for the duration, however long or short it may be. Mrs. Donald Holdcroft gave a piano solo, "Falling Waters." A dance, "The Sailor's Horn Pipe" was given by Wallace and Wayne Young.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson sang "Carry On," accompanied by Mrs. Wilkinson at the piano. Misses Jean and Joan Quinn sang, "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree." An interesting monologue was given by Mrs. Agnes Harris, Windsor. Miss Jacqueline Puffer and John Anderson sang "Santa Lucia." Miss Margaret Johnson rendered a lovely vocal solo, "The Shrine of St. Cecelia," accompanied by Mrs. Harry Watson. The Norwood Red Cross president, Mr. Brecken, spoke briefly, after which delicious refreshments were served by the ladies to about 130 guests, and the receipts of this successful event were over $34.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, Ian and Rhoda, were dinner guests of Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco at the Parsonage previous to their departure on Friday afternoon for Chesley. The intention had been to have Mrs. Gibson remain here with their son and daughter until the two latter completed their June examinations, but new restrictions affecting the distance moving vans may travel for a single trip, only one hundred miles within a given area, owing to war conditions affecting gas and tires, made the earlier move a necessity; the new ruling comes into effect by June 1.

Hostess Tea

Over one hundred and fifty guests attended the hostess tea held in the basement of St. Andrew's church on Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m., with the Women's Association acting as hostess for the occasion, and nearly fifty dollar realized from the enjoyable social event.

Your Scrap Metal is Needed Now for VICTORY!

A CRITICAL SHORTAGE of scrap metal now exists in Canada's War Industry. Unless more scrap is forthcoming at once, war production will slow down and months, even years will be added to this fearful battle.

It is of the utmost importance that every pound of scrap metal on your farm starts moving now toward Canada's steel mills and foundries to make more war materials.

To help you get your scrap moving, this store will cooperate in every way possible. Canvass your farm from the attic to the farthest fence corner. Gather every bit of old metal into a conveniently located pile and drop a post card to this store telling us approximately how many pounds you have collected.

Your card will be turned over to a scrap dealer who prepares scrap for the mills. His truck will be routed past your farm to pick up your scrap soon and get it started toward the fighting front.

This store collects this information and passes it along as a patriotic service without commission or profit of any kind. Our work in this campaign and the cost of this advertising is our contribution to victory.

Flat Turndown On Tourist Gas

OTTAWA, June 1 (CP).—D. G Stevens, president of the North Bay Board of Trade, head of a four-man delegation from that city which interviewed Munitions Minister Howe Friday, said the delegation received a "flat turndown" from Mr. Howe in its request for upward revision of the twenty-gallon gasoline allowance for United States tourists in Canada.

The North Bay delegation contended that twenty gallons was not enough to allow motorists to reach the area and return with a safety margin of fuel, and that as a result tourist camp business in the district was practically at a standstill.

"Mr. Howe told us there was nothing he could do because the policy was pretty well dictated from Washington," Mr. Stevens said, adding he had been told it might not even be possible to continue the present twenty-gallon allowance.

Mr. Stevens said that tourist camp operators in the area around North Bay found themselves in a serious situation as a result of the twenty-gallon limit.

1036 BOMBERS FLATTEN ARSENAL CITY OF ESSEN

LONDON, June 2 (CP)—The Royal Air Force turned the lethal, devastating might of 1,036 planes loose on Germany last night, almost all of them on the region of the Nazi arsenal city of Essen, Prime Minister Churchill announced today.

The second of the crushing raids which the R.A.F. has made against the sources of Hitler's military strength in three days struck at the home of the huge Krupp munitions works and Mr. Churchill prom'sed that more of even greater severity would follow "when we are joined, as we soon shall be, by the air force of the United States."

The Essen raid came after a pause of but one night, when bad weather held the R.A.F.'s great bomb-carrying air armada on the ground, after the mammoth attack by consideraby more than 1,000 British bombers on Cologne.

Again, British losses were relatively slight for an air offensive of such magnitude. Mr. Churchill said 35 bombers had failed to return.

These losses were nine fewer than the 44 of Saturday night—still far below the 10 per cent losses which military authorities generally agree can be afforded by a successful air smash.

On a basis of comparison with the Cologne attack, Essen probably was deluged under about 6,000,000 pounds of incendiary and explosive bombs poured down from planes manned by 6,000 fliers.

Canadians There Too

Canadian fliers again were at the controls of giant four-engined Stirlings, Lancasters, Halifaxes and lighter Wellingtons and Hampdens.

Some of these planes, among them craft which were back in action after having been over Cologne, can carry four tons of missiles.

He told the House of Commons that the raiders had sown numerous and widespread fires last night and that the two raids introduced "a new phase in the British air offensive against Germany" which will put the enemy to "an ordeal the like of which never has been experienced in any country in continuity, severity or magnitude."

He cautioned, however, not to expect all future raids to be "above the four-figure scale" in number of

Rommel Stabs East Again

Convoy Wins 5-Day Fight; Loses 6 Ships

Reach Russian Port After Battling U Boats, 100 Planes

LONDON, June 2 — (CP). — A large United Nations convoy carrying British and United States war supplies to Russia has reached a North Russian port after a running battle of five days and nights against German U-boats and well over 100 Nazi planes the Admiralty announced to-day.

With almost constant daylight now in the Far North waters, the Admiralty said this was the most difficult time of the year to push the convoys over that route.

But in spite of such conditions, the Admiralty indicated only six or seven Allied ships were sunk, calling the German claim of bagging 16 ships an "exaggeration of over 175 per cent."

(The Germans claimed last Friday that 17 ships totalling 114,000 tons had been sunk by attacks on the convoy during several days.)

"That our losses were not far higher than they were against this scale of air and underwater attack" the Admiralty declared, "was due to the gallant defence and magnifi-

Hun Sea Coup Fails

CAIRO, June 2—(AP). — German armored forces, the cream of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa corps, which were trapped east of the Ain el Gazala-Bir Hacheim line, are "being ceaselessly harried and destroyed" by British troops and planes and are being "mopped up," the commander-in-chief announced today.

He also disclosed for the first time that the Axis had attempted to land troops from the sea behind the British line but that the enemy force was driven off by the Navy.

God At Our Hand Says Pole Hero Landing Wreck

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.A.F. BOMBER COMMAND, June 2—(AP).—This is the story of a little Polish pilot hero and his British plane or what's left of it.

The Pole, with four other members of his crew wounded and unconscious, brought back his shattered Wellington "Wimpy" from the four-figure raid on the Rhineland.

The plane is in the repair shop and they're trying to figure out how it got home without a landing gear and with the bomb doors still open.

"Wimpy" squatted in the hangar in battered glory. Her interior was caked with blood, great tufts of grass clung to her scarred belly from her pancake landing and there was a big hole in her fuselage. But she's there.

In the rear gun-turret there was a hole you could put your foot through. A cannon shell from a Nazi night fighter had taken off the rear gunner's foot. But he managed to keep alive and, with tracer bullets streaming at him, he manager to return the fire.

I looked through the hole in the fuselage. There was a long trail of blood along the deck.

"This chap evidently tried to crawl back to the radio and resume his job," said a British pilot. "Rather good show, that."

There were 17 bullet holes in the front turret, six separate cannon shell holes in the underside of the fuselage.

The Polish pilot grinned when I asked him about it.

"I don't speak much English," he said. "But these men are so good. When they are hit they keep still. When I tell them I will get them back one of them says 'Hear, hear,' just like they do at public speakings.

"We got home all right, but I cannot get my wheels down to land. I got over the airfield once, twice and I hear them groaning back there.

"Then I say 'Okay Butch' and I bring her in. God He is at our right hand. I know."

We walked out into the sunlight. As far as I could see hugh four-motored bombers slumbered in the sun. Far out, a large flock of Spitfires went hunting.

Sole Peace Key Control Of Hun

LONDON, June 2—(CP). — The British Government is discussing post-war problems and exchanging views with the Dominions, the United States, Soviet Russia and other United Nations, Viscount Cranborne, Colonial Secretary, announced today in the House of Lords.

Lord Cranborne, who is also Government leader in the Upper House, said the discussions are at a "confidential stage," and the British cannot make a general declaration.

Of Russia, he said:—

"We are in close touch with Russia, which is playing a big part in the winning of the war and has an equally great part to play in winning the peace."

Labor Leader Lord Adison contended that unless sufficient agreement is obtained upon the main lines of action to be taken, the United Nations at the moment of victory might well be precipitated into confusion that would make resolute and definite action impossible upon measures essential to an enduring settlement.

"If we are to secure peace in the future there must be over a long term control of Germany, there must be destruction of the German military system and there will have to be long-term control of German education.

"Unless the German financial system of the future is controlled, it will be used for dissemination of discord among the United Nations and for destructive propaganda in every part of the world.

FDR Demands War On Balkans

Declares Bulgaria Hungaria, Rumania Hitler's Instruments

WASHINGTON, June 2—(AP).—President Roosevelt asked Congress today to declare war on Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

The President, in a terse message to the House of Representatives, said that these three countries had declared war on the United States as "the instruments of Hitler."

They "are now engaged in military activities directed against the United Nations and are planning an extension of these activities," he added.

The message did not go to the Senate, since it was not in session.

Majority Leader John McCormack (Dem., Mass.) announced in the House that the resolutions declaring war would be acted on tomorrow. Action in the Senate is unlikely before Thursday.

Hitler Uneasy Over Gestapo

By DE WITT MACKENZIE,
Associated Press War Analyst

Small wonder Hitler's Chancellery is said to be swept with consternation at the attempted assassination of Reinhard Heydrich, Deputy Chief of the dread German Gestapo (Secret Police), in Czecho-Slovakia.

It would be difficult to exaggerate the significance of this event for it emphasizes the burning spirit of that invisible front of conquered peoples who are only waiting for their chance to turn and rend their oppressors. The great daring of this effort to exterminate power "Der Henker" (The Hangman) gives a measure of the determination of wearers of the Nazi yoke.

This defiance of an organization upon which the Fuehrer has depended so greatly to keep a tight rein both abroad and at home is reported to have resulted in arrests even in Berlin. Any weakening of BOSTON, June 2—(AP). — Maj. Charles G. Power, Canada's Minister of Defence for Air, says that Canadians are battling in every field in the world, including "the Steppes of Russia."

He did not elaborate on the statement as he addressed the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company's 304th anniversary dinner meeting last night.

More than 1,000 Canadians participated in the Cologne air raid Saturday night he said.

Assure Farmer Gasoline Saturday Night

OTTAWA, June 2—(CP).— Officials of the Munitions and Supply Department to-day gave assurance to operators of rural gasoline stations that they may remain open on Saturday evenings even if they have not received personal notification to that effect from Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle.

Last May 21 the Department said stations situated five miles or more from the limits of a city or town with a population of 5,000 or more could stay open Saturday evenings until nine p.m.

The concession to farmers only extends to the two-hour extension of gasoline station closing hours on Saturday. On other nights stations must close at seven o'clock as in urban areas.

The permission to rural stations to stay open Saturday night is described officially as "permissive but not mandatory."

"The step is being taken to help farmers," Munitions Minister Howe saiad last month.

"Faced with an acute shortage of labor, the farmers of Canada are finding their own time very precious. They cannot take time off from their fields and their other work to go to town to buy gasoline before seven o'clock."

Berlin Claims 3,000 Prisoners

Wrecked Nazi Tanks Dot Desert For Miles At Trap

LONDON, June 2 (CP)—Reuters in a dispatch from Cairo tonight reported that a considerable Axis force of all arms again is thrusting east behind the British Ain El Gazala-Bir Hacheim line.

In Berlin the German high command claimed today that a British force encircled in North Africa had been "annihilated" and 3,000 prisoners taken.

The strongly fortified British position was said to have been stormed by German and Italian troops. Among the prisoners, the communique said, was a brigadier.

CAIRO, June 2 — (AP). — A sudden shift in tactics by Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel indicated to-day he might be gambling on a desperate chance to keep his Libyan offensive alive even at the risk of a shattering blow to the backbone of his Axis forces.

Latest advices from the North African front say he has called a halt to the flight of his two armored divisions and is regrouping them.

Caught behind the British line south-west of Tobruk after skirting it, the Axis forces have been struggling since noon of May 30 to hold open two gaps through the British minefields and extricate their trapped forces from a costly pounding by British tanks, guns and planes.

Waiting Reinforcements.

Another possibility, however, is that Rommel hopes to sit tight until reinforcements can reach him and then try again to shove his drive into forward gear toward Tobruk.

Thus, on the seventh day since the Germans launched their offensive, the situation still is in flux in the heat and whirling sands of North Africa.

But British authorities said the advantage still is with them. They have stopped the Axis push short of Tobruk — which presumably the enemy must take this time before trying to smash farther eastward—and their 50-mile defence system

MOSCOW, June 2—(AP).— The Red army jabbed strongly at German lines at two points northwest of Moscow in conformity with the Soviet tactics of keeping the enemy back on his heels and preventing him from undertaking his own offensive, front-line reports said today.

The dispatches said the Russians attacked both in the Kalinin sector and in another northwest area, improving their positions and drawing the Germans into counter attacks.

No essential change in positions was reported; however.

Red Star said the Russians fought their way into an inhabited point on the Kalinin front, which extends northwest and west of Kalinin toward the Valdai hills and Rzhev and Veliki Luki. A factory which was part of the German firing system was reported captured and street battles for fortifications in the suburbs were said to be in progress.

In another battle the Germans were said to have launched six counter-attacks and lost more than 1,000 dead in an effort to take a hamlet the Russians had captured.

In yet a third engagement the Germans were declared to have lost 850 dead and 1,500 wounded in a 24-hour battle for a forest which provided cover for future operations.

Newsmen On Tour

WELLAND, Ont., June 2 (CP)—Newspapermen attending the spring meeting of the Ontario Provincial Daily Newspaper Association here today toured places of interest at Welland and Port Colborne. The meeting ended with a business session and a golf tournament.

Last night the newspapermen were guests of Mayor T. H. Lewis of Welland at a dinner here. A business session followed with President J. H. Shore of Port Colborne presiding.

Curtin Defies Japan To Attack

Says Tokyo's Program Hit Stalemate, Coup Beyond Capacity

MELBOURNE, June 2.—(CP)—Prime Minister John Curtin who has wearned Australia repeatedly of the danger of a Japanese invasion attempt, declared today that "Japan's war program at last has suffered stalemate."

"The enemy has found his most southerly adventure beyond his capacity to execute," the Prime Minister declared in launching the Commonwealth's second Liberty Loan.

"I defy the enemy to land large forces in Australia."

Mr. Curtin said he spoke in a spirit of confidence born of knowledge of how the war is proceeding.

"The thrusts the enemy made at our soil were repulsed," he said, "the enemy had come with bombing plans and inflicted damage but was driven off with losses. The enemy had sought to come here with immense naval strength to establish a spearhead but he found his most southerly venture beyond his capacity to execute."

Mr. Curtin declared the initiative no longer is "so decisively" with Japan.

"The problem of bringing together at one point of crucial responsibility the resources of a great number of countries widely spread geographically has been steadily grappled with and at last has been overcome," he said.

EXTRA!

LONDON — (CP Cable) — Four squadrons of the R.C.A.F. which blasted Cologne Saturday went back over Germany within 48 hours—joined this time by five other Canadian squadrons—to sow destruction over Essen last night. The nine with airmen in R.A.F. planes, meant that as in the Cologne raid, more than 1,000 Canadian youths were over enemy targets.

LONDON, June 2—(CP).—The BBC said it had confirmed in Ankara today that Germany has put 100,000,000 marks at the disposal of the Turkish Government for the purchase of war material in Germany.

"A technical mission now has left Turkey for Berlin to conclude the contracts," the BBC said, adding its own comment that it seems doubtful that Germany will be able to fulfill these undertaking because of transport and other difficulties.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 2 (AP)—The Berlin radio quoted dispatches from Cologne last night as saying that 139 civilians thus far had died as a result of the British raid, and that "the nightmare of Sunday still is weighing on the Cologne population."

"Far reaching measures were taken for those who have lost their homes," the West Deutsche Beobachter said, "and the homeless are showing much discipline although many have lost their entire property.

Nazi Kidnap Plot On Duce, Fizzles

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Two NBC correspondents back from Europe today told of a Nazi-inspired plot to kidnap Mussolini and of a German plan to create "another Berlin" to fool British bombers.

David Colin, who was in Rome, and Paul Fisher, attached to the Berlin bureau, related their stories after reaching the United States from Lisbon on the liner Drottningholm.

Colin said that the Nazi plot was hatched in April to check open anti-Nazi talk among Fascist officials but failed because of a conscience-stricken conspirator. He added that the Germans also planned to assassinate Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law.

Several underground organizations are operating in Italy, drawing much of their strength from University students, Colin declared.

Fisher said there was a persistent story in Germany that an entire "New Berlin" had been built at Nauen as a decoy for raiding Britons. In addition, he said, the aerial view of the German capital had been altered greatly by large-scale camouflage.

New anti-aircraft towers as high as a seven-storey building dot Berlin and its suburbs, the correspondent said, each being surmounted by powerful searchlights and guns.

'Libyan Push Gone Awry'—Churchill

260 Tanks Wrecked, Plans Captured, Nazis Fight On—Smoke Hides Cologne

LONDON, June 2—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill in a House of Commons statement on Libya said today British forces had foreseen the drive launched by Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel last week and were ready for it.

He said it was clear from captured documents that Rommel intended to defeat the British armored forces and capture Tobruk.

"It is clear we have every reason to be satisfied and more than satisfied with the course the battle so far has taken," the Prime Minister declared, "and we shall watch its further development with earnest attention.

Fierce fighting still is proceeding and will go on, but whatever may be the result there is not a shadow of doubt that Rommel's plans for his initial offensive have gone completely awry and cost him dear in men and material.

The text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement follows:

I though the House would wish to have some news of the important and very severe battle which has now been proceeding for a week in the Libyan Desert. Accordingly, I asked Gen. Auchinleck for a statement and I do not think I can do better than read out his actual words.

"On the evening of May 26 Gen. Rommel launched the German Africa Corps to the attack. He was at pains to explain in an order of the day issued to German and Italian troops in his pay, that in the course of great operations they were to carry through a decisive attack against our forces in Libya and that for this purpose he had made ready and equipped forces superior in number with perfected armament and powerful air force to give it support. In conclusion he hailed His Majesty the King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia, the Duce of the Roman Empire, the Fuehrer of Great Germany.

"We had foreseen this attack and were ready for it.

"From captured documents it was clear that Rommel's object was to defeat our armored forces and capture Tobruk.

"The main ingredients of his plan were: First, to capture our defended locality at Bir Hacheim held by our gallant allies, the Free French; secondly, to pass around by the south of Bir Hacheim the German Africa Corps comprising the 15th and 21st Armored Divisions, to be followed closely by the German 90th Light Division, the 20th Italian Mobile Corps, comprising the 132nd Ariete Armored Division, and the 101st Trieste Motorized Division; thirdly, to attack in strength our position running south from the coast at Ain El Gazala to Capuzzo Road.

"These were held by the South African and 50th British Divisions, the latter including battalians of the East Yorkshire Regiment, Green Howards and Durham Light Infantry.

"Air reconnaissance had clearly indicated enemy preparations for the attack and in consequence our air force opened a counter offensive on the 21st with heavy attacks against enemy forward airdromes.

Nazis Hit Back At Cost.

"These attacks were continued each night supplemented by low flying dawn and dusk attacks by the light bombers and fighters.

"The enemy paid us the compliment of trying to emulate our example on three nights prior to his final advance on the 27th.

"He failed to achieve any success and lost a number of aircraft to our fighters and anti-aircraft artillery.

"On the night of May 26-27, the German Africa Corps carried out its part of the plan and passed to the south of Bir Hacheim moving north with great rapidity toward Acroma and also toward the old battlefields of Ed Duda and Sidi Rezegh, which were actually reached by some of its most forward troops. These soon were driven off by our armored forces.

"Some Axis tanks actually reached the escarpment overlooking the coast road north of Acroma, but failed to interrupt communications between Tobruk and the South African troops holding out forward positions.

The Duke Flies Home Again

Labor Unrest In Bahamas Cuts Windsor's U.S. Trip

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP) — Duke of Windsor cut short his visit to the United States today to return to the Bahamas on "Urgent Business" less than 24 hours after his arrival for a series of conferences.

The British Press Service announced the Duke's decision to fly back to the Islands he governs, but gave no details of the business that calls him. Earlier a member of the Duke's official party said he understood there had been "some sort of labor disturbance" at Nassau, but that the situation was not serious.

The Duchess, who arrived in Washington with the Duke yesterday morning, is remaining at the British Embassy.

The Duke is understood to have been working on plans to make the Islands economically self-sufficient through cultivation of Sisal for rope making and other native products. He is said to be seeking greater use of both Bahama products and Bahama labor in the war effort.

Leave 20,000 Cologne Dead

54,000 Wounded—Raid Starts Move From Rhine

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—The record R.A.F. raid on Cologne killed "in the neighborhood of 20,000" persons, wounded 54,000, 20 per cent of them critically, and put in motion a mass migration from the Rhineland, the New York Times said today in a report credited to "private advices from competent neutral observers in Berlin."

Three-fifths of the inhabitants of Cologne — total population roughly 800,000—are being officially evacuated, mostly to the area of Munich, where they will be housed in emergency barracks erected in the last 24 hours, the newspaper said.

The entire populations of Aachen, Duesseldorf, Wuppertal, Mainz and other cities have started a mass migration from the Rhineland in fear of further bombardment, it added.

Special detachments of the German army sanitary forces were said to have been dispatched to the city to aid the local services in preventing the spread of disease.

Mexico Joins Allies Against Axis

Declaration Of War Is Dated May 22, 27th Against Hitler

MEXICO CITY, June 2 —(AP)— Mexico took her place today as a full-fledged ally of the United Nations, casting her fortunes with the nine other Latin American republics linked in arms against the Axis.

Mexico's declaration of war as of May 22 was signed last night by President Manuel Avila Camacho without fanfare in his private residence. On May 22 the Mexican cabinet decided that full belligerency was the only answer to submarine attacks on Mexican shipping.

Mexico thus became the 27th United Nations ally and put before the Axis an unbroken stretch of hostile coast in two oceans from Panama to the furthest Arctic reaches of North America.

Even as Avila Camacho was signing the declaration authorized by a special session of Congress last week Mexico was taking her first steps against the enemy within—the large group of Axis nationals and their Mexican partisans.

Two persons were arrested for distributing Pacifist literature yesterday, a Japanese accused of expressing disapproval of Mexican belligerency was turned over to the police and a house-to-house census of foreigners was started in the capital.

Libyan Push

"It is now known that on the same night the enemy attempted landings from the sea at this spot presumably with the object of joining up with these tanks, but the hostile craft were driven off by our naval forces acting in close co-operation with the Army.

"Long before they approached El Adem or Acroma Axis motorized troops were brought to action by the 1st and 7th British Armored Divisions ably seconded by the British Heavy Tank Brigades in the area.

Indian Brigade Overrun.

"The full brunt of the enemy's initial advance to the East was taken by the 3rd Indian Motor Brigade group which was overborne by the sheer weight of metal, but not until after it had inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy and seriously impeded his advance.

"In addition his columns were subjected to repeated attacks by our fighters and bombers.

"Meanwhile, the attack on Bir Hacheim by the Italian mobile corps had been beaten off by the Free French—or fighting French troops—with heavy loss and the northward advance of these forces seems to have been seriously delayed in consequence.

"The third part of the enemy's northern front of our main positions south of Ain El Gazala materialized on the 27th. This achieved little or nothing. Nevertheless they seem to have caused the enemy a number of casualties.

"The attempt to break through a defence on the coast road by the Ain Ed Gazala Inlet was easily stopped by the 1st South African Division.

"Throughout May 28-29-30 there was very heavy, continuous fighting between our armored divisions and brigades and the German Africa corps backed up by the Italian mobile corps. The battle swayed backwards and forwards over a wide area from Acroma in north to Bir Hacheim, 40 miles to the south; from El Adem outside Tobruk to our minefields 30 miles to the west.

"Our troops gave the enemy no rest and, finding himself running short of supplies and water, he had to make gaps in our mine fields, one along a general line on the Capuzzo road and another 10 miles to the south. These two gaps lay on either side of a defended area held by a brigade of infantry from the north of England.

"This brigade strongly resisted the enemy's attempt to pass his transport through their ranks and on May 28 Air Vice-Marshal Conyngham decided to direct the whole air force on to a low attack against the enemy's armor and motor transport in this region.

"Meantime, each night our night bombers were attacking the enemy's forward airfields and communications.

"By nightfall of May 31, the enemy succeeded in withdrawing many of his tanks and much transport into one or the other of the gaps which he then proceeded to protect from our attacks from east by bringing many of his anti-tank guns, with which he was well equipped, into action.

"A large number of his tanks and many transport vehicles, however, remain on the wrong side of the barrier. These are still being ceaselessly harried and destroyed by our troops vigorously aided by the fighters and bombers of our air force.

Big Gap in Vehicles

There has not been time yet to assess the damage inflicted on the enemy, but a conservative estimate gives the number of his tanks destroyed or captured at about 260 and there is no doubt at all that the number of his transport vehicles destroyed or captured is very large.

We have also had our losses and it is inevitable that in a battle of this kind between armored forces the casualties on both sides in tanks should be high.

Our recovery organization, however, is working very well and, whereas we had retained control of the battlefield and so can salvage our tanks, the enemy cannot recover many of his, which should be permanently lost to him.

Owing to three days of concentration of low attack consequent to the desperate attempts of enemy fighters to protect the land forces, our air losses have not been light, though in a number of instances our pilots returned safe, their aircraft being recovered.

In a further telegraph the commander in chief adds, "the skill, determination and pertinacity shown by Gen. Ritchie and his corps commanders, Lt.-Gens. Morrie and Gott throughout this difficult strenuous week of hard, continuous fighting has been of the highest order."

He further dwells upon the excellent performance of American tanks with which all users are well pleased. He says our new heavy anti-tank gun has done great execution.

From all the above it is clear we have every reason to be satisfied and more than satisfied with the course which the battle so far has taken, and that we should watch its further developments with earnest attention.

Smoke Hides Cologne Damage

I ought not to sit down without referring to the mammoth air raid delivered by the R.A.F. on the Cologne region during the night of May 30-31.

In this triumph of skill, daring and diligence against the enemy all previous records of night bombing have been doubled and excelled.

On that occasion no fewer than 1,130 British-manned aircraft operated across the sea. Results have been of a devastating character, but accurate photography so far has been hampered by the pall of smoke which hangs over the stricken area.

Last night also 1,036 machines of the R.A.F. visited the continent, nearly all of these operated in the Essen region. First reports received indicate numerous widespread conflagrations. From this second large raid 35 of our bombers are missing.

I do not wish it to be supposed all our raids in the immediate future will be above this four-figure scale.

The methods of attack will be continually varied, according to circumstances.

On the other hand these two great night bombing raids mark the introduction of a new phase in the British air offensive against Germany, and they will increase markedly in scale when we are joined, as we soon will be, in the air force of the United States.

As the year advances all German cities, harbors and centres of war production will be subjected to an ordeal the like of which never has been experienced by an country in continuity, severity or magnitude.

I am sure the house will wish to express its complements to Air Marshall Harris, officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Bomber Command, including the efficient and devoted maintenance staff, upon the work they are doing and the results they achieved.

Congratulations upon these encouraging events also are due to the secretary of state for air, the chief of the air staff and the air ministry.

Conant Orders Stern Check Upon Speeders

TORONTO, June 2.—A stepped-up police program against speeders, backed perhaps by a broad intimation to the courts that maximum penalties should be imposed, was hinted yesterday by Attorney-General Conant in a communication to the Ontario Motor League.

Directors of the league, last week, on the motion of John A. Tory, passed a resolution which urged that members of the league and owners of motor vehicles of all classes "strictly observe the new regulation, thus conserving the means of transport of each individual motor vehicle owner, and thereby in the aggregate contributing to the furtherance of Canada's war effort."

Back of the resolution, Attorney-General Conant was informed, lay the conviction of the directors that many motorists are flouting the 40-miles-per hour limit fixed by Ottawa under the authority of the War Measures Act. Mr. Tory, himself, laid evidence before the directors of cars and trucks exceeding the speed limit, in some specific cases by more than twenty miles per hour.

He advised the Attorney-General: "I believe that the only way to stop such driving is that those found exceeding the speed limit laid down as a war measure should be treated fairly severely."

Yesterday, in a letter to W. G. Robertson, general manager of the league, Mr. Conant declared it was the patriotic duty of every citizen to obey, as well as his legal obligation.

"We hear," he wrote, "rumors of further limits on gasoline rations and the possibility of reduction in units. The Oil Controller may feel that failure to observe the speed limit with consequent waste of gasoline is a matter to be considered in connection with gasoline rationing."

As soon as the figures for prosecutions in May are available, he added: "It is my intention to issue further instructions to Provincial Police and requests to municipal police to renew their efforts regarding the prosecution of those exceeding the forty miles speed limit."

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, owns a big farm near Delhi, Ind., and believes in working it. He is shown helping with the corn that will be planted to feed his dairy herd and fatten his hogs. In so doing he is helping to meet the 1942 "food for freedom" goal set by his own department of agriculture.

Jap Mothership Abandons Midget Subs

MELBOURNE, June 2. — Army Minister Francis M. Forde warned Australians yesterday to expect further attacks on the coast as the Navy located and raised two hulls of three dwarf Japanese submarines which were sunk in Sydney Harbor on Sunday night by shells and depth charges.

Eye-witness accounts of the battering which the harbor defences gave the marauders, including those of ferryboat passengers who saw the upper part of the conning tower of one of them, left little doubt that the Japanese subs were destroyed after they had shipped past the narrow entrance of the harbor— less than a mile wide—and up the main channel toward its famed $50,000,000 bridge.

The submarines did little more than waste a torpedo in attacking a small harbor vessel of no military value. A hole was put in the vessel which went to the bottom in shallow water. The top deck and funnel still were visible yesterday.

Naval observers considered it almost certain that a mothership brought the submarines close to the Australian east coast, launched them and withdrew at high speed, abandoning them to their fate.

Sydney, with a war right at its front door for the first time had a night of wild excitement, especially along the waterfront where the concussion of the exploding depth charges shook homes from late evening until early morning.

Feels Like Different Person Since Syntona Built Her Up

Was Subject to Severe Nervous Disorders, Lightheaded, Dizzy Spells and Headaches. Suffered With Stomach Pains, Gastritis and Acidity After Every Meal.

Nervousness and sleeplessness are among the most distressing of all symptoms of a rundown condition of the system. The causes are often so elusive that it is hard to get any one to understand that there is any real reason for complaint. To make matters more irksome, the sufferer must often listen to much useless advice from others who were never really sick in their whole lives, while some will even say that the condition is just imagination. But those who have experienced this condition know that it is very real, indeed. Syntona has proved to be a real blessing in many such cases. Here, for example, is the interesting experience of Mrs. Mary Cage, 8 Elgin Street, Hamilton, as reported only recently:

"Four years ago I had a nervous breakdown and ever since that I was subject to such nervous spells that I didn't know what I would do. I couldn't get my proper sleep. I frequently felt lightheaded and dizzy and I was always having headaches. Although I would have hunger pains, the least bit of food I ate soured in my stomach and caused gas, cramps, and belching. More often I couldn't keep food on my stomach at all. My tongue was coated and my skin was rough and sallow.

MRS. MARY CAGE

"From the first bottle of Syntona, I didn't have a single one of those nervous or dizzy spells up to the present time. By the time I had taken seven bottles I was feeling like a new woman. I was able to eat regular meals without all that stomach trouble. I slept well, and my whole system was improved. It is certainly a great relief and I will be glad to have others know. Whenever I feel that trouble coming on again I will surely try Syntona first."

Let this pure herbal medicine help you as it has hundreds of other local men and women. It is pleasant to take and quick to act. Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. —(Advt.)

School Board Separate Municipal Body

PORT HOPE, June 2 — (ENS).— The regular Council meeting was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening. The full Council was present as well as many interested taxpayers as the High School question was scheduled to be discussed. Members of the committee chosen at the parents' meeting discussed with the Council the resignation of the Board, which upon the advise of D. H. Chisholm, K.C., town solicitor, was beyond the power of the Council, as when the School Board is elected it is supreme, according to the Act, and the Council had no authority to interfere in the workings of the Board.

The first by-law passed was to increase the auditor's salary from $350 to $400, also increases in the clerk's salary, the assistant clerk's, assessor, and tax collector effective from January.

Arrangements were made by the Council to meet the military representatives from Kingston with reference to the exchange of the old Drill Shed lot for another site.

A letter was received by council with an enclosure of $564.82 which represents 20 per cent of the Hotel Authority fees collected by the Liquor Control Board from the hotels in the town of Port Hope.

The street and bridge committee was authorized to purchase six drums of coldpatch for patching the streets.

The Nicholson File Co. was granted permission to hold a dance at the town hall, June 19, free of charge, for the purpose of raising funds to purchase life saving equipment.

The report of the street and bridge committee was received and the recommended hourly rate of pay for the town workmen be raised to 45 cents, was left over for two weeks.

Council's Action Is Held Inconsistent

Ald. Bradburn caused a round of laughter at the council meeting Monday night by quoting a finance committee recommendation as inconsistent with the action to refund $250 to the Kinsmen's Club.

"That A. E. Pammett be informed it is not the policy of this council to refund licenses, and therefore no refund can be made in his case," was the wording of the finance resolution, which was adopted.

The Kinsmen asked for refund of the $250 license for Conklin Brothers shows to appear here.

"But, this is different," Alderman Glover observed, and Alderman Cotton said: "We can make them a grant if we have to do it that way."

Escape First Assault.

The first attack was delivered the evening of May 25 by Heinkel torpedo-carrying planes and Junkers-88 dive bombers. These were beaten off with no loss, the Admiralty said.

But thereafter the German attacks were virtually uninterrupted until last Saturday, the Admiralty added.

Bombers, dive bombers and torpedo planes almost constantly flew into the assault.

The Admiralty said one Heinkel and two Junkers bombers were shot down, two more planes were probably destroyed and two others damaged.

A Hurricane plane catapulted from a ship destroyed the Heinkel and damaged another plane. The Admiralty pointed out that its catapulted planes have to land on the sea when their fuel is exhausted and the pilots must take their chance of being found later and picked up.

The pilot of this plane, Flying Officer Alastair Hay, R.A.F. was wounded but was picked up by one of the escorting ships.

Hitler Uneasy

the authority of the Gestapo obviously creates a danger to Nazidom. From Hitler's standpoint there is an unforunate coincidence in the unprecedented British air raids, since these will give a mighty fillip to the fighting spirit of the occupied countries and already are reported to have caused a panicky state of nerves in Germany's Cologne and Essen territories.

Throughout Europe a host of the conquered folk have been waiting hopefully for Heydrich's death, and have cursed him as they waited. But still he clings to life, and it may be that a stern justice has decreed he shall live with his crippled back so that he may pay even more dearly for his sins.

Latest reports said 109 people have been executed by the Germans in Prague by way of reprisal and there is no indication that any of them was directly connected with the wounding of Heydrich.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, June 2 — (CP). — Cattle men, packers and retailers of beef were somewhat puzzled to account for the fact that a brisk trade in cattle and advancing prices developed in the Union Stock Yards on the first trading day after the announcement of the new ceiling prices and policy of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. The prices of steers, at from 12½ to 12¾ cents a pound, and of baby beef cattle prices at 13 cents a pound were stated to be equivalent to dressed beef prices of 22 cents, whereas the Toronto maximum ceiling is 19¼ cents.

One Toronto man with wide experience in the yards said: "It is logical to believe that a black market exists. They cannot buy at these prices briskly and sell at the ceiling, and so I think they must intend to sell at a dressed beef price of 23 or 24 cents. The ceiling at 19¼ cents would mean a loss none would take. The large packers continue to buy only for the army."

Cattle trade was active with prices strong on all grades up to mid-session on the Livestock Market here today. Veal calves and spring lambs were strong. Sheep were steady. No price was established for hogs. No cattle were unsold from yesterday.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 70, calves, 760; hogs, 980, sheep and lambs, 40.

Weighty steers sold at $11 to $13; butcher steers, $11 to $12.50; heifers, $11 to $12.25; butcher cows, $8 to $10.50; bulls, $9 to $10.65; and fed calves, $11.75 to $14.

Choice veal calves sold at $14.50 to $15, with a few tops at $15.50 and common lights selling downward to $9.

Spring lambs sold at $13 to $15 each.

Sheep sold at $5 to $8.

Hogs closed previously at $15.25 to $15.35 dressedweight at yards or plants.

Plan To Draft Aliens In Canada

New Calls To Be By Lot, Youths Under A1 Due For Summons

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 2 (CP)—War Services Minister Thorson told the House of Commons last night that arrangements are being made to call up non-citizen residents of Canada in the age groups in which citizens are liable for compulsory service. They will be given military training or employment to aid the war effort.

Plans are also under way, said Mr. Thorson, for calling men in the compulsory training age groups who were rated below category A-1 in the medical examinations, with the likelihood that useful work will be found for them.

The minister reiterated that supplies of men in the present age groups liable for compulsory training—between 21 and 30—are running low and an extension of the age limit to 35 is probable soon.

The House continued debate on the War Appropriation Bill throughout the sitting, with war services department activities under review.

Mr. Thorson made a plea for moderation in remarks by members after Jean-Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) had referred to an abusive letter he had received and T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Broadview) had said there appeared to be a difference in the treatment meted out to British-born and foreign-born Canadians in the call-up for military service.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House Leader, said arrangements should be made for the establishment of a powerful shortwave radio transmitter for Canada to tell other parts of the world what the Dominion was doing, both in peace and war.

Nothing had been done to counteract Axis propaganda directed to South America except through British stations. A transmitter was available and he understood the

Havelock Teacher Resigns Position

HAVELOCK, June 2.—(ENS). — The June meeting of the school board was held on Monday evening with Chairman Smith presiding and Trustees Miller, Sarginson, Roche and Plunkett present. Communications were read and dealt with as follows: Inspector Copp, advising that the legislative grant be $1,877.21, with superannuation to be deducted, which is $181 less than last year. The resignation of assistant teacher, D. C. Drinkwater, who as been on the staff for past seven years, was accepted, on motion of Trustees Roche and Miller. The income tax forms were received and ordered to be filled in and returned. An announcement regarding salaries as recommended by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, and a communication from the Minister of Education regarding the new program, which will include first aid, A.R.P., map reading, aircraft recognition, signals, field and wood craft, and other lines. For this teachers are required to take a short course at a Y.M.C.A. camp at Orillia during the summer to receive their basic training. High school students from the senior grades will be granted their certificates as early as possible, to help them secure good positions.

Inspector Copp advised the remodelling of seats and tables in the primary room and the purchase of additional kindergarten chairs.

Principal Goheen reported quite a number of senior pupils had secured employment but had signified their intention of coming back to school in September, and that the attendance would be about the same as last year.

Principal Sutherland's report showed the average attendance as follows: Room 1, average 90.14; Room 2, 84.33; Room 3, 87.10; Room 4, 88.86; Room 5 85.92 and an average of 87.25 for the school.

Caretaker Buchanan reported there was about 70 tons of coal left, enough to last until about Christmas, and on motion, the chairman was asked to order a small carload from Mr. Leask, and have half of it stored.

A letter was received from Caretaker Buchanan and the four lady teachers on public school staff, asking for an increase in salary, but the matter was laid over till June 15, when a full attendance of the board members would be requested.

Two applications for secretary-treasurer were received, but this also was laid over till next meeting.

On motion of Trustees Miller and Roche the board donated $15 to assist in the purchase of a pictograph machine and one coloured picture for each class room, for which the Home and School is donating $25. It was also decided to pay Dr. Thompson $5 for conducting the examinations in the first aid course.

On motion of Trustees Miller and Roche the following bills were ordered paid:

Mr. Rae Williams, 42c; Central Scientific Company, $14.21; electric lights, $22.49; A. C. Denike, $13.60; teacher and caretaker salaries, $957.32.

Meeting adjourned to meet again Monday, June 15.

Mobility Is Necessary In Air Raids

Transportation, public utilities, and rescue parties were the three subjects presented at Monday's A. R.P. lecture by Laurie Mitchell, Ross Dobbin, and Hubert Eastwood, with Capt. G. Monkman acting as chairman.

The transportation service was the first on the list and Mr. Mitchell explained that transportation must tie into nearly every branch of the service, and in getting organized it must have a large list of motor vehicles, of every type, trucks and buses as well as private automobiles. In the last war it will be remembered that in the early stages there was the famous taxicab army of Paris which transported soldiers to the Marne.

Plugging Highways.

"The enemy technique," he pointout, "is to try and drive civilians out into the roads and plug the highways. If there is a good transportation service, the people can be evacuated quickly, and this stoppage can be prevented. This service is open to women as well as men, and they are particularly useful during the daytime when the system must be kept running. It is one of the first organizations to be on the move when the alarm comes.

For the first-aid passenger cars and light delivery trucks (because of their greater flexibility) are used. These carry workers from casualty to first-aid posts and perhaps hospitals. Then there is the fire-fighting equipment which requires two cars and it is well to remember that these cars should stick together, because neither section can do a complete job without the other. There are also the Utilities, Police and Welfare services."

In closing, Mr. Mitchell stressed three things: That they want good, safe and sane drivers, and no speed demons. When the alarm sounds, to be sure and park the car at the curb. Lastly it is wise to park on one side of the road only. Don't park too closely to other cars, and when you park turn your wheels away from the curb so that you can get out easily.

Public Utilities.

The Public Utilities was handled by Ross Dobbin. His talk dealt particularly with the warden's work. He said there was a central control for th reporting of all incidents. When any damage is done to the Utility section, telephone the representative at central control and they forward it to the main Utilities office. The Utilities has always been prepared to handle any emergencies that might arise, night or day, and so this new procedure would not be so unusual. All this work will be handled by the regular staff of trained men augmented perhaps by a few volunteers.

He had maps of the various water sections to exhibit, and showed how they were used. Every repair truck has a set of blueprints, so that gas and water valves can be quickly located. But repairs must wait until daybreak; all they can do is shut off the system. This same group has control of the decontamination, and this will be handled by a group of specially trained men, engineers from the Canadian General Electric. When water is cut off, arrangements have been made to use oil and gasoline trucks and the Utilities are prepared to sterilize them in a hurry.

Rescue Parties Important.

A description of demolition and rsecue work fell to the lot of Hubert Eastwood. He only touched on the demolition work, explaining that this was the duty of general contractors and tradesmen, and would, in any case, not be carried out at night, but the day after.

"Rescue parties are a prime essential of A.R.P. work," he said. "In England rescue squads are full-time employees, and there are two classes. First, light rescue parties who, fully equipped, go out on the job first and they are to handle first aid only, and get the people out if they should be buried beneath debris. If they cannot remove the people at once they send back for the second group known as the heavy rescue party. This is the basis of the system to be used in Peterborough."

Quick Action.

Quick action is essential, and it is hoped to train men in this service simply to act as leaders, where necessary. They must be able to move quickly because the equipment is not able to be stored in any one place. There are sub-committees which act as liason offices and take charge of the equipment.

Mr. Eastwood issued a few warnings to be observed during an air raid.

"When wardens call in to report damage, take time to give accurate instructions, it will save time.

"Don't count on a cellar being bomb proof.

"Try not to be alone. It is good for morale to have someone with you, and also in case of an injury.

"Avoid confusion and hysteria, because these are the greatest hinderence to an efficient service.

"The average citizen should think out actions beforehand as far as possible so that he will avoid confusion at a crisis," he concluded.

A special appeal was made to those interested in A.R.P. work to attend the lecture next Sunday afternoon on "High Explosives and Incendiary Bombs" to be given by the Deputy Fire Marshal, Carl Caskey, at 2.30. The same lecture will be given on Monday, but Mr. Caskey will not be able to stay over.

CAMPBELLFORD

Dog Question Again Before Town Council

CAMPBELLFORD, June 2 (ENS)—For the second time within three months Councillors aired the contentious question of surrounding local dogdom and after nearly thirty minutes of debate those, who two months ago had refused to support a by-law which would prevent the animals from running at large, still clung to their convictions. The question was opened early in the session when Rev. G. N. Maxwell addressed the meeting and declared that a stray animal "with feet nearly as big as a man" had ruined his bed of perennials which couldn't be replaced for less than five dollars. Nor was he lacking in confirmation of his contention that many dogs were still running at large despite an appeal made through the press two months ago that they be kept tethered until the gardening season was over. Assessor Harry Townsend indicated that he had received innumerable complaints from citizens, who apparently thought he should do something about it. The pastor pointed out that he himself was a dog-owner and felt it was something of an injustice that he should keep his own animal tied up while others ran at large.

The Mayor said "There is plenty of evidence that they are running at large...they have been in my own flower beds. I have always been of the opinion that it is something that should be controlled, and am glad to see that one citizen, who has a dog, is willing to keep it tied up." He handed the clerk a clipping from the Examiner disclosing how another municipality had handled the question recently with a by-law aimed at keeping the animals tied or in the custody of their owner or his agent while exercising.

The Reeve, who two months ago had opposed the 'tie them up' by-law which would have imposed a penalty on owners who permitted animals to run declared "As far as I am concerned you can do what you like about it. I haven't a dog."

"I brought in a resolution to have them tied up and it was defeated 5-2 so I'm not going to bring it up again," declared Councillor O'Sullivan. In response to the suggestion that the owners of offending animals be prosecuted Mr. O'Sullivan countered the damage was often done at night and nobody knew whose animal did it. "We have the power to write a by-law" he concluded. To this, however, Reeve Calver, chairman of Finance, reminded that it was easy enough to write a by-law, but to make it stick dog catcher would have to be employed and a suitable pound constructed—two questions of finance which a majority of council was still unwilling to admit, were warranted. Just as the problem was about shelved a small brown and white spaniel with wagging tail bounded down the open door-way into the council chamber. He made a complete circuit of the room with a friendly sniff at the feet of each councillor. Cracked the Mayor, "Two nights after the initial appeal was made I counted seven dogs on the corner (meanwhile the spaniel continued its investigations around the council chamber as several members grinned) we are not getting anywhere." The dog was ushered out by one of the spectators and the problem was shelved as attention turned to a report of Road and Bridge Chairman, P. H. MacMillan.

To Open Up Drain

The Deputy Reeve declared all roads had been given the necessary preliminary repairs and were ready to receive the surface treatment as soon as they were dry. He had gone into the question of the water course in the old Presbyterian Church sheds and on this question town councillor N. A. MacColl added his own report on the problem. The matter was discussed at length with members finally agreeing that the old water course through the sheds should be re-opened and a tile laid. Since the township of Seymour had been given the building it was felt they should be willing to assist in defraying the cost of the work.

Property Chairman Battisby said he had investigated the complaint of water falling from the roof of a town-owned building on Ranney street and washing out a portion of a garden on the McMullen property. The building had been there for a half a century it was revealed and the question was dropped with no action taken on Mr. McMullen's request that an eave trough be placed on the building.

On being questioned by Councillor O. Mason, Chief Constable Hardy admitted there had probably been 4 or 5 cases tried here recently which would come within the scope of the one-dollar-per-case fee assessed to outside municipalities who availed themselves of the local police court. So far as he knew none of them had paid the fee. His opinion that the cases could best be kept track of through the magistrate's office at Port Hope, was substantiated by Solicitor McColl.

Under the heading of new business council dealt with the request of D. Bowen, who for the last nine years has held the contract for garbage collection, for an increase in salary. He asked that his annual increment be raised from $870 to $1,000 beginning in July and gave increased maintenance and operational costs together with higher labor costs as his reasons.

"I've supported his getting the contract in the past, but if we are going to spend $1000 of the people's money I think we should advertise for tenders," said Councillor O'Sullivan. Supporting this view the deputy reeve added that in his opinion Mr. Bowen had been doing the work at a reasonable figure. "And we're geting a good job done too," put in the Reeve. On motion it was decided tenders would be called and dealt with at a special meeting after June 18.

The deputy reeve revealed that he had arranged to rent the town watering wagon to W. A. Hogle at $5 for the season and also brought in his report on the amount of chemical required for weed-spraying. He was given authority to purchase the required amount. The solicitor was authorized to prepare a by-law relating to the sale of a town property on Maple street to John Hicks and the by-law covering an agreement between W. and M. Green and C. Poulton re the acquisition by the town of a sewer and water service constructed some years ago by the Greens was also passed.

Harold Dalgleish addressed council on the question of purchasing 12 lots on Albert and York streets which he would use for pastureland. He expressed willingness to pay taxes for them based on a $300 assessment and thought the lots should be sold for from $25 to $30. The matter was referred to the paoperty committee and a motion to do this and at the same time permit Mr. Dalgleish to continue using the lots providing he kept weeds cut, was passed.

DOROTHY DIX

GIRL TOLD NOT TO MARRY MAN SHE DOES NOT LOVE

It Takes Much Affection to Keep Wife Happy and Contended

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am tired of having to punch the time clock every morning and stand behind a counter all day and wearing myself out trying to sell things to women who are shopping instead of buying, and taking bawlings-out from the floor walker. I am going to marry so that I can take life easy. I am not in love with the man, but I like him well enough—at least I like him better than I do a job?

Do you think I will be happy?

A SALESGIRL

ANSWER: Frankly, no. Marriage should be a vocation, not an avocation. It takes a lot of love to keep any wife happy and contented and glad she married the man she did, and thinking that working to make him a comfortable home is the most interesting and exciting occupation in the world. And if you haven't got the love, you lack what it takes. Your marriage falls flat, and you wonder whatever made you do it.

I know that many girls marry for a home and to get husbands to support them. They think how wonderful it would be to lie abed of a morning instead of having to get in the kitchen and rush through a pickup breakfast and get down to the office on time. And how much pleasanter it would be to spend the afternoons at the movies than it would be to try to sell some fat old lady a do-funny hat. And what a blessed relief it would be to let somebody else have to wrestle with the bills.

But for very few women in the world is marriage a life of Sybaritic ease. For the great majority of wives marriage is an 18-hour job, with no holidays and Sundays off, instead of an 8-hour job, and it is far harder work than they have ever done before. It is getting up and getting breakfast, getting their husbands off to work and the children off to school, fixing the baby's bottle, washing dishes, making beds, sweeping floors, listening to the baby's squalls and the children's fights, going to market, cooking more meals, and sitting up after all the others have gone to bed to do the patching and darning.

There Is No Pay Envelope

And the work is done within four walls instead of in an office, where there is coming and going and seeing new people and something is happening all the time. And there is no pay envelope on Saturday night. And husbands say things to their wives that no employer would dare to say to a good stenographer or a first-class saleswoman.

All of these things are right and fine and worthwhile if you are doing them for a husband you love. That glorifies every sacrifice and turns making a home into the grandest career that a woman can follow. But if she doesn't love her husband, it changes the picture into the dullest and drabbest and hardest job a woman can have.

And think of the man's side of the matter a little. Don't you think that you are doing an awfully low-down, dishonest trick in marrying a man you do not love under false pretenses? You know well enough that you have made him believe that you love him, or else he would not be assuming your support for the balance of your life. He isn't marrying just to get a housekeeper. He can hire one at any employment agency for a tenth of what your upkeep would be, and he would be free to fire her if she didn't know how to cook, or got temperamental, or lost her good looks; whereas he will have to keep you, no matter how fat you get, or how hard you are to get along with.

No, he is marrying you because he loves you and because he believes you love him and that you will give him tenderness and sympathy and understanding and make him happy, and you are deliberately double-crossing him. Don't do it, for if you do your conscience at night will hurt you worse than your feet do now.

What Is A Proposal?

Dear Dorothy Dix—Would you consider "I love you" or "I can't live without you" a proposal? If not, what would you consider one?

PEG

ANSWER: Gracious, no. Far from it. Nothing that a man says to a woman in the sentimental line is to be considered a proposal unless it is coupled with a genuine bona-fide offer of marriage and a request for her to name the wedding day. All the balance is mere conversation with which to pass a pleasant hour, and the man understands that the girl will take it as such.

When a boy tells a girl that he loves her, or that he cannot live without her, or that she is the ONE he has been searching for all of his life, and where has she been that he has never met her before, it doesn't mean a thing in the world except that he is trying to make himself agreeable. He is handing her his line. For there is a tradition among men that all women want to be made love to, and that all that any man has to do to be a fascinator is just to dish out the soft talk.

And that isn't such a bad guess either, for girls are so hungry for flattery that they gobble up all the mushy stuff that is offered them without stopping to see whether it is a good old reliable brand, or some sort of a fake imitation that will give them an awful headache if they swallow it.

I am always getting letters from girls who write me that they know that boys are in love with them because they have dated them three times and kissed them goodnight. Or that they know that boys are in love with them, though they have never mentioned it, because they can read it in their eyes. Or that they know boys are in love with them because they have been going "steady" with them for years and years. And they feel that it is only shyness that keeps them from proposing. To which I say: Tut and nonsense, forget it. No man was ever yet so bashful that he didn't ask for the thing he wanted, and when he really desires a girl he ups and pops the question.

So when a boy tells you that he loves you, or that he can't live without you, just laugh it off and say: "Oh yeah!" instead of "yes."

Why Dress To Please?

Dear Miss Dix: We are a bunch of high school girls who wear slacks to be comfortable in, even if they do make us look sloppy, and we don't care whether the boys like us to dress that way or not. Why should we dress to please the boys?

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS.

ANSWER: Not a reason in the world, dearies, unless you happen to be the kind of girls who like to have dates with boys who are proud to be seen out with girls who wear pretty frocks. If you would rather be comfortable than popular, go to it. It is your funeral.

Tomato Crop Will Be Late

COBOURG, June 2 — (ENS). — Crops in Northumberland county are being retarded to a considerable extent in low ground sections due to the continued wet weather. The situation has not reached a serious state yet but if the weather does not dry up considerably, the farmers may suffer heavy loss. Particularly affected are farmers who plant heavy tomato crops each year. This year they have experienced continued delays in getting their plants in, with the result that the crop will be that much later maturing.

Grain, hay and pasture crops on high land are progressing satisfactorily but in low areas where the farmers had not done their seeding, the wet weather has further prevented sowing. Some farmers are planning to abandon efforts to plant various grains and to put some sections into buckwheat instead. Wet weather has resulted in heavy hay and clover crops which are showing a tendency towards lodging. Orchards too are suffering from the rains on account of the fact that it has been impossible to cultivate some of them enough to permit passage of spraying equipment. Applescrabs have increased as a result.

Council Remits License Fee To Kinsmen Club

"It's for a good cause; give them the money," was Alderman Cotton's prompt action to a request from Ken S. Smylie of the Kinsmen Club for a refund of the $250 license fee they paid to the city for the Conklin carnival show permit.

"The money will be used for community chest purposes and war charities, especially in the purchase of milk for Britain," Mr. Smylie said.

Several members suggested return of part of the total, one of them $150.

"If this money simply went back to the Club I would say give us nothing," said Alderman Sands, a Kinsman worker. "Every cent will be used for milk for Britain."

"Given them the whole thing," Alderman Gordon suggested. "Kinsmen put in long hours last week down at the carnival show, and it seems to me they are doing a good work. He seconded the Cotton motion, and the other proposals were withdrawn.

"Close to the Vest."

"I'd shoot that right back to Picton; that's all it deserves," was the comment of Alderman Gordon on a resolution to limit to six months the period for which local municipalities would be required to pay for the maintenance of convalescent tuberculosis patients after their return from sanitoria.

The Ontario government assumed the entire cost of caring for these patients while in sanitoria, leaving to the municipality the cost of subsequent care. That, however, was not enough for Picton council. They demand that a time limit be placed on the municipal contribution, restricting payments to only six months. The council received the letter without any comment and with no support.

Shut Out Shows.

The two Ashburnham members moved to exclude carnival shows from property owned by the city, even when sponsored by local associations, but their resolution was left to the finance committee for cooler consideration.

Apparently Alderman Curtis, chairman of the parks committee, was given a grand telephonic razzing last week from the first arrival of Conklin wagons at King Edward Park.

The show people arrived here at 6 o'clock Sunday evening thinking they were going to Riverside, but it was saturated with water, and a quick decision had to be made by the chairman. He even offered a big field he owns over on the east boundary of the city, but it was too far from the hub of things, and hence the south end park got the nod.

"If we shut them out, they will only go across the border," said Mayor Hamilton. "We might as well keep them where we can have some control of them; not that I want to see them here."

"The only one who has to do any worrying about them is the chairman of the parks committee," said Alderman Gordon.

"And I had plenty last week," was Alderman Curtis' remark.

Alderman Sands explained that the first 20 per cent. of Conklin receipts went to the Dominion government. "We got 20 per cent. of what was left."

"There has been a lot of criticism about people being charged to get into a park of their own," was another Curtis observation

"I don't think you can bind future councils by such a resolution," said Alderman Gordon.

The several ideas put forth for a resolution as to policy in regard to carnival shows was finally left to the finance committee

C.W.V.S. And Overstimulation

On Thursday and Friday last there was a lively debate in the House of Commons regarding the status, or lack of status, of the Canadian Women's Voluntary Services. This organization was formed in June, 1941, and functioned effectively until Mr. Thorson informed its president in a letter dated April 27, 1942, that a division of the Department of War Services known as the division of women's voluntary services had been formed by order-in-council in October, 1941; for this reason he felt himself forced to terminate the registration of the C.W.V.S. under the War Charities Act.

* * *

In the course of the debate, which was initiated by Mr. Gordon Fraser, member for Peterborough West, some interesting facts emerged. For one thing, it was curious that Mr. Thorson, who formed his women's voluntary services division only a month after the C.W.V.S. had been registered under the War Charities Act, neglected to inform the latter body of the existence of his rival organization until the following April, when the C.W.V.S. was a going concern. His women's division was then willing to incorporate the C.W.V.S. into itself, under the guidance of two paid officials, a Mrs. West who was to receive $4,000 a year and expenses and an assistant, a Miss Held, who was to receive $3,000 a year and expenses.

* * *

Understandably the C.W.V.S. consider that their organization is being usurped, and as they have done good work without pay, they see no necessity for paid officials. Describing the work of the C.W.V.S. in Peterborough, Mr. Fraser said: "In Peterborough sixty-one typists gave 1,244 hours of service in connection with the mobilization of the Prince of Wales regiment. Our women volunteered to supervise the extra children that have been thrust upon the Children's Aid Society; they have attended classes in home nursing; they are driving cars; they go to the training centre in Peterborough three times a week; they do playground supervision work and welfare department work; they take part in the Red Cross and other community fund drives, and many other activities." This may serve as a pattern for C.W.V.S. work all over this province, and it is a work which has been of great service, direct and indirect, to our war effort.

Doubtless Mrs. West finds herself in a disagreeable position as a result of this mix-up, but it cannot be said that she expressed herself with remarkable tact when two representatives of the C. W. V. S., Miss Margaret Hyndman, K.C., and Mrs. Murdoch MacKenzie, went to Ottawa to see her. They reported her as saying (1) "That the government's plan is to have the women's war work done in communities by social agencies," which apparently rules out the C.W.V.S., and (2) "That no war work should be undertaken in a community until these social agencies who have their 'ear to the ground' as to the needs 'give the word go'," which would need considerable elaboration before it was possible to say what it meant. The final statement is (3) "That women should not be trained for emergencies now, nor should their free time be utilized for war work except such unspectacular and relatively unimportant jobs as salvage and price control enforcement. Nor should they be encouraged to organize their lives to have free time which can be so utilized." In Mrs. West's opinion too great excitement "overstimulates the will of the volunteer to serve."

* * *

The Parliamentary discussion of this matter, as reported in Hansard, is confused and lengthy, but if we interpret it aright the situation is this: Mr. Thorson wants his own women's organization with Mrs. West and Miss Held at the head of it, and he may have some excellent reasons for this; he certainly did not put them forward in the House, however. And there seems to be no explanation of why he let the C.W.V.S. get into the swing of its work before notifying it that that work must be altered and put under other control. And Mrs. West's idea seems to be to dampen the ardor of the women who have done good work until now, confining them to "relatively unimportant jobs" where there will be no "overstimulation" of their will to serve.

* * *

It seems curious that Miss Hyndman and Mrs. MacKenzie should have understood Mrs. West to say one thing when Mr. Thorson was able to produce a press report of what she said which differed very markedly. But the spirit of the press report is the same, and the sentence, "There is need in this country to make the seemingly uninteresting jobs seem important to our women," has the same patronizing note toward women's work. We do not think it wise of Mrs. West to treat her sex as though they were over-eager, not very clever children.

* * *

The rights and wrongs of the matter are not clear, and we think that they should be made clear as soon as possible. At present it looks as though the C. W. V. S. were being given a raw deal, and if this is not so it lies with Mr. Thorson to show it.

Coiffures For the Quintuplets

Last week those charming young Canadians, the Dionne quintuplets, were eight years old, and as a birthday treat they had their hair dressed. Now we do not intend to offer any comment on the taste or seemliness of artificial hairdressing for young children; we do not like it, but that is by the bye. What we do wish to comment upon is that an expert coiffeuse, a Miss Clara Ogilvie, was brought from New York to do the job. This seems to us very curious indeed. It is quite certain that no adult Canadian would be permitted to go to New York to have her hair dressed or his beard trimmed, but apparently a hairdresser can come up here to attend to our young fellow-citizens. There is something wrong some place.

The Dionne family has felt itself aggrieved ever since the birth of the quintuplets because the children have been wards of the King and their money has not been at the disposal of their parents. Was this hairdressing spree a parental idea? If not, whose idea was it? And is it an example of the kind of thing which would have gone on if the children had been left to the tender care of their parents, instead of enjoying the more austere protection of the Crown? And how exactly did Miss Ogilvie enter the country and return to New York, presumably with a tidy sum of Canadian money? Everything about the Quintuplets is interesting, and this is more interesting than usual.

A Cool Summer Ahead

The Smithsonian Institute of Washington has recently issued a world weather report, in which it predicts a series of cool summers and colder winters, reaching a climax in 1945. This is because the world is moving toward the climax of a cold cycle; such cycles of heat and cold come at intervals of 23 years.

This will be bad news for Hitler. He thought that the weather treated him badly last winter, which was the coldest which Russia had experienced for many years, but if he means to stop in that country for another winter he would do well to put his ear-muff factories into full production; next winter, and the one after that, will be really cold. It may even be necessry to arrange for as much fighting as possible to be done indoors.

And as for the cool summer, we think that the Institute must be quite right. We have had a few hot days, but June has come and we still feel the need of a fire most evenings. We are glad of the promise of better things after 1945.

The Cologne Raid

On Saturday night the German Reich learned something of what aerial warfare can really mean. During the Battle of Britain the Luftwaffe did its worst, destroying many British cities, and killing and wounding many civilians. But never at its peak did the Luftwaffe ever send such a force against a single city as the 1,250 planes which sailed against Cologne in order to drop 6,000,000 pounds of bombs. Six thousand airmen —a thousand of them Canadians—took part in the raid, and they were backed up by an organization of 100,000 men working at their bases. For ninety minutes Cologne was bombed, 44 planes were lost, and the city was left flaming so fiercely that the fire was visible 150 miles away on the Netherlands coast. Mr. Churchill called this raid "a herald of what Germany will receive city by city from now on."

The furious bombing of a great German industrial city is an end in itself, but an attack on this scale may be the forerunner of great events. Before the war the efficacy of aerial bombing in breaking civilian morale and in doing damage was impossible to estimate. Even the experience of the Spanish Civil War gave no trustworthy indication of what such bombing might do. After the battles of the Low Countries and of France we knew more about it. After the Battle of Britain our knowledge was considerably expanded; we knew then that bombing in sufficient force could reduce any city to a shell, and we also knew that it could have surprisingly little effect on the morale of the inhabitants.

But there is a psychological difference between the people of Britain and the people of the German Reich in this matter of bombing. The British expected it and knew that there was really very little that could be done to prevent it; theirs was a psychology not precisely of defeat but certainly of bitter hardship and struggle to endure. The Germans, on the contrary, have been endowed by their propaganda ministry with a psychology of victory, and they were promised by Goering that they would not be bombed. Now they are being bombed as no country was ever bombed before. Not even their dreadful sweep against Rotterdam can compare with what has happened at Cologne.

Now if, as Mr. Churchill has hinted, this is to happen to many German cities, the effect on German morale may well be disastrous. Air Marshal Harris said recently: "If I could send 1,000 bombers over Germany every night it would end the war by autumn." Possibly so. The Germans are not cowards, but their temperament is more brittle, because harder, than that of the British. If the reports of unrest and dissatisfaction within the Reich are true, a number of raids on a gigantic scale might upset the German applecart completely.

Whether they are intended to constitute an offensive in themselves, or whether they are preliminaries to a land expedition, giant raids such as that made on Cologne are of great service to the Allied cause. At least, they will weaken the Reich's already overtaxed industrial system and draw planes from the Russian front; at best they may break the German spirit and prepare the way for a capitulation.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Some people should realize that the good old days were neither good nor old while they were happening.

Ottawa will permit the manufacture of 150,000 bicycles this year, although this is far below the current demand. The trouble is going to be making the wheels go round.

The Manchester Guardian reports this gem from Italian shortwave radio: "The Englishman will soon be looked upon as a worm with more than one screw loose under its thatch."

"L'ENVOI"

(To the Men of the Merchant Service)

When the last dread call has sounded and the Sea gives up her dead,
When we've lost our useless sextants,
and have jettisoned our lead,
When we stand before our Maker, out of soundings, doubtfully,
Say! How shall we answer what is asked, we people of the Sea.

What have ye seen, My children, of My wonders on the deep?
Have yet heard My wavelets whisper,
have ye seen My combers leap?
Have ye seen My guiding finger in the whistling, stinging breeze?
Ah! My stalwart, sun-tanned seamen, have ye seen Me in My seas?

Lo! our eyes were very blind, Lord, and our hearing very dim,
We took our owner's vessels, and we brought them back to him,
We heard not wavelets whispering, but we saw Thy breakers roll,
And we cursed them loud and fiercely,
for they kept us from our goal!

Did ye see My glorious moonlight on the waters which ye sailed?
Did ye see My bright stars gleaming as the twilight gently paled?
Did ye see My wondrous sea-mist blanketing a sleeping sea?
Did ye see these things, My children, did ye know that they were Me?

Yea! We saw Thy brilliant moonlight low across the heaving wave
And we noted careful bearings of the stars Thy goodness gave,
But we cursed Thy blinding sea-mist which, menacing, wrapped us round,
For we knew not that in these things
Thine omnipotence was found.

And it may be the Creator, low and lovingly, will say:
Though ye knew not these My wonders
until this, My Judgment Day,
Go ye, sail the starry zenith, far beyond your former ken,
For, though blind and deaf and heedless,
yet, My children, ye were Men!

John Barrymore Great Actor Dies

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

WHEN John Barrymore died last week thousands of people in America and in Britain felt a sense of personal loss; some loved and admired him as a great screen actor; some knew of him only as an eccentric and a clown whose goings-on did something to brighten a gloomy world; some revered him as a man who was once a great actor and who, had he chosen that path, could have been one of the great actors of all time. But Barrymore was too much involved in the melodrama of his own strange life to give his time to the theatre; the stage is a demanding mistress, brooking no rivals. Barrymore permitted too many rivals.

There was a time when John Barrymore was the finest actor in America and potentially one of the great actors of the world, to be mentioned with Moissi, Stanislavsky and Lucien Guitry. Probably the peak of his career was reached in 1925, when he played "Hamlet" at the Haymarket Theatre in London. Then he had England and America at his feet; then Bernard Shaw hailed him as a worthy exponent of a great art; then Sargent asked to be allowed to sketch his head. Critics were enthusiastic over the combination which Barrymore represented of brilliant talent and astonishing personal beauty. Many playgoers still cherish the memory of His "Hamlet" and the promise which it gave of future greatness. But those who saw his lamentable performance as Mercutio in the unfortunate film version of "Romeo and Juliet" know how far short he fell of realizing that earlier promise.

BARRYMORE came of a great theatrical family. His father, Maurice Barrymore, was one of the best actors and one of the handsomest men in the New York of his day; he came of those Barrymores who emigrated to the U.S. from England in the early years of the nineteenth century. On his mother's side Barrymore was a Drew, grandson of the great Mrs. Drew who made theatrical history with her performance as Mrs. Malaprop in "The Rivals." His uncle was John Drew, and his mother the lovely and charming Georgy Drew; his brother and sister, Lionel and Ethel, are well known. Film lovers will remember them all in a rather bad film called "Rasputin" which appeared some years ago.

John had little inclination for the stage early in life. He wanted to be either an artist or a journalist for he drew and wrote well. It is odd that the artist whose work he admired most and upon whom he formed his own style was Gustave Dore, the French draughtsman famed for his macabre illustrations of the Bible, Dante and Cervantes. Later Barrymore showed a strong talent for the macabre in his acting. But soon the lure of the stage and the possibility of earning more there than he could as a freelance journalist was too strong, and he became an actor, achieving success rapidly.

ONE of Barrymore's greatest assets, and also one of his severest handicaps, was his remarkable beauty. As a young man he had features which combined strength with delicacy, and a steep profile of extraordinary romantic loveliness. He was the perfect physical realization of Hamlet, Romeo, Peter Ibbetson and the scores of romantic lovers whom he played with immense popular success. He aged little in appearance; that is to say, his features did not take on the lineaments of experience; rather he retained the face of his youth, but with its outlines blurred and thickened by the illness which at last caused his death. It is not desirable for a man to keep a young head on aging shoulders. Poor Barrymore! Hollywood publicised him as "The Great Profile" and all many people could ever see of him was his good looks.

But what an actor he could be when the mood was on him! How many film-goers remember him as the distraught French scientist in "Topaze"; how many recall his perfection of high-comedy playing in "The Man From Blankley's"? And how finely he played an aging matinee idol in "Dinner At Eight"! At his best Barrymore could make most other actors look like trained seals. He possessed distinction of imagination, that rarest of qualities in any artist, and he was a brilliantly gifted comedian. In tragedy he could be noble, but in the movies he was inclined to overdo it. It was as though he could never take the movies seriously; few first-rate actors can.

The past ten years were hard ones for Barrymore and for those who admired him. Financial and marital difficulties overtook him and dragged him down. In his later years he was working for his creditors. And a lack of reticence which characterizes many actors became almost a vice in him; he seemed to glory in his predicaments and in the publicity which they brought him. Nor were the grape, the corn and the malt strangers to him. His last appearance on Broadway was in a pitiable farce called "My Dear Children" in which he played a character rather like himself and in which he delighted audiences with his extemporaneous witticisms. Judicious critics would have nothing to do with this piece of vulgar exhibitionism. Nor did his performances on the radio add to his reputation. The guying of the earlier Barrymore by the later Barrymore was amusing only to the moronic. Now that he is dead it is fitting that he should be remembered as the great artist which he once was rather than the sadly bemused man whom he later became.

THE GRIM REAPER

—New York World-Telegram.

• A Nazi Pyre for Coventry

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A FUNERAL PYRE befitting the British dead of Coventry has been lighted at last by their countrymen in the heart of the German Rhineland to assure them that they did not die in vain.

They waited long, those men, women and children who sleep in common graves in Britain's Midlands. Nazi airpower seemed the unchallenged master of even British skies that November night eighteen months ago when death rained down on them from above.

Yet this June day the smoking ruins of what once was Germany's great industrial city of Cologne, bomb blasted as no other city has ever been, give evidence of more than vengeance. They prove that the deadly right arm of Hitlerism, its air arm, has been matched and exceeded.

Cologne was Coventry over again, but trebled or quadrupled. A thousand British bombers freighted with gigantic missiles carried the ruthless war to Germany as against perhaps 500 Nazi ships which shattered Coventry.

And tomorrow, when American battle planes supplement Britain's mighty armada, it may be 2,000 or 3,000 ships a night that wing their way to stamp out Hitlerism in Germany, city by city. The terror Nazism loosed upon a peaceable and unready world is being slowly but certainly rolled back upon its author from the West as from the East.

For implicit in the Cologne bombing and frantic Nazi efforts to disguise its true proportions from the German people is the same lesson that can be read now on the Russian front and in Libya. The initiative, the power of surprise, has been wrenched from Hitler's grasp. He can no longer mass crushingly overwhelming power by air to deal swift and stunning blows on a chosen front before Allied strength to stem his victory tide can be rallied to meet him.

Twice now since the coming of spring in Europe the Germans and their Italian puppets have struck out to regain the mastery that the initiative gives in war. In the Eastern Crimea and then in Eastern Libya their offensive blows have been quickly muffled by Allied counter action.

The battles in Russia have simmered away to slow motion to leave Russian armies in the Kharkov-Krasnograd-Izyum bulge, not the Germans of reconquered Kerch Isthmus, masters of the strategic situation in the Ukraine. The door to the vital Caucasus appears still firmly closed in Hitler's face.

In Libya a Nazi-Fascist diversion attack has been sucked into a dangerous British trap, according to reports from Cairo, and is already seeking escape westward. A broad British counter-offensive is hinted at, although there is room for doubt that it will be launched in the near future.

Such a campaign would draw British forces away from the Eastern Mediterranean and might imperil Suez. It seems more important that Rommel's forces be shattered beyond all hope of early aggressive action than that he be driven out of the Libyan hump immediately.

However, surveying the situation on all three active fronts at the moment, from Cologne to Libya and to the Ukraine, one thing is becoming crystal clear: Hitler's failure to achieve air control in Libya and in Southern Russia, even though he transferred large aerial forces from Germany itself and his vast conquered area of the Continent, has thus far been his undoing. It is he, not the Allies, who seems to be suffering now from dispersion of air strength on too many tasks. And that would prove the beginning of the end for him.

• Spies Sent Goering Candy

BRITISH agents in disguise are active throughout France, according to Mlle. Pauline Corday, a Frenchwoman who recently reached New York after escaping from German-occupied France. Millions of Frenchmen laughed at the tale of their huge box of candy, sent to Air Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering. This had its origin when two impeccably dressed German officers entered a candy shop, demanded the biggest box of candy in the store and sent it to Goering at the Hotel Meurice.

Two hours later another German came rushing in to ask: "Who sent that candy to the marshal?" With the candy, it turned out, came a card reading: "Compliments of the British intelligence service."

As another instance of British activity, Mlle. Corday told of the Frenchwoman who slipped and fell on a Paris boulevard, whereupon two German officers rushed over to help her to her feet. She looked up and was startled to recognize one of the men as an Englishman she had known in England.

It took considerable control for her to keep from betraying him, but as she walked away she wondered if it were really the English friend. After 100 feet she turned to look back. At the same instant the man in German uniform turned and waved to her.—New York Herald-Tribune.

VENGEANCE

Two men who lived next door to each other but were not on very good terms, were exchanging uncomplimentary remarks across the garden fence. At last one of them said: "Now, look here, old man, if you don't stop annoying me, I'll buy my wife a new hat, and then you'll have to buy yours one, too."

AN OLD GAME

German scientists hope in a few years' time to reach the moon in a huge rocket. The landing party will infiltrate over the lunar border disguised as tourists before taking possession in the name of the Reich.

THE TIME IS AT HAND

HITLER has passed the peak of his possible strength. Ours continues to grow. One measure of our growth is that only five months ago it was illegal to send any of our Army except a few Regulars outside the Western Hemisphere, while today we have already transported 600,000 troops to battle stations, a good proportion of them outside the Hemisphere. Now Sir Stafford Cripps tells us that "the time is at hand when we must prepare ourselves to take the offensive in the decisive stages of the war." Churchill tells us we haven't yet topped the ridge that leads downhill to victory, but the ridge is in sight. Dr. Hu-shih, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, says "the tide of war has turned and victory over our common foe is in the not too distant future." And events are making good on Gen. Marshall's recent promise that American troops would soon be operating against the enemy. Eagerly. And even gleefully. That's the America which was almost buried under talk for 10 years.—New York Post.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Let no man deceive you with vain words .... For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light.... Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them....

See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil.—Eph. v, 6, 8, 10, 11, 15, 16.

But let us who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation.—I Thess. v, 5-8.

A LEGACY OF ASHES

A rich peasant of Vila Boim, Portugal, knowing that "you can't take it with you," and mistrusting the use to which his relatives might put the sum in banknotes which he had saved, burned it all an hour before he died, leaving only, in a prominent position on the mantel-piece, the equivalent of a £10 note to pay for his funeral.—London Times.

The shopper looked confused. "Oh, I'm sorry," she replied, "I thought it was for the employees."

B. K. Sandwell Addresses Graduating Class Of Nicholls Hospital Nurses

The Collegiate Auditorium was the scene on Monday evening of the Graduation Exercises of the School of Nursing of Nicholls Hospital, when 14 young women graduated from the hospital as fully fledged professional nurses. The platform was beautifully decorated with baskets and bouquets of flowers, many of them gifts to the graduating class. The graduates themselves made a pretty picture in their white uniforms, each with a large bouquet of deep red roses.

The chairman for the evening was C. F. Kitney, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, who, in his opening remarks, gave a short outline of the founding of the Hospital. A pleasant musical prelude was provided by Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O. and Mrs. Eveline M. Foster. Rev. C. C. Boyter of Park Street Baptist church said the dedicatory prayer. Miss Orma Lacheur sang to lovely solos, "I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly," and "A Bird's Cry."

The speaker of the evening, introduced by Mr. H. G. Walker, chairman of the Board of Education, was B. K. Sandwell, editor of Saturday Night. Mr. Sandwell spoke to the nurses on their responsibilities as citizens of the country, and as fully-fledged professional women with a responsibility not only toward their profession but toward society.

He told the nurses that since they were highly educated and trained people, a certain responsibility of leadership rested on their shoulders and that it was their duty to take an interest in the affairs of the community; because it was for them to decide, now, what kind of country Canada would be after the war, what changes would take place in our social and economic structure.

"The structure of society is in the melting-pot," said Mr. Sandwell, and went on to say that he believed that never again would there be in Canada, as there has been in the recent past, a lack of effective demand for trained nurses. Society will demand a better system; will see to it that those who require the services of a nurse will receive them, whether they are in a position to pay for them or not.

The speaker said that the world had changed since Mal thus propounded his theory of population, that people who possessed nothing and for whose services there was no demand had no right to exist.

We are now beginning to realize that society owes to the individual, not a living but equal opportunity to all to earn a living.

In closing Mr. Sandwell spoke to nurses on the importance of the arts, of culture, in regard to life. He told them that they might travel far away from Peterborough, away from the things and the people they knew, but that wherever they went, if they had a knowledge of the arts they would find a common basis on which to meet other people. He referred to a new book shortly to be on the book-stands, "The Pelican Book of Canadian Verse," and said that in it were quoted the works of three poets whose birthplace was Peterborough, and that one of them at least would appear in every anthology of Canadian poetry, Isabella Valancy Crawford.

After the address the diplomas and medals were presented to the graduating nurses by Miss Edith G. Young, superintendent of nursing and Mr. Kitney. The graduates were as follows: Bessie Ilene Beer, Bethany; Aileen Elizabeth Brown, Mount Forest; Margaret Ellen Cooke, Stirling; Alice Mary Dawley, Port Hope; Velma Yvonne Follis, Napanee; Jean Elizabeth Gillespie, Peterborough; Edith Jean Lewis, Truax, Saskatchewan; Mary Elizabeth Mathison, Havelock; Phyllis Ann Nesbitt, Peterborough; Frances Alberta Sanders, Norwood; Patricia Ann Thompson, Peterborough; Mary Louise Wainwright, Peterborough; Doreen Wallis, Peterborough; and Erva Rebecca Wilson, Merrickville.

Mrs. Joseph Detcher presented the graduates with thermometers on behalf of the Women's Auxiliary of Nicholls Hospital. A new prize, given for the first time this year, of $100 to be spent on a Post Graduate course, was presented to Miss Erva Rebecca Wilson on behalf of the Board of Trustees, who gave the prize, by Mr. E. B. Fowler. Prizes for general proficiency in the third year, donated by the Board of Trustees were presented by Dr. H. M. Yelland to Miss Erva Rebecca Wilson and Miss Aileen Elizabeth Brown. Prizes for highest marks in second year examinations, donated by the medical staff of the hospital, were presented to Miss Melva Constance Irwin of Gull Lake, Saskatchewan, and to Miss Willene Agnes Miller of Peterborough, by Dr. F. Neal. First year prizes for general efficiency, donated by the board of trustees, were presented to Miss Evelyn Maude Reid of Lakefield, and Miss Keith Elizabeth Cronkright of Marmora, Ontario, by Dr. E. A. Hammond.

After the exercises a pleasant reception was held in the Green Room at the Y.W.C.A., where coffee, sandwiches and cakes were served to a large number of friends and relations of the graduates. The Green Room was gay with flowers, and on the table at which the coffee was poured stood a magnificent basket of pale pink roses and blue larkspur. Coffee was poured by Mrs. F. Neal and Mrs. H. M. Yelland. Members of the graduate staff served the guests and members of the Nicholls Hospital Nurses Alumnae acted as ushers at the collegiate and at the Y.W.C.A. Receiving the guests were Mrs. C. F. Kitney, Miss E. G. Young, Mrs. J. Hornal, Miss Lottie Ball, and Mrs. Joseph Detcher and the graduating class.

Miss Orma Lacheur was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by Miss Catherine Turner, and the decoration of the collegiate platform was done by the Women's Auxiliary under direction of Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell.

St. Andrew's, Millbrook, Scene of Pretty Wedding

MILLBROOK, June 2.—(ENS)— St. Andrew's United Church was the scene of a pretty early summer wedding on Saturday, at 2:30 p.m., when Madeline McDowell of Peterborough, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. McDowell, Millbrook, was united in marriage to William James Reginald, R.C.A.F., elder son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McKnight Millbrook, the Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with baskets of lilacs, spirea and tulips, banked in front of the chancel, and on standards either side of the altar. The wedding music was played by Miss E. L. Hetherington, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. J. J. Campbell of Aylmer, an aunt of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in her wedding dress of white embossed marquisette over satin, the fitted torso having long sleeves, and small satin buttons down the back to the waistline, sweetheart neckline, and the bouffant skirt falling gracefully into a short train. Her long veil was of embroidered tulle, and was arranged in coronet style, caught with orange blossoms; her slippers were of white satin. She wore the groom's gift, a triple strand of pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of red Hollywood roses, lily of the valley, and gypsophila.

Attending the bride were her two sisters, Misses Beatrice and Marjorie McDowell, who were gowned alike in silk net over taffeta, the former in pink and the latter turquoise blue; their dresses were made with fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves, and long bouffant skirts, and they wore Juliet caps, and carried colonial nosegays of pink roses sweet peas, and lily of the valley. Silver sandals completed their costumes. The groom was attended by Ronald Kemp of Peterborough, and the ushers were Teddy McDowell and Donald McKnight, brothers of the bride and groom respectively. Included in the church ceremony was the administration of holy communion to the young couple, who went forward and knelt at the altar for this impressive part of the marriage ritual.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, Main street south, attended by over sixty guests, Mrs. McDowell wearing a becoming ensemble of navy sheer with white trimming, matching hat, and a corsage of Hollywood pink roses; the groom's mother wore a coat dress in wood brown, floral patterned in green, matching hat, and corsage of Briarcliffe pink roses. The bride's table was centred with the handsome wedding cake flanked by tall pink and white candles burning in silver holders, and with pink Talisman roses in silver bowl, supplying the floral note. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. L. Sisco and Mrs. D. Hillier of Peterborough, and serving the guests were Misses Jean Burnham, Gladys Williamson, Mary Dawson, Betty Thornton, Mary Ridge, Dorothy Sisco, Rosemary and Anne Stinson.

Later, amid showers of confetti, Mr. and Mrs. McKnight left by motor on their wedding trip to points north, the latter travelling in a two-piece dress of turquoise blue crepe, beige picture hat, and matching accessories, and carrying her top coat of imported tweed. As the groom is still in training for the R.C.A.F. and goes shortly to Manning Pool, Toronto, Mrs. McKnight is continuing her position with the firm of Grafton's Lt., Peterborough, for the present. The gift of the firm to the young couple was a silver service and tray, and among the many other lovely gifts of which the bride and groom were recipients, was a silver casserole from intimate girl friends on the Grafton staff. The groom's gifts to the bridesmaids were gold an enamel compacts; to the best man and the ushers, leather wallets; the bride's personal gift to the groom was a Schaefer pen and pencil set.

Among friends from a distance who were guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Campbell, Audrey and Donald of Aylmer; Mr. and Mrs. O. Graham, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Huntley, Barrie; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Norman, Ruth and Barry, Orillia; from Grafton's, Misses Curtiss, Robinson, O'Toole, Gladys Green and R.S.M. H. Chate; Mr. and Mrs. D. WHEN MATRON SPEAKS... WE LISTEN!

1. Matron knew I was feeling low. When I drooped in her lecture she fixed me with a hawklike eye. "Listless people are not encouraged here," she said coldly, "they learn to avoid internal sluggishness by eating POST'S Bran Flakes — the delicious cereal with three benefits."

2. I saw her go to the dietitian's office. "Post's Bran Flakes every day" she ordered "—as a cereal or in muffins. The recipe's on the package. Mind—I insist on POST'S. They contain enough bran for gentle action, provide useful amounts of iron and phosphorus and the flavor's delicious."

3. Not a single problem has anything on me now for alertness and energy. "Girls," I chirped at breakfast this morning, "What is the simply scrumptious tasting cereal that makes absolutely delicious bran muffins?" "POST'S Bran Flakes," they yelled in unison.

Eat them for 3 important benefits:

Even In Wartime Boxing Champ Needs His Bouts

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 1 (CP) — Sport Shorts from Britain:

The fastest thing in Eire at the moment is Nannie Goosegog. The name doesn't exactly give the impression of speed but Nannie is the outstanding greyhound of the season and favorite at all the tracks. She is owned by Arthur Callinan, who calls all members of his kennel after Cork characters he remembers.

Nannie Goosegog is named after a little old woman who used to sell gooseberries back in Callinan's home town. She's such a fast footer she starts from scratch and sometimes gives away 14 yards.

Holder of the British lightweight championship, Sgt. Eric Boon of the R.A.F. doesn't agree with the boxing promoters' view that professional bouts will of necessity be curtailed through doubling of the entertainment tax. Promoters benerally hold the view that due to increased taxes they cannot afford big "cuts" to fighters and that therefore big-time boxing is dead.

Boon can't make the lightweight limit of 135 pounds but wants to undertake a series of fights against welterweight contenders for a percentage of the gate.

"Even if promoters are not eager to take a chance, I am," he says. "No champion can afford to be out of the ring for months on end. The little money I might make by an active program would satisfy me, and it would give the public entertainment as well."

You wouldn't expect a racehorse to walk 12 miles to the starting post—but this is England and war.

Most ponies at the recent Salisbury meet walked from five to 12 miles from their stables to the course, instead of travelling in peacetime's well-appointed vans. The horses showed no ill effects but many a groom complained of bunions.

Due to gas restrictions, no motor transport was available and only a few animals could be housed overnight on the course.

It's a sad blow but lawn tennis in Eire must do without that refreshing break for tea this summer because of the shortage of supplies ...W. C. Hoy, Chinese lawn tennis player who was well known at the English tournaments, is said to have escaped from Hong Kong and is playing exhibition matches in Chungking for China Relief Funds.

One of Britain's leading racing motorists, Lieut. John Peter Wakefield of the Fleet Air Arm, was killed on active service. In 1936 he beat Prince Birabongse of Thailand to win the 200-mile Campbell Circuit Race at Brooklands.

Nellie Hogg, former holder of nearly all Scottish swimming championships and records, died at Kinghorn while holidaying.

Loy, Hornblower Part In Court

RENO, Nev., June 2.—(AP).—Actress Myrna Loy, 36, was granted a divorce from Arthur Hornblow, 49, film producer, at a ten-minute hearing yesterday.

Miss Loy, who entered the films in 1925 charged Hornblow had treated her with extreme mental cruelty, causing her 'great unhappiness and injured her health.'

The hearing was private. Miss Loy wore a grey tweed suit and a quilted grey ensemble bag and hat to match. Her hair was done in a new 'Victory bob,' designed to conserve hair pins.

She was accompanied by Lois Reiners and Shirley Ramsey. Miss Reiners testified that Miss Loy had resided at a Nevada guest ranch for the last six weeks. Mrs. Ramsey, companion and friend, will accompany Miss Loy to New York.

Hornblow and Miss Loy were married at Ensenada, Mexico, June 27, 1936, and for several years were regarded as the film colony's most ideally married couple. They separated March 27.

Hot Lard Did It

PHILADELPHIA, June 2—(AP).—Two-year-old Marie Pyle put her foot in a drainpipe and couldn't get it out. That brought firemen, neighborhood air-raid wardens and friends of the family. They worked for two hours, chipping concrete away from the pipe. A neighbor heated some lard, poured it into the pipe and the child's shoe slid out easily.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

The De Laval Club, newcomers to the City Softball League are having a tough time making their debut. For the second time rain yesterday prevented them from staging their initial appearance in the loop race. It had stopped raining before night but the field was in no condition to use and so the battle with the Plazas had to be postponed. League officials have shifted it to Thursday in the hope that the weather conditions will be more favorable by that time. Incidentally the game originally scheduled for Friday night between Plazas and the Juveniles has been postponed until later in order to give the Ladies' Softball League a clear night for its opening game which brings together the Westclox and C.G.E. teams at the Ashburnham Bowl Friday evening. The De Laval-Plaza Billiards game Thursday night will be the third attempt the De Laval outfit has made to get some action in a City League game and the league officials and the two clubs will be watching the weather closely.

* * * * * *

There is a decidedly important game scheduled for Wednesday evening when the Military Training Centre team and the Adam Hat Royals will meet at the Bowl at 7 o'clock in a City League game that will have a lot to say about the leadership of the loop. If Manager Parnell's Royals win out they will be well out in front. On the other hand a victory for the Soldiers would leave the Royals, Plazas and Military Training Centre all tied for top spot with two wins and a loss each. With so much at stake the two teams will have their strongest lineups out there and both will be battling every foot of the way for a win. The Soldiers will pin their faith on the left-handed pitching of Ken Fleming while the Royals will undoubtedly call upon smoke baller Bill Fraser to take the Soldiers under control. Fraser who has finished both games the Royals have played has been a mystery and has allowed only two hits and no runs. With Fleming and Fraser hooked up in a pitching duel the game tomorrow night should be one of the most interesting of the current campaign.

Foxx Goes National

There were no games in the major leagues yesterday but the sale by the Boston Red Sox of first baseman Jimmy Foxx to the Chicago Cubs for an undisclosed sum has undoubtedly provided plenty of food for fan consumption. Double X has been one of the outstanding hitters in American League baseball for so long—he is now in his 18th season—that the fact that he is moving out of the loop altogether to don the uniform of a National League club has probably been a surprise to everyone. Foxx was not expected to start this season with the Red Sox but Flair who was groomed for the job went into the army, Lupien did not show enough and accordingly the veteran was still on the job when the season opened. He has been having only a fair season, however. Once in a while he has got hold of a ball and driven it out of the park but those occasions have been getting further apart and finally the Boston management has taken advantage of a chance to sell him to the Cubs.

* * * * * *

Foxx has been a great star in the American League ever since he joined Connie Mack's Athletics as a kid of 16. For four different seasons he led the league in home runs and only Babe Ruth has surpassed his record of 58 in one season. Twice he has headed the American League batters and three different years has been voted the most valuable player in the loop. No player in major league baseball today comes close to his lifetime record of 523 home runs. Mel Ott is the closest and the New York manager is a hundred homers behind the Foxx record. As late as least season Foxx made 19 home runs, had a batting average of .300 and drove in 105 runs and in his 18 seasons of baseball he has set up a lifetime batting average of .332. It may be that he will find conditions in the National League to his liking and that for some time to come he will continue powdering the old pill. At any rate there must be a lot of American League pitchers who are breathing a little easier. Foxx may be near the end of his tether but any player who has poled the ball out of the park 523 times and who has year after year driven in more than 100 runs a season is always a threat when he swings his war club up there at the plate.

Br'er George Soup Campbell of the Oshawa Times-Gazette has the following: "There's not a great deal of sports activity going on in Central Ontario these days that is actually of keen interest to Oshawa sport fans but once in a while we hear of something that is worth passing along. For instance, down in Peterboruogh the baseball moguls are looking ahead. They've put temporary bleachers immediately in front of the old stands, at Riverside Park, where softball is played now. Somebody stole some of the lumber out of the old stands and this along with normal decay, has made the stands unsafe, hence the erection of bleachers for the use of the softball fans. After the war they expect to build a brand new grandstand at Riverside Park. Down in Kingston they started their baseball league the other night and it must have looked like an "Old Boys' Reunion" to the baseball fans. Among those in action this year are Jim Arneil, Mickey Compeau, Harold Buck, Jake Quinn, Stan Scrutton, Sonny Green (Belleville), Bob Elliott, Vinny McQuaide and Joe Corkey. If you remember hte Ponies or the C.O.B.L. of a decade or so ago, you'll easily remember those names."

He's In Again

The story from Smiths Falls that the veteran Knotty Lee is going to manage and coach a junior ball club in that town will surprise no one. Knotty has been a resident of Smiths Falls, operating a hotel there for over a year and it just didn't measure up that the old-timer could keep out of baseball this summer. Lee would rather talk baseball than eat—and he's not a bad eater. The kids he has taken under his wing will learn a lot about the diamond pastime that they never have dreamed of for Knotty knows all the answers when it comes to ball. He is a colorful guy, with a fund of baseball stories and a rich store of baseball experience and we will make the prediction that there will be few dull moments this summer for those Smiths Falls kids when the old-timer is around—and he'll probably be around most of the time.

The names of two rich young Americans appeared in the news the other day. One of them was C. V. (Sonny) Whitney, a young officer in Uncle Sam's air force, mentioned in a Collier's article as a liaison officer with the R.A.F. in India. He had been through the Burmese campaign. The other was J. H. (Jock) Vanderbilt who recently joined the U.S. navy as a bosun's mate, after rejecting the idea of a commission. The Whitney and Vandervilt names have been prominent in American racing history for a great many years. The cheques are down in earnest for these young sportsmen.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS

JUNE ENLISTS

CHAPTER XIX

Someone was standing in the corridor; someone's hand was on the knob of the door. Talcott was in a terrible spot then. If this were Halsey returning, he would spend the rest of his shipboard days in the brig. If it were the steward, wondering why he took so long, he would be a little better off. But he would have to show the envelope to prove good faith and the steward, when Halsey's search began, would remember. Why, he thought agonizedly, couldn't I have said a magazine?

The fumbling at the knob stopped and knuckles sounded against the polished wood panel. That wouldn't be Halsey. "Who's there?" Talcott called.

"Constantine," the professor's voice quavered. "Didn't get a chance to speak to you in the dining room— Is your headache any better?".

Blessed relief! "Quite, thank you," trying to make his voice sound like Halsey's.

"May I come in?"

"Not just now. I'm dressing."

"Oh." Disappointment. Then, "All right. See you on deck."

Talcott waited, counting to 20 by hundreds, and with the envelope tucked under his arm, stepped nonchanantly to the corridor. The professor was gone and the steward was nowhere in sight. A short distance aft a couple blocked the passageway, discussing plans for the evening.

What to do with the envelope. Put it back? Halsey would immediately see the rip in the flap and would naturally assume that the true contents had been appropriated and blank paper substituted. No. Better to take the thing and heave it overboard. Unless— Could Struthers' report be written in invisible ink? Under ordinary circumstances such a thing would have smacked too much of fiction. Now, he wasn't so sure.

He couldn't hide it in his cabin. Search and discovery would leave him without a straw of defence. No. Find a hiding place, and soon. There wasn't much time—

He found it. In, of all places, the fire hose locker right beside the door to Halsey's stateroom. Only a snap-catch held its glass-enclosed front and Talcott, swinging out the ribbon-racked hose, placed the envelop behind.

He was pacing the deck when he saw a lone figure leaning over the rail, watching the moon. It was June Paterson and at his approach she glanced up and then hastily away. "Hello," she said dispiritedly.

"Hello yourself," he replied with forced joviality. "Where are the rest of our playmates?"

"If you mean Martha Swenson, she's with the doctor. Looking at the moon. Maybe you'd like to join her."

He tucked her hand under his arm. "Let's find a couple of chairs and look at the moon ourselves. That is, if you can stand my company."

She didn't answer that, but she accompanied him. Which in itself was an answer of sorts. Forward they found two unoccupied chairs, a little apart from the others.

"You like to sit beside me?" asked June, as they sat watching the moon's path on the water.

"I do."

"Are you sure you trust me?"

"More than I trust myself."

She sighed. "I'm terribly glad. Really, I'm not a bad person. I just have the unhappy faculty of hurting most the people I want to hurt the least."

"I suppose you refer to your spying on MacDowell and me back on Abas Island?"

Her heard trued quickly. "Spying? Do you mean the time I walked into MacDowell's room? I wasn't spying. You were so wrapped up in yourselves you didn't even hear me. And I was a little bit angry with you because you wouldn't take Leonard Halsey's suggestion."

"Halsey's?"

"Yes. It was he who told MacDowell to remind you of your rights of fighting extradition if you so desired. Didn't MacDowell tell you that?"

So that was how it was. MacDowell, still groggy from the blow on his head, had forgotten who gave him the idea. No wonder Halsey's attitude had changed. Halsey had been trying to help him, Halsey and the girl. Sighing he said, "I'm sorry, June. I owe both you and Halsey an apology. I'm pretty much mixed up."

"I'm not surprised. I've kept silent because you acted so—so darned formal and disapproving. It was your attitude that made me mad. But I couldn't help noticing what was happening to you. You're not a criminal. I don't know what's behind all this, or why. But I do know you."

Suddenly he understood. Her petulance. Her seeming spoiledness. Her swift changes of mood. She, an old acquaintance and cousin of his best friend had been expecting fun, or at least a welcome. And how had he acted?

She was talking again; low, as if it were painful: "You forget that I grew up with Lowell. He was my ideal. Anything that he admired I admired, and your virtues and accomplishments were standard bywords. It was I who wormed you into our first blind date."

And he had doubted her! She was in effect confessing that she had fallen in love with him as a girl; that as a woman she had accepted him as a standard to be held above other men.

"You strong silent men! I shall be persistent. How much money are you supposed to have stolen?"

"I—I can't discuss it, June."

"Is it your pride? I shall further cast mine to the winds to tell you that I visited Saint Thomas with the sole purpose and intent of seeing you."

"Good heavens!"

"It's true. You can imagine my chagrin when I discovered how far Abas was from Saint Thomas. I had the notion that it was right next door. Do I bore you?"

"No, no!" Against his will, it came out in a tumbling rush. Everything. The frameup, his suspicions, his fears. No smallest item did he leave out, even to discovering that the "report" in Halsey's envelope was nothing but sheets of blank paper.

At its end she was silent; so silent that he learned over in annoyance, thinking she must have fallen asleep. But she was very much awake, and the flash in her eyes warned him to turn.

His room steward, the one he had asked about the grotesque baldheaded man, stood by his chair. "Mr. Talcott, sir? The gentleman, Mr. MacDowell, wishes to see you immediately. On the boat deck, sir. He said it was important."

The steward trotted away and Talcott climbed to his feet. June Paterson arose also, saying, "Now that we have completely bared our souls. I'd like to enlist on your side. I'm really very clever."

He looked at her thoughtfully, and suddenly gathering her in his arms, kissed her hard on the mouth. Nor did she try to pull away.

With The Boy Scouts

Visit of British Scouts

Ideal weather conditions welcomed the arrival of the two British visitors to Peterborough, where they were greeted by some 375 cubs, scouts and officers on the Market Square.

A short parade was held along Simcoe street, down George, to the Capitol Theatre.

In the theatre the scouts, who more than filled the centre block of the ground floor seats, were joined by A.R.P. workers and others who swelled the crowd to about 900.

From the stage, Mr. Ottowell, president of the local association, spoke on behalf of the boy scouts of Peterborough; followed by an official welcome on behalf of the citizens by His Worship, Mayor Hamilton. District Commissioner John T. Hornsby introduced the boys, Stanley Newton of London, and John Bethel of Birkenhead, both of whom gave very interesting talks on work of scouts during air raids. At the close of the visitors' talks, Mr. Max Sloan spoke briefly on A.R.P. work in Peterborough.

The Sacred Heart group presented $25 to the visitors for the Chins Up Fund.

Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the visitors for the messages received.

The picture, "Men of Tomorrow," in which Stanley Newton is chief character and commentator, was shown, followed by a silent reel on the Victory Torch parade held in Riverside Park, and scenes around Peterborough.

Our thanks goes to Mr. Cauley, of the Capital Theatre and his staff for their splendid co-operation and to Mr. Cliff Sproule for the showing of the pictures and accompanying music.

Following this meeting, the Peterborough boys had an opportunity to speak to their visitors on the Market Square.

Annual Jamboree

After a week of wet weather the sun came out and gave the scouts, for the second day in succession, an opportunity to display their wares. Some 315 cubs, scouts and leaders gathered on the scout grounds north of Nassau. Boys from St. John's, Sacred Heart, St. Andrew's and Knights of Columbus had braved the threatening elements had a good time.

Visitors from Lakefield, Bobcaygeon and Picton came along for the day. The lack of officers, absent through work, did not deter operations as other officers from the visiting groups jumped in to fill the breach.

In the cub events the visiting Bobcaygeon cubs led with 92 points out of a possible 100. Sacred Heart and George Street tied with 85 points; All Saints' 84; St. George's 80; St. Andrew's 75; Murray Street 78; St. James' 71; St. Luke's 69; St. John's 66, Mark Street 30 for three events. In the various items were as follows, with the full points taken by groups numbered: Time Telling, Nos. 3, 4 and 5; Ball Throwing, Nos. 10 and 12; Leap Frog, nil; Knot Tying, Nos. 3, 12, 13, Bobcaygeon; The National Anthem, Nos. 3, 4, 12 Bobcaygeon; The Flag, Nos. 3, 4, 5; Message relay, No. 5; Skin the Snake, Nos. 3, 4, 8, Bobcaygeon.

Red Flower followed supper.

In the scout section, entries were scarce in one of the main items of interest, namely, first aid. In points, St. John's came out on top with 118, Sacred Heart, second, 106; Murray Street, 95.

Fire Lighting was won by All Saints'; St. Luke's being disqualified for using cedar fence rail; St. John's, 2nd; St. Andrew's, 3rd.

Tent Pitching—No. 1, 12 points; No. 4, 10; No. 6, 8; No. 2, 6; No. 8, 5 points.

First Aid—No. 14, 80 points; No. 4, 76; No. 1, 66.

Sack Race.—No. 14, first; No. 4 and 8, tied for second; No. 1, 3rd.

St. John's won the final tug of war from All Saints' and Sacred Heart.

In the Message Relay, Lakefield took top honors, with St. John's a close second. All other massages were judged fairly good.

Commissioner John T. Hornsby and Mr. Barry Ottewell were on parade all day. Mr. Smith, A.D.C. from Picton, took the salute at the march past.

At the request of the local association the ladies of St. John's Mothers' Auxiliary had a booth on the grounds, but owing towar restriction was only able to sell limited materials.

Their efforts were greately appreciated by the boys present.

Visiting officers from out of town Mr. J. McKercher of Lakefield; Mr. F. Whiteley, Jr., and M. D. Lewis and A. H. Nisbett of Bobcaygeon; A.D.C. Gordon Smith and S.M. David Campbell of Picton.

Scout Messengers Wanted

We are somewhat surprised at the lack of volunteers for A.R.P. messenger service and would urge that every boy near or over 16 years of age apply for this work. There are at least 12 scouts in uniform needed for the control headquarters,—and we feel that there are plenty of scouts to fill these jobs.

Boys are requested to get their application forms from Skipper Groombridge or phone Mr. L. A. Grant at 5893.

A special two-hour course will be arranged to met the requirements of the law. Don't wait. Do it now. Be prepared for all circumstances.

New Officers Appointed

St. John's Mothers' Auxiliary held its annual meeting and election of officers on Thursday last. Very successful reports were heard from every department, with two substantial donations being sent to the B.P. Chins Up Fund.

Mrs. H. Kelsey, the retiring president, spoke of the splendid support she had received from her officers during the three years in office, and thanked one and all for their co-operation.

The following officers were elected. Past President, Mrs. H. Kelsey; President, Mrs. G. Groombridge; Vice-President, Mrs. H. Robertson; Secretary, Mrs. N. Paterson; Treasurer, Mrs. Gray; Social Convenor, Mrs. Gilmour; Representative to War Services Council, Mrs. H. Kelsey; Neckerchief Convener, Mrs. W. A. Brown; Telephone Committee; Msdames C. Barton, Crocker and Gilmour.

St. John's

Mr. A. Hope visited the cub pack on Friday and assisted Akela G. Groombridge with game and story.

We are pleased to see the boys showing up as they are and would urge every boy to attend regularly.

In keeping with the requests of the Scout Association, the pack will continue its meetings right through the summer.

In And Out of Town

We were pleased to see Cpl. F. R. Pammett in town for the visit of the British scouts.

Word was received from Rover Bruce Forsythe and Ed. Pinn. Both are doing fine. Bruce is now LAC.

Our congratulations go to Rover Squire Warren Gamble, who has been successful in passing the Two-in-One course at Queen's during the past season. We are all pulling for your ultimate success. Good scouting, Warren.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 2.—(CP)—Gordon Gelhaye's enlistment in the Winnipeg Light Infantry may take him out of football for a spell, but as long as there are dry spots under a grandstand for football fans to gather legends of his three years on western gridirons will be kept fresh.

Pte. Gelhaye weighs about 270 and naturally was easy to notice whether or not he was figuring directly in a play. He was a fast man, crushing tackler and a favorite with fans in the three cities in which he played —Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver.

One of the best stories about him concerns an argument between players and officials during a game. Gelhaye stood in the middle of this wrangling group, silent and brooding. Finally he could stand it no longer. He stepped forward gently, knocking no more than two or three players sprawling, and bellowed: "Who's got the ball? Let's get going. You guys sound like a government. Everybody talks and talks and nobody does anything." The arugment was over.

Incidentally:

Loss of men to the armed forces has created a boom in women's paddling in the Montreal district... Grand Trunk and Chateauguay clubs are prepping war canoe crews... Latest football rumor is that the R.C.A.F. team everyone has been speculating about will be based in Toronto with a possibility Ottawa Rough Riders won't operate...Murray Armstrong and Don Metz provide much of the power for the army baseball team at Regina's training centre...Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning reflected thusly after winning the Winnipeg Press Club golf touranment with a 32 handicap (and a fine game also, of course, heh, heh): "This department's putting is very strong, especially off the tee."

Jersey Presses Club Plans For Night Ball

By The Associated Press.

While the Jersey City police studied the army's new edict on the New Jersey coastline dimout and couldn't be reached for comment, the management of the Little Giants went ahead with plans for to-night's double bill with Buffalo.

Earlier in the season the club was given permission to play its night games because Roosevelt stadium was shielded from the sea by a range of hills.

Recently, however, army and navy officials flew near Roosevelt stadium while an International League night contest was under way and reported that the reflected glow was the brightest spot along the coast.

It was planned to make another test last night but the scheduled contest with Buffalo was postponed because of the weather. Instead, a twin bill will be played to-night with the first starting at the twilight hour of 6:30 p.m.

Any ruling affecting Jersey City will apply to Newark, too.

The weatherman also rubbed out the Montreal appearance at Syracuse, but Toronto defeated Baltimore 5-4 in the Maryland city. Rochester and Newark were not scheduled.

Although held to six hits in their victory, the Leafs took full advantage of eight bases on balls. Three of the Toronto runs were forced in by wild Oriole hurlers who issued passes while the bases were loaded.

Toronto, however, suffered a loss while winning, Outfielder Frank Coleman tripping over second base and suffering a probable ankle fracture.

Shocked Jimmy Sees New Loop As New Career

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON, June 2 (AP) — The faintest shrug of the shoulders was the only reaction Jimmy Foxx, one of baseball's greatest moderns, exhibited when he experienced the most surprising shock in his 18 Major League seasons—his sale to Chicago Cub by Boston Red Sox after seven other clubs had waived him out of the American League.

"Well, it should be a very interesting experience," Foxx said when informed of his sale by Dom DiMaggio, his roommate and admiring friend, on his arrival here from Philadelphia last night.

"Chicago is a great city and I'll like playing for my old friend, Jimmy Wilson, and with such others as Stan Hack, Bill Nicholson, who was brought up in Chestertown, Md., only eight miles from Sudlersville; my birthplace, and Dom Dallessandro, who was with the Red Sox when I first came here in 1936."

"I really don't know much about the National League, for I never thought I ever would be in it," Foxx continued, "in fact being traded anywhere was a matter that never occurred to me."

The veteran first baseman was so positive about his status as a Red Socker that he brought his 12-year-old son, James Emory, back with him for a brief visit. "Now we'll have to turn right around and head for Chicago, sonny," the father told his name-sake and oldest offspring.

Foxx has assured his new bosses he will report in Chicago tomorrow and will be ready to perform for them early next week.

"Fitz" Takes Up New Duties

"Fat" Freddie Fitzsimmons, former pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, performed his new duties as coach for the Dodgers in their game with the Boston Braves at Boston. Fitzsimmons is here shagging balls hit to the outfield during batting practice.

Knotty Lee Back Coaching Smiths Falls

SMITHS FALLS, June 2.— Remember George (Knotty) Lee, the portly, silver-thatched baseball man, who has knocked around Canada and the United States as a working diamond mechanic for more than a quarter century? Well, Knotty's back in baseball again this year—as coach and manager of a Smiths Falls junior squadron.

Knotty's something of an institution in baseball. He's been connected with the professional game in various capacities for more than twenty-five year as player, scout and manager and has been a valued member of several big league clubs and such International loop squadrons as Baltimore Orioles and Toronto Maple Leafs.

He was one of the promoters of the Canadian-American Baseball League and managed Ogdensburg Colts for several seasons until the Colts dropped out of the loop.

Knotty finally settled down in Smiths Falls, where he operates a hotel. You can trace his baseball career through a series of group photographs of championship and near-championship clubs hanging on the walls of his inn.

Now a staid and sedate citizen with the cares of business hanging heavily on is broad shoulders, Knotty still finds time for baseball and yesterday he was out at the Canadian Pacific Recreation Grounds handing out sage advice to an odd thirty kids who turned out at the first rehearsal of the Smiths Falls junior baseball nine.

Colchis To Test Fairaris In The Peter Pan

NEW YORK, June 2.—Handicap features at the Belmont Park meeting are so numerous that two of them have been squeezed in for the Tuesday program, generally an "off day" at the fashionable track.

Headliners for today will be the $7,500 added Peter Pan Handicap of a mile and a furlong for 3-year-olds, and the $5,000 added Meadowbrook Steeplechase Handicap at the testing distance of 2½ miles.

Field Is Small

The flat feature drew a somewhat smaller field than had been generally expected, with eight passing through the entry box. This octet includes the two popular 3-year-olds, Robert Sterling Clark5s accomplished gelding, Clochis, and R. S. McLaughlin's much-travelled Canadian, Fairaris, however.

Fairaris, who won his last outing here, a mile and a sixteenth tests, by five lengths, will be stepping the mile and an eight route for the first time. The English refugee racer lost a photo for place back of Alsab in the Withers, and previous to that threatened the track record in a six-furlong dash. Today's race is an important test for the Canadian challenger for the 3-year-old crown.

The Peter Pan is a kind of consolation for Colchis who distinguished himself by deadheating the renowned Alsab in the Eastern Shore last fall, then beat Good Good's son in both the Chesapeake Trial and Chesapeake this spring. Colchis, being unsexed, is ineligible for the rich Belmont.

Fairaris, because of his successful public qualifier, is expected to be the second choice under 116 pounds, enjoying a concession of seven from the Virginia-bred, Maryland-foaled Colchis. Rounding out the field are the second flight, Colonel Teddy 115, King's Abbey 112, Air Current 112, Salto 105, Eternal Peace 102, and Trierarch, under a mere 100.

$7,975 to Victor

With all eight accepting, this third Peter Pan will net the winner a tidy $7,975. Four of the field—Salton, King's Abbey, Colonel Teddy and Trierarch are among the less important Belmont Stakes eligibles. A good showing by one of the quartet may find him in the starting field Army-Navy Day.

The Meadowbrook's 17th running failed rather disappointingly to attract either Bath or Cottsemore, who are generally reckoned the leading entertainers in the division, but 13 of the ablest available talent are one the promised field.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Lou Gehrig, New York Yankees' great first baseman, died one year ago tonight after an unsuccessful two-year battle against a disease everyone but himself believed incurable. The disease, amotrophic lateral sclerosis, (a hardening of the spinal cord which caused muscles to shrivel), forced withdrawal of Gehrig from the Yankee lineup May 2, 1939.

Etobicoke Takes Combines 11-6

TORONTO, June 2 — (CP). — Etobicoke Indians scored a victory over the newly formed Mimico-Brampton Combines, 11-6, in the opening game of the Ontario Lacrosse Association's 1942 senior series here last night.

The Combines played the game under protest, claiming Etobicoke were using three players not properly qualified. They were Joe Murphy, Don Campbell, and Gordon Gair, with Mimico last season. Etobicoke claimed the Mimico club no longer exists since the merger with Brampton. The O.L.A. later will consider the protest.

Slugging Wizard Jimmie Foxx Sold To Chicago

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Another American Leaguer has found that the path of glory leads but to the National League.

Since Boston Braves provided a temporary haven for Babe Ruth in 1935 many waning stars in the junior circuit have found refuge in the National League——among them Al Simmons, Schoolboy Rowe, Johnny Allen, Fred (Dixie) Walker, Gerald Walker, Rollie Hemsley, Bill Werber Zeke Bonura, Debs Garms, Bump Hadley, Monte Pearson, and Ellsworth (Babe) Dahlgren.

Now Jimmie Foxx, one of the greatest right-handed sluggers in major league history, has been sold to Chicago Cubs by Boston Red Sox only a couple of weeks after the Cubs had given up Dahlgren because their first base job was being adequately handled by Glen Russell and Phil Cavaretta.

Foxx is the fourth prominent American Leaguer to be taken by a National League club this season and the other three have not as yet done anything to distinguish themselves in their new surroundings.

Cincinnati Reds, who had great success with Werber after buying him from Philadelphia Athletics, acquired Catcher Rollie Hemsley and Outfielder Gerald Walker during the winter with the expectation that this pair would restore the Reds to pennant contenders.

However, neither has been able to hold a regular job. At the end of last week Walker, who batted over .300 for several seasons in the American League, has a .190 average and Hemsley only .129.

Brooklyn Dodgers for whom Dixie Walker became a bright star, obtained Rowe from Detroit last month and have used him both as a relief pitcher and as a pinch hitter with indifferent results.

Double X may turn the trend again in favor of the transplanted junior leaguers. He told this writer a few days ago, "I feel as if I still could go out there and go a good job if I could play every day, but I can't get going when I'm in the lineup for two or three days and on the bench a couple.

"People have been saying I was through for seven years (since the Athletics traded him to the Red Sox) and one of the biggest kicks I have had in baseball was batting .349 at Boston in 1938."

The Foxx deal filled in a lull in the major leagues while clubs were travelling for another round of intersectional play starting to-day with the American League's western clubs invading the east and the eastern clubs of the National League moving west.

Turnesa, Snead Given Leave In National Open

CHICAGO, June 2—(AP).—Cpl. Jim Turnesa and Sam Snead, the Canadian Open Champion, so thoroughly captured the fancy of golf followers in the Professional Golfers' Association tournament that the Hale America committee has asked the Government for assurance they will be available for the War-time National Open.

The committee feels the appearance of Snead, P.G.A. champion, and Turnesa, the surprising shotmaker he beat for the title, would bolster proceeds, which go to United States navy relief and United Service organizations.

Tom McMahon, president of the Chicago District Golf Association sponsoring the Hale America with the U.S.G.A. and P.G.A. June 18-21, believes both men will compete.

"Fort Dix, N.J., officials virtually assured us Corporal Turnesa would be given leave," McMahon said today. "And the navy seems willing to give Snead permission to play."

Snead is in Washington today preparing for his induction into the navy's physical training program.

The two players are in a group which automatically qualifies without entering a dozen 54-hole sectional eliminations this week-end to select a field of more than 100 for the four rounds of medal play at Ridgemoor Country Club.

Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON, June 2—(AP).—An Oklahoma statue authorizing the sterilization of habitual criminals was held unconstitutional yesterday by the Supreme Court on the ground that it classified stealing chickens as a crime and excluded embezzlement.

Justice William Douglas delivered the unanimous opinion, applying to an Oklahoma Court order for the sterilization of Jack T. Skinner, convicted once of stealing chickens and twice of robbery with firearms.

Still No Shadow Of Successor For Famed Lou Gehrig

By WHITNEY MARTIN.

NEW YORK June 2 — (AP). — It was just a year ago to-day that the big guy left us, and there isn't even the shadow of any one who might take his place on the horizon.

Nor will there ever be. Baseball produces only one Lou Gehrig, as it produces only one Ty Cobb, or Babe Ruth, or one of a few other individuals whose niche is peculiarly their own.

It took tragic illness, and finally death, to remove him from the shadow of the flamboyant Babe Ruth in which the Bronx iron man walked uncomplainingly during many of his glory years.

He's gone, but to the millions who saw him he's as fresh in the memory as yesterday. The true Yankee fan never will go to the vast grey stadium without half expecting to see old piano legs jog out to take his stand at first base, his easy carriage and massive frame symbolizing more than anything else the confidence and power of the champions.

For years he was just the No. 2 man. Ruth had caught the crowd's fancy. Not alone through his native ability but through his escapades, his huge pay cheques, and even his unique physique.

Lou Gehrig was just the old reliable who followed the Bambino in the batting order. The fans would roar acclaim as Ruth lifted one of his towering flies for a home run, and before the roar had faded Lou might more than match the blow. Yet it was so businesslike with him, so matter of fact, that it created only a vocal ripple. One was a Babe Ruth home run. The other just a home run.

We can see him yet, calmly talking in the dugout that fateful day when the sports world learned of the shadow that had fallen across his life. He must have known then it was the end, but he flashed those nice teeth in a smile and remarked philosophically:

"We must take the bitter with the sweet. If this is the end I can take it."

He could take it. He had been taking it years almost without end. Years that included days when it must have taken every ounce of will-power to force himself to get out there and protect that phenomenal consecutive-game streak.

They've made a movie of his life. A New York square has been named for him. Ball parks bear his name. Busts and plaques honor his memory.

All of which is nice, but quite unnecessary. The memory of Lou Gehrig will live without material reminder.

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor, Governor of the Bahamas, and his duchess arrived in Washington Monday for a business visit of undetermined duration.

In contrast to the elaborate reception they received last September, they arrived at Union Station practically unnoticed, and were whisked away immediately to the British Embassy.

The Duke and Duchess were luncheon guests of President Roosevelt at the White House. The White House described it as a small "family luncheon."

Council Refuses Application For Wood Yard

The application of Irving Moldaver of Peterborough Metal and Waste Company, Simcoe and Bethune street, for permission to store wood and lumber on his property was refused by the council last night.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who presented the appeal to the council for Mr. Moldaver, said his client had been operating the scrap metal yard by permit for five years He had a license to deal in waste metals but not in lumber and wood. In the course of his business, particularly in the demolition of some buildings, he had acquired about 100,000 feet of lumber which he had piled on his property. On account of the scarcity of labor it was now impossible for him to remove the lumber.

"Mr. Moldaver applied to the council last year for a wood and lumber license," Mr. Carley said, "but it was not granted. Now action has been taken against him in court, and the case comes up on Wednesday."

Mayor Hamilton remarked to Mr. Carley: "We have been pretty decent to Mr. Moldaver," and said the request would be considered later

In general business toward the close of the session, Mayor Hamilton enquired of the council: "What are we going to do about Mr. Moldaver."

"Ask him to join the army." Ald-Curtis suggested.

"I think it is time to put the clamps on any one who has continued to defy the council," Alderman Bradburn saaid.

It was recalled that Mr. Moldaver had been refused a wood and lumber license because his property was centrally located and adjacent to Silverwood's Dairy and the Y.W.C.A., and was regarded as a fire hazard whih should not be approved. Mayor Hamilton reminded the council that in the beginning of the accumulation of wood on the property, G. A. Gillespie, then manager of Silverwood's, had objected that the material was a fire threat to the dairy plant, and the council had agreed with him.

Replying to a query by one of the aldermen, City Solicitor Huycke stated that the Fire Marshall "could come along and tell Mr. Moldaver to move the wood out of there."

station could be operated for $150,000 a year.

Mr. Thorson said the shortwave station was still under consideration by the Government, but there was not complete agreement on the subject.

Early in the debate Tom Reid (Lib., New Westminster) protested that under the price ceiling policy, farmers were suffering from low prices established on agricultural products, and he received support from Mr. Hanson, who said the price ceiling should be the subject of a "good, wide-open discussion."

Mr. Hanson said the objective of price control was good, but prices had been frozen on an uneven structure and the primary producer had been the sufferer. Also supporting a debate on the price control policy, Mr. Coldwell said his group alone had urged a planned economic structure for Canada.

Finance Minister Ilsley will be in the House to-day when his Department comes under review in the continued war appropriation resolution debate in committee of the Protest Press Releases.

Conservative House Leader Hanson said he had received letters protesting against the character of some of the press releases from the Public Information Bureau, which is part of the War Services Department.

He said he had learned that material was sent to the Information Bureau from various departments and the Bureau's director, G. H. Lash, had no authority to edit this material. his office being used only for distribution purposes.

Mr. Hanson said he thought Mr. Lash should have "some authority to put the 'can' on some of the stuff that is going out or ought to refer it back."

There were too many persons in the employ of the Government, and Mr. Hanson said he had the idea that the newspapers. if given a free hand, could do "a much better job with respect to public information than all thes liaison officers in the Departments. That is something worthy of consideration."

The Government thought it necessary to have men putting out "propaganda" but the public knew it was "propaganda' and discounted much of it.

Mr. Thorson said the bureau was not in competition with the daily press of Canada. While the association between the bureau and the daily newspapers was small, the service it was able to render weekly newspapers was much greater.

It had never been considered either possible or desirable that all agencies of publicity, public relations or public information should come together exclusively in one department under one administration.

In answer to Howard Green (Con. Vancouver South), the minister said that when all the available fit men had been called up apart from those granted postponements, the only remaining men were those engaged in war industry or agriculture. At certain times it might be essential to take none from war industry, but the situation might change.

Plan Call Up By Lot

Mr. Thorson said selection of men for compulsory training by lot was the fairest system but administrative arrangements took some time to complete. He did not know yet whether it would be possible to call men by lot in the July call-up.

Mr. Thorson said that while enemy aliens might not be made subject to the National War Service regulations, from the point of being included in the armed forces, they could become subject to the regulations for some kind of alternative service, just as Mennonites, Doukhobors and conscientious objectors were being employed at present.

Government policy was to make all residents, whether citizens of Canada or not, liable to the regulations. Categories of aliens included citizens of Allied countries, citizens of neutral countries, aliens who were stateless persons, and British subjects who were nationals and other British dominions, temporarily resident in Canada.

Draft conventions had been worked out with the United States relating to draft evaders and deserters. By arrangement with allied powers, Canada had authority to recruit Netherlanders, Belgians, Norwegians, Poles and Czechs.

In time, said Mr. Thorson, "residents of Canada who are not subject at present to the regulations will become subject to them, and called up in the course."

Other Jobs Available

The department was working on other amendments to the regulations to use "certain persons who are below category A-1, and therefore not fit for those services in the armed forces requiring men of high category." Such men might be used for some other activity "that may be in the national interest."

T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Broad-view) said that in connection with mobilizing men for the army, the war services department "has been a flat failure right from the start.

"We have had recruiting on again, off again and on again. The aliens and conscientious objectors who are called up seem to be received into the army with kid gloves. The treatment they receive is different to those men ialled up two weeks ago."

Mr. Church said he had learned from some of the men called then that before they were in camp in the Toronto district 24 hours they had been told that unless they enlisted for active service overseas they would be moved out shortly to another place.

"Is there to be one law for the foreign-born and another law for the British-born in this country?" Mr. Church asked. "If these people come to this country and accept the freedom, rights and privileges of Canada, then when the enemy is at the front door, the back door and all the other doors of this country, are these people to be compelled to do their duty to the land of their adoption?"

Quite a number of Canadian newspapers did not report proceedings in the House and they could not be blamed. Some did not think the proceedings were worth reporting. but I will say that if the amount of money which has gone to publicity branch and the information bureau (of the war services department) had been spent on the press in getting proper writers, the results would have been very different.

"Our newspapers are interesting and entertaining; they have fulfilled a fine function in this war mostly at their own expense, and without cost to the government."

Mr. Pouliot said the savings of the Canadian people had been used to carry "a Totem pole...that thing called a Victory Torch which was sent to England with the first money that was obtained in the Victory Loan campaign last year. That money was used for the expenses of a trip in a bomber to carry this Totem pole. Mr. Churchill (Prime Minister Churchill) looked astounded when he received it at 10 Downing street. Things like that are no good."

The Censorship branch should "tell important military men who are in charge of the district of Quebec and Montreal to shut up and not to enter into any competition in eloquence as they do..."

Mr. Thorson said the point of exhaustion of men in the age groups from 24 to 30 years of age was close at hand in the Kingston, Ont., War Services division and would be near in at least two others in about a month.

Sunday Baseball Not Wanted Council Is Told

Anticipating its approach to Peterborough of "a movement to permit Sunday baseball," a deputation from the Peterborough Ministerial Association requested the Council last night to maintain this city's traditional observance of the Lord's Day. The members of the delegation were Adjutant Norman Buckley of the Salvation Army, Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church, and Rev. W. A. Filer of All Saints' Church.

The Council, in a resolution by Alderman Cotton, seconded by Alderman Dutton, directed City Solicitor Huycke to enquire into the law relating to Sunday observance and to inform the Council of the regulations and their scope.

Adjutant Buckley said there was a widespread movement for the permission of Sunday baseball under the cloak of considerations ostensibly linked with the war. "I don't know how far it has gone in Peterborough. If you have not yet been approached, there is a possibility of your being approached in the near future. Sunday is a sacred day, and we have come here to register a protest against any permission of hardball and softball."

Rev. Dr. Young emphasized the positive phrase of the petition from the Ministerial Association, "to speak on behalf of the great institution of the Sabbath which is an asset to the community. The Sabbath stands for social, moral and spiritual values, and is part of the eternal law."

Christianity would soon expire without one holy day being set apart in the week. There were seven days in the week, and one day was necessary for the Christian religion. "We are here in behalf of the institution which lies at the very base of our life."

Having come from New Brunswick, Rev. Mr. Filer said Peterborough had impressed him by its noticeable cleanliness and the quiet of its Sabbath. "It is a pity that any one should have to emphasize the sacredness of the Lord's Day. You realize as a council that Christianity tenaciously holds to the sacredness of this day. Any entering of the wedge is likely to lead to the breaking down of morality and morale."

Alderman Bradburn enquired whether there were any organized sport in England.

Dr. Young replied that he came from Ireland. In the south there was play on Sunday, but in the north there was not.

Alderman Dutton commented that there was no organized sport on England's Sunday.

Later in the meeting, City Solicitor Huycke explained that the Lord's Day Act was directed against noisy gatherings on Sundays. "I think that is the difference between golf and baseball. The one is quiet and private, the other public and causes shouting and loud noice."

Mayor Hamilton jokingly asked: "Supposing we had a gallery following Alderman Glover and Sullivan about in a game of golf?"

"I assure you there would be nothing to root about that," Alderman Glover replied to the mayor's humor.

"It's a tough Act." Mr. Huycke said in reference to the restrictions on Sunday demeanor. "You are not allowed to buy ice cream and take it away. You must consume it where you buy it. The same applies to cigaretees. If you buy them in a restaurant, the law says you must smoke them there."

"Let us get the exact information." Alderman Cotton proposed, "so we will know where we are at."

He Just Flew A Bomber To England

planes, adding that "methods of attack will be continually varied according to circumstances."

Hardly before the last of the night bombers had rolled down on their home bases, the day shift of Britain's stepped-up offensive was in the clear air early today, streaking for the French coast.

Hun Strike At Ipswich.

Just as the Germans sought to repay for the desolation of Cologne with a retaliatory attack Sunday night on the ancient cathedral city of Canterbury, they asserted today that another old-world English town, Ipswich, had been the target of their night air blows.

Although the R.A.F.'s bombers, on which British authorities rely to paralyze Germany's industry city by city, encountered mist last night they were said to have hit hard at their targets in Essen and its environs.

United States observers were believed to have gone over again with the R.A.F.

They were preparing, presumably, for what Lt.-Gen. Henry Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Force, yesterday called the hope of American fliers "very soon to fly and fight beside the R.A.F." In attacks which the Germans "cannot meet, defeat or survive."

British sources said that some of the bombers in the smashing attack on Essen with its huge Krupp works took part in the Cologne raid Saturday night.

These bombers, they said, had been "ready to go" Sunday night, but bad weather forced a one-night lull in the new offensive devoted to successive one-city knockout attacks.

Great Iron, Steel Centre

Essen is a manufacturing city noted chiefly for vital iron and steel works of the Krupp industries.

It lies on the Ruhr River in the Prussian Rhine province about 35 miles northeast of Cologne on the main line of a railway to Berlin. Railroads radiate from Essen to all the principal towns of the West Phalian iron and coal fields.

British bombers already had struck at the city repeatedly since bombing of the continent was begun on a relatively small scale in 1940.

Essen was occupied by the French for almost seven years after the first Great War armistice. Its population in 1933 was 654,538.

The ladies realized $6.60 in the waist-measuring contest, which amount will go towards the buying of yarn and other supplies.

There was an attendance of 17 members present, and everyone heartily enjoyed a pot-luck dinner at the noon hour.

Cologne Raiders Lined Up As For Movies

By DREW MIDDLETON

With the R.A.F. Bomber Command, June 2 (AP)—.... "Listen, brother, there's not a damned thing left in Cologne."

It was a 21-year-old Texan. Bud Cardinal of Fort Worth, speaking, and Bud ought to know, for he was one of the first R.A.F. airmen to fly over the now-ruined German Rhineland city in Saturday night's 1,250-plane raid.

"You had to line up as though it was a movie," he elaborated. "We went in plane by plane, and when the boys really got swinging you couldn't see the explosions of the bombs because the fire down there was so big."

Bud, who came out of Texas to join what he called "the Royal Texas Air Force" in Canada, was among the 6,000-odd English, Scottish, Australian, Canadian and Barbado airmen who wheeled the big bombers over Cologne and its industrial environs.

Jock, a 19-year-old Scottish veteran—Cologne was his eighteenth big raid—said the huge Hohenzollern Bridge across the Rhine "must have been blown to hits. Nothing could stand in what we gave them."

All the pilots agreed that the R.A.F. tactic of sending in bombers to drop incendiaries first had outlined the targets in flames and made the job easier for those who came later with the 3,000 tons of explosive.

"There's a guy named Charlie Honeychurch from Brooklyn, who was in on the raid," said Cardinal. "He isn't around just now, but he says his ship came in slow, let go, then turned off. He said the bursting bombs looked like about a thousand big guns firing."

Cardinal, who was a second-string guard at Southern Methodist University in 1938-39, took this correspondent over to meet Leonard Johnson said sourly: "Don't ask me, I never reached Cologne. One of my motors conked out and I had to turn back. A hell of a note; I've been over five times on big raids, but I missed the brass ring."

Both Cardinal and Johnson agreed that "the British are good."

"They get you down some times because they're so anxious to be correct," said Johnson. "But after the way they organized this raid and carried it out, I take off my hat to them."

"They got guts, too," Cardinal put in. "Though they don't go around hollering about it.

"A kid in my plane got a machine-gun bullet through his leg Saturday night. We didn't know about it until he collapsed getting out of the plane.

"The British learned this business the hard way and the right way. And say, these mass raids are the thing."

Air Transports Outdo Burma Rd.

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 2—(CP).—The United States is using big transport planes to fly war supplies from India to China and is believed to be delivering more tonnage than moved over the Burma Road, now closed by Japanese forces.

The planes—the fleet consists of a score or more—make two round trips a day between India and China in an effort to assist Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek in stopping the present Japanese offensive in China.

Chungking said Chinese regulars and guerillas in Anhwei province are striking at the Japanese in a vast series of attacks extending from 20 miles from Nanking, seat of the Japanese-sponsored Chinese Government, on the Yangtze more than 175 miles airline inland.

In their first quick surge, a Chinese communique said, the attackers were particularly successful in occupying a number of points in the outer defence area of Anking, in southwestern Anhwei, while forces moving against Hofei, in the centre of the province 70 miles from the Langtze, had reached the suburbs.

The broad series of actions started May 25, the war bulletin said, and the attacks are continuing. Objectives include Chusien, about 20 miles northwest of Nanking, Chuantsia, Tingyuan, Hofei, Tscahien, Wuwei, Anking and Wangkiang, the latter near the southwest border of Onwhei.

Yesterday's communique charged that the Japanese used poison gas to force the Chinese to abandon Kinwha and Lanchi 10 miles to the northwest.

Tests Concrete For Oil Line To Foil U-Boats

POTTSTOWN, Pa., June 3. — (AP).—Simon Lake disclosed yesterday that he is at work on another invention — deisgned, ironically, to offset the menace of his most famous creation, the submarine

The 75-year-old inventor came here to perfect a new type of concrete pipe, able to withstand terrific internal pressure, which could be used in cross-country lines to carry oil and gasoline to any part of the nation.

Lake believes his brain-child would save thousands of tons of steel in the construction of pipelines such as that now being considered by Congress to relieve the Eastern States gasoline shortage, due largely to submarine-torpedoing of tanker.

Details of Lake's newest invention have not been made public because they are considered of military significance. However, it can he said that it is being tested by a large commercial producer.

Lake, who dreamed of the submarine as a major merchant carrier, rather than an instrument of destruction, still is convinced that huge cargo undersea boats would be the answer to the nation's shipping problem.

"The only way to combat the submarine is with another submarine," he said, "and a cargo submersible would be the answer."

"A military submarine would differ greatly from a huge cargo-carrying submarine, and there still are many ways that a military submarine can be improved."

MAIN STREET TOPICS

A LONG TRIP.

For some time there has been a growing shortage in this city of sewing machine and regular needles. Some of the stores have been unable to have their orders filled for three months. But temporarily at least, there has been succour from where you might least expect it, England. Quite a supply has been imported and it is hoped to secure more.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION

Pleading guilty in police court this morning to illegal possession of beer Michael McMahon was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. The youth was arrested early Monday morning.

GETS A BREAK

Declaring that the accused had been behaving himself for a long time and he would like to see him get a break Inspector J. F. Reid suggested a two weeks' adjournment when a local man faced a drunk charge in police court this morning. The inspector's request was granted.

A MISTAKE IN DATE

He thought it was Saturday he came up, Inspector Reid explained in police court this morning when the name of a defendant charged with being drunk was called and there was no answer. The accused had appeared Monday and the case was adjourned until today. Magistrate Langley sent it over until Saturday when there was no appearance, instructing the police to warn the accused that he had better be on hand then.

TRICKLE OF RELIEF

May relief costs amounted to $1,200.67, including $690.35 for provisions, $114.91 for milk, $110.71 for fuel and $163.54 for rent.

MANY GARDENS

The community gardens are nearly all taken, A. G. Metheral reports. It looked for a while that the city's acres next to Queen Mary Hospital were going to be abandoned this season, but first a few people decided to do some hoeing, and then more applied for lots, and now only a few are left. If you are interested, and want to do some producing in this year of universal need, all you have to do is to apply at the city hall and they will tell you what to do.

CLOSE STREET STRIPS

Intention of the council to close a four foot strip of Albert street and also a slice of Hilliard street will be advertised in four weekly issues of the Examiner. The Hilliard street adjustment will merely confirm what has been virtually squatters' rights to property on the south side where houses encroached on the street right of way through some old error in laying the lines of that street. The Albert street project means moving the south fence four feet toward the street line all the way from Park street to Monaghan Road.

MISCHIEVIOUS.

It doesn't always pay to leave the baby alone, as one mother found out. Leaving the baby sitting contentedly in the carriage outside, the mother went into the post office for a few minutes. When the baby tired of watching the traffic, it began to pull at the packages and before long got hold of a tube of tooth paste. In a matter of seconds the top came off, and when the baby finished, a lot of tooth paste had been spread around.

ADDED TO COMMITTEE

Alderman Gordon was appointed to the fire and light committee by a resolution at the council meeting Monday night by Alderman Sullivan, chairman of that committee, and Alderman Mark, and Alderman Mark. "His experience of six years gone by should be a great held to us," Alderman Sullivan said.

SUNDAY CONCERTS

The first band concert of the season by the Salvation Army Band will be given Sunday evening in Victoria Park beginning at 8.30 o'clock, Alderman Curtis informed the council Monday night. Further engagements will be announced later. The Prince of Wales Rangers' Band will play in Victoria Park Sunday June 14 also in the evening.

MARRIAGE FEES

Forty-nine marriage licenses issued in May netted $245 to the city treasury. Total receipts from licenses were $1,442. City Clerk Outram reported to the council Monday night. Four applications for mothers' allowance and four old age pensions were approved by the local board and referred to Toronto for final decision. Four babies were born to unmarried parents.

A.R.P. Workers To Hear Caskey

The local Civil Defence Committee (A.R.P.) have succeeded in securing Carl A. Caskey, the Deputy Fire Marshal for Ontario, to give the lecture next Sunday on "High Explosive and Incendiary Bombs." Those who heard Mr. Caskey during the first basic course will remember the very fine lecture which he delivered, and the local committee, through the kindness of the Board of Education, have chosen the auditorium of the local Collegiate Institute for the place of this lecture. Those who attended the second and third basic courses and those attending the present basic courses are especially urged to attend next Sunday afternoon, as Mr. Caskey will probably be only able to stay for the one lecture. The lecture will be illustrated with sound films and will start at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, June 7, at the Collegiate Institute, with the main door off McDonnel Street.

Citizens generally are invited to attend and it is expected that all interested in A.R.P. work who have not heard Mr. Caskey speak will be out in force to hear what will probably be one of the finest lectures of the whole basic course of A.R.P. work.

Changing Street Name Held Up By Council

Changes in street names, proposed by the Board of Works, was held up by the Council Monday night on Alderman Dutton's information that other duplications existed.

The first group, previously considered, included Short street, King Edward, Hopkins, Albertus and Gordon Avenues. Others discovered in the meantime include Cameron avenue and Cameron street, one in North Monaghan; Frederick, College, Crescent; Stewart street in the city and another street of the same name in Smith township; Lansdowne street and aLnsdowne avenue; Bell street and Bell avenue, Benson avenue and Benson street.

"We might as well try to make it a complete job while we are at it," Alderman Dutton, board chairman, said, as the clause in the report was set back for the additions.

The funeral was largely attended on Sunday. Rev. C. C Boyter of Park Street, conducted the service. Mrs C. Telford and Mrs. Hepburn softly sang, 'Safe in Arms of Jesus,' one of her favourite hymns. Lasswade School Makes $58 For War Victims

Just about four weeks ago, two pupils of School Section No. 4, Chandos, through their teacher, J. G. Reynolds, turned in a nice sum of money to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, which they had raised by selling tickets for a draw on a pig, and since then with help of the ladies in the district, they have again been hard at work, with the result that in to-day's list for the fund, there is recorded in four items, the splendid total of $58.70 as further help for the victims of air raids over Britain.

First a box social, bazaar and concert was held in the school at Lasswade, assisted by the ladies, and the music teacher, Mrs. G. Kilborn, which netted the fine sum of $39.30; then a cake which was donated by Mrs. H. Woodbeck was made the subject for a draw which produced another $4.50. The third item was also the result of a draw on a cake which had been donated by Miss Ruby Lane, and this produced the sum of $3.65.

The final part of this contribution was the result of the girls in the making of a quilt, tickets for which had been sold for a draw on it by Russell Woodbeck, Wally Reynolds and Morley McColl, too add the further amount of $11.25, which combined with the other three foregoing items made a total of $58.70, which again was sent in by Mr. Reynolds, the teacher in this school.

This marks a splendid effort for a district that is none too thickly populated, and much credit is due to the scholars.

Two personal donations are listed, both coming from persons who have previously supported the fund on quite a number of occasions. A number of letters have arrived in the city from the old cathedral city of Norwich, which was the object of one of the recent attacks designed to destroy old ancient landmarks in Britain, and all tell of the wanton destruction of no military value caused, but apparently the Cathedral, Castle, Town Hall and the ancient Guildhall were not badly damaged, the only mention of damage to either of these historic places being the breaking of the glass in a stained glass window over the clock in the cathedral, and one letter spoke of a large number of people being buried in one day in a common grave. Most damaged seemed to have been done to private property and charitable institutions, with three churches being destroyed and others damaged. One characteristic phrase in one of these letters clearly shows how they are taking it, which is as follows. "It appears our R.A.F. has put paid to Hitler's Baltic bases, and this is much."

To help these people is just what the War Victims' Fund of this city and district is trying to do, and just how well it is being done is expressed in terms of the total amount which has been raised to date, which follows herewith.

Business Men's Association Discuss Bus Services

Members of the Peterborough Business Men's Association wrestled with problems arising out of wartime demands, when they convened for their annual meeting at the Chamber of Commerce on Monday evening.

Topping the list as far as the downtown area is concerned was the problem of providing adequate transportation facilities to carry workers from war industries, and the solution to this problem seemed to be, to reserve all busses for factory use between the hours of five and six o'clock at night. Frank Mitchell, of Peterborough Bus Lines explained the various transportation problems which faces him today, and he added that Peterborough city is fortunate in having some of the finest rolling stock in Ontario, busses that compare favorably with the best in Detroit.

The final decision was to attempt to educate the shopping public to do their shopping at times when it will permit free use of the city busses by the men and women in industry. The merchants at the meeting agreed they would cooperate in this regard, and Mr. Mitchell said the Bus Company would attempt to give the move leadership in the form of several advertisements.

The report of the nominating committee was submitted by Jack Lewis, and approved by the meeting, and the Board of Directors are as follows: Herb Routley, William Moorehead, Gordon Shier, Jack Primeau, Don Loucks, W. J. Garner, Charles Kingan, E. C. Braund, J. G. Lewis I. H. Keefer, S. S. Head, Fred Cripps, Ron Knox, D. J. Fitzgerald.

From this Board of Directors will be named the executive officers for the year. At the meeting Denis Fitzgerald occupied the chair. One point that was kicked back and forth by the members was the question of cashing cheques, and while some seemed opposed to it others admitted they were quite willing to cash the industrial workers' cheques because it brought them extra business. It was mooted that perhaps one of the banks could be kept open until seven o'clock on Friday nights, but no person seemed anxious to make the motion and the discussion died with a decision of no action.

Peterborough District Girl Guides Hold Field Day

The Guides and Brownies of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Districts held their first Field Day at Nicholls Oval on Saturday. The afternoon's program began with a parade of all companies and packs from Victoria Park to the Oval where Mrs. John Allen, Divisional Commissoiner from Cobourg, took the salute at the main entrance gate, followed by an inspection. The field events and company competitions were keenly contested and when results were tabulated, the 4th Salvation Army was easily the winner with the total of 90 points, followed by the 1st St. Andrew's Company with a total of 65 points. A beautiful trophy, donated by the two local associations and the Catholic Women's League, was presented by the Divisional Commissioner, Mrs. Allen, to Mrs. W. Jones, Captain of the 4th Company. This cup will be competed for annually in the future.

The judges for the events were Mrs. Allen, Mrs. R. Whalon, District Commissioner for the Peterborough District, Mrs. H. M. Dunkerley, District Commissioner for the Ashburnham District, Mrs. J. Radcliffe, Ranger Captain, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. D. Whittaker and Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, Mrs. S. Shields and Mrs. G. R. Langley acted as scorekeepers and a committee of Guiders headed by Miss Alicia Langley arranged and ran the events. Local association members provided transportation for equipment and Miss M. Stevenson and Mrs. F. W. Sullivan in particular, devoted much energy and time behind scenes to make the day a success.

The following were winners of individual events in the Field Day:—

Three-legged race. Guides, A. Howson and B. Lawrie, P. Bowen and A. Overend, N. Sootheran and M. Jobbitt; Brownies, P. White and P. Moore, C. Corner and Anne Samis, A. Curtis and S. Proud.

Tie race, Guides, M. Braund and L. Parrott, N. Sootheran and M. Jobbitt, M. Crowe and S. Simmons; Brownies, P. White and R. Whitaker, C. Corner and A. Samis. C. Craig and J. Graham.

Distance pacing, M. Rogers, N. Eastwood and M. Masters; Brownies, C. Butcher, P. Moore and S. Bagnall.

Time judging, M. Butcher, B. Whitworth and Jean Rutherford.

Guide race, (a) C. Butcher, J. Stewart, M. Braund; (b) N. Smith, N. Sootheran and M. Jobbitt.

Following the races and competitions, displays of Guide and Brownie work were presented by each unit as follows: First Aid display, 2nd Ashburnham Company; Tent erection, 5th Ashburnham Company; Physical health display, Sunbeam Brownie Pack; folk dance, 1st Peterborough Brownie Pack; History of the Union Jack, 1st Peterborough Company; Pyramid and Gym display, 4th Peterborough Company.

The evening's program which included a flag ceremony and campfire sing-song were postponed because of rain and mosquitoes. However this coming Friday all Guides and Brownies will assemble at Nicholls Oval at 7:30 p.m. and proceed from there to the canal for a swim and campfire sing-song.

The splendid turn-out of Guides, Brownies, local association members and friends decided that such a Field Day be made an annual event.

Seasonal Prices For Farmer Suggested To Donald Gordon

Organized farmers took to the air last night in a highly significant address by their representative, Herb H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, to Donald Gordon, chairman of the Federal Prices and Trade Board, in a discussion of the system of economic control as it affects farmers.

Mr. Gordon will reply by radio from Ottawa Monday, June 15. In the meantime he will receive the opinions and comments of probably hundreds of farm gorups who listened to Mr. Hannam through the medium of the Radio Farm Forums.

At the home of Stanley Jones on the Norwood Road, twenty-five or thirty farmers comprised one of the Forum assemblies. F. C. Paterson attended tre meeting. After Mr. Hannam concluded his address the members discussed his topics and drafted a statement embodying their opinions whih they requested Mr. Paterson to forward to Mr. Gordon to-day. His reply will deal with the Hannam presentment and a digest of the views received from the Farm Radio Forums.

Mr. Hannam told the chairman of War Prices and Trade Board that the farmers as a body endorse the principle of economic control. From that assent he proceeded to review farm objections to its application. Farm prices were 'frozen' last fall at their lowest level, when the cattle, fed on grass, were ready for market at prices which might have been acceptable for that reason, but not for winter costs.

He suggested seasonal prices which would take account of naturally fluctuating costs before it had advanced to the stage

The war overtook farm recovery it reached in other industries, and a hardening process set in under control before the farmers had received the developing benefits to which they were entitled by the improved conditions.

Mr. Hannam emphasized the point of lack of parity as between farm incomes and expenses, which farmers were expecting and should have received to place them on an economic basis corresponding with urban workers and industries.

Cost of farm labor had utterly crimped incomes, and in that respect farmers were at a disadvantage in obtaining the industrial help they needed.

Mr. Hannam also told Mr. Gordon that farmers were dissatisfied with the organization of the Control Board in its oversight of adequate rural representation in its personnel.

These were a few of the points which Mr. Hannam outlined with an agricultural radio audience of many thousands who listened to the first stage of this conversation by air and then set about drawing up their own ideas of the debate to be sent on to Mr. Gordon.

$3,072 Received For Spitfire Fund

The Canadian Police second Spitfire fund received a big boost Monday, Inspector James F. Reid, Dominion treasurer, reported today in announcing the receipt of four cheques totalling $3,072.62.

The largest was from the London, Ont., police department which sent in a donation of $2,435.56. Strathroy police subscribed $32.56, a resident of Bogota, Columbia, S.A. donated $110 and the British Columbia provincial police $449.62.

"That brings the total to date to date to $17,176.87," said Inspector Reid, "and as the cost of a Spitfire is $22,300.06 we are just $5,123.19 short of our objective. The money for the second Spitfire is coming in much faster than for the first plane which is now in service against the enemy, flown by a former R.C.M.P. officer."

Robert Flitton Is Missing In Middle East

His many friends in Peterborough will be sorry to learn that Pilot Officer Robert D. Flitton is reported missing from air operations in the Middle East.

Pilot Officre Flitton, was born in Peterborough and attended school here. His father, Ralph Flitton, was connected with the William Hamilton Company for many years, later moving to Montreal where Robert completed his education at the West Hill school.

He enlisted with the R.C.A.F. in 1940 and after completing his training and receiving his wings was sent overseas where he was attached to a R.A.F. squadron which was sent to the Middle East on duty.

25 Men Needed To Aid Salvage

Scrap — that is a fighting word, and that is why the Salvage Committee wants all the scrap rubber, metal, rags, newspapers magazines, miscellaneous paper and bottles they can accumulate out of this city. It could mean the difference between winning and losing the war.

Collection of the above materials in the fourth district in the city will take place on Thursday next. This comprises both sides of Brock Street south to the north side of Wolfe and all the streets running north and south and east and west in between. The western boundary is the new houses in the West-end and No. 28 Highway. The exception will be the business sections of George and Water Streets and of Hunter, Simcoe and Charlotte Streets. A special collection day will be announced for the business section.

Many men and women are required to handle the salvage. On Thursday night if 25 men presented themselves at the Salvage Depot on Reid Street in their old clothes at six o'clock, they would all be given a wartime job to do.

Bottles, newspapers, rubber, rags, magazine and miscellaneous paper will be collected, commencing at 8 o'clock in the morning, all the metal commencing at 6 o'clock in the evening. If No. 4 district can make as good a showing and they should as the other districts, it will wind up a record-breaking month of salvage collection.

Plan To Boost Potato Output

OTTAWA, June 2 — (CP). — Arrangement to increase the Canadian production of potatoes for sale in the United States were announced by the Agriculture Department yesterday.

A second arrangement provides for increased output of hog products through a co-ordinated program.

The Department said the Government had approved of the two joint arrangements which were recommended by the Joint Economic Committees of Canada and the United States. The arrangements have also met the opproval of the United States Government.

"The potato plan provides for taking such steps as may be appropriate to increase Canadian potato production for sale in the United States either as table stock in the event of a short United States crop, or for manufacture into starch for lend-lease shipment if the crop is large," the Department said.

"The second arrangement deals with measures to be taken to increase the output of hog products through a more closely co-ordinated program and a paralleling of policies in the two countries."

Two Speakers Heard At Rotary Luncheon

Peterborough Rotarians at their luncheon Monday, heard from a Czechoslovakian who is now playing a prominent part in Canadian business and from a Peterborough man who as a member of the mercantile marine has seen a lot of action all over the seven seas.

The guest speaker was A. Cetoka the assistant general manager of the Bata Shoe Company of Frankford, Ont., who was born in Czechoslovakia and told the club many interesting things about conditions in that country and in Europen generally.

Boatswain James Paisley of the Mercantile Marine, who was the guest of Rotarian John Smith was called upon and addressed the club briefly.

It was announced that plans for the annual Rotary Carnival at the end of the month have been working out nicely and that the event promises to be one of the most successful on record.

SALVAGE COLLECTION

NO. 4 DISTRICT

Thursday Next, June 4th

The District comprises both sides of Brock Street and all the Streets running East and West and North and South down to the North side of Wolfe Street, West as far as the new houses in the West end and No. 28 Highway.

Citizens so far have made a grand job of turning in the salvage materials asked for and we know it will continue in the other districts in the city.

If the newspapers and magazines are tied up well and the paper containers knocked down and the miscellaneous paper made as easy for handling as possible it will help in speeding up the collection and packing.

Both men and women in their working clothes could help out in the great Wartime effort if they were at the Salvage Depot on Reid Street, in the old Wm. Hamilton Building, day or evening this coming Thursday.

IN MEMORIAM

TATE.—In loving memory of my dear husband and dad, William Lawrence Tate, who passed away on June 2, 1941.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who though absent is just as dear.
—Lovingly remembered by his Wife and Son and Daughters.

BLODGETT.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. James A. Blodgett, who passed away two years ago, June 3, 1940.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In heaven, that happy life.
—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mr. E. A. Wicker wish to thank the staff of Nicholls Hospital, Rev. Rowland and Rev. McArthur, and all others for their kindness and consideration during our recent sad bereavement.

Home and School News Association

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

The June meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, when the members were treated to two delightful features, a talk by Miss Anne Jamieson, household economics teacher in the public schools of the city, and a colored film, "Gardens from Spring to Fall," presented by Mr. Butcher of the Horticultural Society.

Miss Jamieson outlined the course in Household Economics and stressed the need of an assistant in order to do it full justice. She gave a vivid description of the three routines of a day's work, and how the children were divided into three groups and these rotated, so that each girl had a turn at each duty. She explained the aims and ideals of this course as well.

A really splendid display of work done by the girls for the Red Cross was shown. The articles were attractive and well-made. These young girls deserve much credit for their work, as does Miss Jamieson for directing them.

Mr. Butcher spoke of the work of the Junior Horticultural Society, and delighted his audience with his colored film. He told something of the flowers and gardens shown.

Mr. Steer expressed the appreciation of the Association to the two speakers of the evening. Mrs. C. H. Crowe was in the chair and Miss Walton's and Miss Deyell's classes won the awards for attendance of parents.

CENTRAL SCHOOL

Central Home and School Association held its regular meeting in the Kindergarten on Monday evening with the new president, Mrs. L. Raper, in the chair. Mrs. A. Sollitt read the treasurer's report. The meeting was favored with a solo by Master Leonard Cooper, "Nymphs and Shepherds," and "There'll Always Be An England." Mrs. Glover was at the piano.

Mrs. Martyn spent considerable time finding out facts concerning the buying of ice-cream and soft drinks for the school picnic. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Newell gave a cash donation for this purpose. Finally arrangements were made for the picnic, which will be held on June 18. Ice cream, cake and sandwiches will be served.

The attendance prize was won by Mr. Dearborn's room. Mrs. Norman Buckley, the guest speaker, gave a splendid talk on "Loyalty and Religious Training in the Home."

Mrs. E. Outram performed the pleasant task of presenting Mrs. L. Leeming with her past president's pin. Mrs. Martyn and her committee served refreshments and a pleasant half-hour was enjoyed.

Webster—Andrews

NORWOOD, June 2.—(ENS)—Christ Church Rectory, Norwood, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday morning, when Edith Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Golden Andrews of Asphodel and Armond Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Webster were united in marriage by the Rev. R. E. Lemon.

The bride wore a frock of dusty rose crepe, with off-the-face hat to match and navy accessories. With this she wore a corsage of sweetheart roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Rita Andrews, who wore a two-toned navy crepe frock with navy accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. George Webster.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received frocked in navy blue crepe with a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother who wore a figured navy sheer and corsage of pink roses.

The dining room was attractively decorated with pink and white, and wedding bells. At high noon, the bride led the guests who numbered about fifty to the tables where an abundant dinner was served.

Later the happy couple left for a trip to Western Ontario. On their return they will reside at 482 Wellington street, Peterborough.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, June 3

Although there may be very definite promise of promotion, preferement, favors or other tokens of esteem from superiors, employers or those able to advance the ambitions and high objectives yet these may be attended by several adverse indications of treachery, fraud, misrepresentation and other undercurrent machinations to be guarded again. Also the money factor will probably not be encouraging and calls for particular fortifications. Be cautious with all writings and speech.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of attaining many of their objectives and cherished ambitions, with elders, superiors, employers or others in place and power. Nevertheless there are signs of financial danger through fraud, duplicity, misrepresentation, with much subtlety and trickery to be armed for. Speech, writings, travel, agencies and communications all combine to arouse to sagacity, vigilance and well-considered action and manipulation.

A child born on this day while possessing many talents and intellectual as well as personal traits to recommend it and further its high ambitions, yet may be subject to financial losses through fraud and misrepresentation. It may suffer through lax speech or writings.

Gay, Romantic Games Make Party a Hit

Hearts Tell Fortune

Tossing hearts around! At your party it's fun! For the hearts are cardboard hearts, each bearing a romantic fortune like "Soon Wed." "Rival." "Love."

It's easy to prepare this version of Card-Toss Fortunes. Have ready an ordinary hat—or you may make a big one of cardboard.

Rules are for each guest to stand on a certain spot and try to see how many of 10 heart-fortunes he can toss into the hat. The hearts that land reveal his fate for the next 12 months!

Now, for a real blush-and-giggle game, play "Blarney." Each person writes and signs a compliment for "It," who sits in the centre. Then "It" must read the compliments aloud and guess who wrote them.

Was it Tom or Joe who said that "It" has the skin you love to touch? Poor "It," she's scarlet.

Many other hilarious games, for all kinds of parties, are in our 32-page booklet. Has icebreakers, fortune-telling stunts, brain teasers to make your parties the talk of the town.

Hearts Tell Fortune.

For your copy of PARTY GAMES FOR ALL OCCASIONS, send 15c in coins or stamps to Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE A ROBOT

SIGNALS TO your partner, with high cards and low cards, are very fine and necessary to help direct a strong defense. They are not absolute commands at any time, however. On many an occasion the partner of a signaler knows something, from seeing his own hand, which is more important to the side than anything his partner knows. In such a case, he must do what he knows is best, disregarding his partner's discard.

When West passed his partner's double on this deal, it was obviously because he thought he could beat the contract to the extent of more points than his own side could make if he bid. He was right, especially since he knew North as one of those players who will bid a very weak No Trump, but East spilled the applecart beyond repair.

After the spade A won the 3, which was led, East decided that an effort to obtain a third round ruff of a club would be the best defense, and therefore laid down the club A. Knowing what he did, and that his partner could probably win the first round of trumps, he should have disregarded the club 3 which his partner played, and should have led another club. He slavishly followed the discouraging signal, however, and led the heart 7. West won with the A and returned his club 9, expecting his partner to ruff, but instead East had another club and the contract was made, although West took two more trump tricks.

If East had led his club 10 to the third trick, West would have won the first trump round with the heart A, and returned his third club for the ruff, which would have caused defeat of the contract, giving the pair a good instead of a bad result.

Rockburst Kills 2 Muckers At Lake Shore

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., June 2. —(CP). — A coroner's nquest was awaited to-day into the death of two men in a rockburst "of medium intensity" — the first in 10 months—at Lake Shore mine.

William Smarz, 42, and Wilfred C. Chartrand, 30, both muckers, were killed in the blast which dislodged tons of rock and muck at 9.56 p.m. Saturday night. Two fellow workers Victor Young, 29 and Charles Rox, 37, escaped — but Young was buried alive for 75 minutes before the 30-man rescue crew could free him.

Rox was thrown clear by the blast on the 4,000 foot level, which involved a space of between 49 and 50 feet. Within two hours after Young was released and taken on a stretcher to hospital, Smarz body was recovered but the rescue crew was not able to bring up Chartrand's body until late yesterday. Date for the official inquest has not been set by Coroner Dr. R. W. McBain.

Both Young and Rox viewed their escape philosophically. Rox, veteran of several bursts, said: 'A man must face these things. If they get you, that's all there is to it.'

It was Young's first experience but he told interviewers from his hospital cot yesterday that he was going back to the mine 'just as soon as they let me ou of here.'

Sure He's Going Back

"Am I going back to work again," Young said echoing his interviewer's question. "Sure am. What's a rockburst to a miner."

At the same time, he said with a wry grin that he wouldn't want to go through the experience again. It was too hard on the wind he explained.

"Charley Rox and I were working just above where Smarz and Chartrand were," he related. "Charley was just pulling steel. We had been putting in a few pop shots. I heard the crack when the burst let go and I saw Rox getting out fast. He must have seen the ground move or something.

"I wasn't quick enough and it got me. I was caught and covered in seconds. I was doubled up, jack-knife fashion, and I couldn't move a muscle.

There was so much around me I couldn't even move my fingers, they feel a bit numb yet. Luckily there was a little space between my mouth and arms which were doubled across my face and the air feeding the machines was still blowing. That gave me air.

When the gang came to get him, they turned off the air and "that felt bad for a minute." He shouted for them to turn it on "and after that it was easy."

Smarz a Pole formerly employed at Noranda, Que., and Chartrand, who came here from Holtyre, Ont., had just started work in Lakeshore last week but officials said they were experienced miners.

Paris Under Two Years Of Nazi Rule

Les Halles, the Covent Garden of Paris, was formerly full of vegetables, fruits and all sorts of eatables of agricultural France.

Today, after two years of Nazi occupation, hand carts are lying by the curbs, empty, porters idle.

Execution Gangs Work Sunday Slaying Czechs

LONDON, June 2 (CP). — Nazi firing squads in the old Czecht capital of Prague executed 20 more persons Sunday in connection with the Gestapo's sweeping reprisals for the attack last Wednesday upon Gestapo leader Reinhard Heydrich.

This was the first time that Hitler's firing squads had done their work on Sunday.

Those executed, the Prague radio announced, included two high officials of the Ministry of Agriculture of the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

Sunday's executions made a total of 82 since the attack on Heydrich last Wednesday.

The Germans were reported working on the theory that parachutists dropped from foreign planes had a hand in the attempted assassination of Heydrich.

Czech circles in London, who maintain close underground connections with their dismembered homeland, said the question had been raised in Gestapo circles that parachutists might have been the actual attackers and that Czech citizens participated only by sheltering the conspirators.

The German-controlled radio in Prague stated flatly that foreign saboteurs had landed by parachute in Bohemia and Moravia.

It said some of those executed "had been convicted of having sheltered agents who had landed in the protectorate from airplanes by parachute in order to perpetrate acts of sabotage."

(R.A.F. planes were over old Czecho-Slovakia on the nights of April 25 and May 5, when: The Air Minister announced in London the target of the raiders was the huge Skoda munitions works at Pilsen).

10 Women On List.

Ten women were among 44 executed Saturday by the Germans in ruthless reprisal for the attack upon Heydrich, the Gestapo's second ir command, who was critically wounded.

Of these, the Prague radio said 32 were sentenced to death in Prague and 12 in Brunn "because they had either hidden persons known to have participated in activities directed against the Reich or else had publicly approved of the attempt on the life of Reich Protector Heydrich."

In addition, four other Czechs were sentenced to death on charges of engaging in black market operations, the German radio said.

All of these executed were accused of either failing to register with the police or harboring or aaiding unregistered persons accused of anti-German activities.

The Prague announcement followed a broadcast by Dr. Emil Hacha, puppet president of the protectorate, who blamed former President Eduard Benes, who now is in exile in London, for the shooting of Heydrich.

The executions Saturday were carried out in Prague and Brunn, said the announcement from the former Czech capital. The youngest victim was 10 years old; the others included two former officers of the Czech army and a public prosecutor. The State confiscated the victims property.

Last Corregidor Message Full Of Tragedy

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP).— A poignant series of radio messages from Corregidor describing the final hour before the surrender of the Philippine fortress under shelling "too much for guys to take" was made public Sunday by the United States War Department.

Irving Strobing of Brooklyn, N.Y., tapped out the massages May 5 while shells were exploding and rifles were being smashed to keep them from the Japanese. They were recorded as received, presumably at Honolulu, and the unedited file was read on an army radio program.

Strobing presumably was a soldier in the Signal Corps.

"They are not near yet," said the first message. "We are waiting for God only knows what. How about a chocolate soda?"

Broken by pauses, the other messages followed:

"Not many. Not near yet. Lots of heavy fighting going on. We've only got about one hour and twenty minutes before . . .

"We may have to give up by noon. We don't know yet. They are throwing men and shells at us and we may not be able to stand it. They have been shelling us faster than you can count . . . .

"We've got about 55 minutes and I feel sick at my stomach. I am really low down. They are around now smashing rifles. They bring in the wounded every minute. We will be waiting for you guys to help. That is the only thing I guess that can be done.

"General Wainwright is a right guy and we are willing to go on for him, but shells were dropping all night, faster than hell. Damage terrific. Too much for guys to take. Enemy heavy cross-shelling and bombing. They have got us all around and from skies.

"From here it looks as if firing ceased on both sides. Men here all feeling bad, because of terrific nervous strain of the siege. Corregidor used to be a nice place, but it's haunted now. Withstood a terrific pounding.

"Just made broadcast to Manila to arrange meeting for surrender. Talk made by General (Lewis C.) Beebe. I can't say much. Can't think at all. I can hardly think. Say, I have sixty pesos you can have for this week-end.

"The jig is up. Every one is bawling like a baby. They are piling dead and wounded in our tunnel. Arm's weak from pounding key, long hours, no rest, short rations, tired. . . .

"I know now how a mouse feels. Caught in a trap waiting for guys to come along and finish it up. Got a treat. Can pineapple. Opening it with Signal Corps knife.

"My name, Irving Strobing. Get this to my mother, Mrs. Minnie Strobing, 605 Barbey street, Brooklyn, N.Y. They are to get along O.K. Get in touch with them as soon as possible. Message. My love to Pa, Joe, Sue, Mac, Garry, Joy and Paul. Also to all family and friends. God bless 'em all. Hope they be there when I come home. Tell Joe wherever he is going give 'em hell for us. My love you all. God bless you and keep you. Love. Sign my name and tell my mother how you heard from me."

Mrs. Smart's report, read to delegates representing 40,000 I.O.D.E. members across Canada on the third day of the meeting, announced that Lady Tweedsmuir had consented to act as representative of the Order in England in response to an invitation by the National executive.

Mrs. Smart commended the increased interest which Junior Chapters throughout the Dominion are taking in the work of the Order. All departments of the I.O.D.E. had received support from the younger branch, with particular emphasis on educational work, child welfare and Empire study.

2,000 Mi. Swoop Hits Solomons

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, June 2 (CP).—Allied bombers blasted Japanese bases in Timor, northeastern New Guinea, and the Solomon Islands in a series of week-end raids which started large fires and wrecked docks and airdromes.

Many direct hits on airdromes' runways and wharves were scored by an Allied air formation which swept over Lae, New Guinea, just before dawn yesterday, a communique declared.

Apparently, the Japanese were caught napping, for the bulletin reported that only one enemy fighter rose in an attempt to intercept the raiders.

The previous night Allied planes struck at the airdrome at Kupang, capital of Netherlands Timor, and the harbor of Dili, capital of the Portuguese half of the Japanese-occupied island.

Friday night Allied fliers made a 2,000-mile round trip flight to raid the Japanese seaplane base at Tulagi in the Solomon Islands, setting fires which they said were visible 80 miles away. Other Allied raiders bombed Tanamoga and Gaavutu in the Solomons the same night.

ROYAL BANK BUILDING

Even before wartime shortages forced the restriction of telephone installations, thousands of telephone users helped us by accepting party lines instead of the individual line service they asked for.

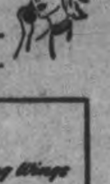
To all who have thus helped to conserve scarce materials, we say "Thank you."

So that you and your party line "partner" may continue to enjoy the best possible service, try at all times to use your telephone in a neighbourly co-operative spirit . . . follow these simple rules:

Listen . . . and if the line is in use, hang up promptly and gently.

Avoid long talks; clear the line for the next call—yours or that of the other party of the line.

When you finish your talk, hang up promptly. A receiver "off the hook" blocks the line for both parties.



Practice "Wartime Telephone Tactics" on all calls.

WARTIME TELEPHONE TACTICS

- BE SURE you have the right number, consult the directory.
- SPEAK distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece.
- ANSWER promptly when the bell rings.
- BE BRIEF. Clear your line for the next call.
- USE OFF-PEAK hours for Long Distance calls: before 9.30 a.m., 1-2 p.m., 5-7 p.m., after 9 p.m.

These things may look trifling, but on 6,500,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.

R.A.F. RETURNS TO ESSEN FOR CLEAN-UP BOMBING

British Coup Nabs Rommel's Base

U.K. To Ration Its Coal 840 Lbs. Year

Order Electricity Also Cut Down Starting September 1

LONDON, June 3 (CP) — The government has decided to assume full control of Britain's coal mines and to inaugurate thorough fuel rationing, it was announced today.

Rationing of coal, coke and fuel is tentatively scheduled to begin July 1, with each person receiving seven and a half hundredweight of coal a year (840 lbs., since the British hundredweight is 112 lbs.)

Rationing of electricity will begin with the first quarter meter reading after Sept. 1. A special additional coal allowance will also be made for each household.

Household coal rations will be based on a formula which includes the locality and the number of rooms and residents.

Original rationing proposals met with such opposition that they were withdrawn. Parliament is to be given the opportunity to debate the new scheme, which was announced in a white paper.

The coal industry will be organized as a national service and the organization now established will continue pending final decision by parliament.

This was interpreted to mean government control of the mines will continue into peace time unless parliament decides otherwise.

A national coal board will be established with a controller in each region, advised by a regional board.

The government has also decided not to withdraw any more men from the army to mine coal but in the future some men may be sent to the mines instead of to the army when not needed in their present work.

Joy In Russia

MOSCOW, June 3—(AP). — Britain's 1,000 - plane bombings of Germany this week have aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in Soviet Russia for the feats of her ally.

"The Soviet people together with the freedom-loving peoples of the world welcome with a feeling of deep satisfaction the successes of the British Air Force of the great aerial operations it has started," said Red Star, newspaper of the Russian army.

Serum Discovery Wards Off Influenza Year

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, June 3 —(CP Cable)— Australian army medical officers said today they believe a discovery of world-wide importance has been made by Dr. F. M. Burnet, authority on virus diseases at Melbourne Hospital.

This is a serum, easily administrable by spraying nose and throat, which is believed to prevent an attack of true influenza for a year. The only discomforts of treatment are the mild symptoms of an ordinary cold, which pass in a few days.

In order to test the treatment 120 soldiers in Victoria voluntarily underwent the treatment. Now thousands of militia have been inoculated with good results.

It is emphasized that the treatment prevents only true influenza, not ordinary colds, sinus, or ordinary nose and throat ailments.

The treatment so far has been limited to Victoria, but if experiments succeed it will be administered to the army throughout Australia.

Dr. Burnet prepared the vaccine from the main viruses known to cause influenza. He diminishes the virulence of the virus by an undisclosed special process, obtaining attentuated influenza virus. This is introduced into the body by spraying the nose and throat, which are the normal channels of influenza infection.

Kalinin Attacks Cost Nazis 950

MOSCOW, June 3.—(AP)—Engagements punctuating the stand-to on the southern and Kalinin fronts were officially reported today to have cost the Germans 950 killed.

The Soviet information bureau said Soviet troops repulsed several counter attacks on the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, destroyed three German tanks and four guns, blew up an ammunition dump wiped out 650 Germans and took some prisoners.

Red Army artillerymen were declared to have killed 300 Germans,

Protest Undignified Subordination "Hurting The Army"

MOSCOW, June 3—(AP).—A Tass dispatch from Geneva reported today that a letter complaining against the "undignified" subordination of the Italian general staff to the German command has been written to King Victor Emmanuel by Field-Marshal Pietro Badoglio and is being widely circulated among high Italian officers.

Marshal Badoglio was chief of the Italian general staff for 15 years before his resignation was announced December 6, 1940, during the Italian-Greek war.

(Little has been heard of the Marshal since his resignation but a report in Berne, Switzerland, to the New York Times last April said Badoglio was known in Rome as the "official opponent" of Mussolini.)

Tass' report quoted Badoglio's letter as expressing regret at the present situation of the Italian general staff.

Badoglio was said to have pointed out that as a result of what he called the "co-operation" between the Axis armed forces, Italian staff officers virtually were denied the possibility of planning independents their operations on the Mediterranean fronts.

It was said that, according to Badoglio, many Italian high officers share his opinion that such a state of affairs may lead to the "degeneration of the Italian army."

That Marshal Badoglio still was in the good graces of King Victor Emmanuel was indicated in a New York Times dispatch from Berne, last April 28 reporting that the monarch had conferred with the marshal and other leaders after Hitler's Reichstag speech.

Canterbury Again

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), June 3 (AP)—The German high command reported today that the English cathedral city of Canterbury was raided again last night.

The Germans declared their planes dropped heavy calibre bombs and 10,000 incendiary missiles on Canterbury.

Not Publishing

LONDON, June 3—(CP)— The B.B.C. reported from Berne today that since Saturday night's raid on Cologne no copies of the great Cologne newspaper "Koelnische Zeitung" have reached Switzerland.

"In Essen," the B.B.C. dispatch added, "Goering runs a newspaper, the 'Essener National Zeitung,' but yesterdays' issue also failed to turn up in Switzerland."

U.S. Drafts Bill For 500 New Warships

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP) — An $8,300,000,000 measure authorizing construction of approximately 500 fighting ships—a gigantic program which would come close to doubling the size of the United States fleet—was drafted today by Chairman Carl Vinson of the House of Representatives Naval Committee.

Vinson said that he would introduce the bill, calling for the largest naval construction program ever authorized at one time, today, and said that "the two-ocean navy probably would be finished in the next 24 months."

The bill would call for 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers, 500,000 tons of cruisers of both the light and heavy type, 900,000 tons of destroyers and destroyer escort vessels, and 899 small vessels for patrol work, mine-laying and tending duty.

The new ships would be in addition to those already authorized for construction. In its last official disclosure of strength in October of last year, the Navy reported 346 fighting ships in service and 347 building.

The House appropriations committee sent to the floor today a supplemental navy marine corps and coast guard supply bill calling for $654,999,740 in direct appropriations and $1,037,500,000 in contract authorization, of which $887,500,000 was earmarked for submarine construction.

Just how many submersibles this would provide for has not been announced officially but semi-official estimates are that it will add upwards of 100 long-range undersea raiders to the fleet.

Units Astride Main Supply Line

Move Offsets Nazis Widening Of Gap Along Main Front

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CAIRO, June 3—(AP).—British headquarters said today their desert forces had circled 30 miles to the rear of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's African Corps and seized one of the main strongholds guarding its vital line of supply, but reported that the Nazi Commander had won control of a nine-mile-wide shortcut through the British main front.

A sandstorm which screened the Libyan battle zone in a brown haze apparently masked the consolidating move in which Rommel pulled his forces together in the nine-mile area between gaps previously opened through the British minefield along the Ain El Gazala-Bir Hacheim line.

There was no immediate indication whether he hoped to muster sufficient power for a new blow across the wreckage-strewn sand flats toward Tobruk or would continue his previous withdrawal.

However, the newly-won British position astride his supply line cut deep into his chances of replacing lost or battered equipment.

Two Gaps in Line

There already were two gaps in the British front area, one along the Trigh Capuzzo track and another about 15 miles south, when Rommel's tanks, artillery and motorized infantry pulled back from penetrations farther east.

Apparently they attacked British forces holding the area between the gaps, drove them out, and established a wider control of the gaps which Rommel's forces could use either for withdrawal west of the British minefields or as a short cut for supplies.

Military commentators characterized the development as the start of a new phase in the fight, but said there were no indications yet what course Rommel would take—a new thrust toward Tobruk or continued withdrawal.

These sources said there still was considerable fighting between Knightsbridge and the German "island" in the British main line.

A Child's "Crime"

LONDON, June 3—(CP)— The B.B.C. reported today that a 10-year-old French girl, Suzanne Chiappe, has been sentenced by a German court at Metz, Alsace-Lorraine, to 25 months' forced labor. The girl's "crime" was "that she had given French prisoners of war shelter and food, and then showed them the road to the French frontier."

30,000 Bombers Due To Blast Nazis Monthly

LONDON, June 3.—(CP)—A British commentator declared today that air raids on Germany "will get bigger" and asserted that a total of 30,000 planes bombing Germany each month is "not a fantastic figure."

He said the objectives of the terrific raids on Cologne and the Ruhr had been "substantailly secured."

"We will repeat the dose and the dose will get bigger," he added.

The commentator disclosed that upwards of 1,000 fighters swept over France and escorted shipping Monday between the raid by 1,130 planes on Cologne Saturday night and the 1,036-plane raid on Essen Monday night.

He said the R.A.F. has the organization to send 2,000 or more bombers, when available, over Germany against one or two targets in the future on each night suitable for raiding.

250 Raiders a Day.

The Air Ministry announced today that British planes made more than 7,700 daylight sweeps over occupied France in one recent month — an average of about 250 planes a day.

In the first five months of 1942, it said the equivalent of 15 full German fighter squadrons was destroyed in day sweeps by the fighter command over enemy-occupied land. That figure, it pointed out, excluded German aircraft destroyed in the protection of coastal shipping as well as enemy losses at night.

The day sweeps, the Air Ministry News Service said, had the effect of a "second front" in the west "where nearly 50 per cent of the total German fighter force is retained to meet the joint offensive of the fighter and bomber commands."

Canucks Find Flak Heavier Rake Krupp Works Anew Despite Smoke From Ruins

Berlin Claims Krupps Missed For Duisburg
Say Only 200 Dead At Cologne
Rush A.A. Guns Into Bomb-Blasted Essen

LONDON, June 3—(CP Cable).—For the third time in 72 hours, British and Canadian air squadrons flung their might against the industrial Ruhr last night, blasting again at the munitions centre of Essen and targets in surrounding areas.

Fourteen bombers are missing. Compared with the 35 lost in the Essen raid the previous night and the 44 which did not return from Saturday night's blasting of Cologne this figure would indicate some 400 bombers participated in last night's operation.

Berlin Belittles Damage.

The German high command today sought to create the impression that Duisburg, rather than the Krupp arms centre of Essen was the main target of last nights R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. attacks. Duisburg is a few miles south-west of Essen.

The official report of the raids said: "The British Air Force undertook harassing attacks against several places in Western Germany. Considerable damage....was caused, especially in Duisburg.".

The Germans also claimed that only 200 persons were killed in Cologne in Saturday night's raid by 1,250 British and Canadian bombers, attributing to "British propaganda" reports that 20,000 were killed in the Rhineland city.

Nazi defences were stronger than those of the previous night at Essen and last Saturday night at Cologne. Canadian fliers who flew in all three raids reported on landing from their latest trip over Germany.

PO. D. G. Morris of St. John's, Nfld., piloting a Halifax bomber, was forced to jettison his bombs west of Essen when attacked by a Messerschmitt. Morris sent his bomber diving from a height of 17,000 feet down to 2,000 feet before eluding his attacker.

Heavy flak through the fuselage of a second Halifax bomber came close to Flt.-Sgt. R. V. Albright of Woodstock, N.B. who escaped injury. Fifteen holes were counted in a third Canadian-piloted bomber on its return.

"It was heavier flak than we got at Cologne and on our earlier Essen raid," said PO. P. E. M. Leith of Toronto.

When the British and Canadian pilots reached the German armament centre, home of the Krupp Works, they found smoke still rising from stricken areas, attesting anew to the severity of the bombing the previous night of the city of blast furnaces, factories and railway networks.

The authorities said the results of the follow-up attack are believed to have been satisfactory despite the smoke which made observation difficult. Weather conditions were good.

Meanwhile two German planes gave London its first night alert in seven months, scattering a few incendiaries in the suburbs. Authorities said they caused no damage. It was the first time since last November 1 that bombs had fallen in the capital.

A smaller number of other Nazi aircraft attacked points in South-east England. Four of the raiders were destroyed, three over Britain and one over its base in Holland.

With daylight, the round-the-clock air assault continued, and fighters and bombers swarmed across the Dover Strait toward German-occupied territory.

The Air Ministry news service said night fighters and bombers, which CommandoChief Mountbatten Arrives In U.S.

WASHINGTON, June 3 — (AP).— The arrival in the United States of Lord Louis Mountbatten, British Chief of Combined Operations, was announced to-day by the British Information Service.

It said Lord Mountbatten had come for "a short visit during which he will consult with representatives of United States fighting services."

As Chief of Combined Operations, Lord Mountbatten also heads the British commandos.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of the King, went to the United States last summer to take command of the aircraft carried Illustrious, then undergoing repairs in an American shipyard. He was recalled for unannounced duties in the fall.

On April 13 these duties were made clear to th public: Lord Louis was the new Chief of Combined Operations with the acting rank of Vice-Admiral and the honorary ranks of Lieutenant-General and Air Marshal—in other words, Chief of the Commandos.

At the start of the war he commanded the destroyer Kelly. It was damaged by mines in the North Sea but he brought it safely to port. Later it was sunk under him in the Mediterranean.

Another destroyer under his command, the Javelin, received two torpedo hits in a night action in the English Channel.

His father, the late Prince Louis of Battenberg, was First Sea Lord of the Admiralty before public opinion led to his retirement in the last war—he was a German-born naturalized citizen of Britain.

New Air Training Signing Delayed

OTTAWA, June 3 — (CP) — A last-minute postponement of the signing of the new British Commonwealth Air Training Plan agreement was made early this afternoon.

The agreement was to have been signed at three o'clock this afternoon, but it is understood some details required further consideration and the affair has been postponed indefinitely perhaps until to-morrow or the end of the week.

It is understood the broad lines of the agreement have already been settled, but that some of the financial or other phases of the arrangement have not been settled.

Adolf Takes No Chances on His Generals

Even Highhest, Best Known Doff Gun, Sw ord Before Entering Dictator's Presence

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP).—It's revolvers down and belts off for any general or field marshal who wants to see Hitler at his G.H.Q. in East Prussia, or in the Berlin Chancellory, or anywhere else.

No matter how well an army, navy or air force leader may known Der Fuehrer, no matter how completely in his confidence he may believe himself to be, the Dictator takes no chances.

Hence, before anybody can come into his presence, he must park his pistol, his military belt, or his sabre in an ante-room.

The erstwhile corporal of the First Great War loves the game of war more than he loves anything else. He wants to out-Napoleon Napoleon.

When in his Reichstag speech of April 26 he praised the German troops for having accomplished during the previous winter what the forces of the great Corsican could not achieve. He in fact told the world that he had already outstripped Napoleon.

Filled as he is with military ambition, he can tolerate no other gods beside himself. The late Colonel-General von Fritsch, the father of the present German army, had to resign because he dared criticize Hitler's acquiescence in Field-Marshal Werner von Blomberg's marital mes-alliance in 1938.

General Beck, chief of the German general staff, became "ill" just before the outbreak of the present war. He opposed Hitler's policy of frightfulness.

General Halder, the present chief of general staff, has been promoted only to Colonel-General, while a dozen of his colleagues were made Field-Marshals, simply because—so the rumor goes—he is forever warning the Dictator that this or that contemplated move involves more risks than the undertaking is worth.

Field Marshal von Brauchitsch, who always gave the impression of being in the pink of condition, "resigned" shortly before Christmas because of heart trouble. He now is reported imprisoned. His resignatian coincided with the discovery that the army was nowise prepared for the severe winter in Russia. There can be little doubt that he warned Hitler in time.

General Blaskowitz, widely publicized as the Hero of Warsaw, has gone into the discard. He objected to the brutal methods of the S.S. (Elite Guard) in occupied Poland.

Field-Marshal von Rundstedt appears to have been in the doghouse for some months following the autumn offensive in Russia. He seems to have quarrelled with Hitler over the degree to which the German army should retreat before going into winter quarters.

Von Rundstedt proved indispensable, however, and suddenly appeared in the news again this spring.

Always a Corporal.

Adolf Hitler to the generals of the old imperial will ever remain the First Great War corporal. True to their oath as soldiers they obey Der Fuehrer as the commander-in-chief of all Germany's military forces. But they often wince at his decisions and, when strictly among themselves, criticize both his strategic plans and their moral implications.

Take the keynote speech which Hitler delivered to the assembled military top leaders in his Berchtesgaden mountain retreat a few days before the invasion of Poland began. It caused no end of shaking of heads and whispers of dismay.

One officer sitting in the rear of the large room where the officers' corps was assembled scribbled the text of this brief but blood-curdling address in shorthand on the cuff of his shirt. Some day I expect to be able to publish that text.

In it Hitler puts himself on record as favoring the total war front in which women and children can be as little exempted as can civilian populations generally if caught between sections of the retreating didn't mind being called Ghengis Khan or Attila the Hun; history recorded these names as those of great doers. He urged the generals to be tough.

New Nazi Encircling Tale

Berlin Says Russians On Centre Front Crushed

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 3 — (AP).— The German high command claimed to-day that Russian groups allegedly encircled by the Germans on the Central Front (west of Moscow) have been crushed by the Nazis with a loss of more than 1,500 Russian dead and 2,000 prisoners.

In a northern sector of the front, the high command said, there was fierce fighting in the swamp region of Volkhovo, a city on the Moscow-Leningrad railroad 80 miles south-east of Leningrad.

The Germans claimed their attacks cut important enemy supply lines but gave no specific location. Russian counter-attacks were broken and, with the help of the dive-bombers, 32 Russian tanks were reported destroyed.

In one section alone, the Germans said, 400 Russian bodies were found on the battle ground after a German division repulsed a surprise attack.

Widen Hold On Madagascar

British Take Town South Of Big Naval Base

VICHY, June 3 — (AP).—British forces on Madagascar have occupied the town of Androvorano, 25 miles south of the British-occupied naval base of Diego Suarez, it was announced to-day.

Vichy sources said troop movements had been resumed on Madagascar, about a month after British forces captured the naval base at the northern end of the huge island.

The report was the first indication in Vichy that the British forces again were advancing southward, although reports reached here yesterday of resumed activity accompanied by increased air action by both sides.

There was no fighting mentioned in the reported occupation, although details still were lacking and there was a possibility of military resistance.

It was the first definite report of British progress since the capture of Diego Suarez.

The Duke, the island's governor, was summoned from Washington after bloodshed and the looting of fashionable stores followed a demonstration of unskilled laborers on an American project against wages.

The Duke found business in the colony at a standstill. Two rioters were killed and others wounded by gunfire, and some casualties were reported among police and British

The Polish campaign proceeded with a fierceness and brutality unequalled hitherto, but Hitler was not satisfied. He wanted the soldiers and their officers not only to fight battles, but also to make short shrift of the Polish population.

The army balked at this. So Hitler sent his uncompromising SS. men to Poland to "clean up." They did—and countless are the stories told me by German officers themselves of acts of inhumanity committed by the Black Guards.

General von Blaskowitz, on behalf of the army, protested against these methods. He has been in disgrace ever since.

Here's how a German boy who was drafted at the very beginning of the Hitler compulsory service program stated the feeling towards the SS. Guard to me when on furlough after the Polish campaign (the boy fell in France the following spring):

"We'd fight and fight with hell popping 'round about us, until we thought we were ready to take a certain town or other locality. Suddenly there was a halt. At first we couldn't understand the reason — everything seemed to be going favorably. Well, we learned soon enough by experience: The SS. troops were due to arrive to take part in the final skirmish and to share in the glory. It certainly made us sore."

Another point of friction between Hitler and the old-line generals has been the Nazi fight on the church. The old-Prussian officer was used to going to church on Sundays and seeing army chaplains about him on the battlefield.

On December 23, 1940, I attended a Christmas celebration in the Berlin garrison. The colonel in charge had the soldiers sing all the traditional Christian Christmas songs like "Stille Nacht" and "Adeste Fideles."

To my somewhat surprised comment that this was rather unusual he said:

"I'm not going to let anybody interfere with our celebrating Christmas in the good old Christian way. Others may decide to revive old pagan German customs for Yuletide; so long as I head this garrison it's a Christian Christmas for us —and I think the soldiers prefer it."

I for one certainly saw and heard them singing with deep emotion and reverence.

In Hitlers' entourage there is one officer who wields a tremendous influence. He is General Jodel, the Fuehrer's personal aide and liaison office to the high command. He is one of the youngest Generals. "Hitler listens to whoever Jodels" is a wisecrack one often hears ("J" is pronounced like "Y" in German.)

Presumbably like Foreign Minister Ribbentrop he is an ideal "yes-man," who feels intuitively what his master want to hear and then presents these ideas in such a way that the Fuehrer sees his own views reflected but thinks his understudy is so clever as to have arrived at the same conclusions as he himself.

One hears again and again that the Generals' Corps is fed up and ready to throw the entire Nazi outfit out.

Such rumors, I believe, are too much the result of wishful thinking "Hitler listen sto whoever Jodels" disagree with Der Fuehrer, he remembers his oath of allegiance. And he also remembers that in imperial Germany and later in the short-lived republic, too, it was part of the creed of an officer that he must never become mixed up in politics. To remove the Nazis would be a political act of the first magnitude.

Labor Question Vexes Seymour Council

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3 (ENS) —The township of Seymour council had its first intimation of what the steel priorities mean when they met for their regular session here on Monday afternoon. The matter came up when a report on bridge repairs was being considered during the latter part of the meeting. Secretary Wesley Stephens reported that he had been in conversation with Engineer Button on the question of repairing the bridge on cross road No. 1 West of Campbellford, which the entire council viewed during their annual road inspection last month. It was revealed that although the township had a small quantity of steel available they lacked a sufficient amount to repair the bridge, which was regarded as in a "dangerous condition." Although there is a certain amount of scrap steel in possession of local hydro electric plants Mr. Stephens said he had made enquiries about it and learned that they could only sell it to a licensed junk dealer who in turn could not turn it over to the municipality unless they produced a priority permit. If Ottawa is unwilling to give the township a priority rating on the steel members agreed they would have to repair the bridge with wooden spans.

Disscuss Wage Rates

Dealing further with the question of road repairs Supt. D. T. Petherick said that the past couple of weeks had been too wet to do any work and added further that he wasn't sure that the township wage scale (30 cents an hour) would provide him with sufficient man power. "You can't be sure of them even after you do get them," he said in answer to a question by Reeve Ross. To ensure an operator for their road maintainer however, the council agreed to boost the hourly rate paid to Ted Iliffe from 40 to 50 cents an hour. He addressed the council and told them he would not consider the position at last year's rate.

School attendance officer G. W. Anderson gave his report for the month of April declaring that May reports had not yet reached him. Attendance in 11 of 12 schools in the township during that month had averaged 221 with 247 on the roll. A total of 15 pupils were taken out of school during the month—11 for home help and 4 on employment certificates. Both May and June reports will be tabled at the July meeting said Mr. Anderson.

Increased Wages

The clerk read a circular letter from the Department of Municipal Affairs requesting the cooperation of the council in emphasizing the imminent fuel shortage during the coming winter and this was received and filed. A by-law appointing Robert McCulloch as weed inspector in place of James Waters (assessor) was passed. Trey increased the hourly rate paid the inspector from 25 to 30 cents an hour but after discussion left unchanged the 5 cents per mile allowed for travelling on tours of inspection.

The following accounts were passed: George Fisher, labor, $7.65; Roy Brown, labor, $1.00; W. McDonald, fuel and labor, $2.20; D. Petherick, supt. and supplies, $29.60; Canada Ingot Iron Co., $226.31; Dominion Road Machinery, $31.40; Mason Bros. supplies, $93.58; Ted Iliffe, labor, $90.40; Reg. Hay, labor, $67.80; James Waters, Court of Revision, $4.00; Alex. Milne, relief account, $3.00; Dunk's Grocery, relief account, $12.66; Counties Treasurer Charity, $168.73; Arden Haig, labor $2.80; W. Stephens freight, $1.27; Herald Office, printing, $14.25; J. P. Archer, insurance $175.00; Albert Stephens, sheep killed, $18.00; A. D. Bennett, account $6.00; G. W. Anderson, school attendance officer, $5.00.

It added that fighter command losses "bear no comparison to the enormous casualties the luftwaffe suffered in the Battle of Britain."

Answering a suggestion that the aircraft engaged in sweeps might be used more usefully in other theatres of war, the Air Ministry News Service said that "if the fighter sweeps were to be abandoned or had been abandoned months ago, it would not help add one single squadron to any of our overseas fighter forces."

The obstacle in reinforcement of fighter strength on distant fronts is entirely a matter of transport and does not lie in any shortage of aircraft or pilots, the service added.

Registration of ministers and laymen attending the conference totalled 380, an increase of 25 representatives over last year.

The retiring president, Rev. Dr. Fletcher, told the conference that only three students were ready for ordination into the ministry.

"This is lamentable," he stated, "as there will be an urgent need for leaders in the Church after the war."

He urged the representatives to use their influence in persuading young men to offer themselves for the Christian ministry

Secretary Beckel reported that there had been no resignations of ministers during the past year. Ten ministers have joined the active service, he said.

Increase In Salary Is Refused Firemen

"Having secured complete and authoritative information of the salaries paid members of fire departments in eight other cities of size and condition comparable with Peterborough, and having ascertained that the salaries paid to members of the Peterborough fire department compare favorably with those paid in those eight other cities, we recommend that no action be taken on the request from members of the department for an increase in their salary scale"

The recommendation from the fire and light committee was adopted by the council Monday night without comment.

Britons Take Offensive, Go 30 Miles

R.A.F. Playing Havoc With Rommel's Long Supply Lines

CAIRO, June 3 —(AP)—British troops have occupied an Axis strong point about 30 miles west of the main British positions in the Libyan desert, British headquarters announced today.

A headquarters communique also reported that Axis forces, meanwhile, occupied an area between gaps in the British minefield which they had forced earlier in their new offensive.

The captured strong point was Rotunda Segnali, a long-established Axis supply base, and the penetration indicated that the British forces had shifted to the offensive, swinging for a knockout against the battered Axis forces as the wildest of all the see-saw battles of Libya stretched into its second week.

Rotunda Segnali is 44 miles west of Knightsbridge, the desert trail crossing which now lies east of the centre of fighting. The war bulletin said a considerable part of the action yesterday was in the area of Knightsbridge.

Vital advantages lay with the British troops, lunging back against an Axis offensive which thus far has been a costly failure.

Chief among these were domination of the skies, possession of the battlefield and superiority of weapons proved in a week of fighting in the blistering heat of North Africa.

At a cost of perhaps half their striking power, all the Nazis could show for a week-long offensive were two gaps in Britain's 50-mile line extending inland from the coast at Ain El Gazala to Bir Hacheim, the desert anchor.

The gaps were being used by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel for escape hatches. The R.A.F., in a superb display of land-air co-ordination, joined its bombs with the firepower of the mechanized land forces.

Although the British forces, too, were suffering considerable losses, they had greater initial strength and the retreating enemy was leav-

Coal Contracts Are Awarded

The council's action on the request of Fleming Place residents for some improvements to their roadway and neighborhood was the adoption of this motion from the Board of Works: "That the City Engineer and City Solicitor be requested to submit a complete report dealing with the request of the Fleming Place residents, and also that they investigate and report on the assessments of Fleming Place."

Another resolution permits North Monaghan council to construct a sewer on Fradette avenue to the point on the plan as shown to the Engineer, and that this sewer connect with the city's sewer system."

Joseph Vasey was sold for $100 a lot on Patterson street as approved by the property committee.

The offer of Geo. W. Hawkes of $50 each for two lots on Armour Road was accepted; and Ross Payne pays $175 for a city lot on Aberdeen avenue.

Coal Contracts

Coal contracts were let as follows: For the relief office, 14 tons, stove coal at $15.45, from Sanitary Ice Supply.

Rest Room—10 tons nut at $15.45, from Sanitary Ice Supply.

Quen Mary Hospital—40 tons lump at $9.30; 4 tons pea at $15, J. E. A. Fitzgerald Company.

Police Station—25 tons Pocohontas at $12.50, 3 tons nut at $16.25, from McCarthy & Johnston.

Fire Hall—60 tons nut slack at $8.95 from J. E. A. Fitzgerald Co.

City Buildings—50 tons stoker at $9.60 from McCarthy & Johnston.

The report of the special committee on purchases included the comment that a new form of tender was supplied by City Clerk Outram to all the coal dealers in the city, setting out accurately specifications of the coal required and requested information from bidders as to analysis of the coal and other details. One of the tenders was not considered because it was received after the time advertised for receiving tenders. Two other tenders were not considered because the information required regarding analysis and other details were not supplied on the form."

Alderman Bradburn said he understood that the time provided for preparing tenders and getting analysis information from coal companies was only nine days, and that letters would have to be sent to the United States to obtain the data the council demanded this year.

Alderman Sullivan remarked that he understood the facts regarding coal analysis were available through Toronto.

"It might be wise next year to mail a copy of the specifications to each fuel dealer before hand so that there will be ample time for those who wish to submit tenders," Alderman Sullivan suggested.

Cat Sleeps Quietly Above Busy Street

One poor little brown and white cat caused considerable excitement on George street Tuesday. Several passers-by heard a frightened meow floating on the breeze and after looking around finally discovered the animal clinging precariously to a ledge above Kent's Shoe Store. How it got there no one was able to tell, and how to get it off seemed to be another unknown factor.

The manager of the store called the Fire Department to come and do a rescue act, but met with a flat refusal. Then the Humane Society was contacted. They were very interested but expressed regret that they could do nothing to help, because the last time they attempted to render assistance their man fell off the ladder and broke an arm.

During these conversations the cat, as cats will, curled up and ignoring the hubub went off to sleep.

An hour later the animal was still peacefully enjoying a nap when a step ladder was produced. Just when everything seemed to be O.K. it was found the ladder wouldn't reach. As a last resort Jim White of Kent's went up to the first floor apartment above the Bank of Nova Scotia, and by leaning out of the window at one end of the ledge and coaxing the cat with soft "Here Pussy's," the animal left his perch at the far end and as it approached the window it was seized by the scruff of the neck, and deposited down on the street in very short time.

Canada's War Plants Aid In Big Raids

Gardiner Defends Shift From Farms As Necessary Move

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 3.—(CP)—Movement of workers from farms of Canada into the Dominion's war industries was a factor in the mighty raids delivered upon the German cities of Cologne and Essen, says Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Mr. Gardiner told the House of Commons last night that because men and women had transferred from farms to industrial work in Canada it was possible to send 1,000 planes over Essen Monday night and more than 1,200 over Cologne last Saturday night.

Answering protests from some members that men should not have been allowed to leave agriculture for other jobs, Mr. Gardiner said it was essential to build up the military equipment of Britain and the rest of the empire after the outbreak of war.

In spite of complaints of shortages of farm labor, production had increased notably. Prices for farm products were better than they had been since 1930, and certain markets were available for certain well-defined lines of production.

Mr. Gardiner spoke in continued debate on the war appropriation bill. Consideration of the bill will be continued today.

When Tuesday's sitting started, national war services department matters were under discussion. War Services Minister Thorson said the number of single men and childless widowers aged 21 to 30 who are available for compulsory service was reaching exhaustion in two administrative divisions, Quebec and Vancouver.

When agricultural matters came under review, Mr. Gardiner said he though the existing potato acreage in Canada would supply all available markets including the possible needs of the United States.

When price ceiling regulations in relation to farm products were being discussed, Mr. Gardiner said he had supported the price-ceiling policy. He said when setting of ceiling prices had interfered with farmers' returns, on the basis of "floors" which had been placed under such prices, the agriculture department had usually succeeded in having them rearranged.

He added "the one set of products in Canada that did have a floor put

2nd Battalion Midland Unit Wants Recruits

KINGSTON, June 3.—From all points in Canada come encouraging reports about recruiting in the Reserve Army and Military District No. 3 is no exception.

In the past, the Reserve Army's chief role was to supply reinforcements for the Active Army but now, by Act of Parliament, it is also required to perform "an operational role in the defence of Canada whenever required."

Located in this district, which has its headquarters in Kingston, are several regiments which, at the present time, are recruiting up to full war strength.

To date the results have been excellent. Some of the units, like the 2nd Battalion Midland Regiment (R.F.) commanded by Lieut.-Colonel A. H. Bounsall, with headquarters at Millbrook, still have room for patriotic Canadians who would like to join, who feel it is their duty to do so.

Dates Back to 1866

Citizens who enlist in the Midland Regiment immediately associate themselves with a unit that dates back in origin to 1866. It's present identity is the result of a reorganization that took place in 1936, amalgamating the Northumberland Regiment and the Durham Regiment.

Soon after the period of reorganization the unit welcomed Col. Bounsall as its new commanding officer, an officer whose Great War record and rapid rise in rank from trooper to his present position, fitted him as it did few others, to lead a regiment so closely identified with Canadian history.

With the Cavalry

Col. Bounsall began his military career as a trooper in the Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons in 1913. Following this he served as a private in the 102nd Infantry Battalion, C.E.F. in the Great War, was wounded twice and in 1918 invalided home.

In 1921, following the reorganization of the Canadian Militia, he joined the Durham Regiment and on April 4th, 1921, was appointed lieutenant. In 1935 he was appointed Brigade Major in the 9th Infantry Brigade. In 1937 Col. Bounsall took over his new command in the Midland Regiment and on July 23rd, 1940 received authorization to organize the 2nd Battalion Midland Regiment (R.F.).

The name Midland, selected for the name of the unit, with chosen as a tribute to the Midland Battalion which was represented by units from this district in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885 and which won much distinction in that campaign.

In the present war, the 1st Battalion Midland Regiment (A.F.) has gained much favorable notice and was one of the few regiments from which guard detachments were drawn during the precautionary period just prior to the declaration of war. In this respect they established an enviable reputation for smartness and efficiency while on duty.

"It has always been the object of this unit to warrant the confidence of all parents in the habits of their sons will form in its service, namely, sober industry," are the words of Colonel Bounsall, and they should allay all fears that parents might have about sanctioning with approval their sons service in the armed forces of the country.

1st Battalion Mobilized

In July, 1940, the guard detachments were absorbed in the mobilization of the 1st Battalion. During the guard periods the unit won the unique nickname "The Mad Midlands", which has stuck to this day.

Since then the unit has performed valuable duty in the Niagara district. At the present the 1st Battalion of the Midlands are somewhere in Western Canada, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel J. C. Gamey, who came back from overseas to lead the regiment.

Before the new policy concerning Canada's Reserve Army came into effect, they were permitted to enlist men eligible for Active Service but under the new policy, enlistment will be restricted to men between the ages of 17 and 19, those

Council's Hand Forced In Buying Lots

COBOURG, June 3.—(ENS)—By-law authorizing the parks commission to purchase the expropriated Lavis lots at the beach, has been given its two readings by the council and will be immediately sent to Toronto for the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board. If the Board approves of the by-law, which provides for the issuance of $4,000 in debentures the council will then proceed to give the by-law its third reading and pass it. The time is limited as the court of appeal set June 30 as the final date by which the business can be settled. For two years the town council fought the purchase of the Lavis lots for park purposes but the Commission went ahead and commenced expropriation proceedings. After an appeal had been filed by the owner, John Lavis, the expropriation price was set at $4,000. The council made it plain that its hand was being forced by the fact that council legal authorities and the Municipal World had advised that the council could be forced to supply the money for the purchase of the lots by the parks commission.

"It is not a matter of whether any individual councillor believes the debenture by-law should be passed or not," said Mayor Burnet, "it is a matter of having to do it."

Issue Debentures

The debenture by-law calls for the issue of $4,000 worth of debentures at the rate of 2¾ per cent. Of this amount $3,500 will be applied to the purchase of the lots, and $500 will be to pay legal expenses already incurred. The debentures will be issued in amounts of $100 and will be entirely repaid at the end of five years.

"Personally I am not in favor of large corporations taking lands and properties from private owners," said Reeve Dodge. "But we find ourselves as a council, on advice of counsel, expropriating this land and I don't see any way out. I'm voting for it under force," he said.

It was pointed out that the parks board can legally demand up to one mill for their annual expenditures. One mill on the Cobourg assessment, which exceeds $3,000,000 is over $3,000.

The Board has told the council that it is not necessary to actually sell the $4,000 worth of debentures, for two years. In two years the parks board members estimate the sum of $4,000 can be applied back on the debt and remove the necessity for selling the debentures.

This would be done by Board raising its budget the $1,000 which it is getting this year. The maximum allowed by law, in Cobourg case amounting to more than $3,000 and immediately applying $2,000 of this back on the debenture each years for two years. In the meantime the debenture stock would remain in the bank as collateral for a loan of $4,000 for the immediate purchase of the Lavis property and pay all expenses incurred.

Whether this would be as economical as going ahead and selling the debentures at the very favorable rate of 2¾ per cent was questioned by council. Bank interest on the $4,000 loan would probably exceed 4 per cent, it was stated.

Improvement Shown In Quality Cheese

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3 (ENS) —Whatever may have been the opinion of cheese a month ago officials can now breath a sigh of relief at the rapidly improving grades being delivered to the local warehouse. Eight factories delivered cheese which scored 94 points here last week. Only three factories got into this class in the same week one year ago. There were however 19 lots or a total of 1,361 cases graded as compared to only 886 for the corresponding week in 1941.

According to District Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray, factories in the southern part of Northumberland County are showing the same decided increase in production as has been seen in other parts of the county. Early last week patrons of Roger Factory in Murray Township were delivering 19,000 pounds of milk, Blake Moran leading with 850 pounds of milk and Chas. Hannah next with 750 pounds. At the same time Wooler patrons were shipping 17,000 pounds and here Henry McColl was the leading producer with 826 pounds and C. Dawson came next with 576 pounds.

Seymour Reviews 2 Assessment Appeals

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3. — (ENS). — Two assessment appeals were tabled before the Seymour Court of Revision which met in the clerk's office on Monday afternoon, with Reeve W. J. Ross presiding. Mrs. Kate Althouse requested a downward scaling on a cottage owned by her at Healey Falls and assessed at $300, but the assessment was sustained.

James MacDowall based his request on surer grounds and succeeded in convincing members of the court that the land on his farm was assessed too highly. In his opinion the assessment should have been lowered from $3,000 to $2,500, but the court compromised by slicing $200 from it. They lowered the buildings which MacDowall claimed had been built to sell the farm, from $800 to $600. Several corrections were made in the roll with Assessor James Waters as the appellant.

Mexico Declares War

All three countries of North America are now united in the war against the Axis. Although no great anxiety was felt about possible Axis infiltration in Mexico it is more comfortable to have that country with us than potentially against us.

During the last war the situation was very different, and, when the U.S. entered the war in 1917 her relations with Latin America and Mexico especially were anything but amiable. The incident of Vera Cruz was fresh in the minds of the Mexicans, and so was the expedition made in pursuit of Pancho Villa by a part of the U.S. army under Pershing. Mexico was so antipathetic to the States, in fact, that Germany offered her an alliance, promising the return of lands in Texas, Arizona and New Mexico which had been taken from her.
